Luce Wins Masterton Trophy

Buffalo Makes System Go with Hard Work

BUFFALO (CP) — Centre Don Luce of Buffalo Sabres says the key to success is hard work.

"I think the system's greatness comes from knowing where to go on the ice," Luce said, after being named winner of the Bill Masterton Memorial Trophy awarded annually to the National Hockey League player who best exemplifies the qualities of perseverence, sportsmanship and dedication to hockey.

"There has been a good deal of talk about the system used by Philadelphia Flyers in the best-of-seven Stanley Cup final against Buffalo. The series resumes with the fourth game tonight and Philadelphia is holding a 3-1 edge.

"The system becomes good when everybody on the ice knows his position and works to get there," Luce said. "We could strictly hit and check more, but I don't think we have to do that. I think we can play our game too.

"It's a very good system. Everybody calls it defence but if you're playing good defence, you're playing in the other team's end.

"Let's say they're a defensive club and we can play offence. It comes down to who is going to work harder. It comes down to who good systems playing and the team that works the hardest is going to win."

Luce, a five-year-old native of London, Ont., said he was proud to have won the Masterton award.

"It's one of those things that when you were a little guy, you wondered what the feeling was like. Now I've got it, I can describe it."

Sabres coach Floyd Smith said he, too, was proud of Luce's award.

"As far as Donny winning the Masterton, I think it stems or less tries to explain what we are trying to do here," Smith said. "We want to have a hockey club with a little discipline, dedication and the will to win."

The Sabres definitely want to win tonight's game to even the series before it returns to Philadelphia for the fifth game Sunday.

Smith said he would start goalie Gerry Desjardins tonight despite the fact Desjardins allowed three goals on six shots in the first period of Tuesday's game, won 5-4 in overtime by the Sabres. Roger Crozier played the last three periods of that game.

"I feel things just didn't go Desjardins' way," Smith said. "Everyone's entitled to a bad night. He wasn't sure of himself Tuesday night, but he has played well enough to be given the opportunity to go back and play the next game."

Drapeau's Optimism Isn't Shared by All

LAUSANNE, Switzerland (CP) — Mayor Jean Drapeau emerged from a protracted closed-door session of the International Olympic Committee (IOC) on Wednesday, still seemingly confident although he is subject to an unscheduled reappearance before the committee today for further questioning.

Although he said "no one really showed any anxiety" over Montreal's ability to stage the 1976 Olympic Games, he agreed to "make myself available", and was even prepared to cancel afternoon departure plans, if necessary.

He also said, under questioning, that he was pressed from some quarters to consider the possibility of contingency plans in case Montreal finds it cannot handle the Games due to labor difficulties and construction delays.

However, he rejected this idea, as he has heatedly in the past.

"Such a solution would be no solution," he said.

"Plans couldn't be conceived and executed anywhere in the world" for taking over the Games at this late date, he said.

Despite the mayor's enduring optimism, however, and the edge given of the IOC delegates to believe that all is well in Montreal, he nevertheless remained grave doubts in some minds.

Other sources said it was Lord Kilanin, the IOC president, who reflected some colleagues' views in pressing for some sort of contingency planning—always a touchy subject with Drapeau.

"A substitute would not be a solution and if it is not, they why go elsewhere—that is what I said," said Drapeau.

"If we spend time, imagination and money on other plans we would be using time, imagination and money very much needed on the present site. We would just divide our effort."

Earlier, the mayor said it would take only half an hour to make his presentation, plus question time, but in fact he was behind closed doors for three hours.

4 Players Get Suspensions

BUFFALO (CP) — Four players will sit out suspensions at the start of the 1975-76 National Hockey League season as a result of ludicrous conduct during the current Stanley Cup playoffs.

NHL president Clarence Campbell announced Wednesday that Bob Plager of St. Louis Blues and Dave Hutchison of Los Angeles Kings have been suspended for five games. Dave Williams of Toronto Maple Leafs and Gene Carr of the Kings got two game suspensions.

Plager's suspension stemmed from an incident in the Blues' preliminary round game against Pittsburgh Penguins. The Blues, St. Louis, when the Blues defenseman charged referee Art Van Hellemond and shoved Hoeneman in the back, earning a game misconduct for each offence.

Van Hellemond suffered a back injury and worked only one game before being forced to sit out the rest of the post-season schedule.

Campbell said the matter of additional fine to Plager to cover the loss of the services of the referee and cancellation of half of his normal playoff assignments would be reserved for later decision.

Hutchison and Williams were involved in stick swinging in the third game of the Leafs-Kings first round playoff series at Los Angeles, after Williams had scored and Carr were issued fighting majors. Carr was ejected from the game for spitting at Williams as they entered the penalty box.

Carr was given another game misconduct for hitting linesman Bob Hodges. Hutchison then broke off the Los Angeles bench, skated to the Toronto penalty box and began swinging his stick at Williams. Both players got match penalties.

Few Problems Are Settled

QUEBEC (CP) — The four-day annual convention of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association concludes today and while the future location of two of the association's tournaments will be announced, several other problems will not be resolved at this meeting.

Announcements were expected on the cities chosen to play host to the 1977 national midget tournament and the 1976 Memorial Cup. The 1976 midget event, for players under 17, had already been allotted to Calgary, but Moncton, N.B., Halifax and Montreal all entered bids for the 1977 event.

Three cities in Quebec province bid for the Memorial Cup—the Tier 1 Major Junior national championship. Quebec City, Sherbrooke and Montreal were the bidders.

Today's plenary session and an executive board meeting will be the last official functions for Jack Devine of Belleville as CAHA president. Devine's two-year term will be complete, with first vice-president Don Johnson of St. John's, Nfld., scheduled to move into the president's chair following an election of officers and directors.

The fledging Canadian Major Junior Hockey League, made up of teams from Canada's three major junior leagues, remains one of the problems the CAHA will have to solve at a later date.

And Del Wilson of Regina, newly-elected chairman of the board of the CMJHL, flew home to Regina Wednesday without resolving the contentious issue that exists between the Western Canada Hockey League and the CAHA. The WCHL has threatened to withdraw from the CAHA next season because the national governing body will not allow its teams to cross provincial boundaries in the four western provinces to recruit players from Tier 2 Junior A clubs.

Two resolutions that would have allowed the WCHL recruiting were held in abeyance by the CAHA session Wednesday. The CAHA, its provincial branches in British Columbia, Alberta, Saskatchewan and Manitoba, and the CMJHL will meet in Calgary June 8 in a final attempt to resolve the issue.

On another front, the CAHA was no further ahead in its attempt to get the two major professional leagues—the National Hockey League and the World Hockey Association—to sign new agreements covering payment for the pros in the CAHA or junior players drafted to professional ranks.

In an effort to get the NHL and WHA to the bargaining table, the CAHA sent a telegram to Health and Welfare Minister Marc Lalonde Wednesday. In the message the association said it wanted to express to the minister "our grave concern over the serious unsettled situation presently existing between hockey in Canada."

A similar telegram was sent to the 10 provincial ministers of sport and recreation on behalf of CAHA's provincial branches.

In a step to reduce violence in amateur hockey, the rules committee Wednesday approved more strident measures and penalties for fighting, cross-checking, high-sticking, butting, hair-pulling along with mistreatment of game officials by players or coaches.

In a further step to protect its game officials the CAHA voted that it be mandatory for the referee and linesmen to wear protective helmets.

The rule changes and the wearing of helmets by officials become mandatory for all amateur leagues below the level of major junior leagues. The major junior leagues currently operate under a modified version of professional rules.

Cincinnati's Perez Has Regained His Touch

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Johnny Bench went to bat for Tony Perez last winter as Perez could go to bat for Cincinnati Reds this summer and the move is paying off.

Bench, who interceded for his teammate with the Reds in an attempt to trade him during the off-season, was glad to see his grandstand play the way Perez is hitting now.

"I got the feeling back," Perez said Wednesday night—and few would doubt him after he drove in four runs, two with a homer, to lead the Reds to a 11-4 win over New York Mets.

The home run was Perez' sixth of the season and the RBIs increased his total to 19 tops on the team.

In other National League baseball games San Francisco Giants beat Pittsburgh Pirates 3-1 in 11 innings, Atlanta Braves defeated Montreal Expos 4-3, Houston Astros blanked Philadelphia Phillies 4-0, San Diego Padres beat St. Louis Cardinals 1-0 and Los Angeles Dodgers defeated Chicago Cubs 12-4.

Along with Perez' big night, Dave Concepcion and Dont Gullett Flynn each knocked in three runs as the Reds tied their highest run output of the season.

Perez hit a two-run homer in the fourth and led a four-run fifth with a two-run single. Concepcion added a two-run single in the fifth and a solo homer in the seventh and Flynn hit a three-run homer, his first home run of the season, in the eighth.

The Mets staked Tom Seaver, 4-4, to a 3-0 lead after two innings, but the Reds responded with three in the fourth to tie it and chased Seaver in the fifth.

Chris Speier's base-loaded single with none out in the 11th inning gave San Francisco its victory over Pittsburgh and a sweep of their three-game series.

The victory was the Giants' fifth in six games and improved their extra-inning record to 5-6 this season.

TONY PEREZ

Darrell Evans hit his seventh and eighth home runs of the season and Mike Lum added another to Atlanta's long-ball attack leading the Braves over Montreal.

Red Sox Pound Lefties

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Oakland A's ended their troubles by starting three left-handers in their American League baseball series against Boston Red Sox at Fenway Park and the Bead Sox gave it to them.

Wednesday night's 7-3 Boston victory featured Carl Yastrzemski's grand-slam homer and a two-run shot by Bice Petrocelli off Ken Holtzman.

The Red Sox hit six home runs in sweeping the series, stretching the A's hitless streak to four and dropping them into a first-place tie in the American League's West Division with Texas Rangers, who edged Milwaukee Brewers 5-4.

Elsewhere, Minnesota Twins slipped Detroit Tigers 4-3 in 11 innings, Baltimore Orioles beat Chicago White Sox 8-4, Kansas City Royals defeated New York Yankees 4-1 in 10 innings and Cleveland Indians beat California Angels 3-2.

Yastrzemski hit the sixth grand slam of his career in the seventh inning after the Red Sox loaded the bases on singles by Rob Montgomery, Juan Beniquez and Rick Burleson.

"I've been hitting the ball good for the last week or so and it's time for some runs to start falling in," said the 35-year-old slugger, who hasn't been up to his diet of left-handed pitching. I guess I was the dull as a left-hander."

Even old-timers were unable to recall a team pitching three left-handers for Boston's home Fenway Park, where the unfriendly left field usually sets southpaws alive.

Despite an aching arm, Reggie Cleveland held the Red Sox to seven hits, including home runs by Garry Tomaso and Reggie Jackson.

Janis Joplin Film Canadian Venture

Written for CP
By JIM MILLIGAN

A small Canadian company, acting in defiance of evidence that films about rock stars and rock music have become a dubious investment in recent years, has produced a 90-minute flashback that brings Janis Joplin back to life.

F. R. (Budge) Crawley, who owns 90 per cent of Crawley Films, is the producer of Janis.

In 30 years, the company has made mainly industrial and more conventional documentaries, although Crawley gained international recognition for his feature documentation of the Indian Mutiny, The Lion's Necklace, and a widely-acclaimed full-length movie, The Luck of Ginger Coffey, starring Robert Shaw.

Crawley, 63, has also provided work for such eminent Canadian actors as Christopher Plummer, Genevieve Bujold and Lorne Greene.

Crawley saw Janis Joplin perform in Toronto in 1970, three months before she died of an overdose of heroin. He decided to embark on the film at when he became aware of the amount of footage available from her Canadian tour on the fabled Festival Express.

To produce Janis he raised $500,000, much of it from his spent film fee, the rights to interview segments and concert clips that make up the body of the film as well as special footage of the singer's return to Port Arthur, Texas, for a high-school reunion.

The movie unfolds chronological concert clips and appearances at Monterey and Woodstock, a European tour and the 1970 Canadian tour. There is also a gig on the Dick Cavett show and a studio rehearsal of Big Brother and the Holding Company for the recording of Cheap Thrills.

The music is interspersed with interview clips which, in the final analysis, add nothing to available material on the singer's life.

There are at least two books that tell the story of Janis Joplin. One is a sensationalized look at her years of popularity by Peggy Caserta titled Going Down With Janis, and the other is a more credible biography, Buried Alive With the Blues, by Myra Friedman.

Despite their weaknesses, both paperbacks tell much more about the famed singer and the person than does the film. Its interviews seldom get past the effective facade she had developed to deal with her public and the media.

What does become apparent as the film rolls along is the way Janis quickly went about the business of burning herself out in the shortest time possible. It can be seen in her face and felt in her attitude but little motivation for her behavior is apparent.

The closest look at what might have been some of her demons appears in the footage of the Port Arthur High School reunion, where she seems to settle with a heavily concealed hatred of her former classmates, for the way they treated her and for what they represent.

At times, as reporters badger her, she seems to verge on tears or some sort of private hysteria but still manages to choke back any outburst that would give real evidence of what she is feeling. But it is clear that the event was not the triumph she hoped to claim.

Some of the best-known Joplin material, 15 numbers in all, appear in the film including Ball and Chain, Cry Baby, Mercedes Benz, I Can't Turn You Loose, Me and Bobby McGee and, of course, Piece of My Heart in an anticlimactic spot near the finish.

The sound quality and the technical proficiency of the bands varies greatly. Big Brother is barely competent to convey a three-chord structure in the beginning but the Kozmic Blues Band and the Full Tilt Boogie Band of later years are smooth machines.

Janis is seen developing from a raw, unadorned performer with incredible natural presence at Monterey to a slick professional with the assured stage mannerisms needed to remain the focal point in front of a bandg wall of sound. But even as she becomes more confident on stage and in conversation, one can see her being worn away.

The film has been seen only in a few North American cities so far but wider distribution can be expected. Its editing is effective with little time wasted on visual tricks.

G and S Operettas Started as Fill-in

LONDON (CP) — First it was bad news for London impresario Richard D'Oyly Carte when a little more than a century ago he found a new show he had booked, an Offenbach operetta, formed too short a program.

Then came the good news. W. S. Gilbert, a successful lawyer who had written some comic verse, dropped into the Royalty Theatre. D'Oyly Carte had wanted a new item, light, amusing and preferably English.

The impresario and Gilbert talked. The lawyer said he had already written a suitable libretto, Trial By Jury.

D'Oyly Carte liked it and persuaded Gilbert to take it to Arthur Sullivan, then an eminent musician.

Gilbert and Sullivan—whose names thereafter became inseparable, linked—had already briefly co-operated in 1871 on Thespes, but it had not been a great success. Now they got together again and within three weeks had written words and music for Trial by Jury.

The curtain fell to cheers at the Royalty Theatre on the first night, March 25, 1875. The 35-minute skit on the legal profession was the first of a series of the most successful English comic operas ever written.

Catch phrases from the most popular Gilbert and Sullivan operas now have passed into the English language. Gilbert's characters are as familiar as any in classical literature and Sullivan's music is included in the repertoire of orchestras all over the world. And there can scarcely be an amateur dramatic society since 1879—when they were first allowed to perform the operas—which has not put on at least one Gilbert and Sullivan production.

Even today Gilbert and Sullivan supporters are fanatically loyal.

"I was accused of being a traitor when I said publicly that I enjoyed Bach too," said Frederic Lloyd, now general manager of the D'Oyly Carte Opera Company.

He has been with the company since 1951 and now plans to celebrate it's centenary.

"There used to be an idea that the 'business could not be changed one iota from that laid down by " said Lloyd, "We do stick to main themes, for audiences don't like drastic changes, but we have changed quite a lot.

"The centenary celebrations at the Savoy Theatre will provide a rare chance to see all the Gilbert and Sullivan operas, including two which have not been performed since their first productions," he said.

No one can think of Gilbert without Sullivan, but in fact the two were different characters and often quarrelled. William Schwenck Gilbert was born in 1836, just a year before Queen Victoria came to the throne.

His father was a naval surgeon, hence the knowledge later displayed in HMS Pinafore. When he was a baby on holiday in Italy he was kidnapped by bandits and his father paid a ransom—an experience which was later to be used in several plots.

After a few boring years with the education board of the Privy , Gilbert read law, spending much of his spare time writing lighthearted, usually satirical verse.

Arthur Sullivan son of an Italian mother and an Irish bandmaster , had a brilliant musical career from boyhood. He wrote his first oratorio [illegible] years a Mendelssohn scholarship took him to Leipzig, where he met Grieg and Liszt. On his return he was organist at two London churches. It was a very serious background for the composer who was to collaborate in shows that had all London laughing.

Richard D'Oyly Carte, born in 1844, the son of an instrument maker, was a semi-professional musician who decided that his skills lay in management.

His greatest ambition was to establish a theatre for the presentation of English comic opera.

HMS Pinafore was the first inferatistical success and D'Oyly Carte took the company to North America at a time when more than 40 pirated versions were being p'ayed.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Jenny Lee Arness, daughter of actor James Arness, was found dead in her Malibu home of an overdose of sleeping pills, authorities said.

Police said Miss Arness, 25, They said she left a note "indicating she was despondent."

Arness starred in the long-running television series Gunsmoke.

NEW YORK (AP) — Howard K. Smith, the veteran reporter who has co-anchored ABC-TV's evening show since May, 1969, will ease out of that job and soon concentrate on commentary, ABC News said Tuesday.

The change will leave Harry Reasoner, Smith's co-anchor man on the show since December, 1970, as the program's only anchorman. Reasoner will continue doing the show from New York, ABC said.

Smith has co-anchored the show from Washington since May, 1969.

William Sheehan, head of ABC News, said the change will be made during the summer.

He said Smith wanted to devote more time to his nightly commentary.

Viruses have been implicated in certain cancers in man and the transmissibility to other animals, or from animals to humans, has not been demonstrated. Nor has it been shown that cancer is contagious among humans.

Literature dealing with all aspects of cancer is replete with the word "may," whereas "is" appears sparingly. There are several non-viral agents suspected in cancer—tars, radiation, certain other chemicals.

Finally, we must place some weight on your years of experience with the disease. If cancer were contagious, evidence pointing to that fact would be considerable and would provide us with much more than mere guess work. We don't have that evidence. Instead, as I said earlier, the evidence we have to the contrary indicates that the incidence of cancer is of a sporadic, random nature.

So A.D.B. should stop worrying and Mrs. H. H. should visit her sick friend.

We are all, at one time or another, exposed to the same viruses suspected in some cancer. If it were contagious, such exposure would certainly result in a sky-rocketing number of cancer victims. This hasn't occurred.

Dear Dr. Thoresteson: I am 16-years-old and have a very annoying problem. In between my periods I have a flow of white fluid so bad that I have to use napkins.

My dad says this is my fertile period, and that it is completely natural. I have tried douching with warm vinegar, but this only helps temporarily. — C.C.

Your dad is correct. Such a discharge can occur at mid-cycle due to ovulation. How about a tampon instead of the pad? The discharge should last about a day or two.

I wouldn't recommend unnecessary and indiscriminate douching of any kind. It is often a useless exercise and can be damaging to your natural mechanic secretions. If your concern continues, you might be checked by your doctor when the discharge is heaviest.

Dear Dr. Thoresteson: My husband has inflammation of the veins and he has been given Phlebodium Abs. Can the condition be cured? — Mrs. D.B.

Generically, the drug is called phenbiflavone, an anti-inflammatory agent which has been effective in relieving symptoms of acute phlebitis. It is not a curative drug, and manufacturers recommend its use for a limited time.

The word control is most applicable in such inflammation. Conservative methods such as use of anti-coagulants, bed rest, appropriate elevation of the limbs, and pressure bandages are often effective.

In extreme cases, surgical removal of the affected vessel area may be required.

South had been taught to say "Thank you, partner" irreproductive of what cards his partner put down as dummy. This time the dummy was well worth thanks, polite, but unnecessary remark.

When the hand was over and South had been set, North remarked, "It is a shame they taught you politeness instead of bridge."

South's play had been short and unsuccessful. He won the club in dummy and ruffed a trump. West took his ace and led a second club. East was smart enough to ruff and that was all there was.

Just a little thought before playing to trick two might well have warned South of his danger. A little more thought would have shown him how to guard against a club ruff.

It wouldn't have to be much thought at all. Just a quick look at dummy's lone of hearts.

Then South could have led a heart to his ace, cashed his ace of diamonds, ruffed his low diamond, discarded his last club on the king of hearts and then gone after trumps with the club danger a thing of the past.

Cancer Unlikely To Be Contagious

By G. C. THORSTESON, M.D.

Dear Dr. Thoresteson: Is cancer catching? I have a dear friend sick with cancer. She wants me to visit her, and I am worried. — Mrs. H. M.

Dear Dr. Thoresteson: After months of reading newspaper and magazine articles I become terrified by the possibility that cancer is contagious. I'm so afraid that cancer can be transmitted by physical contact. Recent cancer-causing viruses and immunity studies, I have read, have cancer contagious? — A. D. R.

The theory that cancer may be caused by a virus (or a group of viruses) is intriguing, and the subject has been given much public exposure of late. However, there is a lack of evidence that it is contagious. The preponderance of evidence that says it is not. Experiments along strongly suggests it is not contagious.

It is true that certain viruses causing disease are highly contagious, chiefly those involving the respiratory tract—pneumonia, for example. Most childhood diseases — measles mumps, rubella, chickenpox—are caused by viruses and they are bilingual.

Restore Landmark

GREENWICH, England (CP)—Restoration of the cone-shaped dome at the old Royal Greenwich Observatory here has been completed. Glass fibre was used because of its weather resistance and fire retardant properties. The observatory was built in 1357 on the spot where the royal warrant signed by Charles II was granted 300 years ago.

Value of Dollar Drops

Wage gains made during the last 12 months have been partly eroded by a drop in the value of the dollar. The dollar value of 36 cents was 96.66 cents U.S. compared with a peak of more than $1.03 U.S. a year ago. The result has been that costs of things brought from abroad, from Japanese cars to Florida fruits, have increased. (CP Newsmap)

Loonies Will Get New Chance

HOLLYWOOD (Reuter) — British comedian Peter Sellers, little seen on screens in the last few years during what he regards as a slump in movie comedies, believes the "loonies" are about to be given another chance.

"Comedy is in again," says Sellers who will soon make something of a comeback in his established role as the clumsy, moronic French policeman, Inspector Clouseau.

"Film companies are just beginning to take a chance with us loonies," Sellers says. "They realize there is money in comedies and they are now willing to take a risk."

Sellers believes the turning point in the fortunes of film comedy and comedians came when Hollywood studios learned of five with the eccentric genius of comedy producer Mel Brooks.

Brooks has just produced two box office successes in a row with Blazing Saddles and Young Frankenstein.

Sellers, who has twice played the bungling Inspector Clouseau in The Pink Panther and A Shot In The Dark, will soon be seen in the role again in The Return of The Pink Panther.

Sellers, regarded as one of the top international comedians of the 1960s and 1970s, admits that his film career has been through a slow period lately.

"My film career started with a bang. I had five or six smash hits when I started which was very lucky.

"To sustain that record of success for a character comedian is very difficult. Comedy scripts were difficult to find.

"That's when I started making mistakes. I got so swamped under by scripts I just couldn't keep up with . . . with them. I did two films against my better judgment but I should not have done."

Sellers refuses to name the two films, saying only: "I think they're rather obvious."

Progressive Bishops Blamed For Making Church Unstable

KING CITY, Ont. (CP)—The years are responsible for a shortage of manpower which forced a close some monasteries in Canada, Rev. Isidore Geiss said bishops have disturbed people's conscience a with changes, making the church unstable and losing the confidence of Catholics.

His Augustinian order of monks has lost half of its men in Canada in the last 10 years.

Fast, abstinence and holy days, observed at the monastery, have been eliminated and bishops have watered down the teaching of the church by not objecting to the use of birth-control pills, Father Geiss said.

"How can you expect parents to recommend young people to serve the church when they lack firm guidance from those in charge?" he said.

Father Geiss said the disciplina and prayer life for theological students has been too relaxed and they have been given too much say in matters.

"It may be necessary to close down some Canadian monasteries and to join others together," he said.

MACANSH — In loving memory of a dear son and brother who passed away May 23, 1971.
Two years have passed since that sad day,
Time does not heal
The pain we love you million away,
Our lost kim home. It was the Lord's will.
Still in our hearts he lives still.
—always remembered by mother, brothers, Donald, Bobby.

LOFT — In loving memory of a dear husband, father and grandfather Jim Loft who passed on to the Abbe Kingdom, May 23, 1971.
Well we know, O Lord, what's best
Well we know,
I only ask for that which comes from Thee,
Truth is truth, even if all deny it,
Love is my home, whatever may befall me.
—Sadly remembered by wife Ida and family.

PACE — In loving memory of a dear husband and father Wally Pace who passed away May 23, 1969.

Time does not heal the wound of grief,
Time only makes the pain of loss
Harder to bear each every hour.
—Sadly missed by his wife, daughter and family.

What if your pay cheque was late?

For many of us this would be a calamity. Your Intelligencer carrier is a young, independent businessman; he doesn't receive a pay cheque. His profit is the difference between the wholesale cost of his newspapers and the amount collected from his customers.

Most subscribers pay their carriers on the first call. But some people say "come back later" . . . and the carrier's profit is put off. It's like asking you to come back two or three times for your pay cheque.

Of course, you want to be paid promptly. All of us do. The boy or girl who delivers your Intelligencer will appreciate being paid promptly.

Berry, who operates the cafeteria at the Raytheon plant in this Santa Barbara suburb, said Tuesday he was legally blind with congenital cataracts and cataracts since a 1971 automobile accident.

But, after the blow on his head last week, Berry said his sight has been improved daily, including depth and color perception.

50,000 Fans Attend 8 Concerts by Pink Floyd, Jethro Tull

LONDON (CP) — When a total of 50,000 fans attended eight concerts by two British rock bands, it was ultimate proof of the forceful arrival of theatrical rock in London.

Both bands, Pink Floyd and Jethro Tull, gave four separate concerts on consecutive nights at different halls. The shows were overwhelmingly and the age range of the audiences demonstrated the void between pop and rock.

Pop in Gilbert O'Sullivan and Tom Jones and Gary Glitter, Rock, which has come to mean a yearning for messages and imagery and possesses a cultural backdrop, is Led Zeppelin and the Who and even David Bowie.

Pink Floyd and Jethro Tull are decidedly rock and their fans range in age from about 18 to 28, with a hefty student following. Floyd are masters of space-age rock and at their concerts employed masterful light shows while they played their music. The sounds themselves rely heavily on the listeners' imagination.

Jethro Tull are from the other side of theatrical rock, relying on zany costumes and stage explosions, allied to risque jokes and hard, driving music. So both bands are highly visual, and both are in the front line of the hard rock scene that appears to have an iron grip on British fans. The Floyd and Tull tickets were all sold quickly as soon as the concerts were announced.

Yet this massively established music carries on a kind of flirtation with the new pop scene of Slade and Donny Osmond in this respect: rock musicians, like all other performers, strive for mass recognition and few of them are content to be club acts for the rest of their days, so the aim in view is often for a hit single record.

Both Pink Floyd and Jethro Tull have enjoyed big-selling single records in the hit parade in recent years and though they have been absent recently they will perhaps, be tempted to try again in the near future. As Paul McCartney said during the heyday of the Beatles: "... no better feeling on earth for a musician than to be meant with a single disc.

It's ironic, therefore, that the world of today's charts exists on an almost separate level from the rock bands. Names on the 'teen-agers' lips—Donny Osmond, the Bay City Rollers, David Essex, Sparks, Rod Stewart and Mud—are often greeted with a smirk by older (in age) rock musicians, who seem to think that to peddle pop for the kids is degrading or, at the least, uninventive trash.

In fact many of the "kids" in the cod-and-sod pop groups like the Bay City Rollers or Mud have been around for years and are, in their chosen idiom, every bit as competent and inspired as the rock "poseurs".

It takes a special kind of talent to write pop songs that capture a 'teen-ager's emotions in three or four minutes and long-established artists of the calibre of Neil Sedaka or Canadian Paul Anka have made it a business which no financial wizard would decry.

With these basic facts ringing in his ears, the top American singer-songwriter John Denver has just become the toast of Britain's silent majority of pop fans who love a good story.

His success has sparked a controversy among the self-appointed hip in crowd. They reckon that his songs are grossly overstated and unctuous in their sentimentality, whereas Denver defenders point to his clarity and simplicity and plain, simple love for old-fashioned standards.

Denver has had colossal success as a record seller—both albums and singles are selling like hot cakes—and as a television performer with a national series in Britain which got top audience ratings.

Roy Harper has led the phrases that made fans' hackles rise. "That's only as far as public recognition goes, digging that musical wallpaper of John Denver," said the articulate Harper.

London's rock scene is an insular affair and incidents like the Denver versus Harper battle are peculiar to the capital. Elsewhere in the country they don't debate the deeper aspects of the musical spectrum—they just get on with enjoying themselves. And a group called Sparks is one of the hottest in the land.

SOUND ODD

Ron and Russell Mael, brothers from California settled in Britain, got together a bunch of Englishmen to form this eccentric-looking and old-sounding outfit and they have produced the weirdest yet most refreshing sound in years.

This Town Ain't Big Enough For Both Of Us and Amateur Hour and Never Turn Your Back On Mother Earth are strange enough titles for songs. But their delivery of them is unusual too, with "snappy, staccato vocals allied to punchy instrumental accompaniment and highly attractive melodies.

Then there's their appearance. Ron, the elder brother, resembles early Charlie Chaplin, with a pencil-line moustache and baggy trousers and shirt and tie, while Russell dresses sharply in the modern idiom and has a pretty face into the bargain. Girls are mobbing him at every concert.

Sparks were voted Brightest Hope by readers of Melody Maker newspaper in their annual Pop Poll last year.

And still the Beatles are around. Paul McCartney's band Wings has just surfaced with a rocking single, Junior's Farm (an instant hit), while John Lennon has scored a solo success with Whatever Gets You Thru The Night and his new album Walls And Bridges. George Harrison is on a solo concert tour of America, while Ringo Starr has remade the old Platters track Only You as his new single, and is starring in a new film.

Less active but still clinging to their faithful legion of fans are those old warriors the Rolling Stones, who rise about once a year in Britain and America for a grand-slam concert schedule, new album or television spectacular.

The Stones, though, are not considered by rock people to be anything other than good musicians nowadays, and Mick Jagger and his wife Bianca are society-favored jetsetters. The old anti-authority stance has been replaced by the Stones forming their own record label and holding court at London's ultra-posh Ritz Hotel.

Bombs Explode

BASTIA, Corsica (AP) — Eleven bombs exploded during the night in Corsica and there was speculation that the attacks were the work of a group seeking autonomy of the island, Napoleon's birthplace, from France. There were no injuries, but considerable property damage was reported. Two more unexploded devices were found. There were no messages left behind to claim responsibility for the attacks.

Late Delivery

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich. (AP) — After 4,320 days, Gertrude Horgan has the tweed coat she left behind during a Christmas visit in 1962.

The coat was mailed Jan. 19, 1963, by the English professor's sister in Newton, Mass. But it wasn't until last Friday that the postal service delivered the two-by three-foot box to the college.

1963 you say? You must be kidding? Postmaster James Blankenship said when asked about the overdue coat. There was no explanation for the delay.

BIRMINGHAM, England (Reuter) — A local government worker here was upset when he was refused promotion—so he took an axe to work in his briefcase and bit his chief over the head with it.

On Wednesday, 41-year-old Donald Franklin was jailed for three years for causing grievous bodily harm.

Kissinger in Ankara Discussing Cyprus

ANKARA (AP) — U.S. Secretary Henry Kissinger is in the Turkish capital while reassuring America's allies in the Central Treaty Organization (CENTO) that U.S. changes in Indochina do not mean any lessening of U.S. support for them.

A senior U.S. official told reporters on Kissinger's flight from West Berlin to Ankara Wednesday that the Cyprus crisis in Ankara is beginning to boom up.

He indicated that the meeting last week in Rome between foreign ministers Dimitrios Bitsios of Greece and Ihsan Sabri Caglayangil of Turkey was a "positive development, particularly since it was followed this week by the U.S. Senate's vote to lift the embargo on U.S. arms sales to Turkey."

The official said the action improved Kissinger's negotiating position with the Turks considerably.

Kissinger will have a more definite idea of the Cyprus crisis after Turkish Premier Suleyman Demirel meets Greek Premier Constantine Caramanlis during the Brussels summit meeting next week of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization, the official said.

Kissinger is in the talks with the Turks here, is concentrating on the two main issues blocking a settlement between the Greek "sister" majority and the Turkish Cypriot minority—what the constitutional setup on the island will be and how large the Turkish Cypriot zone will be.

Kissinger is in favor of separate Greek and Turkish state blood in some kind of confederation. This is essentially what the Turkish Cypriots want.

Waldheim Would Keep Golan Heights Watch

UNITED NATIONS (Reuter) — United Nations Secretary-General Kurt Waldheim has recommended that the Security Council extend the mandate of the UN Disengagement Observer Force (UNDOF) on the Golan Heights for another six months, until the end of November.

The council is expected to meet next week to adopt a resolution to this effect.

In a report to the council Wednesday night, Waldheim said both Syria and Israel, whose armies are separated by the UN force, had agreed to the extension.

Syria's agreement to a six-month extension, which became known shortly before the secretary-general's report was published, came as a surprise to most observers.

The Syrian government had been expected to agree only to a two-month renewal, as the mandate of UNDOF and of the UN Emergency Force (UNEF) stationed in Sinai between the Egyptian and Israeli armies, would both expire at about the same time, at the end of July.

Waldheim said the continued presence of UNDOF was essential, "not only to maintain quiet in the Israel-Syria sector, but also to provide an atmosphere conducive to further efforts toward the achievement of the just and lasting peace called for by the Security Council and to assist in such further efforts, as required."

The 1,150-man force, which includes 121 Canadians, was established a year ago under the Syria — Israel troop disengagement agreement.

Canadians Justified In Mails Criticism

By HARRY MULHALL
Staff Reporter

The country's mail service deserves the dissatisfaction it C a n a d i a n s, Prime Minister Trudeau agreed Thursday night.

At the same time leaders of postal union groups in certain areas have shown a "high degree of irresponsibility" he said.

Disruption of basic services is "intolerable to the people of Canada" and presents a problem which management and unions must face together, said the prime minister.

Mr. Trudeau gave out the opinions as he answered questions before a crowd of about 1,000 at Belleville's Centennial Secondary School Thursday night.

His remarks came as a series of bookoffs threatened the long-beleaguered postal system.

Mail delivery involves people in their daily lives and as a result:

"I know we're losing — as a government — a lot of credibility with people who are affected by mail services," said the prime minister.

He said he was reluctant to comment on current disputes since contract negotiations with postal workers were still ongoing.

workers themselves over the years have had "some justifiable reasons" for objecting to conditions.

Returned aside a suggestion that the postal service could be more effectively run if it were decentralized and contracted to private enterprise.

This creates a monopoly situation for workers and unions.

"I think as employers in the post office we certainly must take part of the blame (for the present problems)," he said.

He determined some strive to improve employee relationships while unions must and use their organizations to "pursue ends which are deleterious to the common good."

Bomb Warning False

Postal Walkout Response 'Spotty'

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

An anonymous bomb warning caused the temporary evacuation of Toronto's Postal Terminal A—Canada's largest—early today as Ontario members of the Canadian Union of Postal Workers (CUPW) responded spottily to a call for a one-day walkout to protest the pace of contract negotiations with the federal treasury board.

Metropolitan Toronto police received the telephone warning and searched the huge terminal without finding any explosive.

After the call was received, members of the midnight to 4 a.m. shift were sent home at 4 a.m., while day-shift workers were kept out of the building until after 8 a.m.

The caller had stated that two bombs were timed to explode between 7 a.m. and 8 a.m.

Meanwhile, the walkout call had varying effects around the province. In some cities, all inside workers booked off sick. In others, it reported for work.

Five Slain In Quebec

ST. BRUNO, Que. (CP) — Three men and two women were shot dead in a quiet lake Thursday night in a rented bungalow in this community, 15 miles south of Montreal.

A Quebec Provincial Police (QPP) spokesman said early today it was "still too early to say if the five deaths are a gangland settling of accounts."

The five victims, described by police as aged between 18 and 25, were found at 10:30 p.m. EDT Thursday following telephone calls to police from neighbors. Their names were not released but police said each victim was shot in the back of the head.

It was the homicides bringing to seven the total number of killings in the Montreal area Thursday.

Earlier, Montreal Urban Community (MUC) police found the nude body of an unidentified woman in the overflowing bathtub of a downtown apartment.

Police said cause of death was either strangulation or drowning and one man is being held in connection with the case.

A man who MUC police believe was one of alleged underworld leader Frank Cotroni's aides was found shot to death Thursday in a wooded area on Montreal's south shore.

Marcel Martel, 35, had been shot several times, police said.

Lalonde Accused Of Playing Footsie

OTTAWA (CP) — Health Minister Marc Lalonde was accused Thursday of "playing constitutional footsie with the government of Quebec" in the contained meat scandal instead of cracking down.

During a stormy question and answer exchange in the Commons James McGrath (PC—St. John's East) said over the form of Liberal MP's that Mr. Lalonde should stop "the wide spread practice of selling contaminated meat to the public."

Mr. Lalonde said that the inspection of meat butchered and sold in Quebec is a provincial responsibility. Federal meat inspectors are responsible to examine meat only when it is butchered in one province for sale in another, he said.

Mr. McGrath said outside the House it is likely the tainted meat also has been shipped to other provinces, particularly Ontario.

"We have no hard evidence, but we know meat is shipped from Montreal to Cornwall and to points east also."

Opposition Leader Robert Stanfield said the federal health department "has known for two years . . . that some 200 meat processing authorities were not complying with regulations."

Mr. Stanfield said that Mr. Lalonde should take immediate action against a Food and Drug Act provision regarding the sale of meat unfit for human consumption.

Mr. Lalonde said that charges will not be laid until a Quebec Police Commission inquiry has been completed.

Mr. McGrath said the RCMP had evidence in 1969 that tainted meat was being sold for human consumption in Quebec. He said the matter was raised in 1969 by Claude Wagner (PC—St. Hyacinthe), then a Liberal member of the Quebec national assembly.

Italian Origin Reference Termed Racist

OTTAWA (CP) — Use of the word Italian in newspaper reports on the Quebec meat scandal was said to "racist—derisive and totally irrelevant" by Liberal Ursula Appolloni Thursday.

Mrs. Appolloni, a Toronto MP married to an Italian in a riding which has a large Italian population, was referring to a Canadian Press story that appeared in the Globe and Mail.

In the story, a witness at the inquiry into contaminated crime and shipments of tainted meat was alleged up by men "of Italian origin. . . . armed with revolvers."

Mrs. Appolloni said naming the origin of the men was deplorable.

"Why should anybody be blamed because they actually bought the meat." If such evidence emerged at the inquiry, it could be identified, he added.

The plot thickened in a 1972 telephone conversation between Arthur Overtlie, 34, manager of Reggio Food Inc., and Gilbert Massey, 43, his former sausage manager, which was wiretapped by police.

Reggio Food Inc., a meat processing firm, is run by Vincenzo (Vic) Odorisio, who was identified as another boutique of the organized crime figure, or a Montreal underworld figure.

Mr. Massey worked for Reggio Foods for eight years until 1971 and now heads the firm of Products Alimentaires, which, the inquiry heard, had also at one time handled meat.

During the wiretapped conversation, Mr. Massey mentioned some "beautiful heads" he had received from Italy to close their eyes to certain "business."

Mr. Massey went much of Thursday on the witness stand and admitted his role in the transport of meat from animals that were sick or had died of natural causes.

He said he had a "special recipe" for hot dogs and pepperoni that involved adding meat to which was added "fat, flour and spices."

The meat, unfit for human consumption, was supposed to be used strictly for pet food.

Mr. Massey said he sold at least two 2,500-pound loads of tainted meat to a sausage plant owned by William Obrzut and was paid in cash by Mr. Obrzut.

William Obrzut was identified as a Montreal underworld figure in earlier organized crime inquiry hearings.

Mr. Massey said he could tell good portions of meat from bad ones.

"The meat wasn't putrid. But the inquiry is trying to make it so," he said. "I ate steaks from it lots of times and I'm still healthy."

1972 Wiretap Revealed Sale of Tainted Meat

MONTREAL (CP) — A plot to sell tainted meat to prominent hamburger chains was made public Thursday at the Quebec police commission inquiry into organized crime.

Judge Jean Dutil, the inquiry chairman, said the names of the major companies should not be disclosed "because we don't have evidence they actually bought the meat." If such evidence emerged at the inquiry, it could be identified, he added.

The plot was discovered in a 1972 telephone conversation between Arthur Overtlie, 34, manager of Reggio Food Inc., and Gilbert Massey, 43, his former sausage manager, which was wiretapped by police.

Quebec Assembly Okays Changes in Labor Laws

QUEBEC (CP) — Quebec national assembly gave third and final reading Thursday to legislation giving the Bourassa government a powerful weapon in its war against violence and corruption in the province's troubled construction industry.

By an 81-7 vote, the national assembly approved 17 major changes to existing labor laws, placing restrictions on who may hold union office and putting the burden of proof on the accused in court cases involving illegal strikes and lockouts.

Justice Minister Jerome Choquette admitted to reporters the legislation was tough but said it was necessary to bring peace to the industry.

Under the law, conviction for murder, attempted murder, aggravated theft, manslaughter, arson, embezzlement, kidnapping or conspiracy to commit any of these offences, disqualifies a person from holding union office for 10 years. Convictions for theft, breaking and entering, drug trafficking, arson, intimidation, aggravated assault and public mischief causing bodily harm, murder or attempt to murder, disqualifies a person for five years after the sentence is served.

The law applies to union officials only holding office.

Any person illegally occupying a union office may be fined at least $1,000 a day and be jailed for at least two years.

If a union or its officials take part in an illegal work stoppage during the life of a contract, or if an employer declares an illegal lockout, he would be presumed guilty and bear the burden of proving his innocence.

Legal action under this provision is the prerogative of the Justice department.

The Opposition Parti Quebecois decried what they described as harsh measures in the law and deplored the presumption of guilt provisions.

Other changes contained in the legislation include the following:

—Union stewards must be elected by workers on a contract-by-contract basis, instead of appointed by the union hierarchy.

—Union members are required to handle and install any materials supplied by an employer. Fines of between $200 and $1000 per day may be imposed for failure to comply.

—An employer or his representative may not offer, give or promise to give to a union official a loan, reward or extra benefit. Violation is a fine of $500 to $10,000.

—In addition, an employer or his representative may not be employ

Picton Sets Budget For $1.2 Million

By MARG HAYLOCK
Staff Reporter

PICTON — Prince Edward town council Thursday night approved a 1975 budget of more than $1.2 million reflecting a tax increase of approximately 32 per cent to public residential ratepayers.

Mill rates for 1975 are: Public school commercial 37.84 in comparison with 28.37 mills in 1974 and public school residential 22.72 for 1975 in contrast with 24.53 mills last year.

Separate school commercial mill rate this year is 29.37 in comparison with 28.15 mills. Separate school residential is 34.10 mills in 1975 in contrast with 24.15 mills in 1974.

Value of a mill is $33,700.

Total of council's 1975 budget is $1,205,514 in comparison with $1,072,748 in 1974.

A total of $216,517 will be raised by tax levies this year, compared with $205,995 last year.

Prince Edward County's requisition to Picton for 1975 totals $294,226.

Picton Mayor Donald King observed at a special meeting of council Thursday that the budget "was pared to the core to keep taxes as low as possible".

He said that several possible construction projects were shelved temporarily to keep taxes down.

"In view of the fact the county rate has us in this position we have no alternative," he commented.

Administration salaries have been raised from $26,400 last year to $30,840 for 1975.

The fire department's budget has been increased from $61,621 to $68,340 this year.

The police department's budget this year will be $138,500 in comparison with $145,180 in 1974.

The budget for the public works department, street section, was raised from $180,000 in 1974 to $228,115.

The sanitation section has jumped from $90,225 in 1974 to $117,919 this year.

Included in revenue for 1975 is a province of Ontario resource grant of $170,130 and a general unconditional grant of $37,150. A per capita grant of $64,650 is listed as well as a Prince Edward County hospital grant of $4,750. A Rail Canada CN payment in lieu of taxes totals $29,003.

Total amount of assessed real property and business assessment in Picton liable for taxes in 1975 is $23,796,400.

Education grants total $264,461 with a breakdown as follows: Prince Edward Secondary $189,530; Prince Edward elementary, $134,441, and Hastings — Prince Edward separate elementary $19,500.

Education grants in 1974 totalled $264,877.

New Parking Approved

PICTON — Several recommendations by town council's special committee on traffic and parking have been approved by council and should go into effect soon.

A draft by-law will be prepared to place the traffic signal at the intersection of Bons and Main Streets at flashing amber from 9 p.m. to 8 a.m. daily.

The parking meter zone will be extended to include the west side of Bridge Street from the southerly limit of Main Street to the northerly limit of Mary Street. Parking meters will be installed.

No action will be taken on a recommendation from police chief Charles Fletcher to move the present taxi parking spaces from Main Street.

PUC Won't Go Lower On New OHC Homes

By AL ZARAS
Staff Reporter

TRENTON — Town utilities commissioners refused Thursday to reduce the cost of installation of electrical services to Ontario Housing Corp. Centennial-in-home housing on Creswell Dr.

Reduction to a $735-per-home cost was requested by OHC on 35 single-family homes now at the initial stages of construction.

The OHC claims the corporation's contractor should not be responsible for paying the $735 since it was set by the PUC after the contract and OHC signed the construction contract.

In discussion Thursday, PUC manager Douglas Manlow said the OHC has agreed in its assessment of the per-unit costs.

The $735 figure is broken down to include a $500 deposit for installation of underground wiring to the property line, a $70 cost for connecting lines from curb to a home meter, and a $165 cost for transformation at the Dufferin St. substation.

Mr. Manlow said only the $165 cost is now established since the contract for the 35 units was signed.

Commissioners opposed exempting OHC from the transformation charge, fearing a precedent that would make the charge more difficult to levy in future.

Chairman Jim Macdonald said the PUC can't back out of its policy now. "Once it's in, it's in. That's it," he said.

The $500 deposit for installation of underground services represents a $300 increase due to escalation of PUC costs of installation. Any funds not used in installation will be returned to OHC.

By letter, the OHC argued "the increase ... will place a very great burden on the government finances and ... should not be applied against a contract which was signed before the event (signing of contract)."

Criticism, Rebuttals On Industrial Park

PICTON — Prince Edward County council's economic development committee apparently works "exclusively for a private profit-making corporation," says Picton deputy-reeve Richard Byers referring to location of industries at Loch Sloy Industrial Park.

At this week's county council session the deputy-reeve predicted council may become "a salesman for the Loch Sloy development corporation."

He indicated the term "economic development committee" is a misnomer and observed it is unusual for a council to act steadily in the interests of a privately-owned industrial park.

Loch Sloy Industrial Park was owned by the late H. J. McFarland, mayor of Picton, for more than 20 years and remains in the McFarland family.

Harvey McFarland Jr. is a member of council's economic development committee.

The deputy-reeve's comments drew sharp reply from William Duggan, Prince Edward director of economic development.

Ownership of approximately 23 per cent of Ontario's industrial parks is private said Mr. Duggan.

The economic development director noted for more than two years he has urged council to obtain an industrial park of its own "to the extent of a private members bill". Cost for such a park would be approximately $200,000 and no support for the project has been obtained.

He emphasized that there are now about 120 persons employed in the industries at Loch Sloy and suggested this should be welcome news in view of the recent shut-down at Picton's Proctor-Lewyt plant.

He added that taxes from the park should be "considerable" for the county.

"We have no choice but to use that park that is available for a reasonable rental figure," he told council.

Halloweell reeve Keith MacDonald, a member of the economic development committee, said the county is fortunate there are "private individuals who make it possible for us to have an industrial park".

'How Sweet It Is'

The orchards of Prince Edward County are alive with gentle color again, the blossoms imparting a fresh sparkle to a new growing season. Amy Peck, 4, of Redneersville, discovers just how sweet the spring is as five-year-old neighbor Duane Brown holds bough of blossoms for her inspection.

County Tourism

Report is Urging Changes

By MARG HAYLOCK
Staff Reporter

PICTON — Tourism in Prince Edward should be actively encouraged through formation of an independent Tourist Advisory Board says county economic development director William Duggan in a report to county council on development potential here.

The report urges the county to take the lead in specifying standards and development areas in accord with municipal councils, planning boards and senior government.

Potential for expanded tourist activity in the county is described as "good" but tourism must reach beyond the simple cottage set-up which presently exists" and usually provides employment and income for only one family unit at each facility.

Mr. Duggan recommends a county tourist development advisory board to assist the present economic development committee and suggests no further encroachment by the provincial government on the county's lakeshore.

"The provincial parks provide facilities for a particular type of tourist who is not a noticeably large spender within the county," he observed.

Mr. Duggan said more sophisticated resorts with quality food, swimming pools and cocktail bars are needed in addition to increased attractiveness in vacationers' special interests such as golf and water sports.

Picton's golf course could be up-graded by the sale or lease of land behind the county home against the club's agreement to provide playing facilities for tourists registered at county tourist establishments.

Mr. Duggan said many observers and members of the government tourist boards agree a grading system for tourist resorts is needed.

"The Ontario government will not do it and the Tourist Association cannot do it because they would be grading each other," said Mr. Duggan.

The proposed tourist advisory board could suggest that only establishments which had been approved and graded could appear in official publications and also could undertake the grading.

Mr. Duggan has recommended that all money now dispersed through individual grants to tourist associations, chambers of commerce and sundry organizations of this type should be funnelled through the economic development committee.

The committee should be reconstituted to consist of elected members of council with an industrial advisory board and a tourist development advisory board.

$9,000 For Hand Dryers In Schools

The separate school board Tuesday night approved a three-year plan to install electric hand dryers in its schools at a total estimated cost of about $9,000.

First superintendent J.J. Sheridan, of the Hastings-Prince Edward County Separate School Board, said each hand dryer would cost about $145 and the board would recover its money in three years with current rising prices of paper towels.

The board revealed that 120 people can dry their hands with an electric dryer at a cost of .9437 cents whereas 120 people using paper towels would cost $1.

Park Purchase Funds Transferred by Town

TRENTON — The death of a park in northwest Trenton was marked this week by transfer of $20,000 slated for its purchase to a town account for work on Centennial Park.

Brian Fagan, town treasurer, said the money had been set aside in 1974 for purchase of land for a park. But an indication from the parks board that plans had changed prompted council's move to divert the funds.

Use of the money had been approved by the Ontario Municipal Board last year. Trenton had borrowed the funds and now has them sitting idle.

"So what we want now is for the OMB to give approval to spend it on Centennial Park," said Mr. Fagan.

He expects that OMB approval will come easily: "Normally, as long as it (diversion of funds) has to do with the original intent they'll pass it."

Deno Geltas, parks and recreation director, said plans for the park were delayed when the parks board received no response from the Lower Trent Region Conservation Authority to a request for help to find a park location.

Plans had been to locate the park on land in the flood plain of Mayhew Creek.

The diverted funds will not likely be called for Centennial Park development as outlined by the $8,000 study presented town council by Toronto consultants.

Mayor Patrick said Thursday he did not think any inroads will be made in the $2.5-million development scheme.

Director Geltas said he expects the funds will be used to buy land along Bay St. for further additions to park acreage.

Ex-Grit Tom Cossitt's Probing Questions Skewer Prime Minister and Cabinet

By RICHARD JACKSON
OTTAWA — The Liberals are going to have to do something about Conservative MP Tom Cossitt.

But what?

They have tried shouting him down, and he just stands there smiling and letting them make themselves out of breath.

They have coaxed him, to his face in the corridors of parliament and behind his back at their helpless expense.

They have tried isolating him as if he were sick — which the members entering among them call him, and he legently admits, being—and entrenching as a flaming signal of their frustration.

What is their problem?

It is his maddening cool when asking questions in the Commons about Liberal patronage and when demanding their production of politically humiliating documents.

He is quietly deadly, and from his back benches at the foot of the Commons chamber he has inflicted more lasting damage than perhaps any other Tory MP in the House, including even Conservatives like former Robert Stanfield.

It is his old situation.

Cossitt, an independently wealthy man, for years was Liberal continuing president of Leeds, and a heavy party contributor.

Politics was nothing more than a hobby.

Then suddenly, Prime Minister Trudeau turned him off — in fact, turned him completely around from Liberal to Conservative. Trudeau appointed Tom Cossitt, "I came to realize what a great a pedigree dog he was and how dangerous the man was to Canada and Canadians."

Politics no longer a hobby, became in Cossitt not just a career, but a crusade.

And he pursued it in a style unique in the Commons.

He has asked so many questions herded in from Liberals collectively and the Prime Minister individually, seldom is a copy of the parliamentary record, Hansard, printed without the name Cossitt up front.

Just a couple of recent samples from the grab bag of Cossitt questions:

It was this pulling teeth, but finally, (it took him six parliament months) he extracted from the government the admission that it had a fat hedge scheme going to help the jobless normally ineligible for jobless benefits.

It is the really big benefit of being a defeated Liberal candidate, paid, of course, like all such windfalls, by the taxpayer.

Patiently, department by department, year by agonizing year, Cossitt combed through the government expenditures and caught the names of 18 Liberal election losers on the federal payroll at an average $21,000 to $23,000.

Not a fortune, but better than "peggy", what?

Then he dragged from the reluctant, red faced government the confession that the Liberals were feathering a nest for the Federal-Provincial Conference Ottawa hosted, but cost the taxpayers some $2 million to convert from the old Union Station into a great, high-vaulted hall in which Prime Ministers and Premiers debated national issues.

Yes, conceded Public Works Minister Bud Drury in grudging answer to a Cossitt question, while the Conference Centre "was not intended for use other than for government purposes" it had been turned over "without charge" to the Liberal Party of Canada for purposes of a political convention.

But to appreciate the stiletto style — he goes for the jugular — of Cossitt, ask to hint Pierre Trudeau on the issue of the 250,000,000 Canadian dollars that 25 unidentified Toronto admirers are giving him.

"Surely," pears Cossitt, "it is a simple matter for the government to list these 25 names.

"That they have not been forthcoming can lead us only to the unfortunate assumption that there is something to hide.

"If there is no conflict of interest or embarrassment involved, I would think the Prime Minister will have no hesitation in public all the details about the gift, since failure to do so might well indicate there must be very good reasons for keeping the truth from Parliament and the people."

Deadly insinuation.

So enraged is the Prime Minister that he fails into the trap of blurting out that it is "no concern" of the next from these 25 secret admirers, "that I would expect to be treated in the Trudeau (the poor taxpayer, who else?) to foot the bill."

Cossitt is a caution.

Minister Tours North

So you are basking in the unaccustomed warmth of this merry month of May.

Well think back briefly to earlier in the year and a tour of provincial correctional facilities in the north country by Belleville's Dr. Richard Potter. "Correctional Services" is cold enough terminology, but behind it are flesh and blood, human problems, and efforts by many dedicated people to remedy them.

As the minister concerned, Dr. Potter, his deputy, Glenn Thompson, and other officials covered 3,500 miles — mostly by train — in eight days last February and March. Whether the train journey was a ministerial how toward marking economies is not stated — more probably it made for easier access to various communities, and in any event there was a side trip by air to a reserve and other centres — but it brought its own attendant problems for the visitors.

A diary of the trip in the ministry's publication, Correctional Update, notes one of the party was troubled by motion sickness; so there was a stop at Thunder Bay for medication — and, just to show that government can be forgetful of little things too — for razor blades!

The diary, by accompanying ministry reporter Don Kerr, after hinting at a possible cause of the official's discomfort — lack of sleep as the train rattled through the night, is left on a new sleep as the train rattled through cus progress made in the correctional field up north.

This is a region which, because of the peculiar difficulties faced by the native people, perhaps requires approaches and techniques not applicable elsewhere.

Picture the living room of a house in Dryden which serves as a community resource centre for native offenders. It is run by Gary and Cathy Lienberger and they agree with native counsellor Norbert Mayor that the centre is, first of all, a home, a factor given substance by the presence of the Lienberger children, a girl of seven and a boy of three.

The Kerr diary reports the response from local businessmen as good, with the first 16 men to stay at the centre obtaining jobs. One problem though is that some of the men quit once their sentences expire.

There was another aspect of human nature, as well as of race relations which manifested itself at this centre; and it should afford integrationists some greater insight into a perplexing problem. That is, the people on the spot believe that mixing natives and non-natives is unworkable and complementary the centre is being maintained strictly for the Indians.

It can be seen that the work of a provincial minister and his assistants is not spent entirely at a desk or in the legislature. There is a lot of field work and on-the-spot study which do not always make the headlines.'

Overseas Links

Belleville's international contacts through its links with the city of Lahr in Germany, and through such groups as Rotary and the Ex Men's club, are becoming more extensive all the time.

If we include the student exchanges of recent years and forthcoming visits by Rotarians, they now range from Finland to England to Israel to South Africa to Australia and New Zealand. And of course Germany, with Belleville and Lahr becoming still more closely acquainted through a charter flight next month.

It does not seem a year has elapsed since Finnish student Taina Bonam arrived, yet there it is, and she heads for home this coming Saturday, having expressed her thanks to host Rotarians at a recent meeting.

Early next month some members of a visiting group of 70 Rotarians from New Zealand and their wives will spend a few days in Belleville and Trenton. Their Quinte visit comes prior to the International Convention in Montreal. And it recalls that other link with New Zealand established by the Y's Men's Club here, through twinning with the club in New Plymouth, N.Z.

Indeed, Belleville has long since come out of its shell, as these exchanges testify.

Parks Are Busy Again

With the official opening of the provincial parks, there has been the usual flurry of liquor offences and other disturbances.

Perhaps it's the weather, the first flush of summer, or whatever, but this sort of thing has become something of an annual ritual. Then it seems to level out and things remain relatively quiet.

A few years ago, during the early pre-opening months, a dozen motorcyclists invaded The Outlet; there was some hot-rodding by a few and the noise ran counter to all the talk of impending anti-noise legislation, yet it does seem to have been no more than an isolated incident.

Still, amid the outward calm and beauty of the provincial parks some around Ontario, there remains an undercurrent of trouble. Restless young people and home make a bad combination, but they are a factor of these latter days which is out of character with the parks' recreational objectives and which make demands on law enforcement and on the taxpayers.

A group of parks employees painting trees at The Sandbanks Park on a recent weekend were overheard talking of problems with some young men on motorcycles; the details escaped us, but the tone of the discussion suggested the episode had made demands of some kind or another on the park staff's time.

There is another aspect of the parks' environment and administration which should be mentioned. Once again park visitors pay either $1.50 a day or $15 for the season. For this they should expect clean facilities. Yet this was far from being the case in some of these at The Sandbanks a week prior to the holiday weekend.

"Is that gloom or just air pollution?"

Eye on Polls, Harbor Issue, PCs Play It Safe

By DON O'HEARN
Queen's Park Bureau
Thomson News Service

TORONTO — For two months the question was, would he? Now the question is, why didn't he?

Premier Davis let the date go by for calling a June election.

This ended a period of two-slow-although July 6 still is a possibility.

But it didn't end curiosity.

It is known that about two months ago a June election had been to most practical purposes decided on.

There were words of some second thought, but still the dominant signs were for June.

Premier Davis played it cool, leaving open both alternatives—whether June or later.

Tensions mounted before last weekend, the final legal date before calling a June vote.

Then he let the date slip by, without calling for the writs.

The writer lacks the premier's head as a crystal ball so therefore, can't give even a guess at interpretation of why the election was put off.

But there are two most common speculations.

One is that party polls taken a few weeks ago didn't come up to expectations.

It is said—and this is only rumour—that while the polls showed some gains for the government they also left it still trailing the Liberals.

And, according to this theory, party strategists decided they would be better to take some time to try to build back the party.

A second speculation is that the Hamilton Harbor Commission trials are under way this month and will continue into next.

Former Solicitor General George Kerr is to figure in these trials not only as a witness but in evidence.

Nobody can be too sure just what might come up at these trials and there could be at least the suspicion in the public mind of another government scandal.

This suspicion would apply not only in the Hamilton area but throughout the province.

The gamble believes that it was, therefore thought better to get the trials out of the way before going to the people.

Refugee Melting Pot Takes Time to Jell

Waterloo Times

The public should not be surprised at the hostility being expressed by some Americans against the thousands of Vietnamese who fled their country for safety in the United States. This type of expression has been going on for more than 250 years. It has been directed at practically every race, religion and national origin.

As Jon Margolis of the Chicago Tribune points out in an interesting column, hostility to immigrants it seems, is an American tradition just slightly younger than immigration.

In 1631, less than 15 years after the first white settler landed in North America, a few Italian glassmakers set up shop in Jamestown, Va. — much to the disgust of English Protestants in the colony.

Peter Stuyvesant was against letting Jews into New Amsterdam in 1654, Benjamin Franklin criticized German immigrants to Pennsylvania, and Senator Henry Cabot Lodge opposed admitting Poles and Italians.

Periodically, there has been hostility toward Scandinavians, the Irish, the Chinese, the Japanese and others. In 1882, a federal law banned all Chinese immigrants. It was finally was not repealed until 1943. In 1891, 11 Italian immigrants were lynched by a mob after the New Orleans police chief was murdered, supposedly by an Italian.

In 1906, San Francisco tried to segregate its schools against the Japanese.

Since the late 19th and early 20th Centuries, Congress reduced immigration and imposed ethnic quotas, asserting that nearly all immigrants would be Anglo-Saxons from Northern and Western Europe. And that quota system was not ended until 1965, when President Johnson signed into law a liberal immigration act which had been proposed by President Kennedy.

Remember some of the resentment against the Hungarian refugees coming to the U.S. in the late 1950s? And the anger when thousands of Cubans fled from Fidel Castro after he came to power in 1959?

The Vietnamese, too, have fled from Communism. Eventually these refugees will be "absorbed" into the U.S. population just as those who have come before them.

History Provides Some Depressing Lessons

Winnipeg Free Press

In an attempt to put into historical perspective the spate of pessimistic forecasts about the Western world's state of economy and politics, an enterprising editor of Forbes magazine has fished out a quotation from Harper's Weekly. It is a report that will sound depressingly familiar to present-day newspaper readers. Prices, said Harper's, were so high as to be impossible, the dollar was dangerously weak, Russia's intrigues loomed on the horizon and the outlook was bleaker than it has ever been in human memory.

The quotation is not from a year-end review written in January, 1975; nor from the days of the Great Depression. The Harper's editorial was written in 1867. However, before the 1975 reader has settled comfortably in his or his television program, remembering whatever is his equivalent of "plus ça change . . ," he should beware.

Things were indeed tough in 1867. But then, in 1948, all hell broke loose. Barricades went up in Paris and Vienna in Berlin and Warsaw, in Prague and Budapest. In Britain the government hastily recruited special constables to cope with a threatening revolution.

The British revolution was rained out, but thousands did turn out in the streets and when the revolt was subdued an oppressive air of fear, that yet spoke to all the very hopes of freedom and democracy.

In Germany in particular the liberal forces were crushed so thoroughly that it took a century for them to re-emerge in an effort to set up a democratic state on the ruins of a land devastated by the follies that had their roots in 1848.

Quebec's Troubles And the Olympics

Montreal Gazette

Much of Quebec's crisis is labor relations can be attributed to the fact that leadership, in both government and labor, has feet of clay. Leaders whose authority has been shaken often feel driven to excess in word and act in an effort to restore it.

The weakness of Mr. Bourassa and his government lies in the fact, documented by the Cliche Commission, that it contributed so decisively to the mess it is now trying to clear up. The commission report outlines the way in which a minority union leadership, largely drawn from relatively alienated sought to obtain monopoly control of construction sites. It also shows how this effort was abetted by Premier Bourassa's principal co-elected colleague in the conduct of Labor Minister Cournoyer and others responsible to him, and by the failure or absence of normal law enforcement under Justice Minister Jerome Choquette.

Brantford Expositor

In recent years, first the CNTU and then the QFL have moved farther and farther away from the traditional concerns of organized labor. They have become highly political, left and their affiliates issue manifestos calling for drastic changes in the social order. Their politics are a mixture of extreme socialism and separatism. In demonstrations, illegal strikes, in defiance of court orders, they have contended that law is for others to obey, and faster disrespect for the law and the government.

It is inconceivable that a country as rich in human and natural resources as Canada should even consider dropping the Games — under their troubles aside.

We think every time we read or hear that the International Olympic Committee is considering switching the Games again to some site such as Mexico City.

U.S. Balks At Metric

The Christian Science Monitor

The reputation of the supporters of metric system is that if you give them a centimeter they will take a meter. Yet this has not been true in the United States where most of the population has not been persuaded to shift from a yard to a meter, from a decimeter pole even though use of the system is legally permitted. Yet act of Congress in 1866.

Now the nation's lonely attachment to inches, pounds, gallons and acres has been joined by another. On April 1, Canada began a gradual conversion to meters, grams and liters — leaving the U.S. as the only major country holding out against the system favored by the greater of the world's people.

Last year Congress once more rejected legislation to bring about a voluntary conversion to the metric system. Now, in the wake of Canada's action, the legislation's time has come.

Yet it should not. It is 1,295 years since Horace said, "It is right that each man should measure himself by his own measure." Yet it is time to doubt referring to a sense of standards rather than a standard for it there.

In a growingly interdependent world, clearly America's perverse should allow it to catch up, albeit kicking and screaming, with the 19th century — which, by the way, Canada has been struggling for acceptance since almost the time of the Dominion Act. Canada and Americans have hardly budged an inch.

It's hard to think of post 1975 Canada in terms of 1,295 kilometers to go before I sleep.

It's chilling to think of Congress as room tomorrow, but somebody signatures and temporary room, and so in a year of vast numbers, and everybody's time, and everybody's money, a continuing, is not the system of the present.

Break In The Bridge

Damage occurred to Bay Lake Road bridge, southwest of Bancroft, after township truck had passed. Structure is now partially collapsed, blocking access.

Township Bridge Finally Gives Out

BANCROFT — Cottagers and residents headed for the cool relief of Hog Bay Lake area of North Hastings will find their way blocked by a partially collapsed bridge on the road, four miles south west of Bancroft.

The bridge and road are the property of Faraday Township and have been looked at for replacement several times in the last years.

While one of the Faraday township trucks was going over the bridge, the damage occurred.

No one was injured in the mishap.

According to Faraday clerk Mona Gunter, the road has been closed until a decision is made by the council about replacement or repair.

There are several alternate routes into the western end of Bay Lake, so no one has to miss a pleasant weekend at the cottage.

Loyalist Students from North

Women Tops in Technology

By ROBIN CHASE

The following accounts were not designed to occur merely because this is International Women's Year.

Two women students from the North Hastings area — at Loyalist College bested their male classmates in the 1974-75 college year in their respective courses in the school of technology.

Penny Harrop, Madoc housewife and mother of two, has been named by Loyalist as recipient of the Senator Fraser Memorial Scholarships for the best all-around students. The other award goes to the school of business.

Another award in technology goes to Lauren Lloyd of Northbrook. Mrs. Harrop was the only woman among 17 students in her class.

After leaving secondary school, she attended the University of Toronto to get a bachelor of arts degree in fine arts. However, she found her true academic interests involved electronics.

Following a Loyalist electronics extension course, she applied for credits in the electronic engineering program and was permitted to enter directly into second year.

She will return to complete the program next year. When she graduates she plans to start a brand new career in research and development in electronics.

As for Lauren Lloyd, to have straight A's is one thing, but to achieve this as a female student in civil engineering is quite another and original.

Miss Lloyd, 19, is the only female in a class of 19 students.

She attended the North Addington Education Centre in Cloyne from which she graduated with a secondary school honors graduation diploma.

Miss Lloyd achieved an average of 75 per cent in her Grade 13 mathematics courses, thus qualifying her for direct entry into the second year of the three-year course. She achieved an average of 75 per cent in the first year of the three-year civil engineering technology program at Loyalist.

There, she improved on her high school record. In five courses, she received an A-plus (94-100 per cent) while for the other two courses she scored an a 75-83 per cent.

This qualified her for the Atkinson Foundation Trust along with nine other students from various programs. Miss Lloyd has had no problem finding suitable summer employment in the male-dominated field of civil engineering.

Cheques Make Good Reading For Board

The Hastings-Prince Edward Separate School Board has decided the listing of about 200 cheques totalling about $200,000 each month makes good reading for trustees and is part of their responsibility.

The board Tuesday night rejected a move by the administration to list only those cheques in excess of $200. It would have reduced the number by about 75 per cent.

At Tuesday's meeting the agenda contained eight pages of cheques for last month.

Business superintendent Ed Pepper said it would be easier to give greater detail on the larger cheques of a significant nature. He said many of the cheques are routine each month and there was no need to repeat them.

Trustee Paul Wall said he would like to see an alternative format but re-affirmed the board's position that it has a responsibility to see every cheque.

Grants Boosted

PICTON — James Taylor, MPP Prince Edward — Lennox, Wednesday announced supplementary road grants totaling $95,700 for Prince Edward County municipalities.

The supplementary grants for road construction will be paid in addition to the regular road budget approved by the province.

Municipalities receiving this additional assistance are as follows: Picton, $20,000; Wellington, $1,500; Athol, $1,700; Hallowell, $2,000; Hillier $7,000; North Marysburg $1,500 and Sophiasburg $2,500.

Mr. Taylor said the supplementary grants were made to municipalities that applied for the assistance because of work projects requiring extra funds.

Communications Are Emphasized

MADOC — Back-biting and non-communication in politicians have no place in the federation, says Judie Carty, newly-acclaimed Hastings Division Ontario Secondary School teachers' Federation (OSSTF) president for her second term.

Speaking to about 125 county high school teachers Thursday night at Centre Hastings Secondary school here, Mrs. Carty urged the county's 530 secondary school teachers to bring their problems to the federation — no matter how small.

"Communication is the key to a successful organization," said Mrs. Carty," and the present network is not working to capacity in that all members are not taking advantage of it." She was referring the use of branch networks in each secondary school in the county.

She urged teachers to tell their branch presidents their problems who can then pass the information along to the OSSTF executive. Mrs. Carty argued that then these problems could be brought before school administration for solutions.

During the annual meeting Trustee teacher Gary Baca introduced a resolution calling for greater communication between the provincial executive and the local district executive.

Communications Take 2

Mr. Baca argued that the Hastings division of OSSTF should have the same status as a district." He said this would promote more local autonomy for teachers and better representation at workshops.

Hastings County is now part of a larger district composed of two other counties: Prince Edward and Lennox and Addington counties. Mr. Baca said with the current arrangement it is possible Hastings can find itself without a representative on certain committees.

The teachers supported the resolution. Mrs. Carty, during her speech, also supported current co-operation between the other two teacher federations in the county, the federation of Woman Teachers' Association of Ontario and the Ontario Public School Men Teachers' Federation.

TAINA BOMAN

Exchange Student Ends Year

A spur of the moment decision to apply for a Rotary International student exchange program last year brought Taina Roman to Belleville from Iisalmi, Finland.

"I hadn't even been thinking about Canada when a friend said "why don't you apply," she says. "I did and I arrived here last August.

Taina, 16, whose father is a Rotarian, arrived last August and will return home Saturday after spending the year living with four exchange families and attending Belleville Collegiate Institute.

Travel isn't a stranger to the student who toured England and the continent alone at 14.

"Pretty well every student is on their own for the summer at that age, traveling," Taina explains. Since her arrival here she has visited New York city and South Carolina as well as other parts of Ontario.

Of all the provincial cities she visited — Toronto, Kitchener, Ottawa, Kingston — she prefers Belleville.

"I like the size of Belleville, I think it's best."

While its smaller than the other centers she visited, it's bigger than her home town where life for the student is more active and varied.

In Finland, during the evenings, for example, most young people congregate to stroll the streets, sit in parks or in coffee bars to chat. Parties are popular and frequent and dancing in an outdoor pavilion is a regular summer activity.

The difference is social life has made Belleville quite lonely for Taina who says, resignedly, that "most kids my age have all their friends — I really didn't get to know anyone here."

She enjoyed her educational experience at BCI — "I passed all my courses," she says proudly — where she studied math, English, French, geography and home economics. School too, differs from Finland, where all studies are prescribed.

Going back to Finland will leave Taina longing for two new favorite foods — corn and chocolate chip cookies (she's taking some of both back in her suitcase!). But she'll be glad to be back to an old favorite — saunas.

"The first thing I'm going to do is take a sauna."

Property Law Film Planned

Women — and men too — who are interested in the new provincial family property reform legislation, should make an effort to see a film being shown at Centennial Secondary School, Saturday May 24, at 2 p.m. and again at 8 p.m.

The film — Family Property Law — is distributed by the Attorney-General's office at Queen's Park, and is being shown throughout Ontario prior to the legislation going to the Cabinet for approval in June, and before the House in October.

Sponsored by the Anglican Church Women of the diocese of Ontario, the film is endorsed by the University Women's Club, Dr. Richard Potter, MP Jack Ellis, the Victorian Order of Nurses, the municipalities of Stirling and Belleville, the Hastings County Board of Education and the Roman Catholic Separate School Board of Hastings and Prince Edward Counties, the Department of Social Services.

Dorothy Mallory, who saw the film earlier this spring at the University of Guelph, became immediately enthusiastic about its value and began arrangements for its showing here.

"Our ACW group, like several others in the area, had been inviting to get the film," she says. "And once I saw it for myself, I could see how important it is that people get this vital information."

Mrs. Mallory invited Guelph lawyer Joan Heath to conduct a question-and-answer period following the 40-minute film.

"There are so many issues involved here that are of concern to married couples, as well as anyone contemplating marriage," says Mrs. Mallory.

Although some of the present inequalities will be erased by the reform legislation there are still several problems of which the public should be aware, Mrs. Mallory points out. For example, once the new regulations become law, they will not pertain to those who were married before it was enacted, unless a change is made before June.

After seeing the film, and taking part in the discussion, individuals and groups should have sufficient information to decide whether or not they wish changes in the legislation "while there is still time."

"Women, especially women in traditional rural communities such as we have in this area must realize how much they need the protection of better and fairer laws," says Mrs. Mallory. "Without pensions or adequate savings, they can be left with nothing if they are widowed or divorced.

"This film gives us a chance to get the information we need to influence the new legislation."

There will be no admission charge, but a collection plate at the door will be used to collect donations to defray the minor expenses of the day.

Planners Affect Lives

LONDON (CP) — There are no elections in Britain for town planners this office as there are for politicians, but it is widely felt that one stroke from a planner's pen can affect lives to a greater degree than can any politician.

Planners as a whole are viewed with suspicion but a critic might be reassured, even increased by a face-to-face meeting with a planner such as Ann Landers.

She has just been made president of the Royal Town Planning Institute (RTPI), one of the profession's highest accolades, and is one of the most influential planners in southeast England.

The planning profession is roughly divided into two sections—development planning and development control. In the first group are the strategist who, from the geography, ecology and other vital factors of an area and then make the general guide policies for it.

Development controllers make sure the plans don't go wrong, that they don't put a group of factories into the middle of a housing development or vice versa. Sylvia Law found development control "very rewarding emotionally" and was glad to go up in the ranks. Now she is a principal planner in charge of recreation for the Greater London Council (GLC), the biggest local authority in Britain.

She didn't never intended becoming a planner. The daughter of a cotton waste merchant, she went to London University and gained a master's degree in geography. She then took a teaching job at Bennales, later changed to a lecturer at the Queen Princess Anne. "I enjoyed it, but at the end of three years I knew I wasn't a born teacher," said Sylvia.

Abroad, immediately her grounding in research techniques made her a cinch. She was involved in a vast social survey which revealed that "we did what people want. Ten years ago, she discovered that private sports grounds were gradually being sold off for housing developments. Such sales are being slowed and will eventually stop.

She is also pressing hard for the London boroughs to extend their parklands. Some has some of the most beautiful urban parks in the world but she would like more large green spaces within ten to five miles of London, dotted with middle-sized and smaller parks at shorter intervals.

The only alternative then was to stop building further developments, where they would attract congestion. This was done, and Kent began to keep more of its indigenous population.

In 1965 Sylvia joined the GLC and rose quickly to her present position. Now she has a housing, food, a sailing dinghy which she races when she can and a more launch on the River Medway in which she relaxes "spending all the time we are going further afield to watch the birds and the beasts."

She is perhaps because her own recreation is so important to her that the works she improves the recreational facilities for eight million Londoners. Some time ago

Man Dies In Mishap At Mine

MARMORA — A 19-year-old Trenton man died Thursday after he fell 25 feet into an ocean pit at Marmorator Mining Co. on the outskirts of this village.

Provincial police at Madoc said today Gerald Mills, of 43 Queen St., Trenton, was one of a three-man crew employed by Quinte Marine and Salvage Co. of Belleville.

Police said the crew was dismantling a railway track leading into the mine when Mills lost his footing and fell into the pit. He was pronounced dead at the scene by Coroner Dr. H. G. Parkin of Marmora. The body was taken to Belleville General Hospital for a post mortem.

The accident occurred about 10:15 a.m.

Mr. Mills is survived by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Mills, with whom he resided, and four brothers — Brian, Douglas and John of Trenton and of Toronto.

The funeral will be conducted Saturday at 3:15 p.m. from Weaver Funeral Home at 199 West Dundas St., in Trenton by Capt. George Swaddling of the Salvation Army. Burial will be at St. George's Cemetery.

Auspicious Autograph

Belleville's official guest book got an auspicious signature Thursday night. Prime Minister was asked to sign the volume after he was greeted by Mayor Robin Jeffrey while entering meeting at Centennial Secondary School.

Canoe Stolen From Car

City police are investigating the theft of a canoe valued at $225 from the roof of a car parked in front of 325 Bingham St., sometime between 11:30 p.m. Thursday and 7 a.m. today.

Police said the owner is Charles Pattison and the car was parked in front of his residence.

Brass Goes To Picton

PICTON — The Concert Brass of Belleville will strike up the band May 28 at Prince Edward Collegiate Institute in Picton.

The band, accompanied by the Trentones, will visit Prince Edward County sponsored by the Picton Kiwanis Club.

Picton Kiwanian Chris Lockwayy says the Concert Brass has appeared frequently in county schools and is responsible for "a telling effect in creating enthusiasm for music among the students."

The Trentones is a barbershop chorus with a "close close singing" the old sweet songs."

Tickets are available at the Lockyer Flower Shoppe, Mason's Department Store, Don Stanton Insurance and Bill Moore Farm Equipment. They will also be sold by Don Baxter, Bloomfield; Mrs. Murray McVeich, Wellington and Reverend J. Collen, Northport.

Hold Dance

The Belle-Trent chapter of the Non-Parent Family Association of Canada is holding a dance at the Parkdale Community Centre Saturday. Information on the association can be obtained by phoning 968-6045 or 393-6295.

Abortion, Drugs, Hanging PM Challenged on Moral Issues

Morality issues — abortion, drugs and capital punishment — seasoned questions aimed at Prime Minister Trudeau in Belleville Thursday night.

One man even wanted to know if the prime minister's personal religious beliefs affected his legislative stance.

"I don't try to impose my religion by laws on other people," replied Mr. Trudeau.

The serious questions created serious discourse from the prime minister on morality and law.

But at one point he injected a lighter note into the crowded auditorium at Centennial Secondary School.

One young man persistently queried Jr. Trudeau on relaxation of marijuana laws.

Mr. Trudeau said new legislation on marijuana was still in the process of final approval by the Commons.

"So don't start smoking it tonight," wryly advised the prime minister, drawing loud laughter from the crowd.

But he said, there are some drugs from which people must be protected. A drug user won't remain in solitude forever.

"You will become a drug addict — and the rest of society will have to pay to keep you going," he cautioned.

Other issues:

Abortion: Specifically queried Mr. Trudeau on remarks of Medicine Dr. Henry Morgentaler for abortion, Mr. Trudeau called him a "fine humanitarian" whom he knew personally although he didn't share his views. "He is a fine man. But the point is . . . he was deliberately testing the law in order to raise public opinion . . . to force the government to change the law." When a "man does that he shouldn't complain about being in jail . . . and he shouldn't ask for mercy." Dr. Doctor Morgentaler gran him parole. Citizens have a right to convince politicians to change laws if they desire. But "It's the law of the land now — and if you break that law you go to jail."

Capital punishment for murder of police and prison guards: The law allows the cabinet the prerogative of commutation and the law can remove that privilege. But I hope that day won't come. I hope there will always be room for mercy even in the hearts of the hardiest politician."

A legislator must try to formulate laws for what he believes is the common good — as he sees it. This doesn't necessarily mean following majority opinion.

"I hope legislators always have the courage to do that," said the prime minister. If they are wrong they pay the penalty at election time, he said.

Summer Camp Is Cut Back Two Weeks

A summer day-camp for city youngsters has been cut back from eight to six weeks.

The move was decided after a $2,800 support grant was turned down by the provincial government.

The camp is operated jointly by the Belleville YMCA and the city's recreation department.

Cutting back the length of the program and increasing the ratio of campers to counselors from 10 to 12 were among solutions to the loss of the grant, the recreation-arena committee and parks board was told Tuesday.

Fees also could be increased from $15 to $18.

The recreation committee agreed to meet any deficit up to $300.

County Museum Plans Exhibits of Engines

The Hastings County Museum at 257 East Bridge St. will hold a "stationary engine and mobile machinery" exhibit in its front lawn from 3-4 p.m. Sunday.

Martin Lewis, museum curator, said Thursday if there is inclement weather, the show will be completely cancelled. It will not be a temporary postponement due to the problem of setting dates for the event.

He said exhibitors will be Don Foster of Belleville and John Howe of Trenton who will bring various types of machinery dating from around the turn of the century.

Included will be exhibits of early gasoline engines used for farming and light industry and all will be operated, Mr. Lewis noted.

The public is invited to attend and discuss the artifacts with museum officials and the exhibitors.

Shuffleboard Is Pondered

The city's recreation department will investigate the possibility of introducing shuffleboard — long close by senior citizens' dwellings.

The move was suggested by Ald. Jean Smith Tuesday after a request from a city resident.

"We have everything for young people," said the councillor.

Shuffleboard installations were suggested in a letter from Arthur J. Clare, 217 Bridge St. East.

Location: The proposed were the East Hill Playgrounds park and adjacent to senior citizens apartment on West Bridge.

Lloyd Syer, parks director, said a shuffleboard already has been installed for some time at the Alemite playground.

One problem posed was that one course was injurious, since it would draw few people. A court of shuffleboard facilities which would accommodate more players simultaneously was needed, he said.

Competition On Weekend

The Prince-Edward-Hastings region of the Industrial Accident Prevention Association (IAPA) will hold its annual forklift competition Saturday from 8 a.m. to about 2 p.m. at the Bell Ellis finishing Harder Dr. in Belleville.

Ken Fisher of Delora Stellite at 471 East Dundas St. in Belleville, chairman of the competition, said Thursday about 20 participants will compete in teams and in individual contests.

He said Bob Courtney of Delora Stellite, the 1974 individual winner, will return to attempt his second consecutive championship. He won for the first time last year.

Trudeau in Belleville:

Big Wage Settlements One Peril for Exports

By HARRY MULHALL
Staff Reporter

Big wage settlements could contribute to pricing Canada out of its export markets, Prime Minister Trudeau warned Thursday night.

"There is little to be "cheery" about for an exporting nation when its wage increases now are running higher than in the United States, he cautioned.

The comments came as Mr. Trudeau defended his government's policy of seeking voluntary restraints while rejecting questions from a standing-room-only crowd at Centennial Secondary School.

The economic situation is compounded by the fact industry and labor is caught in a cost-push inflation spiraling.

One sequel has been that unions are not only trying to keep wages in line with rising costs but with prevention future inflation. This has seen wage settlements exceed even the current inflation rate. The government is trying to steer a "very thin balance" between overstimulating the economy and reducing unemployment without further fueling inflation.

But it also is bowing to voluntary constraints while attempting to increase productivity by reaching a consensus with unions and industry.

"It's a very serious situation," said Mr. Trudeau. "That's why we have this series of consultations with businesses and labor and the provinces.

"We have nothing to be very cheery about when it comes to the pattern of wage settlements is so markedly higher than the United States.

"It will mean eventually we will price ourselves out of the market," said the prime minister.

"We will not be able to sell our goods in foreign markets. And when you realize Canada is essentially an exporting nation it can be very serious for us.

"That's why we're trying to appeal for voluntary restraint."

However he opposed a return to a system akin to wartime controls — a solution offered by one questioner.

Such controls only work in a time when the nation is prepared to accept sacrifices — when all transactions are subject to law and people are prepared to surrender some "very, very basic liberties."

But "freezing is not the way to run an economy to progress, he said.

"It can be necessary "in some circumstances, but I hope we will succeed in the voluntary consensus as we will not have recourse to it here," said Mr. Trudeau.

The prime minister — who arrived in Belleville by helicopter and stayed overnight at the Four Seasons Hotel on a swing through central Ontario — was heard out by a crowd of about 1,000 as he answered questions for an hour.

It was his first visit to the city in four years and he mingled briefly with the crowd before departing at the end of what was billed by local Liberal organizers as a "private" session — styled on the fireside chats of yesterday — held in a high school auditorium.

The prime minister was accompanied by Secretary of State Hugh Faulkner.

His appearance at the school went without incident, although there was some distraction for security forces just as he arrived.

A figure was spotted on the roof of a 15-story apartment block opposite the school as the Trudeau cavalcade neared.

When police investigated they found an 18-year-old — who had earlier been turned out of the school by a janitor — observing the scene below. He eluded officers and was chased through the area to the nearby Dick Ellis Rink before he was caught. Police said he was escorted home.

Ellis Critical of Trudeau For Leaving During Estimates

OTTAWA — Jack Ellis, MP Hastings, Frontenac criticized Prime Minister Trudeau for "deliberately flaunting the procedures of the House of Commons".

Mr. Ellis said the prime minister should have stayed in the House for discussion of the budget estimates of his department but instead left to come to Belleville.

"I'm delighted to have him come to Belleville, but under the circumstances his departure was inappropriate," said Mr. Ellis.

The budget for the prime minister's and Privy Council offices is about $20-million, he said.

Mr. Trudeau should have remained in the House to justify the expenditures in detail as Commons custom, said Mr. Ellis.

Playground Is Sought For Children's Centre

Because of a shortfall in provincial government funds, a new project in child development centres may be help of city parks and recreation authorities.

The facility is the Children's Development project on East Bridge St. and Bleecker Ave., scheduled to open this September.

The project, an undertaking of volunteers with a good record in community work with youngsters, is to have nursery development facilities for mentally and physically handicapped as well as normal children.

A large house at 225 East Bridge now is being renovated for the scheme, but provincial funding has been cut back, two of its representatives told Tuesday.

As a result, Marion Bishop and Margaret Maddocks asked if the parks board and recreation committee could assist with creation of a playground area. Such a facility is vital to the project since it provides a common meeting place for the centre's young students, they said.

The committee decided to defer a decision when a conceptual plan of the entire project is available.

Alarm Box

Belleville firefighters responded to the following calls for assistance during a 24-hour period which ended at 8 a.m. today:

Thursday, May 22, 9:16 a.m. — malfunction in motor of washing machine at 360 Victoria Ave., no damage.

Thursday, May 22, 5:22 p.m. — false alarm at Consumers Distributing Co. Ltd., at 211 North Front St.

Thursday, May 22, 6:17 p.m. — false alarm at Black Hawk Motor Inn, 325 North Front St. due to power failure

Thursday, May 22, 7:40 p.m. — hydro overload caused short in electrical computer machine at the Unemployment Insurance Commission office at 494 East Dundas St., no damage.

Thursday, May 22, 8:08 p.m. — fire in garbage container at Moira Secondary School at the corner of Farley and Victoria Avenues, fire confined to container, cause unknown.

What if Mayaguez Had been Canadian?

What would be have done if the Mayaguez had been a Canadian ship, Prime Minister Trudeau was asked Thursday night as he faced a crowded Belleville meeting.

He had not immediate response — "I couldn't pick up the phone and send the Eighth Fleet in there . . . we ain't got that kind of navy."

The Mayaguez was the United States vessel freed by U.S. forces last week after its seizure by Cambodian warships was declared piracy.

In a hypothetical case involving a Canadian craft he hoped things could be settled peacefully, said Mr. Trudeau.

"But," he told the meeting at Centennial Secondary School: "In my heart I think it would be difficult for me to claim I would have had a very different reaction than President Ford if I'd been in the shoes. I think at some point you have to draw the line".

Yet, he admitted, he wanted to be careful not to make a judgement about "people in high office caught in such difficult situations".

By example he cited the Quebec FLQ crisis five years ago when his government declared the War Measures Act.

"I still know of a situation in October, 1970 when I think the government did the right thing. But a lot of people think we over-reacted," he said.

New Officers For Legion

Branch 99 of the Royal Canadian Legion has elected new officers and executive for 1975-76.

The new president is Bill Richardson. Working with him in the position of first-vice, second-vice and sergeant at arms are Eric Walker, Dave Dyson and Ingo Chartres, respectively.

The executive will be formed by Cliff Fobert, Bob Madden, Burr Morrison, Tom Purdey, Jack Rashotte, Ina Rollins, Fred Smith, and George Siddall.

The past president of Branch 99 is Gerry Downes.

Truckers' Troubles

Max Haggarty, seated, Ontario Trucking Association president, said Thursday "piracy" is major problem facing Ontario truckers. Mel Donnelly, chairman of the association board, at Belleville meeting called for more government control to combat illegal truckers which he called "pirates of the highway."

'Piracy' Seen as Serious Trucking Issue: Haggarty

By COLIN BRUCE
Staff Reporter

Trucking "piracy" was diagnosed as the Ontario Trucking Association's "most serious" problem by association president Max Haggarty Thursday.

The association (OTA) held a regional meeting in Belleville "to bring information from the association directly to the grass roots" said the president.

Mr. Haggarty said in an interview the association is actively lobbying the provincial government for regulation enforcement that will "effectively eradicate illegal truckers."

He explained certain companies which public commercial vehicle licences are operating across Ontario and are not complying with stringent regulations placed on licensed operators by the province.

"These people are taking the cream off the top of the industry . . . running with only full loads," at their own discretion, he said. "Licensed companies must provide scheduled service whether or not the truck has a full load."

"While the illegal operator gets the cream, we get the grounds of the business," he said.

The trucking industry in Ontario last year earned a total $600-million "of which at least eight to 10 percent was taken by pirates," said Mr. Haggarty.

He said the same rate would be applicable in the Belleville area.

"We have asked the illegal companies are and we've had conversations with Minister of Transportation and Communications John Rhodes," he said.

Mr. Haggarty said Thursday's meeting was not a business meeting as such the association had one where ward members could ask questions.

He said main areas of discussion for the association cover "additional law enforcement to ensure truck drivers the rules of the road, particularly in respect to speeding and following too closely.

Driver licence reclassification is also a major interest for the association.

Mr. Haggarty said the province is now formulating a new licensing program where the chauffeur's licence will be replaced by nine classifications.

Licences will be tailored to the piece of equipment the operator has been trained to operate, he said.

In the past only a chauffeur's licence was required to allow operation of a commercial vehicle.

A ministry spokesman, Wally McCabe, said the department is hopes the reclassification will be ready by the end of the year or early 1976.

The Long, Long Load

Measuring 44 feet, weighing 10 tons, this king-size slio was among the more challenging products for shipment recently produced by a Belleville industry. It was one of six fabricated by Foley Foundry and sent by road Friday to Campbellford factory where they'll be used for storage of chocolate.

No Place Like Home for the Sabres

BUFFALO (CP) — There has been no place like home for Buffalo Sabres during this year's Stanley Cup playoffs.

The Sabres now have won all night of their post-season games in front of their home fans at War Memorial Auditorium, with the latest 5-4 win Thursday night over Philadelphia Flyers to even their best-of-seven final at 2-2.

The Sabres lost the first two games of the National Hockey League championship final in Philadelphia but returned to some ice Tuesday night to win 4-2 overtime.

"We knew these two games in Buffalo would be great games for us," said Sabres coach Floyd Smith, referring to Thursday's contest. "We knew that Smith did not feel his club got off to a good start in Thursday night's game despite the fact they had gotten ahead in the first half of the first period.

"I don't think he had a shot on goal in the final eight minutes of the first period," Smith said. "But then we regrouped and we got our goal and we were off."

Philadelphia's Andre Dupont opened the lone goal of the opening period but the Sabres came back with a 3-2 lead in the second period on goals by Jerry Korab, Gilbert Perreault and Jim Lorentz while Rene Lonsberry got Philadelphia's second goal.

Danny Gare completed the scoring into an empty Flyers net in the final minute of play.

Dupont's goal came on the Flyers' third shot of the game. He had an 8-1 edge in shots but Sabres not get the puck by Philadelphia goalie Bernie Parent.

GERRY DESJARDINS

... being replaced by Roger Crozier.

The Sabres tied the score 1-1 in the second period on Korab's goal at 3:46 when the Buffalo defenseman fired a screen shot from the blueline that went. But 34 seconds later, Lonsberry broke down the left wing and beat Desjardins out of position and tucked the puck into the open net.

Perreault tied the score with his sixth goal of the playoffs at 10:37 on his best Parent from the slot after taking a pass behind the Flyers net.

Lorentz got the winner when he converted a setup by Rick Martin for his sixth playoff goal.

"I shot the puck in and Dolby beat the defenseman to the puck," said Lorentz. "I think he got a shot and Parent controlled the rebound but I don't think he deflected it the way he wanted it to go it came right to me and I had the whole side to score."

Lorentz said he was worried about the Sabres' performance in the final period when it appeared the Flyers were taking control.

"When you get up on them they don't quit," Lorentz said. "We sort of laid back there for a while. Maybe we played it too cautious in our own end."

Lonsberry had the best chance to tie the score for the Flyers with three minutes to play as he took a lead pass from Bobby Clarke and broke in on goal.

"As far as I'm concerned that breakaway was just a good as a save, even though the shot was wide," said Desjardins. "He shot it when he was by the net."

The first major penalties of the game came in the second period when Buffalo's Jim Schoenfeld and the Flyers' Dave Schultz swarmed in the first hot boot while Dudley and Kelly tangled in the second. The Schoenfeld-Schultz affair was no more than a pushing match but Dudley and Kelly used their fists in a wild exchange.

Dudley, playing his second game after missing seven playoff matches because of a knee injury, appeared to have reinjured the knee late in the third period when he bumped with Dupont. However, Dudley left after the game that he had not suffered any more damage.

The fifth game of series is scheduled for Philadelphia on Sunday afternoon and the sixth in Buffalo next Tuesday night.

Deficit of $88,000 Doesn't Bother CAHA

QUEBEC (CP) — The executive board of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association (CAHA) Thursday night approved an operating budget for the next 12 months that indicated a deficit of $88,650.

Gordon Jackson of Ottawa, executive director of the CAHA, said the deficit figure was based on projected income of $245,000 and expected expenses of $330,350.

Jackson said president Don Johnson of St. John's, Nfld., said the income figure did not include any money the CAHA would get should it be successful in signing a new pay-out agreement with the National Hockey League and the World Hockey Association.

Last year the CAHA obtained more than $60,000 from the professional leagues as its share of their payment of $1.5 million for players drafted from amateur rank. However, the CAHA has been unsuccessful in getting its consent of the agreement with either league since the contract ran out at the beginning of last year.

But both men denied reports published Thursday that the CAHA was on the verge of bankruptcy.

"It's not as though we don't have any money," Jackson said. "While we didn't plan in budget for a deficit and we have to pay this under serious, it is not the end.

"We have assets of $220,000, whereas four years ago they were only $137,000," he said. "The $220,000 can carry the $88,650 deficit."

Johnson, elected president to succeed Jack Dempsey of Toronto, Ont., became in the day at the final session of the association's annual convention, said steps have already been taken to make sure the deficit is not repeated next year.

But, he said, all provincial branches of the association have agreed some type of additional individual assessment at the player, team or branch level must be made to look after any figure deficit problem.

Johnson also said that Gordon Coates, president of Quebec, Barrie Flyers, remained under indefinite suspension. Coates was suspended after he pulled his team from the ice when a brawl erupted during the third game of the Allan Cup semi-final series against St. John's Capitals in the Newfoundland capital.

There was discussion of the incident between representatives of the Newfoundland and Quebec teams in the corridors during the meetings here, Johnson said.

"The St. John's people have asked for a formal apology from the CAHA," he added. "Gordon Ramsell will set the date for the hearing."

Renwick, of Cambridge, Ont., was elected first vice-president of the CAHA in Thursday's election.

The board also decided to issue an invitation to Moncton Selects and a second club (men from the Sorbel Union to play a series of seven or eight exhibition games in Canada next season. The teams would face other teams in preparation for the junior competition during their Canadian tour.

European Players Are a Must—Hull

SARNIA, Ont. (CP) — Professional hockey will have to look to Europe for players if it intends to remain strong, says Bobby Hull.

Hull, player-coach of Winnipeg Jets of the World Hockey Association who broke the major leagues single-season goal scoring record with 77 goals last season, gave a lot of credit to his two Swedish line-mates, Ulf Nilsson and Andres Hedberg.

"The two Swedes were a pleasure to play with and made the game of hockey fun for me again," Hull said Thursday. "This last season was the best I've had in five years."

Hull, here to attend a sports celebrity dinner, said both the National Hockey League and the WHA will probably be recruiting many more Swedish hockey players in years to come.

The minor systems in Canada just don't teach all the basic and fundamentals like all the Europeans get. Also the attitude toward the game is much better in Europe than in Canada,

Hull added that his two Swedish team-mates wanted it stressed in their contracts that they would have to play all 78 games.

"That's something you would find very rarely in Canada."

But New Question Posed

IOC Delegates Accept Report from Montreal

LAUSANNE, Switzerland (CP) — Mayor Jean Drapeau was the top scorer in Montreal's bid to win the right to host the 1976 Olympics but also behind a new question regarding the Montreal construction schedule.

The IOC delegates went through two lengthy sessions Wednesday and Thursday before finally announcing Thursday they had accepted "with full confidence" the Montreal organizing committee's report on plans for next year's Games. Six nations had left for Montreal, via Paris, a new controversy erupted over the mayor's alleged statement to the classified IOC session that construction on Olympic facilities is actually well ahead of schedule contrary to the popular belief that work at the Montreal site was falling behind schedule due to labor troubles.

A report circulated in Canada on Wednesday said Drapeau had told the IOC that construction was three months ahead of schedule but he wanted the information kept secret to avoid further problems with the labor unions.

IOC president Lord Killanin denied Thursday night that he had confirmed the Drapeau statement.

"I know nothing about it," Killanin told the Canadian Press in a midnight telephone interview. "I haven't seen any reporters. You would have to ask the mayor what he said. I have had no questions at my press conference tomorrow."

Two Canadian reporters said they and a third reporter were sitting outside the IOC conference room after most of the press had left the building Thursday night, when Killanin strolled over and began talking. One, a Canadian Broadcasting Corporation reporter, said he took Killanin's remarks as confirmation that Drapeau had indeed made the statement attributed to him in the earlier reports in Canada.

The other Canadian reporter said when he read Killanin the gist of the remarks Drapeau was reported to have made in the closed session, Killanin commented:

"You are a very well-informed person."

The IOC and the Montreal delegation avoided the traditional news conference following Thursday's session, and the IOC issued only a terse 30-word statement saying Montreal's report was accepted.

Roger Rousseau, president of the Montreal organizing committee, said the IOC's brief statement of confidence was "the statement we expected."

Puck Jumped Says Lonsberry

Jim Lorentz—Too Cautious?

BUFFALO (CP) — "We had a bunch of floaters out there," said Bobby Clarke of Philadelphia Flyers.

That was one of Clarke's early comments Thursday night after the Flyers lost a 5-4 to Buffalo Sabres in the fourth game of the Stanley Cup Final.

Coach Fred Shero of the Flyers changed the subject when asked why there were no penalties in the third period.

"That's the way the players want it. In a close game, let 'em play unless someone gets a head taken off. No one wants to win in a close penalty."

The Buffalo win evened the best-of-seven National Hockey League series at two games apiece with the fifth game scheduled Sunday afternoon in Philadelphia.

One of the stars for the Sabres was goaltender Gerry Desjardins, who could do nothing right Tuesday night although the Sabres won 5-4 on overtime. He allowed three goals in the first period, then asked coach Floyd Smith to be taken out of the game.

Desjardins, 30-year-old native of Sudbury, Ont., was sharp in the fourth game. He came up strong late in the third period when he prevented René Lonsberry from mucoring on a breakaway with the Sabres leading 3-2.

Desjardins said he forced Lonsberry wide on the breakaway, making the Philadelphia winger shoot to the side of the net with his shot.

"I would have stopped him if he had shot on the net, unless he would have gone pretty high with it," the goaltender said.

But Lonsberry had a different explanation for the play. He said:

"The secret of a breakaway with a goalie is to try to force the player to make the first move. I made my move and he moved with me, but he didn't move far enough. He reached for it. I guess he thought I would shoot it right away, which I didn't, then he reached.

"He had nowhere else to reach to, he was stretched right out. I had lots of net to shoot at and he was laying on his side. So obviously he can't get up too high, and I went to put it up and it (the puck) jumped just as I went to shoot it."

Lonsberry said he hit the side of the post with his shot.

Rick Dudley, another top Buffalo performer, took a unanimous decision over Bob Kelly during a second-period fight and assisted on the winning goal by Jim Lorentz at 15:37 of the same period.

Dudley, who missed seven games in a row in the playoffs with a knee injury before he returned Tuesday, said he hurt his knuckles when he hit Kelly.

Dudley, who twisted his knee when fell by Andre Dupont in the third period, tangled with Kelly after Jim Schoenfeld of the Sabres and Dave Schultz of the Flyers fought in a preliminary. Each of the players received five-minute fighting majors.

Constellation Scores Again

Constellation keeps rolling along in Belleville Industrial Softball League. The leader in the East division, the squad picked up its fourth straight win Thursday, shading Independents 8-7. It was the first loss for Independents, after a win earlier.

In the other match, Canadian Tire found the winning formula, tripping Mead Johnson 3-2. The Tiremen had their first two starts. Mead Johnson has only a tie to show after four outings.

Ken Kerik, stung by 14 Independent hits, recorded the win. He fanned five and had perfect control, walking only Greg Bellis ad Earl Colden a brace of the Independents' pitching, giving up 13 hits, striking out one and walking four.

Kerik helped his own cause at the plate, collecting three hits, despite Wayne May belting a home run and a single while Earl Cain and Mike Callaghan each singled twice.

Ron Fuller supplied three Independent singles, Al Lewis, George Foote and Doug Bennett each collected one for a homer and a single.

Andy Proddon put the win on the board for Canadian Tire, stopping Meads on seven hits. He struck out five and walked none.

Loser Sonny Holoway was nicked for nine hits while fanning five and walking two.

Proddon, John French and Al Moncrieff each collected two hits for the winers. Alec Belch homered.

Tops for Meads were Gary Genereux and Charlie Rowbotham with a triple and a single each.

Rich Getting Richer

The rich got richer and the poor stay that way in the early going of the Quinte Fastball League.

In Thursday's doubleheader at Alemite Park, Bardon Supplies and Trenton Auger Men's Wear each made it two wins in as many starts. Devolin Motors and Ellis Jewelers were on the short end of the scores and both teams are still looking for their first win.

Bardon topped Devolin 3-1 while the Trenton team turned back the Juniors 6-1.

With the first week of the schedule completed, Howard and Robert Printing Joins Auger's and Bardon at the top of the heap. Each team has a 2-0 record. At the other end of the scale are Burnbrek Real Estate of Wellington, Devolin and the Ellis team, each with an 0-2 mark.

Bardon said it early in the contest with Devolin. Triples by Warren Ostrander and Ron Weese combined with a Devolin miscue produced two runs and it was all Bardon needed.

Devolin got one back in the bottom of the third when Ralph Plante's single plated Carl Boomhower who had doubled. Bardon retaliated in two-run fashion in the top of the fourth with the final run of the game.

Bardon reached losing pitcher Don Holaway for only three hits but two were triples and the other a double. Holaway struck out nine and did not walk a man.

Winner pitcher Earl Foster finished with a six-hitter. He fanned six and walked none.

Ostrander had his hitting shoes on for the winners, hammering a triple and a double.

Ron Horwood took care of two Devolin hits with one each going to Boomhower, Jim Horwood, Plane, and John Burnside.

Veteran Ranger Sharp

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Bill Hands'e his pitching, not his age, is his vitality.

At the age of 34, Hands no longer throws the ball as hard as he used to, but appears to be pitching as well as ever.

"There's an old saying about understanding class—Bill was first-class today," said Milwaukee's Jim Colborn, who was outdueled 2-0 Thursday by the veteran Texas Ranger right-hander.

Hands, who a 38-game win over with Chicago Cubs in the National League, was traded to the Minnesota Twins' staff before moving to the Rangers this year, pitched a five-hitter.

After two frustrating seasons with the Twins, Hands appears to have come into his own with the Rangers. Thursday's victory raised his record to 3-3 and lowered his earned-run average to 2.16.

"It's just taken me a while to learn the hitters in the American League," said Hands, who pitched the Rangers into first place in the American League West.

The Rangers took a half-game lead over the Oakland A's in the victory.

In other American League games, California Angels beat Boston Red Sox 6-3 and Chicago White Sox defeated Baltimore Orioles 3-1.

In the National League, Pittsburgh Pirates defeated Cincinnati Padres 4-3 and Los Angeles Dodgers defeated Chicago Cubs 3-2.

The Texas-Milwaukee game was closer than the final score indicated. Hands and Texas had run to start with until his teammates scored four runs in the fourth inning.

Cesar Tovar, the group's first hitter, reached first on error by Milwaukee second baseman Pedro Garcia. After Lenny Randle bunted into a force-out, Tovar stole second and scored on Jeff Burroughs' double to the left field wall scored Randle.

Jim Sundberg followed Tovar opened the Texas eighth with singles and base hits by Davis and Mike Hargrove produced the first two Ranger runs of the inning. After Davis and Hargrove worked at a double steal, Jim Spencer was intentionally walked and then Toby Harrah singled home two more runs.

Sundberg singled, stole second, reached third and scored on Davis' double in the ninth for the final run of the game.

Rookie Jerry Remy scored the Cards run after a leadoff triple and then drove in two more, helping California beat Boston.

Bill Singer settled down after Fred Lynn hit a three-run homer in the third inning to pick up his fourth victory of the season. The right-hander now has five games.

Carlos May singled across two runs in the third inning and Jim Kaat, with relief help from Rich Gossage, recorded his seventh victory as Chicago nipped Baltimore.

Pittsburgh's Willie Stargell broke a 3-3 tie with a two-run homer in the fifth inning as the Pirates snapped a five-game losing streak by beating San Diego.

Ron Cey doubled home two runs in a four-run sixth inning and Jimmy Wynn's RBI single triggered a freezing assault as Los Angeles whipped Chicago for Burt Hooton's first victory against his former club.

Rich Coggins

Outfielder Back

[illegible] Rich Coggins, 23, was recalled by the Expos from their farm club in Memphis, a Pacific Coast League club, Thursday. Coggins, who was sent down on option in Memphis last spring, is a 12-game veteran with the Expos.

The Expos picked up Coggins' contract in an off-season trade with Baltimore Orioles but the Orioles had kept him on the reserve list. Last week, the Expos, who had lost three of their outfielders in the draft last month, recalled Jerry White, 23, outfielder, from Memphis, a member of the International League to make room for Coggins' Baltimore contract.

Lefty Grove Dead

[illegible] (AP) — Lefty Grove, Hall of Fame pitcher who won 300 games in a 17-year major league career, was found dead Thursday, police reported.

The 75-year-old former star was found slumped over in a chair in his Norwalk home by his daughter-in-law, Mrs. Robert Green, with whom he lived.

Mrs. Green, an invalid, said she was suspicious when Grove didn't come to her room to see her, a usual practice of his in late afternoon. She struggled out of her bed to look for him, she said, and then saw his form propped up in a chair in another room.

There was no immediate explanation of the cause of death. Grove shot to fame as a star pitcher for Philadelphia Athletics and Boston Red Sox, compiling a lifetime record of 300-140 for a phenomenal winning percentage of .682.

He had eight seasons where he won 20 or more games and once bagged 31 victories in a season, 1931, generally considered to be his best year. The great southpaw only lost four games that season.

Grove recorded 2,266 strikeouts during his career and posted a lifetime earned run average of 3.06 for his 17 years.

Ford in Hospital

[illegible] NEW YORK (AP) — Whitey Ford of New York Yankees was reported resting comfortably at Long Island Jewish Hospital Thursday. Ford collapsed after pitching batting practice before the Yankees' game against Kansas City Royals Wednesday night.

The Hall of Famer, now a pitching coach, was placed in the hospital's intensive care unit as a precautionary measure and was under the care of his personal physician. The Yankees said it had been determined that Ford had not suffered a heart attack.

The hospital listed his condition as serious, an automatic designation for intensive care patients.

Ford, 46, collapsed in the runway leading from the Yankee dugout to the team's dressing room. He had pitched 20 minutes of batting practice on a hot, humid night and left the mound when he didn't feel well.

CFL Studying New Format for Schedule

HAMILTON (CP) — The Canadian Football League decided Thursday it is not quite ready for a schedule that would see each game to be played on a Friday, Saturday or Sunday.

The CFL executive committee, meeting at Hamilton, heard from Ken Ludwick, league manager of Hamilton Tiger-Cats, who presented a committee report on the proposal. It came from Norm Kimball of Edmonton Eskimos.

Kimball said the report asks the CFL extend its regular schedule by 16 weeks so that all mid-week games could be eliminated. Games would be confined to Friday night, Saturday and Sundays and holidays Mondays.

CFL commissioner Jake Gaudaur, at a news conference, said his office had been instructed to draw up two possible schedules that would be considered later this year for introduction in 1976.

One would be a 16-week schedule with mid-week games only up to Labor Day. The other would be a 17-week schedule with no mid-week games after the end of August.

Gaudaur said the schedules will be drafted in late July and circulated to the nine CFL clubs for consideration at an August meeting. The commissioner explained that although all teams were in favor of the concept, some were still uncertain how their fans would take to it.

On other matters, Gaudaur said the league's expansion committee, headed by Sauls, has presented a report to the effect that there had been no applications for a franchise. He noted that London, Ont., had shown interest earlier in the year in obtaining an expansion team but that he had heard nothing from there lately.

Gaudaur also said he had told the meeting that there will be no Canadian football on U.S. television again this year. The reason was that, with the World Hockey Association starting again, there was no U.S. interest in picking up CFL games.

We've got something you haven't heard before. This Panther Martin Sonic lure. It's revolutionary fishing because it works on a totally new principle. Instead of hydrodynamic waves originate from its concave, convex curved blade that fish find too much to resist. Never has there been a lure that has worked this dependably.
There's a Panther Martin Sonic lure for every fish and fisherman. They attach directly to shaft without swivel, and are always at a 90° angle for super action, easier casting. Try one out on your next fishing trip.

Racial Hatred Stirred By Immigration Paper

SUDBURY, Ont. (CP) — The federal government's immigration has stirred up racial antagonists in Canada, with the effect on Canadians, the Indians and immigrants, a study of Sudbury shows.

The report presented to the joint Commons-Senate committeeon immigration by the association representative Jo-Anne Pigeot, a Sudbury anthropologist and graduate student, concludes that the world without allowing immigrants to penetrate this land.

Dr. Sadana said the green paper study has ignored contributions made by immigrants to the economic and social well-being of the country.

"Virtually all the comments in these papers are directed toward the non-European immigrants," he said. Immigrants should preserve the Canadian mosaic and Canada should welcome any one nationality.

Kingsley Gillam, president of the Indian Society of Sudbury, said Canada is not a bilingual country, it is a country of Anglophones and Francophones.

"The Indian is the forgotten party of state speaks millions of your tax dollars on multicultural programs yet the (green paper) study expresses concern about the Indian, the forgotten party," he said.

A delegation from Tibetan Secondary Macdonald-Cartier Secondary, a 35 person delegation of immigrants should be heard, said Ms. Pigeot. Only this would preserve the French Canadian culture.

Committee member John Reid, Parliamentary secretary for the group, said Tibetan refugees were "settling in Quebec, which is where the chosen people are."

"We're dealing with people who are a very French Canadian keep a strong culture," he said.

Joseph Guay, Liberal MP for Lac-Saint-Jean, said Ms. Pigeot's remarks had not pushed for her official language rights "we would have had another example of the people part."

John Rodrigues, NDP member for Nickel Belt, said the pre-conference paper asked by the group was discriminatory.

Deb Chakravarty, a protestant Cameron College, said immigrant officials reject assimilation.

"I think it is wrong," he said. He said his wife and children were twice as intelligent as he is. Despite the fact he had landed immigrant status.

Roy Cranston, an official in the Ontario Ministry of Treasury and Economics said Canada's immigration policy is "in the middle class and shows the work ethic." He said the committee that visited Sudbury Friday and Saturday to Canada were "used to the idea that we are the people who pay taxes and who pay unemployment insurance fund but when we need it we can get benefits."

Mr. Cranston said he could not understand the government's philosophy in keeping Indians on reserves when they are true natives of Canada and the rest of the population are immigrants.

"We shouldn't rob underdeveloped countries of their skilled people and deny them the right of the poor to make a living," he said. "It should be a planned policy."

PCs Fail in Bid to Learn Workings of Office of PM

OTTAWA (CP) — Progressive Conservative attempts to discover the inner workings of Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau and the privy council office have failed because the Liberals used the Commons as a day-long debate on the budget.

Examination of 1975-76 spending estimates which was to have got off on the wrong foot as far as the Tories were concerned, with Mr. Trudeau speaking for the first time in months. He then left only to allow for questioning before he returned for the final hour of the engagement.

The budget bill is carrying, at some 30 million from last year's budget, and Finance Minister Donald Macdonald told Commons with the majority of hours in debate.

Mr. Trudeau's speech defended the role of parliament, government aides from public criticism, and criticized the family expansion of his staff and the privy council office, the source of most of his staff to the cabinet.

It was interrupted repeatedly by Conservative heckling and a Liberal motion was introduced at his official residence.

Dental Plan Stirs Debate

TORONTO (CP) — Liberal ministers, the legislature adjourned Thursday with Premier Bill Davis and his cabinet cannot afford to introduce a dental care plan this year.

Health Minister Frank Drea, the annual convention of the Ontario Dental Association on Wednesday that plan would be the costly thing ever. The two other government hopes to implement one in "the near future" he said.

Albert Roy (L—Ottawa East) said the government might be able to afford a plan if it had scrapped building its office areas in recent years.

Drea said he was a member of a province which has the reputation of being the richest in the country and is not a poor and class province where a dental care plan is available. "We don't have a dental care program," he said.

Pat Reid (Lib Lab—Rainy River) said the government program for children up to age 18 would cost about $20 million and $30 million and $50 million annually.

Mr. Drea said that if the government accepted all the recommendations of the opposition members "this province would have to be bankrupt."

American Aid Experts Leave Laos

VIENTIANE (AP) — A plane-load of women and children left Laos Friday, the first group leaving the evacuation of the 1,000 Laotian and Thai children in Laos.

The Laotian government announced the government agreed to allow about 40 U.S. aid personnel accept a free airlift and leave the country by June 1.

The buildings of the women employees of the U.S. aid program, will not leave until all dependents have left the country.

May 23-27 evacuated.

High Rents Seen Due Inflation

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario Housing Minister Donald Irvine, replying Thursday to a proposal by Premier Bill Davis, a provincial NDP leader said the Ontario Housing Corporation is doing work without parallel action by other provinces to cope with inflation.

Irvine said the supply of rental accommodation has decreased and rents have risen sharply, some 15 per cent, because of the "growing expenses of Ontario Housing Corporation, the cost of construction and rent control, Mr. Lewis said.

Mr. Lewis said Ontario does not have all the responsibility in Canada for rent control.

"I think the federal government has a responsibility in this area and I expect they will do something about it, but they should be consulted, he said. Ontario is ready for that, but ready for wage and price."

Mr. Irvine said if a federal-provincial meeting Minister John Turner to make a statement on security of tenure in Ottawa about controls on the economy.

Mr. Lewis said that the federal government gives us some assistance in rent regulation and that's what it is, the provincial civil servants are the federal government has not been effective in inflation at this stage," Mr. Irvine said.

Mr. Irvine said Thursday he wants to discuss the month-to-month tenancy by mandatory lease to give tenants security. Landlords would have to give tenants a lease for at least one month before terminating it, the minister said in an interview.

WIN TOURISM AWARD

YORK, England (CP) — The northern England travel writers Tourism "for award for the year ahead." # Sinatra Reafirms Legend

TORONO (CP) — Frank Sinatra more than $400,000 for the two shows, which attracted about 8,000 persons.

He interrupted both concerts to "turn zap the press," apparently upset by a front-page story in Saturday's Toronto Star in which entertainment writer Peter Goddard reported on Sinatra's arrival at 3:30 a.m. Saturday.

Goddard said the singer was tired but appeared cheerful following his Montreal appearance while his "squad of menacing bodyguards" were brusquely punching a freelance photographer and threatening to make him "eat your camera" if he took a single picture.

During the first concert, Sinatra remarked that he uses newspapers to train his dog and line his parrot's cage, and offered $1 million to anyone who could prove him responsible for the waffle.

During the second show, he delighted his audience by responding to the press story in his familiar tough-guy fashion.

"I said I'd pay $1 million to anyone that . . . reporter who said one of my men punched (the photographer) in the mouth," he said. "So far, he hasn't stepped forward to collect."

The Star story did not specify where the photographer was allegedly struck.

"If he got punched in the mouth by one of my security men, he wouldn't be able to speak for six months," Sinatra said. "He'd be getting get-well cards for the next year and a half."

She Wins Her First Emmy

NEW YORK (AP) — Barbara Walters has won her first Emmy award, as co-host of NBC's Today show.

The National Television Academy of Arts and Sciences honored accomplishments Thursday in 19 categories of daytime TV in a live program shown on Hudson River excursion boat.

NBC received most of the Emmys, ABC six and CBS three. Sugar Bush Shows's syndicated TV show won two Emmys.

The Hollywood Squares game show on NBC won three Emmys. One was for the show, one was for host Peter Marshall, and the last for director Jerome Shaw.

The Young and the Restless series on CBS won top honors as daytime TV's best soap opera, and its director, Richard Dunlap, got another Emmy.

Emmys awarded for best acting in a daily soap opera went to Bernadette Carey and Susan Palmery, co-stars of NBC's Days of Our Lives.

ABC's Afternoon Playbreak series of drama specials was the only contender in five best-special categories. It put in 14 nominees and five won Emmys for acting, writing and direction.

Bradford Dillman and Kay Lenz won the acting awards.

NBC's Another World series shows, won an Emmy for its writing.

In the children's department, NBC's Star Trek, a cartoon version of the old prime-time series, was given an Emmy as the outstanding series.

Harlequin, a segment of the Lively Arts series on CBS Sunday for children, won the best-special award.

Elmer Bumin won an individual achievement Emmy for graphic design and artwork on ABC's weekend children's

Mannix Being Dropped After Eight TV Years

LOS ANGELES (AP) — After eight years of widespread popularity among television viewers, Mannix is being dropped by CBS, and co-producer Ivan Goff thinks the continuing anti-violence campaign of the networks may have contributed to the show's death.

The CBS decision not to renew Mannix, announced April 30, was not unexpected within the television industry. However, the viewing audience wondered why a network would drop a series that had placed in the top 10 rated shows twice in the last months.

Fred Silverman, the CBS programming vice-president, said Mannix was yanked for three reasons.

"One, the ratings were just fair. Two, we had good program development and it seemed wiser to replace it with a new show. Three, there were contractual problems. We would have had only one more year, then the series was going into syndication.

Silverman blew down the "The show that is replacing Mannix—Brenk with Jack Palance—is, basically the same form. It is neither more violent nor less."

The drawing power of Mannix is impressive since CBS gave it five different time slots in eight years.

Star Mike Connors is philosophical about the cancellation.

"I knew it had to come eventually. Whatever hell, we had a good ride. Now it's time for me to get . . . my career rolling after eight years in one job.

"I want to do pictures and then get ready to do another series. But not for another year."

ARIES (March 21-April 19) The greater part of the day will be fairly pleasant, but toward evening your ideas may conflict with those of others.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Don't get into conversations that involve someone else's business. If you're tired, you may say something rashly.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Make sure you're in good shape for your work today, because you will be tested. Don't let others bother you.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Stay diverse and active today. Should you become bogged down, you may throw your sphere of influence out of whack, and this could be catastrophic.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Others may run into some complications this morning. Be careful—it could be because you've overstayed your welcome.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) An overbearing friend will get on your nerves today. Stay, and grumble, but don't lose patience or you will be bad mannered.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22) Normally you delight in stimulating debate. Be careful who you tackle today, however. Your opponent may take it far more seriously than you intended.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) It's not the day to press a friend for a favor you owed to you. If they let you down, don't be too upset. Wait through. It's not your fault.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Your ideas are ingenious today. Taking hasty offense could cause a serious rift.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Your ideas are ingenious today. Taking hasty offense could cause a serious rift.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) Your ingenious ideas today could cause a serious rift.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20) Don't let your ambitious zeal cause rifts. You are capable of attaining your goals as long as you are realistic about them.

Opening lead — Q ♥

By OSWALD AND JAMES JACOBY

South's four-spade call was one of the three nonvulnerable gambles. He didn't think East could make what, but he did think that four spades wouldn't be bad.

Actually, it worked in Destiny's king of hearts lost to East's ace at trick one. South ruffed and led the queen of spades. East won, played a second ♥K, dropped trump and a second heart was ruffed.

How South pulled East's last trump, lost a club finesse, but took the rest of the tricks.

East felt that his partner should have bid five hearts. There was a long discussion as to whether or not five hearts could make. The answer is that it wouldn't because West would not be able to lead enough times from his own hand. Now we noticed that East could and should have beaten four spades. All East has to do when he gets in with the first high trump is to lead a diamond. A second diamond would be led when the ace got in the next time. After this bit of brilliant defense East would collect a diamond trick in addition to the three tricks he was bound to make anyway.

A — Bid three spades. Your partner is obliged to bid a cue-bid. He should have two spades and may have more. Anyway the partner jump is not an absolute must.

To Get Face-lift

GREENWICH, England (CP)—The Cutty Sark, Britain's fastest tea clipper visited by six million people since she was put in permanent dry-dock here in 1954, is to get a $115,000 face-lift. A new teak deck will be laid to step leaks and it will closely resemble the original deck laid in 1869. Teak has been imported from Thailand for the work.

To Your Good Health

Hard Arteries Require Action

By J. C. THOMPSON, M.D.

Dear Dr. Thompson: I read your column on hardening of the arteries. I am 75 years old and I'd like to know what I can do to keep my arteries in good condition.

The general idea about hardening of the arteries is that it is a process that cannot be halted. It is accelerated by secondary disposition to such contributing factors as obesity, diabetes, high blood pressure and others.

By age 50, there is not much you can do to correct any hardening that has already occurred. At this age your die has been cast. The important thing now is to make the most of what is left of your once ample arterial system. This is not to guarantee you against any further arterial hardening or blockage, but it does seem to promote it, but with common sense you can control things a bit. You should be watchful for diabetes.

Blood pressure can be especially important in the hardening process.

You are overweight, reduce. If your blood pressure is elevated, get medical treatment for that and that would include reducing.

The word control doesn't have the sensational impact that "cure" does, but in preserving what is left of your arterial system, control is the only sensible method.

You will be the case of your 75-year-old mother, who has lost control of her balance. I did imprint that portion of your letter because there is doubt in my mind that her trouble is entirely due to arteriosclerosis. She seems to have a neurological problem.

As for yourself, just enjoy sensible living.

You will not escape some degree of arterial hardening, but you can avoid incapacitating one. Witness the octogenarian tennis players.

Ontario Denies Claim Co-operation Lacking

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario "categorically denies" any suspicion it has been lax in helping Senator John Nichol find the province has not been helpful in providing information into the activities of the Seafarers' International Union, a provincial Solicitor-General John Clement said Thursday.

"Every conceivable effort has been made to provide the federal authorities with any information which could be of help to them," Mr. Clement told the legislature.

In Ottawa Wednesday, Mr. Nichol charged a Royal Canadian Mounted Police investigation of the SIU.

Mr. Clement objected to statements attributed to Mr. Nichol which suggested Ontario authorities were "strangely unwilling" to cooperate in the prosecution of provincial investigations of union activities.

He said a special team of police had been set up to pursue some matters. Dr. Morton Shulman (NDP—High Park) had alleged union complaints in a speech to the legislature last November.

"All the information provided to the House by Dr. Shulman on November 19 was forwarded to senior federal officials on December 16," the solicitor-general said.

"I have written a letter to John Nichol demanding that he substantiate his charges regarding the alleged lack of cooperation."

Mr. Clement also repeated the provincial view that "if there is to be an inquiry, it should be held under the Criminal Code, not the Criminal Code."

Pensioners' Spouses Eligible for Help

OTTAWA (CP) — The government hopes to give pensions to about 1 in 10 married pensioners' spouses age 60 or older, it was announced Thursday night.

The plan would mean that a person between ages 60 and 65, with a pensioned husband, would be eligible for the old age pension if income test would be waived.

Welfare Minister Marc Lalonde said in an interview after announcing his intention to introduce legislation next week, possibly the week after."

He said it will apply to about 80,000 married or common-law partners, are 65 or older, the eligibility age for normal old age pensions.

The proposed pensions basically would be an extension of existing pension and guaranteed income supplement (GIS), which range up to $2,000 for a couple both 65 or older. It would amount to a "specific and serious" commitment to meet what he termed a "specific and serious need."

He said, however, that the proposal would not apply to single persons or to widows. These would have to be covered by a guaranteed minimum income.

Two Oshawa Men Held

Shotgunners Rob Bank at Stirling

By ROBIN CHASE
Staff Reporter
and
HARRY MULHALL
Staff Reporter

STIRLING — Two Oshawa men have been charged with armed robbery after the bank of Montreal branch in this village was robbed about 3.15 while north of Belleville was robbed at gunpoint Friday.

Belleville Detachment Police at Bellevile have identified the men as Brian Sheldon Rodgers, 21, and Daniel Nelson Worth, 23, both of Oshawa.

Police said two men were approached by Kingston OPP at the Trenton Visitors Centre at about 9:30 a.m. Friday, about three hours after the holdup, as a result of information received from an alert citizen.

Police would only say a large quantity of money was stolen and a considerable amount recovered but declined to give exact totals pending further investigation.

The weapons used have not been recovered as of this morning. Police said they know where the guns are and believe them to be shotguns but they have not been picked up.

The robbery was timed with Bolsover, Ontario, shopkeepers that near.

Shopkeepers on the village's main street alerted by telephone, phoning police, while the holdup was in progress.

— The bandits lost escape time by twice driving into dead end streets.

— A storekeeper joins in pursuit to get the licence number of the getaway car.

The robbery occurred about 2:45 p.m.

Bank manager, George Hughes said two men armed with what looked like sawed off shotguns and wearing stocking masks entered the bank and informed everyone of the holdup "in no uncertain words."

They took money from the bank's four tellers, then they forced the staff of 11 Bell several customers to lie on the floor while he emptied with cash in a waste paper basket.

Meanime, the alert already had been given.

Stan Royle, Dufferin St. Bellevilie, Northern Electric installation supervisor, was just leaving the bank when the bandits passed him on their way in.

He dashed across the road to Doug Patterson's menswear store and told clerk Marion Bush to phone police.

Next door at Hatson's Hardware a passerby had also raised the alarm and Mrs. Jean Bush was phoning provincial police in Belleville while the robbery was in progress.

Mr. Bush estimated the whole incident lasted about four minutes.

Neighboring storekeepers and others watched as the men dashed from the bank and ran to their car parked behind nearby Stirling Creamerie.

Mr. Royle said the men drove down two parallel streets before heading west out of Stirling along the Ridge Road.

He gave chase in his company's panel truck, accompanied by Mr. Patterson, to get the getaway car's licence number.

Mr. Royle said they pursued the armed bandits about a mile until they got the number, which Mr. Patterson wrote on a cigarette package.

Then they returned to give the number to police.

"We did what we could" said Mr. Royle. "But I wasn't going to get my lives in jeopardy."

Roadblocks were thrown up by police in a wide area — and maintained during rush-hour traffic — as the hunt went on for the bandits.

The bank was closed for more than two hours on one of its busiest days of the week while police carried out investigations inside.

B.C. Plant Robbed Of Liquor

KELOWNA, B.C. (CP) — Charges against 12 employees of the Okanagan Walker plant at nearby Winfield are being prepared after $10,000 worth of liquor was seized Thursday in one of the biggest police operations said Friday.

He said some management personnel are among the employees who will be charged with theft, possession of stolen goods and violations of the federal Excise Act.

Police raided the homes of 27 military employees. Two trucks were needed to collect the liquor and transport it to the Kelowna RCMP office where it was locked up and put under 24-hour guard.

The raid by 45 RCMP officers followed a 6-month investigation into a complaint from the distillery that some of its stocks were disappearing.

Insp. Ed Tredry said no evidence has been uncovered of an organized ring stealing the distillery's products, although police suspect some of the liquor was destined for illegal sale. He said the largest single seizure was in cases of liquor.

He said stolen tools and electrical appliances were also recovered.

Postal Contracts Talks Are Stalled

OTTAWA (CP) — The state of contract negotiations between the Canadian Union of Postal Workers (CUPW) and the government remained virtually unchanged Friday as the bitter feud that has characterized talks continued.

Postmaster-General Bryce Mackasey, who had said Thursday he was to make a statement, reconsidered as members of the union in Ontario and parts of the West hooked in sick with "mackasey fever" as a protest against the lack of progress in bargaining.

Mr. Mackasey has said post office negotiators are prepared to meet any time with officials of the 23,000-member union.

Jon Davidson, CUPW president, national vice president Gaston Parrot and labor general vice president Marcel Pepin met with Finance and Treasury Board President Jean Chretien. Mr. Parrot said later there was nothing to report from the encounter.

The union has been without a contract since last October when the Council of Postal Unions—which included letter carriers—was dissolved.

Mr. Davidson said Friday Mr. Mackasey has been making "blatant falsehoods" about negotiations, and had not made any concrete counter-proposals to union demands on anything but wages.

CUPW negotiators asked for an hourly pay raise of $3.38 an hour above the present $4.38 in a one-year contract, and $2.38 an hourly raise without reduction in pay instead of the present 40-hour week.

The government has responded with a wage offer of $1.15 an hour in four stages over 22 months.

But Mr. Mackasey has said the government has offered letter carriers and postal clerks—could get the same increase offered to the Letter Carriers' Union (LCU) in a tentative settlement earlier this spring.

The proposed LCU settlement included a "front-end" increase back to Jan. 1, another 35 cents on July 1, 30 cents more Jan. 1, 1976, and 30 cents more on July 1, 1976. The agreement would include a cost-of-living allowance starting Jan. 1, 1976.

Union officials expect the LCU will ratify the proposed settlement overwhelmingly. Despite opposition from the Montreal local, in a vote to be repeated Monday. The letter carriers now make $4.64 an hour.

Plan to Stop Tainted Meat Being Sold at Olympics

MONTREAL (CP) — Recommendations will be made soon to prevent tainted meat from being sold at the 1976 Olympic Games, Rejean Paul, chief prosecutor of the Quebec Police Commission inquiry into organized crime, said Friday.

Previous testimony at the inquiry revealed that thousands of pounds of tainted meat had been sold at Expo 67 and there had been fears the same would happen at the Games.

In other developments Friday, the inquiry was told that the Quebec government approved two weeks ago an application by Jacques Dupuis Inc. to use an official "Quebec approved" stamp on its sausage products.

Armand Couville, 64, partowner and manager of the Montreal plant, said that provincial inspectors had toured his plant and found it "very clean."

Earlier testimony at the inquiry by a former Reggie employee revealed the firm accepted weekly shipments of tainted meat between 1967 and 1972.

"The government sent some inspectors who reported that we re-arrange a few walls and things but they said we had a very nice plant," Mr. Couville said.

Being Quebec approved means a government inspector will be permanently posted at the plant, he said.

Change in Lebanon Regime Fails to Halt Street Fights

BEIRUT (AP) — Armed men from a dozen factions swarmed in the streets and set up road-blocks today as scattered gun-fire and explosions greeted Lebanon's new military government.

Nourreddin Rifai, 76, a retired brigadier-general and chief of gendarmerie was appointed prime minister Friday night by President Suleiman Franjieh in hopes of arranging a truce between rightists and Palestinian guerrillas.

A Moslem former premier, Rashid Karami, said "We do not recognize this government at all. It is illegal."

But Yasser Arafat, chief of the Palestine Liberation Organization and guerrilla overlord, ordered all groups to cease fire and stay out of Lebanese politics, said a Palestinian source.

"It concerns the Lebanese only, and we have nothing to do with it. We will deal with the new regime according to its policies and attitudes toward us," Arafat was quoted as telling guerrilla leaders in Beirut.

Rifai pledged his eight-man government will begin efforts today to restore order.

However, his government did not directly intervene in and the four-day fighting which has left at least 50 persons dead and more than 200 wounded. Two ceasefires have failed to hold.

Conflict and explosions were heard in two areas of Beirut today, for the fourth consecutive day between Palestinian guerrillas and irregular militia of the mostly Christian Falange party deemed to have subsided.

The fighting was the second recent outbreak. Last month 200 persons died and 500 were wounded. Lebanon's 15,000-man army has not intervened in either case.

Prime Minister Rashid Solh resigned last week, angrily blaming the Palestinians for the fighting.

Although Rifai is a Moslem, leading Moslem politicians attacked the formation of the military government.

Rashid Karami, a former prime minister, said: "The formation of this military government is a violation of the democratic system and the constitution."

Socialist leader Kamal Jumblatt said the move was aimed against the Palestine liberation movement and complained the Moslems were not consulted on the formation of the government.

In this half-Christian, half-Moslem nation, an unwritten agreement divides the top posts: the President must be a Maronite Christian and the prime minister a Sunni Moslem.

Colombian Chickens Will Drop from Sky

BOGOTA (AP) — Overstocked poultry producers proposed stimulating the Colombian appetite for their product by parachuting live pin-feathered chickens over the city Sunday.

Anyone lucky enough to catch one could keep it, they said.

But the publicity campaign caught the attention of the Society for the Protection of Animals, which protested that the birds might be injured in the descent first.

City hall agreed. It said the chickens drop is still on, but no live birds—they must be killed first.

Octogenarians United Third Time in Half Century

By HARRY MULHALL
Staff Reporter

At 88, Mrs. Alice Coles does little writing now, but these are red letter days for her.

And also for Mrs. Lily Guerney, 80.

Both sisters now are enjoying a re-union in Belleville, it is the third time they've met since they parted 51 years ago.

Mrs. Coles is now a resident in Montgomery Lodge nursing home.

Their latest reunion came this week as Mrs. Guerney flew in from their native Norwich, England to meet her sister once again.

It was such a happy reunion they wept in each others arms.

"It's very nice, I tell you," said Mrs. Guerney. Friday, as she sat with her sister, parted before World War I when Mrs. Coles came to Canada.

They met again in the 1930s when Mrs. Coles returned to England on visiting trip, again in 1948 when Mrs. Guerney came to Canada.

After such a long time, said Mrs. Guerney her sister at first didn't immediately recognize her when she walked into her room in the nursing home.

"We've both changed a bit," she said cheerily. "You do — you look quite older."

Mrs. Guerney intends staying the month and will include some travelling in her visit.

Will they have another reunion?

Mrs. Guerney wants to travel to Canada in her late 80s or later again — if her health permits, she says.

"I will come if I can. I promise," she says.

Education Beat

Brainwashing Unfair Charge

By RON CARSON
Staff Reporter

A letter to the editor in the May 16 issue of The Intelligencer from D. Grant Iellignecer from D. Grant charges today's teachers are brainwashing students with communist propaganda and at the same time moving them farther to the left.

This type of accusation does not warrant comment except that it comes at a time when secondary school teachers are facing a right-wing movement across the country. It comes at a time when teachers are desperately seeking guidance from the community on curriculum development.

Ironically, the letter ran week this letter was published, Centennial secondary school teacher's were circulating a questionnaire to parents asking them to list in order of priority what they felt the learning students should be learning from their education, and what of teachers at the school has been attempting to define objectives for the past year.

And for those who would suggest the questionnaire is rigged one objective on it deals with a knowledge of the religious and moral heritage of this country.

Many of the objectives also deal with basic human values such as honesty, respect, tolerance and morality.

Other objectives include a concern for an appreciation of Canada's international role in the political and economic worlds. Are these the concerns of secondary school members attempting to brainwash students and the public?

Teachers are beginning to demonstrate more local activism in the development of curriculum. There is a growing awareness that too many students are being lost in Toronto and students vary across the province as well.

The Ontario Secondary School Teachers' Federation is now attempting to study curriculum and will eventually prepare reports on the subject for the ministry of education. When the teachers are seeking community input they have the support and respect of the citizenry.

While there are many valid points to challenge teachers and educators on, it seems pointless and unfair to accuse them of knowledge of dated charges of student brainwashing.

Quite the contrary, students are encouraged to more points of view and outlooks on life and its problems than ever before. Teachers should be applauded for this, not criticized.

Amputees Speak Out

Contingency Plan Will Allow Amputees to Continue Key Tags

Two executive members of the War Amputations of Canada have formulated a contingency plan to maintain its work for amputees as its membership of First and Second World War veterans declines through death, says its national secretary.

Cliff Chadderton of Ottawa told The Intelligencer in a recent interview, "we have arranged to set up a foundation which will administer the key tag service and carry on the objectives of the association"

Both Mr. Chadderton and Bert Coulson, national vice-president, visited the Quinte area recently and talked about their organization.

"The foundation will be aligned with one of the national trust companies," explained Mr. Chadderton. "The veteran part of the association will step into the background."

He pointed out there is no separate body at present working for civilian amputees but War Amputations performs some services in that area. "This foundation will be in effect a civilian amputee association," he said.

"The leaders in 20 years time will be the kids we are helping today," commented Mr. Chadderton. He described the switch-over as "just a transition" and not disbandment.

Mr. Coulson remarked "We feel there are enough of us now to continue actively for another 20 years." He noted even a Canadian volunteer workers during the Second World War "have a status as veteran" and they augment the membership of the War Amputations.

Mr. Chadderton emphasized, "We will continue as long as there are war amputees who are able to run this association."

The groundwork for the change-over is apparent at present with civilian amputees "offering services and going out and showing what they can do," said Mr. Coulson.

He said older war amputees will soon say "the duties are becoming too much". The average age of Second World War amputees at present is 59 years.

Official Urges More Aid For Civilian Amputees

The federal government should provide special assistance to civilian amputees as it currently does for First and Second World War amputees, says the national secretary for the War Amputations of Canada.

Cliff Chadderton said in a recent interview with The Intelligencer, "we feel that representation could well be made under civilian amputees should be given special consideration."

He said there should be higher pensions for amputees whether or not they are war veterans.

Both Mr. Chadderton and Bert Coulson, national vice-president, visited Belleville recently to meet with Quinte area war amputees.

Mr. Coulson, an employee of London Life, pointed out most insurance plans are satisfactory with regard to amputations but noted federal authorities do not contribute more from their end.

"I think the government feels there are plans, such as workmen's compensation, which covers these things," he commented.

Mr. Chadderton remarked, "I think we do feel the disability at amputations is not always understood. I think this is where we can serve Canada and the public by informing about amputations." He explained an amputation is not simply an anatomical loss. "There are psychological factors," he said.

He noted there is loss of life expectancy and loss of psychological well-being. "I don't think the government takes this into consideration."

Shots Can Lessen Danger of TGE

Pig producers should be on the lookout for signs of TGE (transmissible gastro enteritis) in their swine herds this winter, warns Ontario ministry of agriculture and food swine disease consultant Dr. P.G. Oliver, of the veterinary services branch.

"The majority of the outbreaks occur in the winter," says the veterinarian. "Because the virus is very stable during cold weather. Already cases have been reported in southwestern Ontario."

Traditionally, TGE is a highly contagious disease. "It affects all ages of pigs, but the heaviest losses — almost 100 percent — are in pigs under three weeks of age," says Dr. Oliver.

Diagnosis of TGE is done largely by assessing a herd's clinical history. There is usually evidence of sows sick and litters dying and, very often, an animal brought into the herd from an unknown health-status source. The virus disease is characterized by diarrhea, vomiting and loss of weight. In little pigs it is often confused with white scours.

For confirmation of TGE, producers should call in their veterinarian to assess the problem. Diagnostic tests are also available through him or the Ministry's veterinary service laboratories," says Dr. Oliver. For backup proof, farmers should submit a living, sick pig to a laboratory.

To prevent outbreaks of TGE, no visitors should be allowed in the farm unless they are provided with protective clothing: plastic disposable boots.

"Herds can also be 'immunized' by being fed the ground-up intestinal tracts of pigs that have just died of the TGE virus," says Dr. Oliver. Feed it to the sows and gilts about one month before farrowing. They will become ill for several days, but will overcome the virus and produce antibodies that are passed on to their litters.

Producers should also check the health status of any new additions to their herds. TGE-carrier pigs could have a devastating effect, especially with farrowing units.

Final Payments Now Made For Winter Wheat Crops

Final payments have been made to Ontario wheat producers for their 1973 crop of winter wheat.

The Ontario Wheat Producers' Marketing Board advised that cheques covering the board's 1973 crop final payment and federal government's two - price payment for the same crop were mailed to producers during the last week in December. Fergus Ground was still being broken in part of Prince Edward County for year's annual pea crop. Spreading herbicide to protect vines on Ameliasburgh Township acreage is Owen Bosma.

Young, Emsimoore, chairman of the marketing board, emphasized that the payments were for 1973 crop and not for wheat harvested in 1974.

The marketing board's final payment amounted to 32.81 cents per bushel, and the federal government's payment amounted to 90.19 cents per bushel, making a total of $1.23 per bushel on all 1973 crop wheat sold by producers.

The federal payment is based on $1.75 per bushel on that volume of wheat used for domestic human consumption which totalled approximately 6 million bushels or about 50 per cent of producers sales.

However, the total government money available including interest came to about $11 million, and by agreement between the government and the board, it was paid on total bushels sold by producers at 90.19 cents per bushel rather than on the basis of $1.75 per bushel on about one half of the producer sales.

The board final payment totalled more than $4.3 million at 32.81 cents per bushel, which also applied to all wheat sold by producers.

Mr. Young said complete 1973 crop payment and approximate end price was as follows:

1973 - initial price to producers $1.51 per bushel less 1 cent per bushel licence fee —first board interim payment of 50 cents per bushel made to producers in December 1973 —second board interim payment of $1.00 per bushel made to producers in September 1974

—final board payment of 32.81 cents per bushel made to producers in December 1974

—federal government two price payment of 90.19 cents per bushel made to producers in December 1974

Total end price to producers for 1973 crop wheat was approximately storage escalator allowances.

There were 12,194,340 bushels sold by Ontario wheat producers out of the 1973 crop which was officially estimated at 14.8 million bushels. The difference between the amount sold by producers and the estimated total for the crop is accounted for by either on-farm carryover or on-farm carry over or on - farm feed utilization, and seed use.

The 94.36 applied to the 14.8 million bushel figure is an altime record for the crop and resulted in a total farm value of well over $23 million.

The previous high total value was recorded for the 1948 crop at $45 million at $2.05 per bushel on 21.9 million bushels produced.

Time to Examine Council Tradition

PICTON — It's "Westward ho" for Prince Edward County council's road committee and the county engineer this fall despite efforts by Picton reeve Larry Richardson to brake the wheels on the wagon train.

The committee is off to Calgary with council's blessing for a five-day convention of the Roads and Transportation Association this September.

Reeve Richardson has observed in this "age of austerity" a smaller representation of two delegates would be preferable to a five-member committee and an engineer but council disagreed.

Athol reeve Keith Perry says the cost of the trip is $70 per day per delegate, plus allowances for transportation and registration.

He doesn't expect all five members of the committee will attend as the stampede to Calgary may not be as large as it appears on the surface.

However, council has authorized all five committee members and the engineer to money on to Alberta armed with the taxpayer's dollar.

Reeve Richardson's attempt to win approval for a smaller delegation met with council's old chestnut of "this is the way we have always done it."

Sophisburg reeve George Foster says he has been a member of the road committee for about seven years and it's "customary."

"This is something that always has been done," he asserted to council this week.

The world was flat until 1492 and inhabitants lived in constant apprehension of wandering over the edge but fortunately along came Columbus.

With council's apparent determination to do it because its always been done that way, the need for a modern-day counterpart to this explorer seems obvious.

If custom is council's best defence for authorizing five men and the engineer to attend a convention it's time for a break with tradition.

The exact value of this and other conventions always seems a little vague. County warden Clifford Walker says perhaps council's delegates do not learn much but "its the contact you make with people."

"You get to know your neighbors and this is a pretty important thing," he notes.

If the conventions are so important perhaps its time delegates prepared written reports for presentation to fellow councillors including a list of contacts.

Unfortunately, reeve Richardson's motion to amend the proposal to send six delegates to the convention to two representatives was voted down this week.

The wagons will roll west on September 22 carrying Prince Edward's pioneer delegates to their first convention in Calgary.

Fence-sitting Hampers Growth

By AL ZARAS
Staff Reporter

For years, it seems that Trenton municipal officials have struggled to maintain a degree of animosity between the town and its largest and nearest neighbor, the city of Belleville.

Struggled? Yes, since Trenton, much to its chagrin, is tied to Belleville in ways that are easily defined. Both Belleville and Trenton fall under the same school system, the same postal system, administration, the same planning department.

Intercourse between the two municipalities is, if not extensive, at least no more than minimal, flesh is the legacy of the town's previous councils.

Yet, it is not accepted, it appears to grate, go against the grain, despite the obvious advantages Trenton receives from its ties to the larger municipality.

Councillors continue to talk about Quinte Mall, Trenton The West, as the place that draws the town. Trenton is votes to expand there, they say.

Of course there is. there's no denying that. But the question is: Why does the west attract the interest of Trenton more than does Belleville?

Does it all come down to that simple axiom? Trenton would prefer to be a big fish in a little pond, rather than a little fish in a big pond, Smalltown Trenton fearing Regional Belleville?

One can't help but feel that is the situation. The town is unsure of itself. It's unsure of its ability to withstand the influence of the larger centre. It seems that it can control its own destiny, despite the fact its destiny is already partly charted by Belleville.

That preamble, or stage-setting, or state of trepidation, seems well illustrated in Trenton council's present decision not to decide.

Mayor Bob Patrick seems the leader in this case. For some time, claiming the interests of the town at heart, he has sat on the fence between Northumberland County and Hastings County (Belleville's home town, so to speak).

Let us wait, he says, to see which county will offer us more for our participation in its structure. Trenton, it seems in his estimation, is the pearl waiting for the right oyster.

The trouble in that argument is that neither oyster seems to want the pearl. Hastings County, despite some indication there might be a chance he decided it will not undertake a study of its structure. Northumberland, is in the midst of its own study, but Trenton, though asked to comment on its own future, is not included in that study.

The mayor has said Trenton must weigh the advantages of belonging to either county. Fine, that argument makes sense, but one can't help feel that it is an unrealistic assessment of the town's future in either county structure.

Each county, it seems closed to it. Besides, what probability is there in Trenton seriously considering going east when it harbors the animosity it does for Belleville? And is not Trenton predisposed to the west?

It seems Trenton should be a little more honest with itself, not waste time, and get on with the business of finding its own solutions to its own problems without looking for some vague panacea.

Suggest Vaccination For Breeding Calves

The veterinary services branch of Ontario ministry of agriculture and food now recommends that heifer calves intended for breeding purposes be vaccinated against brucellosis between the ages of three and six months.

In recent years, it has been ministry policy to de-emphasize calfhood vaccination in order to reduce the possibility of a positive blood test from vaccination and thus to allow for the total elimination of the last vestiges of disease through the federal testing program.

However, commencing in 1973 and continuing in 1974 there has been a significant increase in the number of infected animals detected. Because of the increasing incidence over that period it has been decided that the voluntary calfhood vaccination should be encouraged in order to provide additional protection for Ontario herds.

The only exception to this recommendation would be the cattle breeder who is interested in the export business. In this case importation requirements of other countries may be such that it is against his better interests to vaccinate.

German Gang Before Court, Vigilantes in Britain, Symbols of Global Anarchy

By JOHN D. HARBRON

Foreign Affairs Analyst

Thomson News Service

The open as well as the incipient growth of terrorism is now being felt in the West again in West Germany this week with the trial of members of the Baader-Meinhof gang.

If you haven't followed their activities to date, you should. They represent an especially vicious form of terrorism against affluent and urbanized societies which calls itself the Red Liberation Organization hi-jacking of aircraft a few years ago amounted to its organization.

The indictment against the gang, named for the founding members, runs to almost 300 pages and includes 54 attempts at murder, five murders, the capture and then destruction by bombing of the West German Embassy in Stockholm, attacks on U.S. Army installations in Heidelberg three years ago, other kidnappings and robberies.

Their intention, not only to disrupt German society but to die in their cause is clear from the death of one of their defendants, from a self-imposed hunger strike.

In Italy, kidnap gangs continue almost well-practiced snappings mainly against Nouveau riche citizens and their families. They have specialized in such operations as the recent seven-month confinement of an Italian millionaire's son during which time his father was forced to sell of his properties to be able to make a payment of $1 million for his son's release.

In Latin America, Argentina in particular, kidnappings, pillaged assassinations by right-and left-wing terrorist groups continue at a scale unprecedented for the time being in any other national society.

And in this country, worry is growing in the department of national defence and the RCMP that intimations by such groups as these, or others unknown, have started up anew, with the theory that Front de Liberation du Quebec members are responsible for the kidnapping-extortion style of several bank robberies in Quebec.

The method is to enter the home of a bank manager, hold his family hostage while he goes to the bank, opens the vault and lets the kidnappers have enough loot to make the way of ready cash.

The problem here is that such a technique isn't worth it unless the terrorists already know a given bank has enough cash and negotiable securities to make their attack worth-while.

And in New York Times a few days ago, there was a chilling report about the growing number of black and Hispanic (meaning mainly Puerto Rican), teen-agers who are permanently beyond the job market.

In the present deep U.S. recession they are unskilled, will never obtain the funds or the support to go to trade school. In time they will form a wider basis for the at-present unorganized muggings, robberies and murders which already plague New York City.

This is a devastating catalogue of existing and anticipated acts of terrorism in our so-called ordered communities.

The signs are that they will increase rather than subside as long as world economic conditions continue to slide and the leadership of free and democratic societies — seem at a loss to devise their vast human and material resources.

The next nation to conceivably experience this kind of thing could be Britain, where so called by extremist politicians, "the Child of the North."

Vigilante organizations already exist in Britain, so-called because they are formed and manned by crack ex-army veterans trained to think things out but to kill, kill-and-run.

Mounting terrorism more than a nuisance, it becomes a main threat to the civilized world. There is no end or abatement of it in sight.

Farmers Need Support

You are driving along the highway, or maybe enjoying a round of golf. In a neighboring field a farmer is plowing his land.

It's a familiar sight . . . a comforting one too: the man who tills the soil because that is his life and there is no nonsense about downing tools or saying the heck with it, like so many others do these days.

Oh yes, the farmers have their problems, still do, and they have taken time off on occasions to go to Queen's Park or to Ottawa, or to rally together publicly with their tractors, to make some point or other.

But by and large the farmer is a working man all his days, although again, lately, there have been those who for one reason or another — including economic pressures and insufficient return on high investment — have sold their property. To retire perhaps, or to take more rewarding work in town.

The talk of urban sprawl meanwhile is disturbing — the absorption of good farmland for the works of man.

And there was a warning from someone of late that if it goes on this way, there will not be sufficient food to go around in Canada by the year 2,000.

As of now things are strangely quiet on the agricultural scene. The farmer is still out there working, but there is silence from spokesmen such as Agricultural Minister Whelan — who not so long ago was championing higher prices for food, because the farmers had to stay in business — silence too from Mrs. Beryl Plumptre and her Food Prices Review Board who was saying of late that she was afraid "respectability" had overcome her group. And that, as anyone in politics or public life must know, can be the kiss of death.

There was one little item in the paper recently, in which Agriculture Minister William Stewart was quoted as saying that his ministry had been unable to expand its program to send city teens to farms for summer visits, because there are not enough farmers willing to take them. There have been more than 600 applicants, but only 200 farmers who will take them.

Maybe it is just a matter of statistics, and logistics; the farmer is a busy man, and for any number of reasons he can function better with the situation as it is without taking on anyone else.

Of considerably more gravity is a report from Brantford that farmers are resisting government appeals that they hire more Canadians. Farmers interviewed have complained of drugs, drunkenness, broken beer bottles, threats of violence and, in one reported case, prostitution by hired help. And they are turning instead to what are described as the well-behaved, quiet and steady black farm laborers from the Caribbean.

It's something to think about. Bear in mind too, that without our farmers and the food they produce there is really nothing left, is there? They need our recognition and whatever support they need to stay in business.

Drapeau's Spunk

Mayor Jean Drapeau of Montreal has to be one of the most determined and forward-looking men in municipal life anywhere.

The peppery little Quebecer brought off the magnificent Expo 67, in face of opposition and difficulties, and he is confident that the 1976 Olympics will go ahead on schedule too.

Whether they do come about or not remains to be seen, but if Mr. Drapeau has any doubts they certainly are not apparent.

We recall the hassles over whether Expo site would be ready in time. It was, of course, and the rest is history. Let's hope we have an Olympics that is both successful and trouble-free.

The latest word on the Games is encouraging. One report has Mr. Drapeau saying that the work is three months ahead of schedule.

Viewpoint

The Christian Science Monitor

A few comic-opera aspects of surveillance in Czechoslovakia, as described by former Communist leader Alexander Dubcek, may sound familiar to Americans lately confronted with tales of their own domestic spying and such things as "stress seminars" to test undercover agents' resistance to women and alcohol. But there is really nothing funny about such matters in either country. And there is a very serious difference between them that ought to remind Americans just how far their flawed free society still is from the iron repression of a land like Mr. Dubcek's.

Parliament's Tropical Scenario Gives Jean Chretien Some Explaining to Do

By RICHARD JACKSON.

OTTAWA — When Robert Howie first came to the Capital in the years ago as the freshman Conservative MP for York-Sunbury, he was one thing on Parliament Hill that caught his eye was what he called "the tropical indoor botanical gardens" in the Confederation Building.

Only a few years ago, the MPs and their aides were as many of them then as there are now — were all hived in the Centre Block, under the Peace Tower, two to an office, sharing the secretarial services of one stenographer.

It was a ridiculously inadequate situation.

When one MP had a visitor — a constituent or public servant — his roommate MP usually had to leave the single office. So, too, did the secretary, who then had to go to her bosses required some office privacy.

Under the pressure of the ever-increasing parliamentary work-load, the government took over two other buildings on the Hill, the Confederation and the West Block, clearing out public servants to make room for fantastically over-crowded MPs.

With the Confederation Building, the government did it in style — the finest of office equipment, eye-appealing furniture including softly deep overstuffed easy chairs, and odders of all, hundreds upon hundreds of tropical plants.

It was there amid the verdure of the palms, the cut-leaf philodendrons, the rubber plants, the dieffenbachia and hosts of exotic vines that Bob Howie found himself quartered in two immense offices, with well-upholstered lounge — one of aides in the building — just inside the door.

"Gee," he grimaced at the time. "I hope none of the boys from down home come up and see this. They'll think we're living in the lap of luxury, and maybe we are."

They we ex't — it only looked that way at first glance through the tropical greenery, which was professionally tended weekly by florists flown in from Toronto to manicure, feed and water the palms and other plants native to the Caribbean and Florida.

Bob Howie made such a fuss about the great indoor botanical garden that the government, embarrassed, had Public Works spirit it away.

Where did it go? Why, to Pierre Elliott Trudeau's office.

"Up to our eighth floor lounge, under the crystal chandeliers amid all the comforts you usually find in a hotel," reports Bob Howie.

"Now when the boys come up from home, I take them into the lounge and say How does this hit you as a way to spend your tax dollars?"

"And as it usually seems to hit them, where it hurts, right there in the pocketbook, I tell them that as taxpayers they'd better start rubbing hell in their own financial self-defence about all this waste and extravagance."

But it wasn't just up to the MPs' house where the tropical greenery went.

For down there, the Commons has discovered that part of "the great indoor botanical garden" was transplanted in the offices of the Finance Department and the Treasury Board.

The two departments are housed in the Langevin Block, Ottawa's finest-by-far office building, the meeting place of Canada.

Treasury Board President Jean Chretien was giving an accounting of it, trying to explain the $1,300,00 rental with Finance Minister John Turner's call for restraint.

"Restraint," snorted Conservative finance critic Sinclair Stevens, "you never saw such luxury in offices. We're having palm trees, the Australian umbrella tree, swaying gently in the air conditioned breeze."

"Swimming pools, too," chimed in New Brunswick Conservative MP Patrick Nowlan, only half kidding.

"And quilt and philodendron prints all the British rest of the gorgeous greenery," cried Mr. Stevens.

"Beyond extravagance," agreed Pat Nowlan.

"It would all do justice to tropical botanical gardens," snorted Mr. Stevens.

"A lotus land," exclaimed Mr. Nowlan.

"A paradise," sputtered Mr. Stevens.

Poor Jean Chretien! What did he do but explain that Treasury Board rented 230,000 square feet of office space at $6 the foot.

What I cried Sinclair Stevens, that amounted to five acres of floor space and a rental running far over a million dollars.

But 10 acres with another million dollars plus for furniture and equipment, office space for Finance were included in the two-department lease.

But that wasn't all. Sinclair Stevens wanted to know why twenty isn't to fill that roughly 22,000,000 square feet of office space with wall hangings, finely crafted furniture and botanical specimens.

Jean Chretien said he would find out. But he said there wasn't anything in twenty.

But that doesn't negate the positive role that multinationals have played in the expansion of world trade.

If multinationals do, on occasion, show too little concern for the interests of their host countries (and the employees of their foreign subsidiaries), there are ways of dealing with the problem.

Host countries can change the rules, and nations can have respect the sovereignty of the host country or get out.

But the record of all the three post-war decades shows the multinational enterprises that can result from a partnership between developed and undeveloped countries.

Some Third World countries, for only independent now, are even poorer today than in the days when they were colonies.

Others, such as Nepal and Singapore, have accepted the principle of partnership in industry and commerce, and have made steady economic progress.

The present state of the world economy calls for co-operation rather than isolationism, international trade rather than narrow nationalism.

Lain American Corruption Unmasked by Payments From Big Oil Company

By VINCENT EGAN

Thomson News Service

Multinational enterprises are under increasing stress throughout the world this year.

Canada, as the home base of some of the biggest multinationals — Bell, International Nickel Co. of Canada Ltd. and Massey-Ferguson Ltd.—and the host to many more, has a special concern in the outcome of the political and rhetorical assault on the giant organizations.

The many critics of the multinationals must feel themselves pleasantly vindicated by the current discoveries of Gulf Oil Co.

The Pittsburgh-based multinational has admitted that it paid $460,000 in "political contributions" in Bolivia during the 1960s.

The disclosure came out at United States legislative proceedings that confirmed the unpleasant fact that bribes must be paid to local officials by any multinational corporation wishing to do business in most countries of Latin America and Africa.

In pious indignation, the Bolivian government reacted to Gulf's confession by seizing Gulf's entire Bolivian employee, throwing him into jail, and summoning Gulf's chairman to La Paz to explain the company's flagrant breach of Bolivian morality.

The government couldn't seize Gulf's assets in Bolivia. It had already expropriated them in 1969, and hasn't got around even yet to paying the agreed compensation, more than 20 million.

Bolivia has a notoriously convenient double standard of morality. It is a haven for Nazi war criminals, the most prominent of whom is former SS Col. Klaus Barbie, sentenced to death by French courts on charges of torturing and killing scores of French resistance fighters during the Second World War, and sending hundreds of Jews to their deaths at Auschwitz.

Even a personal appeal by the Pope failed to persuade Georges Pompidou for the extradition of the "butcher of Bergman of Lyons" was ignored by Bolivian authorities who today are so energetically prosecuting Gulf and its employees.

Nevertheless, bribery is a repugnant practice, made worse by the deceptive methods used to conceal it from the public.

But that doesn't negate the positive role that multinationals have played in the expansion of world trade.

If multinationals do, on occasion, show too little concern for the interests of their host countries (and the employees of their foreign subsidiaries), there are ways of dealing with the problem.

Overseas Orphans

Editor,

The Intelligencer:

Now I know we Canadians are NUTS. Last week's article on the front page "SIXTY GOOD CHILDREN" has convinced me.

Why should anyone hawk over a bunch of orphans (physically deformed ones YET!) Aren't there any normal Canadian orphans left? Anyone who would purposely WANT a deformed orphan has to be a bit deformed himself — mentally.

I just think we are carrying our good samaritan role a bit too far. We can't take in all the poor disabled world, so why waste good resources on a few futile efforts.

The Pay Raise for MPs

Editor,

The Intelligencer:

The majority of the present Members of Parliament, I feel, not left any doubt that the monetary rewards for serving the people has top priority. As they gave themselves a 40 per cent-plus-per cent pay raise and up, to 7 per cent cost-of-living increase each year.

It is incredible that Finance Minister John Turner, would have the gall to ask the working people in Canada to accept a 10 per cent pay ceiling on wages. While at the same time his own salary and allowances have gone up $225 a week to $1800 a week. Also MPs giving large increases to Lieutenant Governors, judges, Senators the elite of society.

Surely to show their appreciation for the sacrifice Senators have made for Canada, they are following the basic old Age Pension rise from $125.00 to $135.76 in July.

Not to be left behind, the master of the blunders on Belleville City Council awarded themselves a 23 and one-third per cent increase of $5,000.

Advertisers Wary of Controls

The Montreal Gazette

Canada advertisers recently got together for their annual discussion of common problems. Notably absent from the discussions was the demand by the Canadian Radio-Television Commission (CRTC) that CBC television be phased out advertising by 1978.

Such a phasing out would reshape the Canadian advertising environment and the advertisers do not like the idea. At this stage, however, they seemed content to leave it up to the cabinet where the issue now rests.

Instead they rehashed their enduring concerns, which are dominated by fear of further government regulation of advertising. One speaker went so far as to criticize legislation restricting a company's right to remain silent — which he saw as an element of free speech.

As long as the advertisers can produce honest and reasonable advertisements, they should have no fear. Who cares if most of the programs now seen on television are interrupted by commercials? The most cases the worst that can happen is that the commercial hits right in with the quality of the program. Often it improves it.

Pay television has not been successful so far. Who would pay money to see the weekly parade of forced situation comedies, repetitious police dramas, and mediocre pop operas offered as a steady diet on North American television? It is not enough that people watch it as much as they do. Advertising is part of our way of life. We use it every day and most people in the way we speak and the clothes we wear. Just as we discriminate in everyday life, so we must discriminate in advertising. Do many men really believe that if they drink the right beer the beautiful woman will be theirs. Do women really believe that when white wash will bring them delight? And if they do what good would it do them to remove there advertisements?

Our society is founded on the concept that people can think for themselves. Advertising that does not dissemble, lie or use insidious "brainwashing" techniques that defy analysis by viewers or readers can be reasonably used to support the private sector of the mass media.

The public sector is another matter. Pierre Juneau, chairman of CRTC, has called the CBC "the nervous nervous system of Canadian nationhood." The function of this nervous system should not be to carry messages to every corner of the country. It should involve itself in Canadian culture with a proponderance of Canadian programming.

It is not the principle of no advertising that "bothers CBC executives, but the cost-cutting rules because as commercial-free as possible April 1 at a cost of $3 million a year. The television cost is put at $60 million, too high according to CBC brass. It is time Ottawa looked to television set licencing to support a truly national broadcasting system and the CBC commercials in the private sector where they belong.

May 24, 1955

Beneath the bandstand of the living room wall of the Redperrville home of Walter Hawes, a tattered but still definable piece of newspaper was found by boarder Ed Mcfarney. Yellowed from age, the crumbling items to have once been part of a Toronto newspaper of the 1880s. Among the readable material are advertisements of steam packet boats plying the lakes, patent medicine testimonials, a property sale that lists the amount of a lot on Main and Walter Streets, Picton. Tattered news items, set in the reserved close type of those days mention such names as Lord Palmerston, Gladstone and Louis Philippe, Emperor of France.

May 24, 1945

In a speech before the South Hastings Education Association's spring meeting, Dr. J. G. Althouse, Chief Director of Education, Department of Education, Toronto, warned against the danger of regimentation in classrooms which he said, has the effect of producing a mass mind. He pointed out that the totalitarian governments of Europe had utilized this method of keeping young people from thinking for themselves.

We Need St. Paul's Spirit Of Playing by the Rules

By DR. GORDON C. SMITH

In all his various description of the Christian life St. Paul shows a preference for two metaphors. He lived in a military world. In an empire where to the last analysis, the soldier made and unmade anyone. The apostle loved to compare the Christian life with a holy warfare.

But he used another metaphor that he took from the athletic environment of the time. Writing to Timothy, he says: "An athlete is not crowned unless he competes according to the rules" (2 Timothy 2:5).

Of course, every game has its rules. The rules for the game of life are set in part by our traditions, in part by our moral and religious values, and in part by the laws of the land.

Many are now claiming that the function of government should be extended to cover almost every sphere of human activity. They want the competitive game abolished. But I submit that a nation may eventually suffer from too much government just as much as from too little.

Moreover, it is surely evident that our industrial and political security is being threatened by Parliament; by groups who say, "We don't like the rules and we won't play if you don't change them to suit our convenience and liking."

We need a new baptism of the spirit of fair play in the industrial and political sphere. We have too much underhand and vicious propaganda. The workers' classes have been tricked so often that they actually suspect the recommendation of wage controls. But they have themselves been guilty of so many breaches of contract and agreement that they have lost the confidence of management, which naturally suspects an ideological stratagem with regard to price controls.

We need the temper in society that plays with every ounce of strength, but will accept contract only after a fair contest. Besides, it is not as if there were no referees or no arbiters of contract and negotiations. Another track runs. These deserve to win who know how to lose.

Jewish Community in India Dwindles to Mere Hundred

By GERALD HAYDEN

COCHIN, India (Reuter) — After nearly 2,000 years, the Jewish community in the south Indian state of Kerala is fading away.

Emigration to Israel over 30 years has reduced its number to fewer than 100. The young people in particular have gone in search of the promised land—and marriage partners.

Six of the eight synagogues in Kerala have closed and one more is likely to do so this year. That will leave only the 400-year-old Cochin synagogue as a repository of Jewish faith and culture.

The Cochin community is about 60 strong and its accepted leader, Sarah Kader, 67, has no intention of leaving.

In his office, from which he runs a prosperous retail food and hardware business, Kader said that he does not feel the situation is so marvelous in Israel. Of those who have gone, he said: "I think they are mad."

But of the 2,000 who have left, none has returned despite the vastly different way of life in Israel.

The tedious side of the community has meant there is no one available to carry out the ritual slaughter of animals for those wanting to adhere to Israel's dietary laws. Kader, who traces his ancestry back 300 years to Israel, says he made their way here from Baghdad, admits the community will die.

The exodus is not due to discrimination, he said. As a minority group, Jews enjoy certain privileges including priority in college admissions.

Kader, also honorary Dutch consul in this port town, said Jewish holidays were always included in the official Kerala government calendar.

Raymond Abraham Salem, who manages one of Kader's stores, is a 35-year-old bachelor who also will not leave.

"Life is easy here," he said.

His views were shared by Jackie Cohen, caretaker at the synagogue which stands in a narrow street in an area of the city which is called simply and without prejudice, Jew Town.

Most of the Jews, many of them professional men such as doctors and lawyers, still live in Jew Town, an enclave which has caused embarrassment to merchants trading with Arab countries. Attempts to have the name changed were rejected on historical grounds and the traders now use simply "Cochin" as an address.

In spite of their small number, a "minyan," the required 10 males for a sabbath service, is usually found in the whitewashed synagogue, the oldest in the Commonwealth.

It is lit by dozens of chandeliers and on the floor are mosaic tiles, each one different, brought from China in 1805.

Tradition has it that Jews first came to India and settled at Cranganore, about 40 miles north of Cochin, shortly after the destruction of the second temple in 68 AD.

They were granted land by a Hindu ruler and the copper plates on which the agreement was made are preserved in the synagogue. Their exact date is unknown and is put anywhere from the fourth to the 16th century.

More settlers came from Babylon and Persia and in the Middle Ages from Spain. The Portuguese colonists expelled the Jews from Cranganore and they moved to their present area, building the synagogue in 1568.

The Jewish community has been divided into three sects, into "white," "brown" believed to have come from Yemen, and "black" converted south Indian slaves.

The Yemenite Jews were mostly from the poorer class and Kader conceded that for them emigration to Israel was beneficial.

Home Grant Great If You Can Get It

That no-strings-attached Ontario Home Buyers' Grant. Is a great boon to new home owners — or at least it will be if they can apply for it. Real Estate agents have few. If any, of the necessary forms, and people who have written to the province have received letters of acknowledgement but no forms. The responsible department is the Ministry of Revenue, Guaranteed Income and Tax Credit Branch, Province of Ontario.

Consumer and Corporate Affairs Minister Andre Ouellet recently announced new minimum standards for the flammability of carpets and rugs. Beginning January 1, 1978, all carpets and rugs imported, advertised or sold for consumer use must meet regulations designed to minimize the hazard of large carpeted areas which tend to spread fires.

• • • • •

The same department warns about the dangers inherent in the chemical sodium peroxide — a component of denture cleaners. First, it can cause painful and serious injury to children if swallowed. Secondly, it can start fires under specific conditions — that is, if you wipe spilled solution with a damp paper tissue and discard the tissue with paper or combustible material, a chemical reaction can occur resulting in fire. Of course, this occurs only in special and unusual circumstances.

• • • • •

Not all toothpastes which contain fluoride are equally effective in preventing dental decay.

D.r. Tony Hargreaves, chairman of the University of Toronto Department of Pedodontics, says that where fluoride is combined with abrasive teeth whitener, the abrasive interferes with the protective action of the fluoride.

According to Dr. Hargreaves, fluorides have been added to some brands of toothpaste simply to boost their sales potential — the toothpastes do not claim to reduce cavities.

The researcher adds that the whitening compounds can create problems by wearing down the protective surfaces of the tooth. In certain extreme cases, in fact, long term users of abrasive toothpaste have teeth that have become so thin they could easily be snapped.

Mr. and Mrs. Peter Levick

Levick—Lawrie

Stella Caroline Anne Lawrie and Peter John Levick exchanged wedding vows May 5, at an afternoon service in the First Unitarian Church, Ottawa.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles J. R. Lawrie, of Ottawa. The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Joe Levick.

Rev. Vernon C. Nichols officiated at the ceremony.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore her mother's wedding dress of white satin brocade with long sleeves. She also carried a bouquet of red roses and white carnations.

The matron of honor was the bride's sister, Jessie. She wore a pale blue gown and matching hat. Her bouquet was cream-colored roses and deep red carnations.

Stephen Leyick, the groom's brother, was the best man. Helping as ushers were the bride's brothers, David and Jamie Lawrie.

The reception was held at the Embassy West Hotel where a buffet dinner was served.

The couple plan to reside in Smith's Falls during the summer and then continue their studies at Carleton University in the fall.

Mr. and Mrs. Stephen Rushlow

Rushlow—Pope

Mary Catherine Pope became the wife of Stephen Earl Rushlow in a spring wedding held in Holy Rosary Church, conducted by Rev. George Mallon.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Pope, and the groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Rushlow.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore an organza gown with a high neckline, yoke and cuffs bordered by accordion ruffles, with chainlily lace inset in the bishop sleeve and yoke, and sequins and pearls at the bottom of the skirt and waistline train also edged with ruffles. The empire waist was trimmed with ribbon tied in a bow at the back, and a white picture hat trimmed with tiered ribbon completed the ensemble. She carried red roses.

Lorrie Sagriff was maid of honor in mauve, and Janet Pope, the bride's sister, and Juliana Corrigan were bridesmaids in pink and yellow respectively. Their gowns were cotton with raised white velvet doves, with high necklines with frilled yokes and lace ruffles on necks, cuffs, and skirt bottom. They carried white nosegays centred with daisies.

Ann Pope, the bride's sister, was flower girl in a matching mauve dress, carrying a basket of flowers.

The groom's best man was Tom Rogers, and his ushers were David Pope, the bride's brother and Maurice Golden.

The groom's cousin Joanne Scott was soloist for the occasion.

After a dinner and dance at the Batawa Community Centre, the bride and groom travelled to Florida for a holiday. They now reside at 42 Gordon Street.

Formals—On The Way Out?

By CINDY MORTON
Staff Reporter

Secondary school formals may soon be another victim of inflation.

Some schools in the Belleville area for example, report that 50 per cent of their students did not attend recent formal dances. Due to this low attendance the dances may be cancelled in future years.

Centennial Secondary School has already taken the step and this year is not having a formal because of a lack of interest among the students. Belleville Collegiate Institute, Quinte Secondary Schools Albert College, Moira Secondary School and Bayside hold spring formals while Nicholson has a dinner dance in its place.

Bill MacKay, Centennial principal, feels that students are "not interested".

"It's not the expense of the formals that keeps the students away," said Mr. MacKay, "they just don't want to get dressed up." Whether or not the school holds formals in the years to to come he says, "depends on the students — if they want one, we'll have one."

Students may not be able to afford to dress themselves appropriately for the occasion. It may not be a question of whether or not they want to, but whether or not they can afford to.

Doug Dixon, a 16-year-old Belleville Collegiate Institute student recently attended his first formal and found it more expensive than he had anticipated. Since he did not have a proper suit he purchased one, which he felt was a more practical thing to do than rent a tuxedo.

To rent a tuxedo in Belleville could cost anywhere from $20 to $40 for one night's wear.

Then there was the ticket to the dance that Doug had to buy. School formal tickets run from $6 to $12.

A corsage is another expense and they range in price from $1.50 for carnations to $7 for an orchid.

There are also many other things that add to the overall bill such as transportation, a bite to eat after the dance or possibly even dinner before the dance.

The night cost Doug well over $100 and he spent only money he had earned himself.

"It was a lot of money, but it was worth it," said Doug. "I'd do it again."

A common misconception is that only boys suffer from the high cost of the dance. Any girl who has recently attended a formal will tell you that she too had to dig into her pockets for extra funds.

Janet Riedel, who recently attended her first formal had no idea of the costs involved.

"It was a lot of money for one night," said the 15-year-old girl.

Centennial Secondary School student Carolyn Fisher feels that formals have always been thought of as a place where and is sorry that her school has stopped holding one.

"Girls still want to be asked to formals, and I think boys still want to ask us, but with the high costs of the dance it makes it impossible. You have to have a fair amount of money in order to attend a formal," she said.

Carolyn feels that formals may soon be a thing of the past, only to be remembered by those who attended one before inflation hit.

Fashion Kick

Young people in Toronto are on a khaki kick. They're sporting coolie tops and pants identical to the Chinese worker's uniform which can be laundered at home to avoid dry cleaning bills.

It's a trend towards cheap, practical clothes for hard times. Described as "depression clothes" by several boutique owners, khaki pants may challenge denim jeans as the weather gets warmer.

Khaki clothes are cheap and comfortable, yet elegant enough to wear to work. Natural accessories — leather, rope belts; straw hats and handbags; woven leather flat sandals or canvas shoes with rope soles and jewelry carved of wood or tortoise shell — should be worn with the khaki look.

Marni Grobba, business student in unbleached helga cotton coolie top and mini skirt, strolls along Toronto's Yorkville Ave., with John Black who is also in a coolie outfit. Marni describes "this as "depression clothes".

Barbara Watson, a Toronto model, likes olive drab suit with safari jacket and culottes because it is as comfortable as jeans — and can't show the dirt. (CP Photo)

Lois Macaulay, Toronto salesgirl, relaxes in indigo blue coolie top identical to the Chinese worker's jacket, matching drawstring pants, wide-brimmed hat and low-heeled shoes. They're super cheap and she makes the outfit at home.

Ann Landers

Crying 'Necessary Release'

Dear Ann Landers: I'm a 21-year-old male. I have a problem, Ann, is that when I get the least little bit upset I cry. It's very embarrassing because I've cried in front of people whose respect and esteem mean a lot to me. I've done this all my life and it's beginning to knock my ego to pieces.

I've never heard of a 21-year-old male who cried so much. Why am I so different? What can I do about it?—Ashamed Of Myself

Dear A. O. M.: You may not be so different as you think. Many males cry, but they do it privately. And crying isn't such a bad thing. Weepers aren't necessarily losers. It can be a healthy release for anxiety and frustration.

Since the real problem is your fear of ridicule, my advice is to get off by myself when you feel the tears coming on. If you've been a weeper all your life, the chances for changing this pattern are slim. (P.S. A note of consolation. Tears are better than pelted rage which can cause ulcers.)

Dear Ann Landers: I wonder how many wives among your readers have my problem. I am accused by my husband of being frigid, cold and unresponsive. Why doesn't he take it easy? I'm a 21-year-old bride. I resent such questions as these: "When did I last shower, use a deodorant or brush my teeth? Am I sober. Does my breath reek of beer or bourbon?"

I'm basically an affectionate person. When we married, nearly 30 years ago, we were very much in love. Shortly after our honeymoon I became disenchanted. My husband lack of personal hygiene was something I couldn't deal with. I hinted at first. Nothing changed. Then I came right out and told him. Still nothing changed.

This man is a college graduate. He holds an executive position with a well-known firm, is considered charming and intelligent—until he drinks too much, which is becoming more frequent. Our sex life is almost all because of his lack of bodily cleanliness and excessive drinking.

Please print this letter, Ann. It's too late to help our marriage, but perhaps it will help someone else's.—Just Sad

Dear Sad: When people disregard personal hygiene to the point that they become offensive, it is often something beyond "carelessness." It's mental illness.

I've received similar letters from men who have the same complaints about their wives. I hope your letter will move those who need it to seek outside help.

Dear Ann: I think your advice to "Scarred Forever" (she found a bunch of dirty pictures among her dead father's belongings), was wrong. You said, "His ability to lead two completely different lives is a symptom of a severe personality disorder."

I am a bisexual who has a terrific marriage. But every month or so I like the "companionship" of another guy. I've been carrying on like this for nine of the 11 years of our marriage. My wife would divorce me if she found out. Of course, I'd never leave dirty pictures lying around, but I don't believe I have a "severe personality disorder." It's just that my sex and life provides me with a necessary release.

You owe people like me a retraction. I'll accept the label "rat" but I resent being told I'm not normal.—Happy In Southern California.

Dear Happy: I wouldn't call you a rat. I'd just say you are the unfortunate victim of a severe personality disorder.

Kids Meet Parents At Adoption Party

It was pretty much like any other children's party. There were games and doughnuts and pop.

The difference was that the adults who attended were interested in the adoption of the older child, and the kids who attended were definitely interested in being adopted.

When it was over and time to go home, almost all of the children had found prospective new parents.

Inter-agency adoption parties — like the one described above — are an innovative method of finding homes for older, hard-to-place children, being tried by the adoption department of Family and Children's Services. The idea originated in a think-tank of agency adoption workers.

At the second and most recent party, held in a United Church in Winona, there were 14 children from Niagara, Hamilton, Toronto, and Brockville; and 30 couples from Hamilton, Burlington, Woodstock and Niagara.

One couple who were interested only in a four to six-year-old girl when they came to the party fell in love with a 13-year-old boy who is now on adoption placement in their home.

As a result of the first party four out of 11 children were placed in adoption homes. At the second party 13 out of 14 had offers of homes, and these included two sets of siblings who had to be adopted as a unit.

Entertainment included every game from chess to Scratch, as people helped themselves to the food and mingled with the kids.

The majority got involved right away. In fact, enthusiasm was so high that the only worry was how to prevent some couples from monopolizing certain youngsters.

At first there were worries that organizing adoption parties amounted to putting kids on the auction block, according to adoption worker Keith Dixon.

In view of the result, and the attitudes of the children and applicants involved, such fears were unfounded. "All the kids knew exactly what the party was for beforehand, and they seemed to be extremely relaxed about it."

A few of the older children were doing their own sizing up, but the majority of the younger kids were pre-occupied with the food and toys.

In years to come, many of them will be able to say in retrospect that it was the best party of their lives. And that the benefits were life-lasting.

Nursery for Forgotten Children

BRAMPTON, Ont. (CP) — basis "because we don't think Connie Campbell-McIntosh symp- we can justify charging higher athizes with parents of handi- rates to parents who already capped children because their have added financial problems care is a "tedious job."

Consequently, she has opened a private day nursery for children ranging in age from two to six years at Ridgeview Public School here.

A privately-funded day care centre for the "forgotten" children of society is unusual she said. The usual course was for an association or a government to provide funds for such a service, and even those were few and far between.

Mrs. Campbell-McIntosh, former director of the Bo-Peep Nursery for the Handicapped, run by the Brampton Association for the Mentally Retarded, said: "Two hours a day is really not enough for handicapped kids.

Her full-day program, which started with five children, now has a bank of 48 volunteers to help.

"Caring for handicapped children, both mentally and physically, creates enormous problems," she said, "specially at lunchtime."

Enough volunteers for a one-to-one relationship with the children is necessary to ensure an intensive program of help, Mrs.

The centre will operate until June 20 this year, but beginning in September it will be open year-round.

Mrs. Campbell-McIntosh said she is operating for only two months this season to allow staff to work out any problems which a full complement of children is welcomed in September.

The school will have a minimum enrolment of 20 children, but will accept only 15 registrations once a year to allow five places to be kept open for "emergencies."

Fees will be $25 a month, which includes transportation and a hot meal.

"Everything is on a volunteer and ad hoc basis. They're super care is the going rate, a fee which prevents many people from seeking day care.

She's Loved the Sea Since Childhood

SYDNEY, N.S. (CP) — Dorita Walas is the captain of the 22,000-ton Polish ship Towarzysz Wielkopolski which was docked in Sydney unloading a cargo of 26,000 tons of coal.

She has spent 27 years as a merchant seaman and the last 12 as a ship's captain and commands a crew of 25 men—including her husband.

"Ever since I was a little girl I have loved the sea and when I grew up, this is what I decided to do," she said.

Mrs. Walas had to apply 19 times before she was accepted at the Polish navigation school. She graduated at the top of a class in which she was the only woman.

After graduating from the school in 1950 she worked as a harbor pilot and then switched to a tugboat where she commanded an all-women crew.

After a short stint with the tugs she became an inspector on harbor patrol and after her marriage in 1953 she began doing her rounds.

"If I was a man I would have been in charge of my ship earlier but I had to prove myself because I was a woman," she said.

Mrs. Walas received her master's ticket in 1963, 12 years after her graduation.

Mrs. Walas said her only regret is not having enough private life.

"Sometimes we stay more than our usual one day in port and I like to get off the ship and shop and look around but I never have enough time because I'm bothered by press and other people who find a woman captain unusual."

Captain Walas said she and her husband, the ship's first mate, have no difficulty working together.

The Walas's only son has just graduated from navigation school in Poland.

Women's Lib Not 'Lesbian Plot'

VANCOUVER (CP)—The Dr. Schwartz and Phillip women's liberation movement may increase the number of women who consider themselves bisexual, says Dr. Pepper Schwartz, assistant professor of sociology at University of Washington.

She stressed that she was not saying that the women's movement is "a lesbian plot."

However, "through the women's movement, women are learning to respect and love other women" she said, and women tend to "sexualize what they love so perhaps more will become involved in homosexual relationships.

Blumstein, also of University of Washington, did a study in five large American cities of 150 people who had experienced or had an interest in bisexuality.

"It's not the kind of thing you could go to every third house on a census track and ask about," she said, explaining that the study is not drawn from a random sample.

She said the study shows that people tend to label themselves as bisexual, homosexual, heterosexual because of what they consider their identity to be rather than their past behavior.

Davis Favored Fall Vote Date

TORONTO (CP) — Despite widespread speculation that he would call a snap election, Premier William Davis has always favored a fall date for an Ontario vote.

In the premier resisted the blandishments of some enthusiastic members of his caucus who believed party fortunes would be improved by urging him to call an election for June.

Partly called upon to support Mr. Davis to spend the summer selling government policies and programs to a public generally apathetic toward politics in September or October.

"There was never any intent on Davis' part to go in June," one of the premier's aides said in a recent interview.

He was speaking after the deadline for Mr. Davis to call a June election. Had he called an election date there must be 17 days from the time the vote is called until it is taken and voting must be held on a Thursday.

"I think Davis has got too many things in the wind for this summer," the aide said.

He added that many government programs, such as the new regional governments, will look more attractive to the voters after they've had a chance to get shaken down properly.

There are other considerations.

The premier is still hoping for an upturn in the economy in the fall and a fall election will give the new riding associations under the redistribution bill a better chance to organize.

June is also the time when many home-owners get their municipal tax bills. Taxes are expected to rise in most Ontario municipalities this year and that would be political ammunition for opposition critics, not the government.

Opposition Leader Robert Nixon, whose Liberal party led the Progressive Conservative party in popular support in a 1971 Gallup Poll survey, said Mr. Davis was reluctant to call a June election because it would be too soon.

Stephen Lewis, NDP leader, has said he would have welcomed a June election but said Mr. Davis was a procrastinator when it came to setting an election date.

The problem for Mr. Davis now is to create enthusiasm among backbenchers generally partisanly by the sales tax cut in April and Mr. Davis's strong performance in opposing a rise in oil and gas prices at the federal energy conference the last week.

The political gamble facing the premier is that if he calls a fall election, he must not only win but win by a substantial margin or risk alienating those elements in the caucus who wanted a June election.

Owning Home: Right or Dream?

OTTAWA (CP) — A New Democrat MP said Friday that owning a home is a social right, but a Liberal backbencher said it is a dream.

They made the comments during a Commons debate in which the opposition parties hammered Housing Minister Barney Danson for federal policies the critics said are based on outdated concepts.

Cyril Symes (NDP—Sault Ste. Marie) said the government should enter the construction business because "owning a house is not a privilege but a social right—like education and health."

But Serge Joyal (L—Montreal Maisonneuve-Rosemont) said: "It would be a dream to believe all Canadians could own a house."

Mr. Joyal suggested the government concentrate on rehabilitating existing homes in downtown areas because "not all Canadians want to live in suburbs."

James Gillies (PC—Don Valley) said housing policies amount to "a patch on a sinking ship" and that housing starts have dropped to their lowest level in 30 years.

Mr. Danson said "theoretical sections" are not working, Mr. Gillies said. "All they have to do is look at the evidence. The starts are at an all-time low."

Exceptional progress has been achieved under the Limited Home Ownership Program, said Mr. Danson. Further results "will warm the cockles of the hearts even of the opposition."

"The success of AHOP is something that will gall some under the skin of the opposition. I am not a great believer of subsidies, but they are being used constructively in this way."

Mr. Gillies wondered how Mr. Danson had the nerve to stand up and recite that sort of catalogue of inaction, of nothing happening." Inflation and soaring unemployment had made housing programs outmoded and unworkable.

Paul Rose said (PC—Kingston and the Islands) said unless it is "vitally necessary urgently, there will be only 180,000 homes built this year. Mr. Danson has set a minimum target of 250,000 for 1975, but the Progressive Conservatives say at least 350,000 are required.

Inspection Of Quebec Plants Urged

OTTAWA (CP) — James McGrath (PC—St. John's East) called Friday for a full inspection of all meat packing plants in Quebec.

Health Minister Marc Lalonde should "remove all the meat inspecting capacity he has — and send them to the province of Quebec." Mr. McGrath said in the Commons.

Opposition Leader Robert Stanfield asked what Mr. Lalonde has done "to ensure that food unfit for human consumption is not being peddled to Canadians."

Mr. Lalonde told the Progressive Conservative leader meat inspection is primarily a provincial responsibility and federal officials have no evidence that labeled meat has been sold in other provinces.

Mr. Stanfield said the health minister was using the mainly provincial jurisdiction over meat inspection as an excuse for inaction. The Food and Drugs Act gave the health department full jurisdiction over meat inspection standards.

Dief Presses For Names Of Pool Donors

OTTAWA (CP) — Former prime minister John Diefenbaker pressed again in the Commons Friday for the names of Prime Minister Trudeau's secret swimming pool donors "so we will be able to see whether later on some of them get appointed to the Senate."

Mr. Diefenbaker (PC—Prince Albert) said it is a shame for the government to call the pool "a gift to the Canadian people when in fact it is going to be paid for ultimately by the Canadian people."

Donations for the pool, now under construction at the prime minister's official residence, can be deducted from income tax. The government refuses to identify the donors on grounds that all income tax information is confidential.

New Camera Records Cars Halted by Police

TUSCALOOSA, Ala. (AP) — A veteran Alabama law-enforcement officer has developed a new type of camera designed to stop the killing of police officers on the streets and highways.

It makes a continuous permanent photographic record of everything sufficient enough to everyone he questions, said Col. Floyd H. Lamb, former state director of public safety, and cannot be removed from the police car or destroyed by a killer seeking to erase the evidence.

"The use of this camera would greatly reduce highway murders," said Mann. "Because I don't think very many people would like to commit a murder knowing their picture had just been taken along with the description of their automobile and tag number."

The camera will be hidden in the squad car and permanently attached. The veteran officer said, so it can be removed only "by authorized personnel" after the car has been returned to the shop.

It can be mounted beneath the dashboard and equipped with a periscope-type lens which extends up to the windshield level. Or, Mann said, it can be attached to the top of the car and housed in a steel, "jaunting-proof" assembly.

A flash gun would provide military light and remind a would-be assassin every time it flashes that his picture is being taken. It can be timed, for example, to take a picture every two seconds for a period of five or 10 minutes.

The function of the new camera, said Mann, is twofold: to deter would-be attackers, or, if that fails, to get his picture for identification.

Cameras have been used before, but the veteran officer said they have been too easily removed or destroyed.

Not Necessary

OTTAWA (CP) — Acting Prime Minister Allan Sharp said Friday it is not necessary for Canada to protest each time French nuclear tests take place in the South Pacific.

"The attitude of the government of Canada is as well known to France that it is not necessary for us to reiterate our position . . ." he said in the Commons.

Two Youths Held for Car Theft

Two Hamilton area youths are being held in custody by Belleville city police following the recovery of a car early today that was reported stolen Wednesday by Hamilton-Wentworth Regional police.

A city police spokesman said local regional police were en route to Belleville to charge the two youths with theft.

The youths are identified as John Peter Dimattia, 17, of 790 Burlington St. E. Hamilton, and Jack Wayne Trott, 18, of 3211 Homestead, Mount Hope.

The spokesman said Constables Gary Lanier and Steven Tebworth spotted the car driving along College St. E. at about 3:45 a.m. today and stopped the vehicle near Bonte Drive.

He said the two occupants did not resist arrest.

Glanmore House Gets $13,620 For Three Summer Projects

By ROBIN CHASE

The federal and provincial governments are pouring $13,620 into three summer projects at the Hastings County Museum.

Marion Lewis, museum curator, said in an interview Friday the money, part of a $4,500 from the federal state department, will fund a "student community services" project.

The project, which will be supplemented by additional money from the museum budget, will provide employment for three students to assist in the work of volunteers in the areas of preservation, education and volunteer training, he explained.

Names of the students, who will perform their jobs in and out of the museum at 257 East Bridge St. in Belleville, will not be released until their backgrounds are formalized, he said.

The project will begin May 27 and operate for 18 weeks.

The second largest amount is an Opportunities For Youth (OFY) grant of $4,200 from the federal department of manpower and immigration for five students in an oral history program.

The students are Belleville residents Joanne Porter, Cindy Newsome, and Christie Strahan of Centennial Secondary School and Dave Masters and Rob Miller of Moira Secondary School.

They will be entrusted with the task of travelling throughout the Quinte area, collecting and researching people's remembrances. Mr. Lewis said. Anyone who is reminiscent or relate is invited to call the museum at 968-3326, he added.

The program will begin on June 1 and operate until an undetermined date in late August.

A third project for $4,340 funded by the historical museums branch in the provincial ministry of culture and recreation is named Operation Museum Catalogue.

The three students involved are Simone Ketner of Trenton, team captain and Laura Hourigan of Belleville and Joanne Schannon of Plainfield, registrars.

Mr. Lewis said this is the final year in the two-year project and Laura and Simone are returnees from last year. He said Joanne, as a newcomer, will attend York University in Toronto on Monday for training and will start her assignment at the museum on June 2.

He explained the project, which began two weeks ago and will finish by the end of the summer season, will accomplish a cross-index of all collections at the museum. The team will also arrange storage for easy access.

Mr. Lewis elaborated the cross-index is designed to be included in a four-volume inventory of collections from all museums in Canada by computer.

Pre-Olympic Tour Draws Fewer Cyclists

There'll be fewer cyclists pedaling through Belleville this year than earlier expected.

The same goes for next year.

It all has to do with the Canadian Olympic Bike Tour.

The tour is a cross-country event slated for the 1976 Montreal Olympics.

For the event, city authorities were told earlier this year, up to 1,000 cyclists might pass through the city. And a pre-emptive (PREO) testing tour to be held late in August would draw 700 this year.

However, these figures have now been revised — downwards — the city parks board and recreation arena committee was told Tuesday.

The 1976 event now is expected to draw a maximum 3,000 and the PREO 300.

Clifford Balch, recreation director, said Zwick's Park had been suggested as an overnight rendezvous.

Lloyd Ryer, parks director, said overnight camping was a deviation from parks board policy. He warned that it could be a precedent and bring similar inquiries from other organizations.

However, it was a special event, noted Mr. Ryer, who also found a solution to the problem.

The parks bylaw permits the board to designate camping areas.

He suggested Zwick's be so designated — for one day only — to accommodate the cyclists.

Pedestrian Hit by Car

TRENTON — Hit by a car while crossing Dundas St. West at McColl St. late Friday, Robert Graham, 48, RR4, Trenton, suffered serious but injuries, said police.

Mr. Graham was given emergency treatment at Trenton Memorial Hospital and later transferred to Kingston General Hospital.

Police said the driver of the car was Lance Barter, RR3, Carrying Place.

All the King's Horses...

It's not exactly Humpty-Dumpty, but an unstrapped egg flying from a model car at Harmony Elementary School Friday proved a point for the necessity of wearing seat belts to pupils in Mrs. Barlow's Grade 2 and 3 class. Conducting the demonstration is Constable Don Kuzyk, a community services officer for the Belleville Police. The model car will be used by the provincial ministry of transportation and communications in future school instruction.

New Boarders

Mrs. Connie Potts of 450 Yeoman St., Belleville has two new boarders. Their names are Bucky and Peanuts; and they are baby squirrels. Adopted by Mrs. Potts' cat, Highway; Bucky and Peanuts have been with the Potts for just over a week. Mrs. Potts says she feeds the squirrels bread, peanut butter, and has even tried pablum and cat food.

Archers May Get Chance To Join in Deer Hunting

Bow-hunting is being recommended for the southern areas of the Quinte district by nature, resources ministry officials.

The counties involved include Prince Edward, Hastings, Frontenac and Lennox and Addington, says Lodi Bernier.

The regulation firearm season in the last three counties are not affected by the recommendation, which must receive final approval by Natural Resources Minister

The new archery season was suggested after "careful consideration" of local deer population levels, say ministry officials.

Population estimates, together with statistics on archery success, indicate that the area is capable of supplying hunting days for the sport with little impact on deer numbers, they say.

In southwestern Ontario during archery season last than four per cent of hunters succeed in bringing home venison. The number of deer taken is much less than the total killed each year on roads, says the ministry.

OPP Use Eggs to Show Benefits of Seat Belts

Constable Brian Turner, a community services officer with the Ontario Provincial Police in Belleville says provincial police are "egging children on to use seat belts."

And provincial ministry of transportation and communications officials say they hope to crack the shell of parents who neglect to buckle up.

Those are two observations following an OPP demonstration to students at Harmony Elementary School near here Friday where Constables Turner and Don Kuzyk used fresh eggs and a model car to stress the importance of wearing seat belts.

Caroline Fuley and Cathy Stephens of the ministry's driver-vehicle operations research department and Jennifer Harvey of the Ontario Education Communication Authority (OECA) were present to gauge the reaction of students to the program which they hope to introduce into Ontario's public schools this autumn.

Constable Turner says the eggs are first placed loose into the car which is propelled down a ramp and hit a wall, throwing the eggs out. On the second run, the eggs are strapped in by a rubber band and sustain only minor cracks upon collision, aptly showing seat belt use reduces the threat of serious injury.

Ministry people say they plan to use the presentation in an animated film to be produced by DECA for showing in schools. It will be part of a package which will see safety officers give regular seat belt safety instruction to Grades 2 and 3 beginning in October, a six month pilot program before designing an overall program for all elementary grades.

Deputy Reeve Questions Timing of Council Raise

PICTON — Hillier deputy-reeve Donald Sutton says he supports increased indemnities for Prince Edward County councillors but feels the timing is wrong in initiating the raises in mid-term.

Deputy-reeve Sutton observed, "I don't object to the raise. Until you get to county council you have no idea of the work involved."

"I think the timing is wrong. It (the increase) should start at the beginning of the next county council semester in January, 1977."

Prince Edward County councillors this week approved a consultants' report recommending an increase of $5 per diem.

Councillors this year will receive $35 per meeting and in 1978 the rate will increase to $40 per session.

Deputy-reeve Sutton says he also feels payment to council on a yearly basis is preferable to the present system of per diem rates.

He notes under the current system, it seems a small group of county councillors sit on interlocking committees. One councillor sits on a total of five.

"Since county government is a committee arrangement, unless you are on a committee you are at a disadvantage sometimes and generally unaware, until you meet at county council, that decisions have been made," he says.

The deputy-reeve suggests the agenda could be distributed more evenly to keep all members of council more fully "in the know".

"I am sure if the doctorate were to attend county council's meetings they would see why certain county councillors are very little opportunity for input," he adds.

Council to Examine Tax Break for Pensioners

A city councillor will be named Monday as acting mayor for part of the month of June.

It's to cover a period when Mayor Robin Jeffery is expected to be out of the city.

The agenda for Monday's council meeting contains a resolution calling for the appointment of veteran city councillor Ald. Ben Corke as acting mayor.

Council also is to discuss a recent request that pensioners and those on fixed incomes be exempted from education taxes.

The issues had been before council before and was renewed recently with a petition from the Belleville Branch of Pensioners Concerned Canada Inc.

City manager Wilbur Pontil recommends that — on the basis of present tax credits — no action be taken on the request.

Two Die In Blaze

CAMPBELLFORD — Two persons were reported dead today in a fire north of here.

No immediate details were available.

But provincial police at Brighton said the scene of the fire was on the Fromevest and that two people had died.

The incident is under investigation by provincial police from Campbellford.

Convention Endorsed

PICTON — Conventions are "invaluable" to members of Prince Edward County council, says Hillier deputy-reeve Donald Sutton but possibly the number of delegates could be reduced to cut costs.

The deputy-reeve was commenting on recent controversy in council when Picton reeve Larry Richardson opposed a motion authorizing a five-member committee and the county engineer to attend a roads convention in Calgary this fall.

Council defeated a motion to have the matter for this authorization deleted from a committee report adopted in committee of the whole.

Deputy-reeve Sutton emphasized the contacts made by delegates at the conventions are important as is the information accumulated there.

"Prince Edward county council should be represented at all conventions," he said.

He added that possibly fewer delegates could be sent in the interest of costs.

Mohawks To Mark Landing

TYENDINAGA — Mohawks of this reserve Sunday mark the 182st anniversary of the landing of their ancestors.

An annual event, the ceremony is staged at the east end of the reserve close by a memorial cairn marking the arrival of the Mohawks in 1784 — the first settlers on the Bay of Quinte.

Most Favor Stiffer Penalties for Drinking Drivers

It was reported in Tuesday's paper that Jack Ellis, MP for Hastings has introduced a private member's bill to amend the Criminal Code with stiffer penalties for impaired drivers.

The proposals for change include a possible 10-year imprisonment for impaired drivers involved in a fatal accident; a 6-month to 5-year sentence for mishaps with injuries; possible fines of $50 to $500 or three months in jail for a first offence (up to 12 months for a third offence); and convicted drivers could lose their licence for a period of up to three years.

A random survey was taken at the Quinte Mall the other day and over all the people questioned felt the proposals were a step in the right direction.

Here is a sample of the results:

LINDA CARSON

Linda Carson, 20, an import clerk at AOCO believes stricter regulations are needed because impaired drivers endanger thousands of lives.

When passed "people will think twice about getting inebriated and getting into their cars."

Mrs. Carson said, "it is a step in the right direction.

Talking about herself, she always watches the number of drinks she and her husband have at parties, but to be on the safe side.

GREG KETCHESON

Greg Ketcheson was "all for it". A city firefighter, he said, "It is a good idea because there are a lot of needless killings on the highways."

Even though Mr. Ketcheson agreed with the proposals, he stated "they will have to be modified" he believes the age limit should have been kept at 21 and not lowered to 18 a few years ago.

As a consequence to the amendments he felt fatal auto accidents would increase.

MRS. GRANT KIMMETT

Mrs. Kimmet, a housewife, felt the proposals were "horrible" because if you are a man or a woman made one mistake and ended up in a fatal accident he could possibly be faced with 10 years which makes "no sense at all."

Mrs. Kimmet also felt third-time offenders should be imprisoned but a better deterrent for first and second offenders would be "less imprisonment and heavier fines. Hit them where it hurts the most — the pocketbook.

ROB LORIMER

A student at Loyalist, Rob Lorimer, 19, agreed with the proposals because they are logical.

A driver himself, he felt "the more offences a person had, the longer he should stay in prison."

Saying that he sometimes drives after drinking, Rob said "these proposals would certainly make him think a bit before he took the 'one for the road' drink."

CURTIS SPENCE

The initial reaction of 44-year-old Curtis Spence was "pretty stiff!"

The stationary engineer felt moderation for the different offences was in order. The courts should be "treated the first time but any more, they should be hit hard."

Mr. Spence also mentioned hit-and-run accidents. He thought, "knowing what they were facing, a person might just take the chance to try and get away in a hit-and-run for instance."

Red Sox Spoil Bid by Ryan

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

California's Nolan Ryan wasn't lucky in his pitching spots for the Angels—so Boston Red Sox located the reason.

Ryan, who had allowed only three runs in his last five pitching starts as he posted an 5-1 record, gave up homers to Bob Montgomery, Carlton Fisk and Dwight Evans in the six innings he worked Friday night and Boston won the American League baseball game 6-1.

It was the second time in four days the Red Sox lofted a pitcher's bid to become the number three victim of the nine-game winner of the season. Last Tuesday, Boston beat Vida Blue 5-1.

In other American League games Friday night, Minnesota Twins edged Milwaukee Brewers 2-1, New York Yankees topped Texas Rangers 11-7, Oakland A's blanked Cleveland Indians 3-0, Kansas City Royals routed Baltimore Orioles 10-2 and Chicago White Sox beat Detroit Tigers 6-1.

"My location was lousy," said Ryan. "That was the only thing different last time in my other games.

When I could get the ball over, I couldn't hit spots."

Boston's sticking his arsenal of three homers into the left-field screen leading off first Carlton also blasted Ryan. Before Friday night Carlton had hit just 11 times in 32 at bats against Ryan.

But hitting Ryan has not been a problem for Yastrzemski, who has 11 hits in his last 29 at bats against the Angel ace for a .379 average. His home run was a two-run shot.

Evans' homer came with the bases empty and set off Boston's Fred Lynn in the eighth inning.

Ed Sprague was pitching two-hit ball for Milwaukee when Minnesota struck in the ninth. Tony Oliva opened the inning with a single and Larry Hisle stole a pinch-runner to third. Eric Soderholm then greeted reliever Tom Murphy with a single to center that scored Hisle and rally followed with the winning hit, Bert Blyleven, 2-3, singled a four-bitter for the Twins.

Ken Griffey's pinch hit was his record to 64 for New York but he needed Mike Wallace, who relieved Sparky Lyle after giving into the tying win with an 11-2 record.

Graig Nettles hit home-run number 10 for the Yankees, who remained cracked a two-run double that gave Texas a 3-2 lead, produced three runs with a single and shortstop Ed Ric Burton's Fred Lynn in the eighth inning.

18th 500 For Foyt

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — The winner of Sunday's Indianapolis 500 may be whoever comes out on top in the fierce rivalry between A.J. Foyt and master mechanic George Bignotti, the two men who have been the most dominant forces in the event for the last 15 years.

Bignotti, whose brilliant red Wildcats driven by 1973 winner Gordon Johncock and Wally Dallenbach are the swiftest of Foyt's rivals, has brought drivers to victory lane here six times, more than any other chief mechanic in the 59-year history of the race, now worth more than $1 million in prizes.

Foyt, a three-time winner, started out with Bignotti and won with the former San Francisco florist as chief mechanic in 1961 and 1964, but the two have since gone separate ways.

There are, of course, others with a chance for the $250,000 winner's prize, including former winners Al and Bobby Unser, Mario Andretti and defending champion Johnny Rutherford.

Though the Bignotti-Mother Spoerhaug steel relatively quiet today, outside thousands massed for the 9 a.m. camera Mast Sunday that will open the gates here.

Speedway owner Tony Hulman will send a signal down the spines of perhaps as many as 500,000 fans at the stroke of 10 a.m. start when he utters those famous words: "Gentlemen, start your engines!"

Foyt will be sitting in the cockpit for a record 16th time, with the advantage of his own bright orange Coyote being the proven fastest among the 33 starters.

Alongside him will be Johncock and Bobby Unser in the first of 11 three-abreast rows lined up for the most harrowing start to any sporting event.

Foyt won't say just how much satisfaction he would get from beating Bignotti for victory lane this year, but it is known that A.J. is standing with blood charges made last month by Bignotti, accusing Foyt of cheating in his March victory at the California 500.

Bignotti said Foyt carried extra fuel in a trick fire extinguisher. Foyt angrily denied the charges, but a bitter controversy ensued and now Foyt is threatening to sue.

U.S. Auto Club officials promise to see that the machines of the top three finishers will be completely torn down and checked to make sure no rules have been broken.

Trend watchers are looking at Johnny Rutherford, who has been the fastest machine around during the last two practice sessions.

One of the early favorites no longer contended in last year's top rookie honor, Pancho Carter.

The 24-year-old driver, the youngest in the 33-car field, qualified at a disappointing speed, and finally wrecked late on Thursday while attempting to find more miles per hour.

The car will be repaired for the 11 a.m. green flag Sunday, but there will be no chance for practice beforehand to make sure the car is working right.

There are four rookies in the field, although none are considered threats to win under normal circumstances. The rookie with the best chance is the fastest qualifier of the four, Bill Puterbaugh.

The other four are Sheldon Kinser, Larry McCoy and Eldon Rasmussen, a native of Johnston.

Wednesday Coverage May Be Out

TORONTO (CP) — National telecasts of Wednesday night hockey games are likely to be dropped next season, the president of the CTV television network said Friday.

CTV president Murray Chercover said Friday that the Canadian Sports Network, a branch of Maclaren Advertising Ltd. which owns telecast rights to the games, was close to a decision to drop the Wednesday games because of rating costs.

Coverage of Saturday night games on the CBC television network is expected to continue, CTV carried the Wednesday games.

Chercover said if advertisers had to choose between the networks they would be likely to lean to CBC because they would seed the CBC French network.

Games broadcast in Toronto and Montreal will continue to carry Wednesday games, but other CTV network stations will delete regular local games or move to place of network hockey.

100th Cup Game Sunday

Harris Steadying Influence

BUFFALO (CP) — Fred Harris wasn't eager to call on Ted Harris in overtime this week.

The Philadelphia Flyers coach has nothing against the 29-year-old defenceman. He just figured the younger Buffalo Sabres would give the 18-year National Hockey League veteran trouble in the stifling confines of Buffalo's Memorial Auditorium.

The Sabres won that game 5-4 in overtime Tuesday. Only seconds into their best-of-seven Stanley Cup final at two games apiece Thursday night with a 4-2 victory.

Fifth game in the championship final will be at Philadelphia's Spectrum Sunday at 1:30 p.m. EDT and will be televised nationally in Canada on the CBC network.

"My legs are telling me it's time," Harris has said often in recent days.

He hasn't been a regular this year, although some of his better performances have been in the post-season games. Harris, however, is inclined to give it another shot. Pressure has caused he's reluctant to unpeel his family.

It nothing else, he is a realist. "I don't think they (the Flyers) would try to convince me to play another year," Harris says. "But that wouldn't bother about it. But not now. This isn't the time to think about next year."

The hard-rock defender, playfull hardened from his early years with Montreal Canadiens, was obtained by Philadelphia in an off-season trade. Here was a defence weakened by the loss of veteran Barry Ashbee.

The Winnipeg native had enjoyed many happy years in the Montreal organization, earning the Stanley Cup ring, before being picked up by Minnesota North Stars in the intra-league draft in 1970.

He stayed with the Stars until they unloaded him to Detroit Red Wings in mid-season 1974. Three months later he was shipped to the Bleus.

With the Flyers, while his ice time has been limited, Harris has been a steadying influence on the younger heroes of the blueline corps, such as Tim Blades and Larry Goodenough. The two 22-year-old defenders were prone to making mistakes, mistakes that might have been costly had Ted not been there to cover for them.

"This game has been good to me," Harris said. "This is a time to think about the best

Perez Hit the Bottom But He Bounced Back

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Tony Perez hit the bottom of a drought is over.

"I'm just getting my press-ing," said Cincinnati Reds manager Sparky Anderson. "Some days you have to get to the bottom before you can get back."

"I hit the bottom hard enough to bounce back," said Perez, whose two-run homer Friday night helped the Reds down Philadelphia Phillies 5-2 in a National League baseball game.

The homer gave Perez six hits batted in the last six games and a tie for league leadership with 31.

In Friday's other National League games, Houston Astros beat Montreal Expos 4-2, New York Mets beat Atlanta Braves 3-1, San Diego Padres topped Pittsburgh Pirates 4-3, St. Louis Cardinals turned back Los Angeles Dodgers 4-3 and San Francisco Giants beat Chicago Cubs 3-2.

The Reds put another strong pitching performance from Gary Nolan to back up their fourth win in their last five starts and hand the Phillies their fourth consecutive defeat.

"I'm still not consistent but it's just a matter of time," said Nolan. "I'm the same kind of pitcher."

He evened his record at 2-3, winning consecutive starts for the first time since July, 1973. He was 13-3 at the all-star break that year, finished 14-9 in a 15 second half when shoulder miseries shot him out of baseball nearly three years.

Surgery seems finally to have cured Nolan's woes. He spaced seven hits in 6 3-3 innings, before Cincy Coach Dave Bristol called on two relievers on and a run in, and left the mess in the jam by getting Dave Cash to ground into a double play.

Slump-ridden Merv Rettenmund, who had only five hits in 21 previous at-bats, drove in two runs with a bases-loaded single for his second and third runs-batted-in of the year.

Dave Roberts, who left the Astros earlier in May after being taken out of a game he started, limited the Expos to one hits at six innings.

Roberts says his team-mates have done their best to make him comfortable since his return but benches from other teams won't leave him alone.

"Dave Bristol (Montreal third base coach) kept yelling at me during my game. 'Gonna get tonight? Gonna quit again?'

"Once I went over behind third base to back up a play and he yelled, 'This is the longest you've gone in a long time. Think that you can stay there? Do you can leave again?'

"Well, I'm fine. If a guy's got a weakness, you should attack it. And one of my weaknesses is my temper."

Ed Kranepool and Rusty Staub drilled run-scoring singles in a three-run fourth, lifting New York over Atlanta. The Mets jumped on Carl Morton for four consecutive singles in their big inning.

Dave Winfield reached first in the ninth inning on an error by shortstop Paul Popovich and eventually came around to deliver the winning run for San Diego on Fred Kendall's single.

Ron Fairly's two-run-scoring single sparked a two-run rally for St. Louis in the ninth inning against the Cardinals past the Dodgers.

Philadelphia Glenn Adams tripled home the tie-breaking run in the seventh. Pittsburgh twice in the eighth inning to beat Chicago.

The victory was the most logo added in the series, the Warriors having to rally to win the final two games, 106-95 and 95-91. This time, however, they were never trailing by more than two points.

Barry, leading scorer in the series with 30 points, an average of 31.7, got the Warriors off with a 19-point outburst in the first quarter.

In the first period, Barry had 10 points, Rick Barry, scoring 19 consecutive Golden State points, as the Warriors raced to a 24-1 lead.

Halftime the Warriors led 50-48. Barry sat out a good portion of the fourth quarter after Golden State was far ahead.

Elvin Hayes paced the Bullets with 28 points. Kevin Porter added 21 points for the Bullets while Phil Chenier scored 1 .

Warriors in Command Thanks to Rick Barry

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Rick Barry tossed in 31 points Friday night, sparking Golden State Warriors to a 106-95 victory over Washington Bullets, the third consecutive triumph in the National Basketball championship series.

The Warriors, leading the series 3-0 despite being underdogs prior to the best-of-seven set, can win their first NBA title since moving to the West Coast from Philadelphia in 1962 by beating the Bullets on Sunday in Landover, Md.

No team in NBA history has overcome a 3-0 deficit.

Sabres Wary

BUFFALO, N.Y. (CP) — Team captain Jim Schoenfeld says Buffalo Sabres will have to play fast as well in Philadelphia on Sunday as they did in their home games this week.

The Sabres defeated the Flyers 5-4 Tuesday and 4-2 Thursday to even their best-of-seven Stanley Cup final at 2-2.

"If we didn't think we could beat them, we'd pull them the points," Schoenfeld said. "We can't go in there timidly and say we've got them on the ice.

"—We are going to have to fight hard for everything we get. We're going to have to fight for every goal.

"I think we forced the play better than. When their defense made mistakes, they made them in their end. We were able to capitalize on them."

Veteran centre Gerry Ranfield said the club could not afford to open up against the Flyers.

"We have to keep it too wide open now," he said. "We played it a Montreal game, games and we were out of it in the third period.

"We've been putting a lot of pressure on them, and checking like we did when we beat Montreal in the first game. They haven't run away from us yet.

Terry Meagher And Jim Chase Bolster Macs

When the Belleville McDonald's take on Burlington in a doubleheader tonight and tomorrow in the Ontario Senior Baseball League, there'll be a couple of new faces in the lineup.

At third base, local fans will be watching Terry Meagher, and, on the mound, Colonial pitcher Jim Chase will make his debut.

Meagher will be taking Wayne McTaggart's place. McTaggart is nursing a shoulder back to health. He has been having trouble with the arm since the McDonald's began workouts in the early spring.

"He (Meagher) came with us just at the right time," said GM Gerry Adams. "Hop (McTaggart) is out with his shoulder and Ken Generazio, our other third baseman, decided to go back to the Quinte League."

Defensive prowess isn't Meagher's only asset. While he played in 71 games last year without an error, he also batted .302. The 5-foot-11, 175-pound, will give the Macs a few giant steps in their walk to a winning season.

Chase is also a timely addition.

He will join Ted Waite and Scott Peat to give McDonald's the vital three man staff that this league demands.

"If he's in shape, there's no limit to what he can do for us," said Adams.

On one occasion last year in the Parrie Tournament, Chase lost a bid for a perfect game when he walked the 31st man to the plate. As it was he settled for a no-hitter. However, that was the fourth game he had thrown that day and the no - hitter was against St. Thomas — the team that beat Rollins Construction out of Ontario Amateur Softball Association playdowns last season.

First baseman "Cookie" Ryley, Bob Christie and Neudorf have all hit well over .300 in the past several years. Along with Bob, Larry Christie is also in the lineup tonight against Niagara Falls last year. At shortstop is Syd Lang, a talented rookie.

It sounds like an invincible lineup. But the Scrappers have already lost a game in the young OFL season.

Burlington has always had a consistent contender. Last season they were tied for second place in the East Division standings, but then beaten out in a sudden death game with Niagara Falls.

Hamilton Squad Is Looking Good

While the Macs will play Burlington in a doubleheader Saturday and at 7:30 at the Alemite, their biggest test may come against Hamilton Scrappers in a single contest Sunday — also at 7:30 p.m. at the Alemite.

The Scrappers have, literally, put together a lineup of all-stars for their 1975 season. Bill McNeilis, a 36-year-old right hander who is rated one of the best; Wally Dick, a hurler with the Canadian Champions in 1969, '70 and '74, and Ed Neudorf, a top all-round player, make up the pitching staff.

Gallant Mir, winner of Friday's feature race at Quinte Exhibition Raceway, with driver Guy LaPush of Peterborough. The bay is owned by Malcolm Bailey of Uxbridge. His time for the one-mile pace was 2:10.3.

Feature to Gallant Mir

By DOUG JEFFRIES

Guy LaPush and Larry Zebedee stole the show at last night's harness racing at Quinte Exhibition Raceway before 820 racing fans.

LaPush guided Locust Don to the wire in a time of 2:09.2 breaking the horse's previous record for the mile by 13 seconds. Guy, who is from Peterborough, piloted Gallant Mir in the evening's feature race.

The feature was the highlight of the night as Silver Lad took the early lead and held it until the half-mile pole when Arti Macdonald and Charity Mc took over in front. Mr. Chick who trailed the field put on a spurt and challenged for first. Coming home, LaPush drove Gallant Mir across the line in 2:10.3.

Larry Zebedee of Belleville drove two winners during the night, winning with Judge Chief, owned by Frank Edwards of Belleville in a time of 2:14.4 and pushing Drexel Gold ahead of the pack for its first lifetime win in 2:13.4.

His first victory came after Kendal Brook, ridden by Shirly Anderson was called for interfering and it's first place finish was taken away. Judge Chief who placed second was given the victory.

Amer winner was Parkway, driven by Ray Rose of Stirling who finished ahead of the pack for its first lifetime victory in a relatively slow time of 2:18.3.

Pat Hunt drove Waco Jo to a fast finish, and the horse broke its previous record for the one mile pace in 2:10.3 smashing the old mark by six seconds.

Rob Ron Betsy driven by Glenn Tennant ahead of the pack for its first lifetime victory in a relatively slow time of 2:18.2.

The final record broken for individual horses was in the eighth race when Jerry Robinson of Peterborough drove Coastal Beauty in 2:12.4.

The race was a close one when Coastal Beauty nosed out Bunny Dillion in a photo finish.

The track was fast all night.

Centre For Trade

MILWAUKEE (AP) — The Milwaukee Bucks basketball team confirmed Friday that star centre Kareem Abdul-Jabbar is on the trading block. Abdul-Jabbar, 27, was the Bucks' most valuable player award in three of his six seasons. He is expected to play out the remaining year in his $400,000 a year contract.

Thanks to Wildman

Stasiak Still Has Belt

Stan (The Man) Stasiak still has his North American Championship Belt today but he can thank his Canadian Wildman and a wild series of events which led up to challenger Tony Parisi's defeat.

Referee Will Jennings and Stasiak were both seeing stars when the Wildman arrived on the scene.

Jennings nodded off after he was slammed heavily by Parisi who had Stasiak fired up before the villain ducked, leaving the referee to take the full force of the collision.

Stasiak was rendered senseless when his head caressed a ring pole after he was felled by a chair.

Enter the Wildman. Parisi fell victim to the Wildman's chair.

Naturally, before the referee came to his senses, the Wildman had made a hasty exit.

Stasiak was declared the winner.

Billy Red Lyons came to Parisi's assistance. After bringing Parisi around, Lyons approached the defeated challenger.

"Tony wants a cage match with Stasiak and I'll handoff the Wildman to my arm to keep him from interfering," Lyons shouted.

A dazed Parisi screamed: "I want you, Stasiak, you (bleep)."

Stasiak accepted the challenge. The two will be caged in for their June 6 match at Memorial Arena.

The Alaskans, making their first appearance here were beaten by Lyons and Dory Funk Jr. Lyons put his Atomic Drop to work after taking time out to chase the Wildman from the vicinity of the ring.

CNR, Intell Log Wins

The Belleville Industrial Softball League moved to Alemite Park for its regular Friday night twin bill and The Intelligencer, behind Ron Colloden's clutch pitching, took a 7-6 squeaker from Brooke Bond.

The nighcap produced a far different result. In it, CNR exploded for a 13-run sixth inning on its way to a 16-0 win over Lenders who are still looking for their first victory after four reversals.

Colloden, nicked for 12 Brooke Bond hits had it when it counted most, coming through with men on base to preserve The Intelligencer's third win of the season. The losers left 16 men on base. Over the route, Colloden fanned five and walked four.

Brooke Bond starter Russ Geen was touched for six runs in the first inning, off four hits and three walks. Tom St. Jules came on to finish up and limited the winners to one run over the last six innings, walked two and struck out four.

Tony Goncalves and Eric Williams each collected a pair of singles for The Intelligencer. Bill Cooney banged a double while Fred Stickle and Glynn Reynolds each connected for one single.

Jack Walsh struked a triple and two singles for Brooke Bond. Al Colden supplied a home run and a single, and St. Jules checked in with a double and a triple.

Perry Soule got his shutout for CNR on an eight-hitter and he got plenty of support from his mates who collected 16 base hits off Lenders' pitchers Ed Dawson and Jim Maloney. Soule fanned five and did not walk a man.

Warren Hay was the game's hitting star with a five-for-five performance and five runs batted in. Gil Nesbitt hammered a bases-loaded triple and Soule clouted a homer and a single.

Herm VanDaalen was the only Lender with more than one base hit. He collected a pair of singles.

2-stroke Lead For Mahaffey

MEMPHIS (AP) — John Mahaffey studied that scoreboard, his baby face wrinkled into a frown.

He looked at the list of top challengers for the Memphis Classic: Jack Nicklaus and Tom Weiskopf, the Gary Player and Lee Trevino, who were well within striking distance.

"This guy fits that up there, he's in 8th at 14 at Jacksonville," he said, a mischievous grin wrinkling away the frown.

But he's happy with the two-stroke margin he established in Friday's second round of the $175,000 Danny Thomas-Memphis pro-am tournament.

"I'm tickled to death," he said. "The way I've played the last two days, I'd just like to take that game into the U.S. Open."

He birdied two of his last three holes for a four-under-par 68 and a 36-hole total of 136, 11 under par for 36 holes.

Latker moved into second alone when one of Nicklaus' eight-foot-or-closer putts lipped out on the 17th hole.

Latker, winner of the Bing Crosby early this year, had a 69 and a 137 total. Nicklaus had to settle for a 70 and a tie with Weiskopf at 138.

Weiskopf, one of the game's longest hitters, shot a 71 and did not birdie a par-five hole although he reached one of them in two.

Larry Nelson was next with a 71 for a 137 total. Jerry North, who shared the first-round lead with Mahaffey, fell back after a 71 for a 139. Also at 139 was Gary Player, the South African who won this title last year. He had a second-round 68.

Trevino, who jushot a 66 on Friday and went back to his old sticks, rallied with a 69 and finished at 140 with his hot, hitting day—and was at 141.

Hubert Green collected $10,000 for a hole in one on the par three 17th, lipping at 20 yards. He used a four iron. The ball hopped once and then darted into the hole. It was his fifth career ace.

Ben Kern of Toronto was the only Canadian to qualify for the final 36 holes. His 74 Friday gave him a 145 total.

BALLESTEROS AHEAD

SANDWICH, England (AP) — Manuel Ballesteros of Spain led by one stroke in the Penfold PGA golf championship Friday after a three-under-par 69 over the 6,796-yard seaside Royal St. George's course. Australia's Graham Marsh, who had a 67 with a 141 while pre-tournament favorite Peter Oosterhuis of British shot a 73. The tournament is worth $115,000, second in Britain only to the British Open.

Bramalea Wins 10-9

BRAMPTON, Ont. (CP) — Ian Robinson scored five goals to lead Bramalea Blazers to a 10-9 win over Peterborough Greyhounds in the Ontario Lacrosse Association Junior A series Friday.

Terry Maatine and Ken Mahdebin scored two goals each and Bob Burke added another for Bramalea.

Dan Green led Peterborough scoring with two goals. Dan Dean, Paul Johnston, Mark Worrall, Lord Duncan, Randy Boyes, Moe Jordis and John Martin each added one.

Caribous Nipped

MONTREAL (CP) — N. Dennison scored three goals, one in overtime, to lead Montreal Concordes to a 15-14 win over Quebec Caribous in National Lacrosse League action Friday night.

J. Davis and S. Loiselle added two each for Montreal while B. Arena, D. Litzenberger, G. Pilon, K. Wuennenberg, D. Mackenzie, J. Lynch, G. Floyd and M. Blanchard added one scored singles.

Quebec's leading scorer was D. Powless with three goals, J. Higgs, D. Durante and T. Sandman each added two and T. Sullivan, T. Wright, P. Cook, D. Dilter, B. Evans and D. Hope scored singles for Quebec.

CFL Season Opens July 23

TORONTO (CP) — The Canadian Football League opens its regular season on July 23 and winds up in Calgary with the Grey Cup national finals on Sunday, Nov. 25, one of the shortest league finishes in the past year.

10C Will Keep Close Watch On Proceedings at Montreal

LAUSANNE, Switzerland — (AP) — The strife-threatened 1976 Olympic Games at Montreal have survived another crisis, but the International Olympic Committee (IOC) vows to keep a strict watch at sinking resorts in the 44-member athletic village.

"My main concern is to make sure there will be Olympic competition for athletes next year," said Lord Killanin, the IOC president.

The 53-year-old Irish peer, who two years ago worried aloud, expressed his confidence that Montreal will be ready for the Olympics in 1976.

For the moment, the IOC does not seem inclined to take up Mexico City's offer to take over the Games. But in the next two months, three leading members of the IOC will go to Montreal to check on progress.

The watchdogs are Hermann van Karnebeek of the Netherlands, who has ended a four-year term as vice-president, Dr. Arpad Csanadi of Hungary and Lord Nicholas of Japan, newly-elected members of the executive board.

Kipchoge, a swimming gold medalist in 1964 and former secretary of the World Swimming Federation (FINA), will be told to assess progress on Montreal's swimming pool.

The IOC came to its feet, seconds after Lord Killanin spoke over Montreal. They left with easier minds, after hearing assurances from Montreal's mayor, Jean Drapeau.

Within a few months strikes have halted construction work on Montreal's building sites. Each time Drapeau has flown to Europe to soothe the nerves of the IOC.

Killanin was asked by a reporter whether the IOC had pressured Drapeau to be more open in his reports on the troubled Olympic site.

The president replied: "I think it is terribly important that we have confidence.

"I am not inferring that we have had any. But I think in there are times when people feel a certain amount of wishful thinking and suddenly find that something they believe is not happening."

Killanin said he visited Montreal recently before the latest round of crises, and felt that "barring a catacylsm" all would be well.

"I did not expect a catacylsm so soon," he said. "I hope there will not be another one."

On the final day of the session, the IOC shelved an application for the athletes of mainland China to compete in the Olympics. Peking's All-China Sports Federation applied for recognition and demanded that Taiwan be excluded.

The committee approved a plan for Killanin to visit both Mainland China and Taiwan in one far-fetched new sport is run in these two countries. He said will hopes representatives will be represented at Montreal next year.

Europe May Go Without TV Coverage of the Games

LAUSANNE, Switzerland (Reuter) — Europe's hopes of watching the 1976 Olympic Games on television will depend on a fresh round of talks with Canadian Games officials in a few weeks.

Lord Killanin, president of the International Olympic Committee (IOC) holds a news conference here today and said the session here that IOC officials were sitting in on the negotiations but that he did not want to discuss the contents because the fresh round of talks will begin in two or three weeks.

Earlier talks have left the Canadian Games Organizing Committee (COJO) far apart from the European Broadcasting Union (EBU) and the East European network Intervision officials have said the Olympics may have to go without any Olympic radio or television unless the chasm is bridged shortly.

Originally COJO wanted $25 million and the EBU offered $1.5million—the same fee it paid for the 1972 Munich Olympics.

The EBU increased its offer to $5 million earlier this year but Sir Charles Curran, director-general of the British Broadcasting Corporation (BBC), said they intend to stand firm there to protect the principle of "reasonable" television fees everywhere for future sporting events.

Lord Killanin said the negotiations are important for Montreal and the IOC.

"It may take time to reach an ultimate conclusion but I am sure it can be reached around the table," he said. "It is, however, more important we have a stadium and a Games in Montreal than that we worry about television coverage."

Reporting on preparation to the IOC session, COJO said its television pricing was based on the principle that the Games must pay for themselves and that the rates were intended to spread the cost of television fairly and equitably across the world.

COJO said its scale was based on the wealth of the countries wanting to screen the Games, their degree of interest in amateur sport and the nature of their broadcasting systems.

Rites of Summer
The sky darkens above the trees. In a clearing, the firelight glows brighter and the chants echo and the dance begins.
The Six Nations Indian Pageant, at Brantford, held in the evenings of August 1 & 2, & 8, 9, 15 & 16, is one of eight scheduled summer celebrations of Ontario's original native heritage. Repeat visitors usually come early to take in the native beadwork, moccasins, leathercraft and food stuffs on exhibition and sale. Then, just past sundown, they take their seats, in a natural forest amphitheatre, to enjoy the spectacle, the music and mythology of times long past. Other events scheduled for the summer include a major annual powwow on Manitoulin Island, with games, dances, songs and ceremonies. For a further appreciation of our Indian culture, plan a trip to the Midland Huronia Village, or spend an afternoon among the Indians of North America exhibits in the Royal Ontario Museum in Toronto. For motor-coach packages to Huronia, or to many other interesting historic sites, contact your local travel agent or auto club.

THE UNEXPLAINED

by Allen Spraggett

The Human Cotton Plant

Even with the spectacular growth of medical science there are mysteries about the human body the experts haven't solved.

For example, why do rare people have phenomenally sharp eyesight or hearing? Why do some people have an unusual ability to tolerate pain so that they can lean against flashing an electric shock that would make others scream.

And, possibly strangest of all, why do some people develop peculiar substances in their bodies?

One of the most striking of these cases is that of the woman in Japan who was known as "the human cotton plant."

The case was first reported in an English language newspaper, The Japan Times, in May, 1967. Since then it has been followed up at intervals.

In April, 1957 the woman — whose name was never revealed to protect her from curiously seekers — came to the Tahiri Clinic in Japan's Okayama Prefecture. She complained of lumps on her right arms and legs, five of them in all.

The lumps were cut open by Dr. Tamotsu Tahiri and from each a bit of what looked like cotton popped out. Tests revealed that it was faded red that — cotton.

The doctor cleaned and bandaged the incisions. For several days the woman kept returning to the clinic with more bits of cotton protruding from the incisions.

The patient, a mother of four children, told Dr. Tahiri that her cotton-bearing lumps had formed two years earlier after she developed a high fever and spent several days in bed.

Ever since, she said, the painful lumps had formed on her body and when she squeezed them what looked like cotton came out.

The woman was studied by doctors at several Japanese hospitals. In 1963, her case was the main one discussed by scientists at an International Symposium on Carbohydrates in Munster, Germany. At that conference it was reported that analysis of the woman's cotton proved it to be identical to the natural variety.

Japanese doctors said that the woman had been carefully observed, even when she wasn't aware of it, to catch her in possible fraud. However, they said, the possibility that she herself was inserting cotton in the lumps or otherwise introducing the substance into her body had definitely been ruled out.

At the peak of the human cotton plant's production in the early 1960s she was said to have turned out three grams a day from each of 39 lumps on her body — a total of 40 grams of cotton daily. Later reports indicated that the phenomenon was defunct.

Is cause?

That's part of the UNEXPLAINED...

South should have made the contract. He could be certain that East didn't hold the ace of spades. He had dealt and passed and shown up with a long club suit headed by the ace-king.

There is no point playing a man for a card he can't have so it was up to South to try for an end play. Furthermore, since West almost surely held at least five hearts all that was necessary was to find a 3-2 trump break.

South should win the first heart in dummy and ruff a club. Then a trump to the nine, ruff the last club, and cash ace of trumps.

Both opponents will follow. Now South cashes ace of hearts, throws West in with the third heart and smiles happily.

To Your Good Health

Anemia Common Among Old Folk

By G. C. THORSEGON, M.D.

Dr. Dr. Tastesian: My mother is 83-years-old. For the last few months she has been feeling very tired, and just hasn't felt like walking.

We thought it was just age, but when the doctor took her blood just he said she was anemic, and he had to give her a blood transfusion. In the future how can we tell if she is in this condition again? Are there any symptoms and how does it take to get into this condition? She has had no blood in her stool. — V.J.J.

The idea is to avoid a condition severe enough to ever warrant a blood transfusion, and it is usually caused by an inability of the system to absorb vitamin B-12 from the digestive tract. As a consequently, your mother should have a product blood counts to determine her status.

I am sure her doctor would arrange for follow-up observation. She may also require periodic injections of B-12, and perhaps iron supplements. Close observation of her eating habits can help avoid the recurrence of a severe anemia, a condition that cannot always be diagnosed without this kind of attention will be necessary for the rest of her life.

It is difficult to tell how long it would take for her system to develop such a severe anemia. It is often slow in building up to this condition, so it takes unusual walking exercise tipped off to her last time, this might be used again as a bellwether for general state of health again.

Classic signs of anemia include a general weakness, skin pallor, and a paleness in the nails and eye membranes. Anemia due to blood loss it, as the name indicates, often decreases through stool analysis. She should discuss what exactly she can manage without discomfort.

TORONTO (CP) — Jim Foulds (NDP—Port Arthur) questioned in the legislature Friday the attitude of an executive assistant to the premier for ward welfare recipients in light of a recent published research.

Mr. Foulds said comments by Claire Westcott, who publicly quoted research to the welfare department, amounted to a "slur" on welfare recipients.

Outside the legislature he said the excerpts from letters quoted at a Toronto conference and reprinted May 8 in a newspaper while humorous indicated "a rather unhealthy attitude" on the part of the Premier's advisor to people who are disadvantaged.

Premier William Davis, defending his assistant said some of the letters quoted were written outside the province.

Grants Awarded

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario education ministry has awarded $161,200 in grants for educational research to 30 independent projects.

Education Minister Tom Wells said in a news release that 13 of the grants were awarded to research staff at Ontario universities, 10 to researchers at the Ontario Institute for Studies in Education (OISE) and seven to staff employed by school boards.

Largest of the grants is a $8,000 award to an OISE researcher for an evaluation of bilingual education programs in Ontario.

Study Urged

TORONTO (CP) — NDP Leader Stephen Lewis urged the Ontario government Friday to consider a joint planning study for the Windsor, Ont., waterfront area.

He told the legislature the time for a study was opportune in light of recent developments which have thwarted efforts by municipal interests in the area.

Thorold to Be City

TORONTO (CP) — A bill to make city status to the Ontario town of Thorold was introduced in the legislature Friday.

Northern Pays More To Canadian Workers

TORONTO (CP) — Rising labor costs in Canada are causing serious problems for Northern Electric Co. Ltd. of Montreal in deciding where it wants to build manufacturing facilities, the company's president said Thursday.

Walter Light, president of the Canadian-owned multinational company, said Northern is concerned about the growing difference in wage rates at its United States and Canadian plants.

Addressing a meeting of financial analysts here, he referred to the difference between the London, Ont., and Port Huron, Mich., plants, both of which make telephone sets and deal with the same union.

Employees at the London plant receive $1.86 more an hour than those at the Port Huron plant, and have fringe benefits that cost 32 to 39 per cent of wage rates, compared with 20 to 21 per cent in Port Huron.

Meeting Invalid

TORONTO (CP) — John Rhodes, minister of transportation and communications, said Friday he has ruled invalid a meeting Wednesday of the Ontario Northland Transportation Commission (ONTC) chaired by Ed Havrot (PC—Timiskaming), fired from the chairman's post a day earlier.

Mr. Rhodes said he has informed the commission all matters on the agenda Wednesday would have to be deferred and dealt with again at the next meeting.

Premier William Davis asked for and received the resignation Tuesday following published reports of slurs by Mr. Havrot on Ontario Indians in connection with the government's Moosonee-Moosonee project in Northern Ontario.

Milkshakes Full of Germs

OTTAWA (CP) — There is a 50-50 chance that the chocolate milkshake you buy at your local fast food chain has enough bacteria in it to make you sick.

The Consumers' Association of Canada (CAC) said Friday 125 of 237 chocolate milkshakes it tested from outlets across the country had bacteria counts far in excess of federal standards.

Nola Wide, first vice-president of the CAC, said the situation is a good indication that the outlets in question have poor sanitary standards.

Health Minister Marc Lalonde told reporters outside the House his department is studying the brief. He said because most milkshake outlets are unsanitarian and violate provincial predictions, all his department can do is help follow up investigations.

Plan Rejected

WASHINGTON (CP) — A plan to export natural gas in summer from the United States to Canada for storage—topping it back during peak winter heating periods—has been rejected by an administrative law judge with the Federal Power Commission (FPC).

May Tighten Rules

TORONTO (CP) — An Ontario Hydro committee report has proposed stricter regulations for residential wiring systems using aluminum wiring.

A committee study disclosed that an overheated receptacle or plug is more likely to occur with aluminum wiring than with copper under equal conditions.

Oil and Wage Problems Delayed Date of Budget

TORONTO (CP) — The federal budget, expected until month, was delayed until June 23 because of problems in reaching agreement with provinces on wage restraints and with the provinces on oil and gas prices, Prime Minister Trudeau said Friday.

He identified these as two of the delaying factors and denied the government's attempt to reach a consensus with the Canadian Labor Congress on limitation of wage demands to 10 to 12 per cent as a "setback" in the search for voluntary restraints.

Throughout a two-day meeting—the-people swing—through Rosseville, Lindsay and Port Hope-Ont., he was asked about wage and price controls, which he said the government has rejected and isn't considering.

"We're obviously not getting through," he said, when the question was raised for the fourth time in the tour. He reiterated that government is seeking voluntary restraints not only by labor but management, professionals, landlords and investors.

The questions were serious but audiences were friendly in communities that have traditionally elected Conservatives both to Parliament and to the Ontario legislature.

At each stop Mr. Trudeau spoke not privately with local Liberals, encouraging, as he put it, "a fourteen-year-old strategy" of organizations and funds so that Liberals would be elected to Parliament next year.

Asked whether he planned to support Ontario Liberal Leader Robert Nixon in a provincial election expected this year, he replied:

"Quite frankly, I don't think Mr. Nixon needs my support. I am not going to involve myself directly in this campaign."

However, Mr. Nixon would have the support of every federal and Ontario Liberal.

Mr. Trudeau told a news conference at Port Hope that both inflation and unemployment remain acute problems.

"We are putting more feedback from people about the high cost of living than we are from the high rate of unemployment," he said.

"You yourselves as observers must be wondering about it, but it's true. You know, we have unemployment up somewhere near, what is it, 7.5 per cent?

Montreal Mail Again Disrupted

MONTREAL (CP) — Postal workers engaged in sorting mail did not show up for work today after feeling off sick, a post office spokesman said.

The workers failed to report for the midnight shift and so one was working when the morning shift began.

The spokesman said nothing was moving at the main post office but work was being carried out normally in other Montreal-area postal stations.

Members of the Montreal local of the Canadian Union of Postal Workers voted Sunday night to take off sick for 4 hours to protest the suspensions of fellow workers.

The postal workers' illness was described by some union members as a "strong case of the Mackasey Blues" — named after Postmaster-General Bryce Mackasey.

Meanwhile, 222 postal workers reported sick in Quebec City, a post office department spokesman said. Earlier 88 others were off work in Cap-de-la-Madeleine, Trois-Rivieres, Drummondville, Port Alfred, Bagotville, Jonquiere-Kenogami, Alma, Chicoutimi, Port Alfred, Bagotville, Jonquiere-Kenogami, Alma, Roberval and Baie Comeau.

The Post Office said 70 workers were handed one-day suspensions during the weekend because they "refused to work." The union said 80 suspensions were given out.

"We must show our solidarity with our suspended comrades," Marcel Perreault, president of the 4,500-member union local, said. "We will never accept their suspensions."

Mr. Perreault also said the union will consult its lawyers today on the possibility of launching legal action against supervisors and management personnel "including one supervisor who used a knife to protect a worker."

Union members also voted to accept the Post Office's latest proposal for settling a dispute over the hiring of casual help on condition that suspensions and other disciplinary measures be revoked.

The proposal calls for the hiring of 180 new full-time employees to work each week-end.

Earlier Sunday, Mr. Mackasey told a news conference the post office is planning security measures to permit hundreds of additional workers to clear a backlog of 25 million pieces of mail at the Montreal post office.

"More than 25 million pieces of mail have accumulated in Montreal, mainly as the result of deliberate work stoppages, slowdowns and interference with those employees who would prefer to work," he said.

But Mr. Perreault said the backlog of mail is caused by all the suspensions that have been given out, not by any strike by mail sorters.

Mr. Mackasey also warned other locals against supporting the Montreal local in its fight against the use of casual workers.

Mr. Mackasey said on the CTV program Question Period that infiltration of "a bodybuilding and a postal-worker ranks has caused, at least in part, the erosion of managerial rights in the Montreal post office."

Lebanon's Army Premier Ousted

BEIRUT (AP)—Moslem opposition forced Lebanon's first military premier in 22 years to resign today after only three days in power.

Brig.-Gen. Noureddin Rifai, 70, announced he was quitting after a storm of protest greeted his appointment.

Gunfire and grenade explosions continued during the night, and police said most of it came from left-wing Moslem Lebanese militiamen trying to drive Rifaiee out of office.

President Suleiman Franjieh named Rifai premier Friday night after a week of almost fighting between Palestinian guerrilla and Christian militiamen of the right-wing Falangist party.

About 100 persons have been killed in the street fighting and about 200 have been wounded, say unofficial police counts.

A joint "Lebanese-Palestinian committee called for a cease-fire and left patrols began touring the streets during the night in an attempt to stop the firing and to get the warring factions to dismantle barricades of barbed wire and sandbags.

The patrols had orders to open fire on anyone violating the ceasefire. Some agitators were cruising the streets firing machine-guns from cars with concealed license plates, the interior ministry said.

Palestine chieftain Yasser Arafat ordered his lieutenants in Lebanon's 14 refugee camps to keep out of the campaign to bring Rifai's military government down.

Arafat joined Lebanese security police in the call for a return to calm following mediation by Syrian Foreign Minister Abdel Halim Khaddam.

Meanwhile, Israeli raid across the border into southern Lebanon touched off infantry, artillery and air attacks by Israeli and Lebanese forces that lasted from midnight Saturday until nearly noon Sunday.

An Israeli officer said it was the hardest fighting between Lebanese and Israeli regulars in three years.

The Lebanese defence ministry said seven Lebanese were killed and three were wounded.

Armed Forces Group Meeting in Portugal

LISBON (AP) — The Armed Forces Movement, Portugal's quasi-parliament, is meeting today to discuss whether to allow its political parties because of the bitter crisis between the Communists and the Socialists.

Many of the 247 officers of the 80-member assembly were reported to favor banning or further limitations on the activities of the parties.

The Socialists, who outscored the Communists 3 to 1 in the constitutional assembly elections a month ago, held a five-hour rally Sunday attended by 10,000 persons in the Lisbon sports palace.

Socialist leader Mario Soares asserted that Portugal is threatened by a new Communist dictatorship and declared: "Only a party with the strength of the Communists can consolidate democracy in Portugal.

The crisis began when Communist printers seized control of the Socialist party newspaper Republica. It was the only newspaper in Lisbon not controlled by the Communists, and the military government closed it, declaring that the dispute was a labor problem that would have to be settled by the courts.

News Briefs

Brake Systems Defective

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. transportation department said Sunday it has tentatively determined that a safety defect exists in the power brake systems on certain 1965 through 1969 General Motors cars. The alleged defect is that the power brake vacuum check valves. It is estimated that more than 16 million vehicles should be equipped with these vacuum check valves are still in use.

Art Treasures Found

AGANA, Guam (AP) — The governor of Guam has taken charge of Vietnamese art treasures hauled here secretly in the hold of a refugee ship. Gov. Ricardo Bordallo decided to unload the contents of the vessel after the United States Navy, U.S. customs agents and the state department disclaimed responsibility for the ship and its cargo. A Vietnamese refugee now in Montreal has claimed ownership of the treasure.

Russia Yields Point

DUBLIN (AP) — The Soviet Union has yielded to Western demands for advance notice of all major military maneuvers in an effort to clear the way for the mammoth summit conference on European security that Leonid Brezhnev wants.

Saigon Expels Journalists

VIENTIANE (AP) — Matt Franjola, a United States correspondent for The Associated Press, and Jean-Claude Larteguy, a French journalist and novelist, were expelled from South Vietnam today.

Franjola and Larteguy arrived in Vientiane on a North Vietnamese plane with about 40 other reporters and about 40 French teachers being evacuated from Saigon.

George Aspen, another U.S. correspondent for AP in Saigon, was not affected.

Franjola said they were given no reason for their expulsion.

Vientiane Evacuation Is Speeded

VIENTIANE (AP) — United States embassy personnel celebrated the burning of documents today and their marine guards moved their pistols and riot-gas supplies to safer upstairs storage areas as anti-Communist feeling mounted in this capital of Laos.

There were no flights today in the charter airlift that has reduced the U.S. community in Laos to about 350 from close to 1,000 in once evacuees left on commercial and embassy supply flights.

"Don't stay much longer," Charge d'Affaires Christian Chapman advised a U.S. reporter.

Students continued to occupy the headquarters compound of the U.S. Agency for International Development (AID). One student carried a U.S.-made rifle and others had American military field radios.

A crowd of about 200 students and Laotian AID employees cheered when told the AID workers would be paid by tonight. But informed sources said this increased the potential for violence because the pay records are inside the occupied compound and it might not be possible to get the payroll ready.

Laotians employed by the U.S. government have been demanding immediate payment of their wages as the evacuation of Americans continued.

The embassy was pressured Sunday into giving three months' severance pay, instead of the one month agreed to in a contract, to 837 employees of the security firm that guarded U.S. government property.

Auld Says Students Neglected Because They Are No Problem

By ROBIN CHASE
Staff Reporter

Students in Ontario's 22 community colleges have not received the attention they deserve because of the focus of attention by college officials and the provincial government "on the areas in which there have been problems," says James Auld, minister of colleges and universities and MPP for Leeds.

The students have not been a problem, he told a convocation audience at Loyalist College here Saturday, and one reason "is the increasing acceptance which graduates of the colleges are receiving from prospective employers".

Mr. Auld pointed out that ministry figures show 94 per cent of 1974 graduates who were seeking work, found jobs by last October and "of this number, about 95 per cent are working in fields directly related to their training".

He emphasized that the six per cent unemployed "includes all those students who were travelling, who had married and decided to stay home for a while or who, for whatever reason, have decided not to seek a job at this particular time".

Mr. Auld did not elaborate on problems in the college system but said adjusting such an kind of money are "what I consider to be the secondary aspects of life education. The primary concern of the colleges is not buildings, maintenance or teachers. It's the students."

All on the Block

Auctioneer Elberne Carson, of Picton, boosts the bidding at day-long auction at the Potter Property near Belleville on Saturday. Once a waterfront tourist resort, its cabins and contents were sold to clear title which is to be part of large recreation-conservation area purchased by local governments and Moira River Conservation Authority.

Potter Property's New Era Ushered in by Auctioneer

By HARRY MULHALL
Staff Reporter

An auctioneer's spiel ended today on a waterfront property in Belleville - area recreation facilities boosting.

Up for sale were the tourist cabins and contents of the southside Potter property — the big farm area west of the city marked for a prime recreation-conservation belt.

The Potter project is a joint undertaking of the Moira River Township and the city of Belleville.

Studies have yet to be completed or commissioned to evolve a pattern of usage for the big 340-acre property, reaching from the Bay of Quinte at Jones Creek north along the Wallbridge - Loyalist Road.

Some of the auction action Saturday was the 13-acre property sector between Highway 2 and the Bay — for years a tourist residence with its waterfront cabins.

The area has been testing or camping since about 1904, said Ernie Foster, 67, as he watched the crowds throng around the auction wagon. Mr. Potter's father bought the land at that time. He and his wife Celia have run the tourist operation for many years.

With the sale of the farm, the cottages became the property of the conservation agency, supervising the project for both local governments.

But the building's contents — beds, bureaus, tables, chairs and the rest — were sold for the Potter family.

The auction — through most of the warm, humid day — drew a large crowd which bought everything from pillows to pots and pans.

The authority had 25 cabins up for sale — along with the tourist site's office building.

J. J. McCleod said 34 of the structures — and the office — were auctioned, the only one remaining being an old cabin.

Stipulation of the sale was cash with 30 days grace to clear the structures from the property.

While no total price was disclosed, Mr. McCleod said authority officials were satisfied with the sale.

"We didn't get a lot for them," he said. "But after all, we did get them removed without it costing us anything."

The southside of the property now is being evaluated for use possibilities in a current Bay of Quinte Study, commissioned by the authority along the waterfront from Point Anne to Bayside. Terms of reference for a second study on the rest of the property are are moving without a public local government change.

When the second phase is completed — in about a year, estimates Mr. McCleod — both studies will provide a basis for deciding the property uses for the area.

CUPE Plans One Hospital Contract

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — The Canadian Union of Public Employees (CUPE) will bargain for one master agreement for 20,000 Ontario hospital workers, even if it is against the law, says Leslie Nicholson, a CUPE executive member.

Miss Nicholson, a Niagara Falls, Ont., hospital worker, told the union's Ontario division convention Saturday that province-wide bargaining will take place later this year "whether the Ontario Hospital Association (administrators) or Premier (William) Davis likes it or not."

"We will get one contract for all hospitals," said Miss Nicholson. "We will get this even if we have to sign 18 times, 18 same contract, with 10 hours, 1 or their groups."

The convention passed a resolution amending the constitution to allow multi-union bargaining, district group local bargaining and Ontario-wide bargaining.

South Vietnam Considering Refugees' Please

WASHINGTON (AP) — The new head of President Ford's interagency refugee task force says the South Vietnamese government is co-operating with the United Nations in negotiating about refugees who wish to return to their home country.

Julia Vadala Taft said in an interview the names of those who wish to return are being submitted to the UN high commissioner on refugees, who submits them to the new governments of Cambodia and South Vietnam.

"The receiving country has to say yes to each one before he is return," she said.

An estimated 1,000 refugees have indicated they want to return to their native countries. An estimated 130,000 refugees left South Vietnam and Cambodia.

Caught in Dam, Youth Pulled to Safety

CORBYVILLE — The Saturday rescue of a 15-year-old Belleville youth, trapped for seven hours in a dam on the Moira River owned by Corby Distilleries Ltd. in this village located just about two miles north of Belleville, has posed jurisdictional problems in the area of preventing another such occurrence.

Ontario Provincial Police at Belleville identified the youth as Louis Meloche of 182 William St. They said he was on a swimming trip with three Cassidine boys, Kevin Charles Labelle, his brother Jerry and David Chisholm, whose ages were unavailable.

Meloche was treated and released from Belleville General Hospital for minor injuries.

Capt. Bob Pearce of Quinte Rescue Squad in Thurlow Township, said the four boys were dropped off near the dam by a parent at about 11 a.m.

He said the boys decided to cross the river below the dam at about 2 p.m. and that three of them chose to swim a shorter while one remained behind to walk the railway and was sucked in and caught in a six-by-eight inch space between two logs and was unable to wrench himself free.

Pearce said Chisholm held Meloche's head above water while the rescue squad was alerted. Squad member Harvey Pulman arrived first, and dove in to relieve Chisholm.

The rest of the squad then arrived and while neighbors pitched in, Sta. Meeks of LaSalle Rescue and Diving in Belleville showed up to aid in extricating Meloche.

Pearce commended his squad is powerless to recommend or take action to secure the dam against such future situations. He pointed out the water flow falls under the Moira River Conservation Authority and is a private dam. It belongs to Corby Distillery.

A police spokesman said the OPP will investigate to determine if preventive action is necessary. A warning sign posted in place when the accident happened.

Body Found Floating in Trent

TRENTON — The body of an unidentified woman, described by police as in her 30's was taken from the Trent River today.

A post-mortem examination was to be held at Trenton Memorial Hospital.

Police say the body was discovered floating near the breakwall of the Canadian Tire Corp. store by an employee of the store about 8.30 a.m.

Police declined comment on the cause of death. However, they said the body had not been in the water long.

The woman was fully clad.

There were no immediate reports of any missing persons in the town, Belleville and Brighton provincial police also had no reports of missing persons, town police say.

Separate Religious Ceremonies Mark Landing of Mohawk Tribe

Traditional anniversary celebrations of the settlement of the Bay of Quinte Mohawks on this reserve was observed in two separate religious ceremonies Sunday.

As in past years, the customary public observance — which saw a parade and Christian services around the memorial cairn marking the historic events — was as usual the crowd attraction.

But a small band of Mohawks, dedicated to the ancient Iroquois religion — hailed the event with a sunrise ritual that sent drum beats over the Bay of Quinte.

The annual official cairn ceremony — celebrating the arrival of the Mohawks after their territorial expulsion as British allies after the American Revolution — followed long-established custom.

For the event the Mohawks had a distinguished churchman as a participant — Bishop Henry Hill of Kingston.

The Bishop's brief message about brotherhood was delivered against a muffled background of drums and chanting by the Iroquois traditionalists some distance from the cairn.

Sunday's traditional memorial ceremonies went without a hitch, as the Mohawks celebrated the original landing of their ancestors here in 1784. They were the earliest Bay of Quinte settlers and the first group to bring Christianity to the region.

The ceremonies hewed to long-established practice. Chief William Brant led a group of Mohawks in three canoes onto the shoreline near Deseronto in a symbolic re-enactment of the first landing.

At the memorial cairn the Mohawks' most prized possession — a Communion service presented by Queen Anne more than 200 years ago — was placed on a canoe as the centrepiece for the ceremonies. The gesture annually recollects the fact when the first Mohawks landed they had a Thanksgiving service on an upturned canoe.

Then the ceremonies, which drew the usual large, annual crowd of spectators, was preceded by a lone daybreak ritual on Forrester's Island in the Bay of Quinte by the group adhering to the old pre-Christian religion.

After it was over the small band of Mohawks moved to a private lawn near the cairn for what was called a "social" event of chanting and drum beating. One member of the group, Tom Maracle — known as Adoryn in Mohawk — said many do not know the true meaning of the landing Mohawks pledged their allegiance as allies of the British Queen Anne. After their "conversion" to Christianity they were termed "royal subjects".

"We are a sovereign nation — and allies of the Queen," he said.

"It's a shame they should have given away our sullen for a communion set," said Wes Bardyn, another member of the group.

In his sermon at the cairn, Bishop Hill said it was important that all men "keep track" of their ancestors "no matter who we are".

Auld Says Diploma Beginning

"A night education is an integral part of a person," says James Auld, president of Loyalist College, speaking at convocation and MVP for Loyalist, during the Loyalist College convocation here Saturday. "Education is a lifelong process."

He commented "the days are over when a higher education was universally accepted as a mark of superior attainment.

"You may have completed the full course of formal studies required to earn your diploma, but you have demonstrated nothing yet except your ability to attain a certain standard of work in an educational setting."

"You have earned nothing yet except the opportunity to compete in your chosen field," he emphasized.

Homecoming Planned

Loyalist College has problems but it also has people who are willing to help solve them, says Wilf Wilkinson, chairman of the college board of governors.

He told a college convocation audience here Saturday, "it is important our respective problems are recognized" and noted there are well-meaning people in the college who work together to resolve them.

Mr. Wilkinson, presiding chairman for the convocation, announced the college will hold a homecoming weekend this autumn. "We hope a more concrete alumni association will develop," he said.

Names Mixed Up

In a story about the first Canadian play in Belleville, in the last eight years to be produced by the Belleville Theatre Guild, on page two in Friday's edition of The Intelligencer, it was incorrectly reported that the name of a man hanged for murder in Picton in 1885-86 was Lester.

Lester was actually the name of the man who was murdered, according to Bill Culp, local playwright, who is writing a play titled "Murder Around and About Us 1885-

The Spirit of 1784

The Quinte Mohawks added a touch of reality Sunday at annual celebrations marking the arrival of their ancestors on the Bay of Quinte in 1784. The ceremonies were opened as members of the Tyendinaga reserve paddled canoes ashore near Deseronto.

'Keep in Touch,' Young Tells Loyalist Grads

While putting their students "through the hoops of learning," the teachers of Loyalist College have benefitted also, says Herb Young, college president.

He told graduating students at the college convocation here Saturday, "we try continuously to maintain sensitivity to your needs as individuals and as students".

"To be sure, we have to observe external standards set by the world in which you are going to operate," Mr. Young commented. But meanwhile, you have been teaching our teachers how to teach, teaching them sensitivity, teaching them awareness and influencing the whole system by which we operate.

"I want you to know that you have also conferred recognition on Loyalist College, and this you will continue to do, deliberately or unconsciously, for lots of years to come," he stated.

Mr. Young urged "the graduates to "keep in touch" with the college.

"If there were parts of your education here which were useless, let your teachers or me know," he said. "If there were parts which were particularly useful, let us know that also."

Mr. Young explained, "only you can gauge the value of what happened during those many hours in the classrooms against the professional demands which will be made on you after graduation."

He remarked the certificate or diploma each graduate receives "is often the subject of controversy".

One Dead, 4 Missing In Mishap

NAPANEE — A Napanee woman is dead, another is in serious condition at Kingston General Hospital and four other people are missing following a boating accident early Sunday on a one-mile wide channel between Amherst Island and the mainland several miles south of here.

Ontario Provincial Police at Napanee identified the dead woman today as Patricia Lochhead, 21 of RR 1, Napanee. Her body was found along the mainland shore at Conway, about five miles west of the Lennox Generating Station at Bath. Cause of death is established by drowning.

Police said the injured woman is Deborah Gibson, 23, of 171 Kent St, Napanee. She was found in the water off the Bayshore Rd, about three miles west of where drowned woman's body was recovered.

Searchers have recovered the seats and paddles of the 15-foot fibreglass boat in which they were riding but no sign of the crew had been found. Divers are searching the northeast tip of the island where the boaters embarked and an area off County Rd. 8 where their cars were parked.

The six people left the island at about 1:30 a.m. and police were notified at about 10:30 a.m. Divers from several OPP districts; an OPP helicopter from Trenton, OPP boats from Belleville and Kingston and CFB Trenton search and rescue teams are involved.

Bar Talk

Circus attendant John Barry, with the Garden Bros. Three-Ring Circus from Florida, chats through the cat bars early today with two Bengal tigers. The circus, being sponsored by the Belleville Jaycees, starts at 4:30 p.m. with a second show at 8 p.m. The circus is being held at the Belleville Memorial Arena.

High Rider

Dave Carey rides high on the seat of an 1860 Penny-Farthing bicycle as he demonstrates such riding technique to visitors at the Hastings County Museum in Belleville Sunday. The bicycle is part of a collection owned by Don Foster of Belleville. The event was a stationary engine display featuring turn-of-the-century engines in operating condition.

Couple Die In Blaze

CAMPBELLFORD — An elderly couple perished in a blaze in their home near here early Saturday.

The victims were Harold Brunton, 70 and his wife, Mabel, 68.

Scene of the fatal blaze was on the Proverness Road, about 10 miles north of here in Seymour Township.

Behind the Mask of Communism Will the New Vietnam Have Unity and Peace?

By JOHN D. HARBRON

Foreign Affairs Analyst

Thomson News Service

TORONTO — Mme. Dong Thi Thea is a quiet, convincing and she looks like an effigy of the magazine Philosophy in Hanoi, Democratic Republic of Vietnam, and a teacher there of political science.

During her Toronto visit we spoke in French, in spite of the fact the American press reported the Western influence "left" Vietnam with the helicopter loads of refugees last April, and

Ami we met in a waiting room filled, in one of similar cases in the People's Republic of China, in a large-ranging room with her representatives of the Marxist cause in Southeast Asia pouring tea poured from a large pot, water replenished in porcelain from the press.

Mme. Thea was one of them. The other three were Mme. Phan Thi Ai, "an official from the Vietnam Women's Union," also in Hanoi, and two male representatives of the new Provisional Revolutionary Government, now in power in Saigon.

They were Messrs. Vo Than Fuat and Do Chi Dung, both from the PRG Delegation in the Delta, S. E. Vietnam, at the Paris Conference in Paris.

The meeting place was the Friendship Hotel on Cowdray Avenue, a local headquarters of the Quaker Committee, which is deeply involved in bringing medical aid and other assistance to the North Vietnamese, even during the height of the American bombing raids on Hanoi.

I chose Mme. Thea to talk to, in spite of all the implications of being in the presence of two PRG officials, because in me the North Vietnamese experience with both a national and a Marxist revolution prepares strongly to both the Cuban and the Chinese revolutionary systems I have seen in the last 18 months.

The North Vietnamese revolution I have met in Mme. Thea was the first North Vietnamese intellectual I have met and what she had to say could be most important that off-the-cuff guilless pronouncements from the PRG representatives at the meeting.

Questions were general yet with implications of relative to national independence within a Marxist system and to find out from her if the North Vietnamese, in spite of much public declaration of friendships for Cuba, China and Russia, were Vietnamese first and foremost.

"We have kept our tradition and ideology to become the new Vietnamese women," said part from historic tradition and Marxist experience.

Mme. Thea and her companions from Hanoi had earlier told us of the number of women in senior ministry posts in Hanoi. The men from the PRG reminded us that foreign minister and former head of the PRG delegation to the Paris conferences on a Vietnam truce is a woman.

Mme. Thea smiled when I put into my question that women have had powerful political and cultural roles in Asian societies when I remember the two great Chinese empresses of history, Tse Hsi, who ruled as long as Victoria in the late 19th century, and Wu Hou, of the 8th century, who rose from concubine to ruler of China.

In asking this, you could scarcely imagine Mme. Thea being in this company. Rather it is the self-effacing nature of Asian female political personality must be downgraded on behalf of the larger cause, which blinds their humanity from us.

And yet what a paradox with these effective and gentle women of Vietnam. One wonders, after so much blood, carnage, human suffering and travail why anyone would want to fight the Vietnamese or why they should be placed by Western, less roles where they have destroyed each other.

I have commented in earlier columns about the ability of historic enemies, Vietnam and Khmer in Cambodia, the Annamese in the old Annam in absorbing the influences of great cultural cultures, Buddhist, Hindu, Chinese and now, I suspect, the Marxist.

Phat, in answer to my one question to him, said: "Reunification of North and South Vietnam is the deep aspiration of the Vietnamese people. Unification depends on the relations between south and north and the domestic situation. We believe the unification of Vietnam will be implemented soon."

A single Vietnamese nation, unattainable in the post-war era through either the Geneva Agreement of 1954 which split Vietnam in two, or through American Vietnamization policies, is attainable now through a Marxist ideological and political victory.

Yet none of the four visitors put it this way. What Mme. Thea emphasized was the "independence" of her nation, not like the Cuban, nor, as suggested by her also, not like the Chinese.

One hopes the conquering Vietnamese Communists, unlike Castro's revolutionaries who took over Havana in January, 1959, like the PRG and North Vietnamese who took Saigon in April, 1975,—will maintain a benign and non-violent new society.

Otherwise the sense of wrongdoing by the West, which these four representatives left with their Canadian friends and the press, will be remembered as a sad propaganda ploy.

Treadmill — Or Escape?

The escape syndrome means many things to many people — and none of them is easily attainable.

So you have been on the treadmill all these years and the thought occurs that things might be more pleasant . . . say in Tahiti.

Tahiti is indeed a romantic spot (Prime Minister Trudeau met his wife there), but like anywhere else the tourist might hit it on an off day, as it were, when mood and atmosphere and weather and citizens and visitors alike are not in complete harmony.

To go to Tahiti or anywhere else though, with any long-term prospects in view, or with the thought in mind that everything henceforth will be rosy, is erroneous. One man who went there wrote later that an individual must have something to do if only for his own satisfaction; the lotus-eating days of an earlier, romantic, time are over for most of us. Besides, if memory serves, there is a six-month limit on residency for casual visitors. In any event, the treadmill at home is difficult to escape. Those of us who know little else are aware that winding down is both desirable and pleasant, and yet the novelty wears off before long.

Some brave souls do drop everything and take off into the unknown country, such as the wagon train worthies who have been heading for Alberta. The trip has not been without its difficulties, but the new pioneers have been persevering just the same, and attracting a lot of attention along the way.

Wagonmaster Gordon Roberts spoke for all when he told one interviewer that they had "just got tired of the trials and tribulations of urban life." But again, what of the future for these folk? There is talk of homesteading by some and it will be interesting to see how they fare.

Escape for others can range from the comfort of a hobby — a sad outlet indeed — to the lotteries which have been growing in popularity in Canada. Of course they have their detractors, such as the Ottawa psychologist who has been quoted as saying lotteries are a "sleazy way for governments to raise money . . . that they play too on individual's economic worries and raise false hopes for quick riches.

What harm though in a little fling now and again? As it is, Canada has come late to the lottery game — it has long been the vogue from Italy to New Zealand — and the proceeds do benefit a lot of good causes. It is noted that a Trenton man won $10,000 in the first Wintario draw, and, human nature being what it is, the prospects of similar success — and escape — springs eternal among the rest of us.

Mystery Bureaucrat Raises Questions Among Members

OTTAWA (CP) — Michael Pitfield, the country's highest-ranking civil servant, has begun placing his own telephone calls in an attempt to set a more relaxed and informal tone among the people who work for him.

Mr. Pitfield, the 37-year-old clerk of the cabinet, now does his own dialing when he wants to speak to an underling. His secretary used to place the calls.

It is said that Mr. Pitfield, a friend of Prime Minister Trudeau, is anxious to dispel the image of Ottawa's that he has among other civil servants.

But this does not mean he will be any more accessible to opposition MPs who have tried unsuccessfully to have him answer questions in cabinet and privy council spending estimates. Mr. Trudeau is determined to maintain the long-standing practice of shielding the cabinet clerk from direct questioning by MPs.

Mr. Pitfield is the only civil servant to sit in on all secret cabinet meetings.

Plans are taking shape for the 86th birthday celebration planned in Saskatoon next fall for former prime minister John Diefenbaker.

The celebrations will include a sod-turning for the Diefenbaker Library at the University of Saskatchewan, a mammoth banquet and an evening of various displays recalling Diefenbaker's life.

Mr. Diefenbaker was born Sept. 18, 1895.

Apparently wives of MPs and senators are not the only ones nowadays allowed into the ladies' lounge near the entrance to the Parliamentary Restaurant.

The sign outside the lounge now reads: Parliamentary Women. It used to read: Parliamentary Wives.

Prime Minister Trudeau said Thursday that about one-half his staff of 90 is needed to handle his correspondence.

"I am talking about, in a slow year, 112,000 letters. That is more than 300 letters a day and I believe that, if not all of them, the overwhelming majority are dealt with and dealt well, he said.

"That is half the reason for the size of the prime minister's office. I believe that in the days of previous prime ministers correspondence was considerably better that and the habit of communication between citizens and their prime ministers had not developed to the same extent."

Angola Factions at Odds

By KEVIN DOYLE

The Canadian Press

An escalating wave of street shootouts, murders, riots and bloody military attacks are moving the emerging Portuguese African colony of Angola dangerously close to outright civil war.

A number of knowledgeable observers are predicting the situation will deteriorate fairly quickly into something resembling the war-torn situation in the Congo in the early 1960s.

And, as happened in the Congo—now Zaire—there is continuing speculation in Angola that the Soviet Union and the United Nations may be asked to intervene in Angola to restore order, perhaps through the use of a peacekeeping force.

The new Portuguese commitment to Angola, which has been promised full independence on November 11, is caught between the extreme left wing and the moderate left in Portugal's governing Armed Forces movement and threatens to isolate other moderate groups as well.

The struggle within Angola, which has claimed well over 1,000 lives over the last several months, results from bitter divisions among the three major political groupings there which were previously guerrilla armies fighting against the Portuguese colonial regime.

One of the elements of these is the Popular Movement for the Liberation of Angola (MPLA), led by a poet, Agostinho Neto, and supported by the extreme left in the Portuguese government and armed forces.

Its bitterest rival is the National Front for the Liberation of Angola (FNLA), which has the support of the Portuguese and is being led by Holden Roberto.

The third and most recent grouping is the National Union for the Total Liberation of Angola- (UNITA), led by Jonas Savimbi, who was a lieutenant of Roberto's.

The FNLA has remained fairly removed from the conflict so far but its efforts to recruit in Portuguese Angola, unlike the other two parties have shown no signs of slackening.

Meanwhile, the Soviets have been a factor in the past year into the Angolan capital of Luanda and there are reports there of them building up the army of Neto's MPLA. Most observers believe these arms are destined for use by the MPLA.

The MPLA and the Portuguese Communists now accuse the United States of the flow of shipping arms to the FNLA, which is also backed by Chinese aid and weapons.

The MPLA denies it has been arms but there is little doubt a great deal of support for the FNLA has come from Zaire. Zaire's President Mobutu has sent 1,200 Zairean soldiers to Angola already and the FNLA claims fighting against the Front come colonial regime.

Some of the support of these is the Popular Movement for the Liberation of Angola (MPLA), led by a poet, Agostinho Neto, and supported by the extreme left in the Portuguese government and armed forces.

Women in Politics

In this International Women's Year, municipalities will point with pride to the fact they happen to have a female mayor, which Belleville has, and such distaff dignitaries as Ontario's Lieutenant-Governor Pauline McGibbon will be given more than the usual share of attention.

But women in western world politics are still few and far between. How many female members of Parliament can you name besides Kingston's Flora MacDonald?

By contrast, look at West Germany, where Fran Annemarie Renger is Madam Speaker, President of the Bundestag, and Vice-President Lieslotte Funke, Health Minister Katharina Focke, and parliamentary Secretary of State Marie Schlei are key figures in Bonn.

One of the German Federal Republic's eight supreme court judges is also a woman, 63-year-old Wiltraut Rupp-von Brunneck.

And the leader of the country's often extremist SPD youth movement is Heidemarie Wieczorek-Zeul.

This is more than tokenism. In fact, Fran Renger is one of the most vocal opponents of a proposed constitutional amendment that would provide that a given proportion of West German federal and state parliaments should consist of women members.

Her feelings on women's liberation run along the same lines as those of Ann Scanlan, Belleville's first woman bus driver.

When Ms. Scanlan was approached about being the subject of an Intelligencer feature, she noted: "When men drive buses nobody writes stories. Women are supposed to be equal now so there is no story."

Someday she may be right.

July Vote a Possibility at least

By DON O'HEARN

Queen's Park Bureau

Thomson News Service

TORONTO — Now that the possibility of an election is out of the way there has been some talk, as mentioned here the other day, of a possible July vote, on either July 3 or July 10.

This would seem to be pretty fanciful, but it is strong enough to warrant looking at some of the considerations.

All there is the question that unofficially been taken in Ontario.

The original reason for this was that farmers were busy on the land during the summer months and weren't available to travel.

Then as we switched to an urban society summer vacation became the big problem; again interfering with party workers.

The consequence has been that there have been only two summer votes in the province's history: the original vote in 1867 and that of 1943, both held in August.

Something that the thinking of them being bad is right is the fact that the '43 election had the lowest voter turn-out in history, only 55 per cent.

Then there are other anti factors such as that it would probably ought to be into bad labor and unemployment trouble this summer.

Against this, however, there are some reasons why Premier Davis might decide to gamble and try a summer vote.

One is that he is at an apparent crest now and a good many of the party people feel he should go (Though others definitely don't want him to).

Then if an election were called reasonably early in July the leader, after all the campaign could be fought in June and the shortness of workers vacation might not be so significant.

One also can wonder whether it really will be able to improve his standing through the summer months.

It is a time of little political interest, the house won't be in session, and generally the opportunities for the government to make yards are not plentiful.

But against this he could be going into a bad climate in the fall.

There is the prospect of bad teacher problems at time of school opening, a dramatic confrontation with the public employees and other anti-government sentiment.

Of course, the prospect of these is the Popular Movement for the Liberation of Angola (MPLA), led by a poet, Agostinho Neto, and supported by the extreme left in the Portuguese government and armed forces.

Motorists who find tickets on their cars for overtime parking will no longer have the complaint that the meter wasn't working when they call at the police station or appear in magistrate's court. In order to remove all doubt as to the operating efficiency of the parking meters, in cases where overtime parking is noted, police have been instructed to drop a penny in the slot before filling out the parking ticket.

Belleville and district motorists greeted with approval the announcement from Ottawa that starting May 24, for instead of three gallons of gasoline would be permitted on each gasoline coupon. Cornwall Standard Freeholder

Cornwall and district received some excellent news a few days ago when it was announced that the Ontario government had committed $4,233,000 for the stage of expansion at the local campus of St. Lawrence College of Applied Arts.

The complex will include construction of an ultra-modern theatre, library, classrooms, a student lounge, cafeteria and related facilities. It will be the first phase of a long-range phase development designed in time to provide Cornwall and District with degree-granting courses, through the co-operation with the University of Ottawa, as well as technical and technological training.

Diamonds Remain a Good Buy But Dealing Can Be Tricky

By VINCENT EGAN

Business and Consumer Affairs Analyst

Thomson News Service

"Diamonds are a girl's best friend," proclaimed the Anita Loos character, Lorelei Lee, in Gentlemen Prefer Blondes.

Today, a half-century later, diamonds and other gems are just as highly regarded by astute investors.

The experts don't suggest that you sell your stock-and-bond portfolio and switch into precious stones. But an investment of 10 to 20 per cent of one's portfolio could be a good hedge against inflation.

But be warned: Dealing in diamonds is even trickier than trading other commodities.

For one thing, prices are not determined by supply and demand in the ordinary sense, since South Africa's Deliberers Consolidated virtually controls the world market.

Second of all, you'll pay a high mark-up when you buy diamonds, and you might have trouble in obtaining a realistic bid if you should decide to sell.

That tends to rule out an overnight killing in the gem market. Diamonds may not literally be forever, but their attraction is the long-term investor rather than the short-term trader.

That's a point in their favor, according to people who follow the market in gems. Diamonds are not subject to the sharp ups and downs that characterize the market in gold bullion.

And while the tight grip of Deliberers may be repugnant to free-enterprisers, it has resulted in remarkable price stability. The cartel has steadily maintained the value of gems against fluctuating currencies.

(That's why diamonds are a favorite investment of members of another cartel, the Middle East oil producers—who prefer not to hold their wealth in depreciating dollars.)

In other words, a top-quality diamond has approximately the same purchasing power today as it had in 1962, and will purchase roughly the same in 1985 if Deliberers hold any thing to say about it.

But there is no return on an investment in precious stones or precious metals. Interest or dividends, the holder must pay the continuing costs of safe-keeping and insurance.

The decision whether to invest in precious stones, in the end, comes down to your assessment of where the world's economy is headed.

If you expect it to pull out of the current recession and start growing again, you would probably regard diamonds, gold and silver as single investments.

But if you side with those who say the old order is crumbling and that the future holds still greater chaos and run-away inflation, then you might switch into diamonds—or other gem stones such as emeralds, rubies, sapphires and topaz.

People have traditionally turned to these in times of stress as an easily portable and concealable store of value that can readily be converted into cash.

If that's your choice, gem stones are a better investment than precious half-measures. Take the time to study the market, learn the ins and outs of colored gems, develop a feeling for price comparisons, so that you can recognize a buy at the peak.

Kente Principal Resigns In Administration Conflict

AMELIASBURG — Eugene Bright, principal of Kente Public School, Amelias-burgh, is resigning.

A Prince Edward County Board of Education press release states that due to the tensions created during the recent deliberations concerning the running of Kente Public School, Mr. Bright feels that definite action now is imperative and that he is personally withdrawing as principal effective August 31, 1975.

Mr. Bright, says the release feels that this action is in the best interest of the students and staff of the school system.

The release says that both the board and Mr. Bright regret the unfortunate situation.

Meanwhile, the Concerned Parents Committee, spearheaded by Redneersville resident David Shoots, has issued its first formal press release rebutting the decision.

"We are soliciting the support of all the citizens of Prince Edward County who are vitally interested in the public education of children," Mr. Shoots told the Intelligencer.

The press release states that it "questions the ability of the board" and that the committee is "firmly resolved" to take all lawful steps necessary to remove those members of the Board of Education, who in their judgement, do not have the best interests of the county's children at heart, and to replace them with persons who do.

The press release stated also that the ad hoc committee was confident that, after given all evidence, the Board of Education would have reversed its decision of March 10.

In that decision the board said it had offered Mr. Bright a transfer to another school as a teacher. The board cited administration problems as a main factor in its decision.

Bird Observatory Ready Next Month

PRINCE EDWARD POINT — Renovations to the defunct lighthouse at Prince Edward Point, soon to be the Prince Edward Point Observatory, expect to be completed by June, says Dr. Blaski Weir of the Kingston Field Naturalists.

The naturalist group acquired a five-year lease on the structure this spring and will use the building as a base for the club's field studies at the point. Dr. Weir said Friday that the club is now in the process of acquiring mist nets for bird banding operations.

The point, situated at the south-eastern tip of South Marysburgh Township in Prince Edward Point is a famous focal point during the spring and fall bird migrations. Observations there include species never before recorded in Ontario. In addition, startling concentrations of birds show up at the point during migration. Mr. Weir said that 13 species were tallied on May 18 during the peak of the migration. Local naturalists say that 108 species in one day is considered outstanding at most migration points.

The museum, one of five in Prince Edward County, is acquiring new displays every years, says curator Harry Bisset. One of the more outstanding additions to this year's displays is a collection of statue replicas of horses and oxen, valued at nearly $3,000 loaned to the museum by John Black, a former Belleville butcher. The display includes hand-made wagons and carts, depicting early days in the Quinte area.

Also new this year is a model of the warship, Vasa, pride of the Swedish fleet which set sail in 1628, capsizing and sinking in 110 feet of water the same day. Donated by Robert Baker of Mountain View, the replica took three years to construct.

The historic log house now is set up as a weaver's cottage with wool winders, wool carders and a flax spinning wheel included in its display.

Books By And About Women

MRS. G. B. S.
by Janet Dunbar

When Charlotte Frances Payne-Townshend and George Bernard Shaw were married at the Strand Registry Office in June 1898, everyone — including the bride and groom — was taken by surprise. G. B. S. was forty-two and a philander; Charlotte six months younger, seemingly a confirmed spinster.

This is an affectionate biography of a woman who would perhaps rate little attention but for her marriage to a famous playwright. Mrs. Dunbar spent many hours with the letters and papers left by Mrs. Shaw, and from them we get a picture of a master propagandist, her husband.

Was the marriage a success? Their friends in later life thought them an ideal pair, devoted to each other, and a supreme example of married companionship on the highest plane.

This book is available in Corby Library.

Property Reform Affects Women

Barbara Cass and Betty Price talk to lawyer Joan Heath following the Family Property Law film, sponsored by the Anglican Church Women of the Diocese of Toronto, and endorsed by the city of Belleville, village of Stirling, local boards of education and several clubs and organizations, as well as provincial and federal members of parliament from that area.

"Anything can happen if women wait it," said Joan Heath, a lawyer from Guelph, answering questions after the showing of the family property Law film at Centennial Secondary School, Saturday.

She was encouraging individuals and organizations, who have an interest in married property reform legislation, to make their ideas known to the government.

Giving women sufficient information to make up their minds about where they stand in relation to the potential reform bill, the film is being distributed throughout the province by the office of the Attorney General.

A panel, moderated by television commentator Helen Hutchison in the film discusses her case histories, from the point of view of current law. Then it looks at what changes would occur once the reform legislation is passed.

Discussing the cases were lawyers Lee Ferrier and Marie Corbett, and Judge George Thompson. They examined the problems that occur when marriages end through divorce or death, when spouses have no will or contract on which to base division of property.

Under existing laws, widows and divorcees can fare very badly unless have proof that they have helped to pay for the house ( or land) they lived in with their husbands. Work ( the type of labor a farm wife does, for example) does not "count" in the courts as an equal share in the property unless there is also money involved.

Widows are entitled to their husbands' pensions, but many farmers, who have not had to pay into the Canadian Pension Plan, leave their widows with no income, and often with little else than their dower rights. Ms. Heath suggested that women draw up wills with their husbands, and have these wills revised every five or six years.

Although the reform will not be retroactive, when and if the legislation becomes law, couples may "opt in" by filing their intention. The new law will regard all property acquired after marriage as jointly owned, so that the family home and property will belong as much to the wife as to the husband, and sale cannot take place without mutual consent.

Ms. Heath recommended that women obtain the currently available literature about the reforms being discussed — papers are available on Family Property by the Law Reform Commission — and then make their opinions known to the government by means of briefs and letters, while there is still time before the laws are finalized.

"You have to remember that the provincial legislature is mainly men, and this is going to keep on moving very slowly unless we push," she said.

He's Insulted by VD Suggestion

Dear Ann Landers: Please print this in the interest of the health of your millions of readers.

I am not a trump. I'm a woman in my late twenties, single, decent, I hold an excellent job, have a good relationship with three men in the past two years. I do work with my friends with whom I slept several days ago. Two of them I'm pretty sure, I'm fairly sure I'm not. I'm not tested immediately. I finished three days later in the emergency room of a county hospital and was tough. I had it.

The point in writing: I phoned another friend with whom I'd been intimate and told him I'd contracted a venereal disease. I shocked that I should even consider the possibility that I'd might have a social disease. He said he had no intention of going the trouble he would to inform the four or five girls with whom he was currently sleeping.

I am angered that a person would have so little concern for himself and others. I am angered that my well-paid grocery boy'll never give a VD test or even a patient requests it. I am angered by parents who teach their children to discuss VD with their children.

Ann, I'm sure that someone told me I had been exposed. I'm grateful to the people in the emergency room where I was tested and treated. They made several suggestions but urged me to inform my friend who might also be infected. I am grateful for places like Planned Parenthood, where VD tests are made on every woman who comes in for an exam. I am grateful I had someone to help me over the bad moments and assure me I was basically the same person I was before I got diseased so many people know about, but never think could happen to them.

Thanks for letting me sound off.—Older And Wiser

Dear O. and W.: Thanks for sounding off. I hope you prompt the treat of some readers who have the same attitude as your friend who was "humbled."

Dear Ann Landers: Our son's a very handsome, and could have the pick of the town. Greg showed in last night but he has bought an engagement ring for the girl he plans to marry in August.

We have met her, Ann, and she is very nice.

But the girl is handicapped — has only one leg. She doesn't even wear an artificial limb — says she prefers crutches.

I have tried to make Greg see that the girl will be a burden to him throughout life. If anything happens to her other leg she'll be helpless. If they have a family, he will have double responsibilities.

It makes me sick when I think of all the beautiful, healthy girls my son could have picked. Please, Ann, say something to help him see the light.—Mom

Dear Mom: He sees the light. YOU'RE the one who is stumbling around in the darkness. You should be pleased and proud of your son's mature judgment. Many young men would not have chosen this girl because of her physical handicap. Greg was able to base his choice on qualities far more important and durable than appearance or incomes. Please give him my heartiest congratulations.

CONFIDENTIAL to Should I Do It Or Not?: If it's important to you, go ahead. But it's because you want to be more attractive to women, forget it. You'd be better off, in terms of time, money and comfort, to find a dame who likes bald-headed men.

'Markings'—Record of Spirituality

The diary of Dag Hammarskjold, which he called "Markings", was discovered in his home in New York after his death. He called it a "record of White Book concerning my negotiations with myself and God."

"Before Then, Father, in righteousness and humility, With Dee, brother, in silence and courage,

In Thee, Spirit, in stillness,

Thine, for Thy will is my destiny.

Destined, for my destiny is to be used and used up

According to Thy will."—Dag Hammarskjold

This was written in an undated letter to the Swedish Under-Secretary of Foreign Affairs. Dag Hammarskjold was a very complex personality, one of the deeply religious men of his age.

Dear Doris: I am the mother of three sons. And the problem is girls. If the parents really knew what kind of language their daughters use in their letters to my son! The letters are all signed and in very vulgar words. These are girls that my son has never even dated!

We are also hassled by midnight telephone calls. My son is normal, interested in girls and very, but he does not want them forced upon him.

Housewives Less Happy Than Working Women

PARIS (Reuter) — Half of France's stay-at-home housewives are happier of women who go out to work. They feel working women have more successful marriages, more financial freedom and a wider circle of friends.

These are the findings of the weekly magazine Elle in a giant poll on women's working conditions that will give Francoise Giroud, France's first secretary of state for women's affairs, plenty of food for thought in the struggle to liberate her sex.

Housework takes up an average of more than nine hours a day and only one French husband in 10 is prepared to give a hand with the washing and cooking, the survey found.

The poll, conducted by 750 interviewers across France, has been published as a 50-page book under the title, The Great Adventure of Work for Women.

But for those stuck at home it's far from a great adventure.

Elle said: "One in two housewives confessed to envying those who worked because they had more contacts with the world, greater financial independence, and better relations with their husbands.

"Many women long to work after the age of 40 (they feel) both available for work and frustrated at the same time. Many find the obstacles are insurmountable. They feel they will be rejected for being too old or having too little training."

Another common grumble was that "the moment she stays home her little feeling of guilt because she thinks she is useless." Some men tended to be scornful of them.

However, only the woman landed in the house in the paradise she had expected.

Elle noted: "In every field of activity, relegated more often than men to jobs with little responsibility and therefore little pay. Thesalarygap little responsibility and therefore little pay The salary gap between the two is 23 per cent on average."

This has constant complaint of Mme. Giroud who said the French woman is treated like a second-class citizen—she got the vote only after the Second World War—but supplies one in three members of the country's work force.

The poll shows many complaints of job insecurity. Men are always given preference especially when the employment market is tight," Elle said.

"Women furiously contest claims that their absenteism is higher than men especially when you take into account absenteism the day after a soccer match or the opening of the hunting season."

The female farmer is content with her lot and finds working with her husband improves their relationship. But 30 per cent confessed they never had time for a holiday.

What do the men think?

The poll showed that FrWchmen like their women to work, but only because it helps the family budget.

Guerrillas Release Girl with Demands

DAR ES SALAAM (AP) — The United States and Tanzania of ficials said Monday they had been asked to release guerrillas holding two American women and a woman Kidnapped a week ago.

Social Security Commissioner Frank Carlucci and Tanzanian Foreign Minister Chief Kibaki Tabu Carter were delivered to Chief Kibaki by Ambassador Richard Sims, 50, of Ann Arbor, Mich., who had been the diplomat assigned to contact the Lake Tanganyika in western Tanzania.

Contents of the letters were not immediately disclosed, but officials said they presumably set conditions for the release of the other captives, Carrie Lane Jones, 31, of Albertville, Calif., Kenneth Stephen Smith, 22, of Garden Grove, Calif., and Gunilla von Hamilton Bergman, of the Netherlands.

The three Americans, all Stanford University students, and Miss Bergman were seized last Monday by about 40 armed guerrillas who reportedly belonged to members of the Popular Revolutionary party in Zaire, a Marxist group opposed to President Mobutu Sese Seko.

The guerrillas took the captives across Lake Tanganyika to the Zaire side.

Sims said Friday he had met with Miss Jones and friends and relatives from the Kidnapped Stanford Dar es Salaam, but "learned as little as well as could be expected. I don't want to say any more because I don't want to upset the lives of the others."

Other diplomats said the reported the other three were in good condition. She said several guerrillas brought her back across the lake Saturday night and left her on the shore about a mile from Kigoma about 1 a.m. She walked into Kigoma and notified the Tanzanian police.

The guerrillas crossed the lake in a 20-foot motorboat last Monday night and raided the Gombe Stream research station 14 miles north of Kigoma where British anthropologist Jane Goodall directs a program of study into the behavior of chimpanzees and baboons.

Most of the students' cabins were high in the hills and hidden by the foliage, and they escaped into the bush. Miss Goodall also escaped.

Man Fired by Davis Named PC Candidate

ENGLEHART, Ont. (CP) — Edward Havrot, fired last week as chairman of the Ontario Northland Transportation Commission, was unopposed Sunday for the Progressive Conservative nomination in Timiskaming for the next provincial election.

A motion to postpone the nomination meeting for a month was defeated. Mr. Havrot was fired last week by Premier William Davis following published reports in which Mr. Havrot made derogatory remarks about Indians in connection with a government project in the Maple Mountain area of Northern Ontario.

"I've had literally hundreds of telephone calls and telegrams in the past week from all across the country," he said to the nearly 300 supporters. "I've had phone calls from Bill Davis's riding with people saying we wish we could live in your riding because we want to vote for you.

In an angry nomination speech, he accused the Toronto Globe and Mail of "yellow journalism" and "fanning the fires of racism."

He said if his remarks regarding Indians had been made in a prepaid speech on television or radio, and not over the telephone, "I could be accused of being a racist, but to use a telephone conversation is the lowest form of cheap journalism."

He accused Derek Hodgson, Globe and Mail reporter, of trying "deliberately making the slight-of-hand remarks over to Queen's Park."

Questioning why a woman on his staff was in Ireland, he said they should become part of the Canadian Indian and culture by complaining to the Canadian academy the Indian and the rest of the people."

Mr. Havrot said he would like to see a tribunal established that would hold news reporters responsible for their actions and provide those "destroyed" a chance to equal justice.

"I think reporters should sit down and ask that with people before they criticize them. A politician now has no recourse if he is attacked in the press."

Havrot Backed

ENGLEHART, Ont. (CP) — An Ontario cabinet minister said Sunday that Edward Havrot, unbridled composed to run for the Progressive Conservatives in Timiskaming riding in the next provincial election, has the support of the Conservative party.

Rene Brunelle, minister of municipal affairs and social services, told the nomination meeting that the party wants "to ensure that Timiskaming remains with the government. . ."

It's No Secret, Boris, You're All Invited

We said the United Soviet Socialist Republic (that's what we mean by USSR) but we don't know all there is to know about Boris.

Like any good students of sports, Boris Kulagin, Alan Turner and company have had ample time to reach the point where they figure they've learned it.

BORIS KULAGIN

That's why the USSR has requested permission to send a delegation to the Ontario Hockey Association School of Officiating.

Tom O'Hanlon operating director Gary Green is helping out, right now, offer the USSR a chance from the USSR in which series hockey officials allowed to attend the sessions here?

Apparently the Soviets had the idea in mind when they made to keep most of the proceedings in Russian language.

"No chance of that," advised Green.

Publisher The Herkey News is popular in the USSR, and it was in an issue of that that Kulagin learned of the Soviets first learned of the symposium.

"They don't want to come cause they have not be part of a point," explains Green. "They want to send representatives who will sit in on discussions and lectures their knowledge of the game.

"It will be an excellent opportunity for the hockey people to learn from our officials. The NHL officials to exchange ideas on a subject of great importance to both groups.

Next thing we know, there'll be a Russian Hockey Pool.

Tom O'Hanlon saying school and symposium are booked solid.

And that will be fine with me.

SLICES — Auto racing fans attending Ike Lobatt's Blue Zone Motorcycle Grand Prix, June 13, 14, 15, may be seeing the start of one of the most successful auto racing series ever staged in North America. The Formula 2000 race, the feature event of the weekend, is one of a series of races to be held in Canada and the United States.

Following years of negotiations, two of the best racing bodies in North American — motorsport, the United States Auto Club and the Sports Car Club of America have joined forces to stage the series along with the Canadian Automobile Federation.

Jim Chapman, a crack race driver from Toronto, is the driving force behind the world's leading road racers.

Mr. Chapman, who is also president of the Canadian Automobile Federation, is a crack driver himself.

Sunday, Ted Walls was the starter. Walls: proved his reverence on the mound, pitching 18 and one-third innings before being relieved by Jim Chase in the 11th.

It was a tight defensive game, with the pitchers and the infield stealing the show. Those said time again, Walls and Hardisty, Walls and Chase, Chase and Hardisty — lots of jams or let their infields help out.

One good thing about the Bulls, Hardisty said, was that Sunday's infield looks like the team's best. Bulls usually played first: Meagher, second; Goodfellow short and Wayne McTaggart, third.

Yesterday, singles in the 11th brought in Chase who gave up a single and a walk to Jim Thompson, and two more runs on a single by Lyle Herbert. He, Jim and Chase all losing by striking out the last two batters.

The Macs threatened in the 11th. Bulls-Macs pulled off after two minutes put runners on first and second. Goodfellow ended the rally, tossing a winning pitcher Wally Dick.

SICKS: So the Belleville MacDonald's are winless in their first seven starts. They were who wouldn't come close in the first year. They're just not getting that lucky.

Jim Chase made his first appearance with the club Saturday, pitching two innings. Giving up two hits and a walk, but no runs.

Bulls — Goodfellow are hitting well over the "300" mark after the Bulls' first game.

Fans may have seen Bob Ethier's last performance at a McDonald's. Ethier pitched on Saturday to fill a brewing roster, but didn't show on Sunday. It looks as though Bob will remain in the Quinte Football League with Brewed and Robert.

Flyers 'Hound' and 'Hammer' Dull Sabres Into Submission

Bob Kelly – The Hound

Dave Schultz – The Hammer

PHILADELPHIA (CP) — Dave Schultz and Bob Kelly switched targets Sunday afternoon and their latest victim regretted the move.

Schultz scored two goals and Kelly one as Philadelphia Flyers whipped Buffalo Sabres 3-1 to take a 3-2 lead in the best-of-seven Stanley Cup final, the first ever between expansion teams.

Schultz and Kelly, noted for their aggressive tactics against opposing forwards, switched to offence and goaltender Gerry Desjardins of the Sabres was caught in the middle.

The Flyers were also backed by Bernie Parent's solid goaltending and outstanding play from defencemen Jim Watson, rookie Larry Goodenough, Andre Dupont, Joe Watson and Ted Harris.

It was the reverse for the Sabres who received shaky goaltending early in the game and miserable checking performances from their forwards and defence.

A win in the sixth game of the National Hockey League series, scheduled for Tuesday night in Buffalo, will give the Flyers their second Stanley Cup in a row. If the Sabres win, the teams will return here for the seventh game Thursday night.

Schultz scored his first goal of the playoffs at 2:12 of the first period. The shot caught Desjardins off guard and he admitted to he going the wrong way. Schultz got his second goal on a breakaway midway through the second period.

"He (Desjardins) thought I was going to pass it across to Don Saleski, so he started moving and he was off-balance," I guess," said Schultz, who had nine regular-season goals while setting a record for most penalty minutes, 472.

Gary Dornhoefer and Reg Leach, who got his eighth goal of the playoffs on a power play in the third period, completed Philadelphia's scoring before 17,077 fans. Don Luce scored for the Sabres at 14:02 of the third period.

Coach Fred Shero of the Flyers used five players on his third line—Terry Crisp, Orest Kindrachuk, Saleski, Kerby and Schultz—and they all turned in strong performances.

Parent didn't have many tough saves to make, but was while stopping 27 shots. Desjardins was shaky in the first period but rebounded and kept the score from mounting in the third period.

Desjardins also blocked Schultz from scoring in the third period with the Philadelphia left winger sprawled in front of the goal.

The Sabres played most of the second and third periods without Danny Gare, who injured his knee in the first period. Coach Floyd Smith said he expected the Schoenfeld, the team captain, will return for the fifth game.

The best kept the Sabres unless at the Spectrum since they joined the league five years ago. They are 0-12 in Philadelphia, counting league and playoff games.

"We've got no complaints," said Buffalo coach Floyd Smith. "we just didn't play that well. We played really well at team play was concerned in the first period and then they got a couple goals.

"The first one was lucky, it hit Don Saleski's stick and bounced in. The second: I don't think he saw it or he must have thought it was going to miss the net. And that's the ball game."

Two Big Goals? He'll Take Win

PHILADELPHIA (CP) There was a huge sign hanging at one end of the Philadelphia Spectrum Sunday afternoon which read: "Ha who lives by the Sabres dies by The Hammer."

Dave (The Hammer) Schultz of Philadelphia Flyers dealt left Buffalo Sabres a 3-1 beat-winning the Stanley Cup but dodged them a bit at scoring two goals in the Flyers' 5-1 victory.

The win gave the Flyers a 3-2 lead in the best-of-seven National Hockey League championship series going into the sixth game Tuesday at Buffalo.

"I ain' wa' a goal scorer," Schultz said. "I played just as well in other games and maybe not scored. I don't care if I score as long as we win."

"What's the an of scoring the 10th goal if you're up 10-1? I had a lot of goals like that during the season.

"The only good thing about the two goals is that it was a big game and it was tight. What did I do? I got a couple of lucky goals." I went up and down but there were a lot of guys who worked a lot harder.

"If we'd lost, they wouldn't be anything."

Schultz, noted more for setting penalty records than for scoring, has never spent time far against the Sabres, with only 11 penalty minutes in five games. He received a five-minute major for a wrestling match with Buffalo's Jim Schoenfeld in Thursday's game.

"I'm not going to go out there and pick a fight for no reason," he said. "If they were playing dirty and some guy was trying to give it to us, then I'd go out there and go after him. I'm not going to go after a guy if he wants to play hockey.

Schultz has scored a goal since March 29. His first goal of the playoffs came at 2:12 of the period aeplanod to go off goalie Gerry Desjardins' body and into the net.

"He thought I was going to pass it across," Schultz said. "He started moving. He was off balance and it hit his stick or something and it went up in him. I don't know how it went in."

Desjardins looked weak on that goal as well as on the second scored by Gary Dorshoefer just more than nine minutes later.

"Desjardins just had an' bad night," said Sabres general manager Punch Imlach. "Everybody has a bad night.

"Maybe Bernie's turn might be next Thursday," he said in reference to Bernie Parent, goalie Parent and the possibility of a seventh game back here on Thursday.

"Their first goal was a lucky one," said Sabres coach Floyd Smith. "On the second one, I think he (Desjardins) thought it was going to miss the net."

When asked why the Sabres performed so poorly in Philadelphia, Smith said: "How come the Flyers didn't play well in Buffalo? We can't win here if we don't score goals. Parent plays well against us in this building.

"When the score was 6-0 and 7-0, he made some big saves for them. I didn't think we played that badly. I hope we play the same way in the first period against Philadelphia Tuesday night as we did today. We should do better."

Smith said that Schoenfeld had recovered after stopping a puck in the groin area in the second period but the coach wouldn't say whether his team captain was c. definite starter for Tuesday's sixth game.

The 25-year-old Long Beach State athlete had the bar raised to 7-7, half an inch over the record set in 1975 at Munich but knocked the bar down with his back on all three attempts.

Eddie Shack Prefers To Stay in Toronto

ST. STEPHEN, N.B. (CP) — Eddie Shack, who rode the Toronto Maple Leafs' bench most of the past season, says he'd like to play for Toronto Toros of the rival World Hockey Association during the 1978-79 season.

Shack becomes a free agent June 1.

"I don't want to leave Toronto," he said in an interview here Saturday. "A move would mean moving my family again, and I don't want to do that. My business interests are in Toronto.

Shack scored two goals for the Leafs, although he spent most of the time on the bench.

"After a while, Kelly (coach Red Kelly) didn't even invite me to the team meetings," Shack said.

Shack, was here attending a sports celebrities dinner along with Danny Grant of Detroit Red Wings, Buster Harvey of Atlanta Flames and former boxer Yvon Durelle of Bale Sainte Anne, N.B.

Green Gaels Winners

OSHAWA Ont. (CP)—Oshawa Green Gaels won a 17-7 victory over Bramalea Excelsiors in Ontario Lacrosse Association Junior A play Sunday.

Paul MacDonald, Dave Fitchett and Jeff Mason each got two goals. Single-goal scorers included Jim Greenwood, Dwight Morgan, Dean Spence, Kevin Laing, Stah Cockerton, Scott MacLean, Mark Kashat and Rich Barrowclough.

Ken Webster scored three goals for the Excelsiors with Bob Burke getting two. Single goals went to Wayne Sterritt and Brian McDonald.

Bramalea took a 4-3 first-period lead but the Gaels took over in the second period, taking a 10-5 lead.

LAUDA TAKES LEAD

MARCEL DIONNE

Dionne Flirting With WHA Offer

TORONTO (CP) — The Sporting Sun says Marcel Dionne of Detroit Red Wings will meet with Edmonton Oilers officials today and is ready to sign a contract with the World Hockey Association team.

The paper said Dionne, one of the top centres in the National Hockey League, was accompanied by his legal adviser, Alan Eagleson. The Sun said Eagleson reiterated his earlier stand that the NHL players association will have to sue the NHL because of its "compensation rule."

"It is obvious the actions by Detroit Red Wings will result in a lawsuit and the history of the Dionne case will be the reason," the paper quoted Eagleson as saying.

"I negotiated with three NHL clubs who were interested in Dionne now that he becomes a free agent June 1. Naturally, they said it was subject to a deal they can make with Detroit because of the existing compensation rule."

When asked if the trip to Edmonton was just a tease, Eagleson replied: "Not at all."

"It's true Marcel wanted to remain in the NHL," the Sun quoted Eagleson as saying. "But now that he's been prevented from making a living because of the Detroit compensation demand, he's ready to play in the WHA. We'll talk to Edmonton, Bill Hunter, Oilers' general manager, described in casting or deed Dionne was en route to talk with club officials here.

"We would be delighted to have the opportunity to sign Dionne," Hunter said. "But, he's Houston's property."

It Rains on Unser's Parade and He Loves It

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — It rained on Bobby Unser's parade, but he didn't mind it a bit. He was leading it.

"What a day, what a beautiful day!" Unser exclaimed as he climbed from his Eagle-Offenhauser in Victory Lane, his beaming face turned upward, into the waning rain of a thunderstorm that had just given him his second triumph in the Indianapolis 500.

It was supposed to go the standard 200 laps, but it was just like the race he'd won here in 1968, when he beat Dan Gurney.

But on the 172nd lap Sunday the storm clouds which had been menacing the Indianapolis Motor Speedway for more than an hour finally unleashed their fury.

First it was with a brief sprinkle, then with a torrential downpour that had Pat Vidan waving the red and checkered black-and-white flags which signaled the race was over and that Bobby had won it after 174 laps—435 miles.

When he crossed the finish line, he was cruising along at 30 miles an hour, down from his winning speed of 149.213 m.p.h., accomplished in two hours, 54 minutes, 55 seconds.

Gurney, who came here Sunday without a ride, was a driver and builder at Indy, was there alongside Bobby in the winner's circle. "I've never forgotten how for beating me in '68," he joked.

It was a close case of "If You Can't Beat 'em, Join 'em." That's what Gurney had done five years ago when he teamed up with Unser to build the Eagle and drive it, that Bobby drove. It nearly paid off last year when Unser came in second behind Johnny Rutherford.

This time it was Rutherford that was second-best, all because of an untimely pit stop.

Actually nobody really figured on either of them being No. 1. That, everybody was sure, was reserved for Wally Dallenbach, who had never finished better than 12th in eight previous Indy races.

Dallenbach charged from his 21st starting position into the lead by the 65th lap, then held it virtually all the way until the final opening of a caution flag, about half a lap.

Then, engine troubles, caused by debris from the day's only serious wreck, sent him coasting into the pits for good and put Rutherford into the lead just ahead of Unser.

On the 165th, though, Rutherford decided to make a pit stop of his own, 19 seconds that put Unser in front.

Five laps later, Rutherford found out just how costly his pit stop was. In the 170th lap, the drivers were frozen in their respective positions under a yellow caution flag—the fifth and final one—when Gary Bettenhausen blew a tire and played hardball with his car along the main straightaway's outside wall.

Luck controls everything we do in our lives. I've always tried to have it on my side.

Luck was certainly on Unser's side on the 177th lap, when Tom Sneva and rookie Ed Pimm Rasmussen got together a little too hard in the second turn. Sneva's car hurtled along the outside wall, flipped over several times and burst into flames. Debris was flying everywhere.

And along came Unser, who managed to weave his way through the shrapnel without incident.

Luck wasn't on A. J. Foyt's side, though. The veteran from Houston, trying to become Indy's first four-time winner, led for 31 of the first 60 laps and was right in there with the rest of the leaders when he, too, came upon the metallic litter in the second turn.

It ruined all four of his tires, necessitating a 45-second pit stop that put him just about a lap off the pace—and that's where he finished.

Sneva, despite severe burns on his hands and milder burns over 15 per cent of his body, the only serious injury of the race, Rasmussen wasn't even shaken up. He continued on for a lap, then stopped at the accident scene and helped extricate Sneva from the burning wreckage.

Lady Luck was busy not only with Unser but with Pancho Carter as well. He'd racked up his car only last Thursday, during the final minutes of fuel tests.

His crew cannibalized parts from a backup car and sent him out in the untested crate, hoping it would last at one lap of test driving. And with all that going against him, Carter finished a highly respectable fourth. Roger McCluskey was fifth and rookie Bill Puterbaugh sixth.

Gene Littler

To Do This Well A Bonus — Littler

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — It's beginning to get repetitious.

A week ago, 43-year-old Billy Casper almost shattered the New Orleans Open. He won it.

Now it's 44-year-old Gene Littler. He almost upset defending champion Danny Thomas-Memphis golf tournament. He won it.

Casper's victory in New Orleans clinched a spot on the Ryder Cup team which will pit Britain's best in Lignier, in this fall. He's made it every time since 1961.

Littler's victory in Memphis clinched a spot on the Ryder Cup team. He's made it every time since 1961—except for the time he was sidelined by cancer surgery.

"I'm just happy to be playing on the tour at all," Littler said Sunday after his closing, six-under-par 66 had provided a five-stroke triumph.

"To play this well is just a bonus."

His six-under-par closing round, including birdies on his first four holes, was the best of the warm, windy day. His total, 276, was the winning score.

Tom Weiskopf was runner-up, two strokes behind. The runner-up spot in the $200,000 Colonial Country Club course.

His second victory of the year, and the 29th in a 25-year career, came over the best field this tournament has ever had.

"If I couldn't win this golf tournament, I think it's the greatest thing in the world for Gene Littler to do it," said John Mahaffey, who started the final round in a tie for the top and eventually finished second. "To me, he is the epitome of golf."

Mahaffey, who had to roll up a pants leg, take off a shoe and go wading after one wet, watery shot, finished off with a scramble 71 and a 278 total. It was the second time this year and the fifth in 17 months, that he's finished second.

Jack Nicklaus and Tom Weiskopf tied for third at 277. Each had a 68. Nicklaus included a birdie on the final hole while Weiskopf got off to a birdie-eagle birdie start, went six under through six holes and then coasted home.

Gary Player, the 1974 Memphis champion, and Lee Trevino didn't get in it. Trevino had a chance, but Player and Player was well back at 286 after a last-round 74.

Ben Kern of Toronto closed with a 75 for 280 and $416.

Nicklaus won $19,225, and moved ahead of Player as the leading Johnny Miller in the race for the season's money-winning title. Nicklaus now has $145,906, Miller $135,225. Littler's share of the $175,000 total purse was $19,000 and pushed his winnings for the year to $130,325.

Warriors Complete the Sweep

LANDOVER, Md. (AP) — There may still be a few hard-core disbelievers holding out, but coach Al Attles of the new National Basketball Association champion Golden State Warriors no longer cares.

"Probably some people will say that it wasn't how well we played, but how poorly the other teams played," Attles said after the Warriors beat Washington Bullets 101-96 Sunday to complete a stunning four-game sweep in the NBA finals.

"But we're not concerned about what people say. We won the championship, and we did it the way we had to do it."

The winning formula on Sunday, as it had been in two of the Warriors' victories over heavily-favored Washington and in the Western Conference finals against Chicago, was to overcome a sizable deficit.

Golden State won the series opener 101-95 at the Capital Centre—where the Bullets had lost only six of 40 previous games—after falling behind by 12 points.

With their regular home court in Oakland tied up because of an ice show, the Warriors posted victories in the next two games, 109-103 in Los Angeles Fran cisco's Cow Palace, 93-91 and 109-107. In the second game, they once trailed by 13 points.

In Game 4, however, figured Golden State would be the easiest post-season hurdle for the Bullets, who had won the home game to the Warriors since 1970. Even after three losses, Washington was favored by six points on Sunday.

But a field goal by Butch Beard put the Warriors ahead for only the second time in the game at 94-93 with 1:45 to play, and he added two of five free throws attempts in the closing 19 seconds to clinch the victory.

With high-scoring Elvin Hayes limited to 15 points before fouling out, Washington leaned heavily on guards Phil Chenier and Kevin Porter. They combined for 43 points—26 by Chenier—18 assists and seven steals.

By winning the series, the Warriors earned another $150,000, raising their playoff booty to $325,000.

An Overtime Session Doesn't Bother Carner

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — of Australia, finished third to Jackie Carner knew the overtime Sunday, but the player of the year in the 1974 Ladies Professional Golf Association made it pay as she won a $40,000 LPGA tournament, beating Judy Rankin by one stroke in a sudden-death playoff.

Mrs. Carner sank an eight-foot par putt on the first playoff hole to win the event. She and Mrs. Rankin ended after 54 holes at 10-under-par 206.

Mrs. Carner shot a three-under-par 69 Sunday. Mrs. Rankin slipped to a one-under-par 71.

Mrs. Carner picked up $5,700 for first place in her first tournament win of the year, adding six in 1974. Mrs. Rankin, who led the first two days of the tournament and started the day with a five-stroke lead, pocketed $4,170 for finishing second.

Jan Stephenson, the 1976 rookie of the year and a native of Australia, finished third to Jackie Carner and Judy Rankin at 209, one stroke behind the leaders.

Joceylne Bourassa of Shawinigan, Que., came in fourth with a 210 total, one stroke behind the leaders. Bourassa collected $1,900 after shooting a 68 Sunday.

Sandra Post, formerly of Oakville, Ont., collected $1,600. Her 72 Sunday gave her a 212 total.

Figueroa Brings Red Sox Back to Earth

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Sunday was a bizarre day for Boston Red Sox.

The Red Sox lost one American League baseball game, one manager and two sluggers. They also lost their Eastern Division lead, and slumped into sole possession of last place.

Sunday's woes began when Boston manager Darrell John Johnson was ejected from the dugout by Umpire Joe Brinkman in the sixth inning of the first game of a doubleheader against the Cleveland Indians.

Johnson was tossed out for arguing a strike call to Yastrzemski.

When Yaz was called out moments later by Dr. Marty, the Boston first baseman knocked down, cleaned off the plate, then carefully piled dirt all over home plate and dropped his batting helmet on top of the pile.

He was promptly thumbed out of the game.

Boston's other American League games, Kansas City Royals whipped Baltimore Orioles 9-1, Minnesota Twins beat Milwaukee Brewers 7-3, New York Yankees beat Texas Rangers 8-4, Cleveland split a pair with Oakland in Sunday's opener, 6-5 and the A's taking the nightcap 5-2 and Detroit Tigers beat Chicago White Sox 4-1 in a rain-shortened game.

In Saturday's games, Chicago outlasted Detroit 10-9, New York topped Texas 7-5, Minnesota dropped Milwaukee 8-4, Kansas City shaded Baltimore 9-4, Oakland whipped Cleveland 10-4 and Boston blasted California 8-6.

Figueroa kept the Red Sox bats quiet but not the battery, who spoiled the afternoon against with pitch-hitter Lou Di Marco. Darrin Cubbs was called on strikes in the second inning, complained bitterly, was kicked out of the game and had to be restrained by teammates from attacking the umpire.

Figueroa, who had a rough outing against Boston last week, was not anyone except their young pitcher.

"We played a long stretch without a bad game and maybe we were just due for one," said Boston manager Darrell John Johnson after California's 8-6 victory. "It was a bad day for everyone except their young pitcher.

"He pitched

Three Drown in Pond

BARRIE, Ont. (CP) — Three members of a family drowned Saturday after the youngest victim was pulled into a farm pond while exercising a trotting horse.

Dead are Jason Graham, 16, his sister Penny, 12 and brother Mark, 12, children of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Graham of nearby Innisfil Township.

Police said Mark, a non-swimmer, was pulled into the water by a rope attached to the horse which was swimming in the pond.

The boy's mother, Rosalie, his brother and sister entered the water to try to save him while his father tried to reach him with ropes.

Mr. Graham, a horse trainer, saved his wife but he could not find the children in the murky, 15 foot deep pond.

Doctors Stage Protest

OTTAWA (CP) — Dr. Henry Morgentaler's option was a dramatic one which stood in the way of the Quebec government's plan for a higher birth rate, demonstrators against Canada's abortion laws were told Saturday.

Dr. Wendall Watters of the Doctors for Repeal of the Abortion Law committee said it was no coincidence that Dr. Morgentaler was arrested just before the 1971 election in Quebec.

"If you remember one of the main issues in that election was the low Quebec birth rate. As you know it's one of the lowest in Canada. In most parts of the civilized world that is considered an achievement, but not in the eyes of the Quebec establishment."

University Honors Trudeau

MONTREAL (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau (Law 1943) received the eighth annual merit award from the 4,000-member alumni association of the University of Montreal on Saturday.

The award was presented at a reception at the elegant city-owned Helene de Champlain restaurant before 30 other senior alumni and their wives.

IN MEMORIAM

CONLEY — In loving memory of a dear husband and father who left us one year ago, May 26, 1974.
What could I give to class his name? What could I say to his fame?
He was a husband, he was a father. That meant so much to me.
He lads on his knee, he kissed me with his sad goodbye to me.
I miss his smile, I miss his face, And it's well we know.
So you who have a husband and father, Treat him with care.
For you'll never know the heartache, Till he is not there.
Lovingly remembered by his wife Rose and son Hubert and family.

Rising Price of Gold Saves Mines in Yellowknife

YELLOWKNIFE, N.W.T. (CP) — The rising price of gold may have caused unruly higher prices for jewelry for some people and windfall fortunes for others, but for Yellowknife it has dictated the completion of the city.

"If the price of gold hadn't gone up the chances are extraordinarily good that both gold mines would be shut down at the moment," said David MacPhail, superintendent at Cominco Ltd's Con Mine, the older and smaller of the two gold mines in the city.

"This would be a mini-Ocotlan. Nothing but the government to keep it going, and all the service industries, which have to depend on the mines in this part of the world, would presumably be in pretty rough shape.

"So I think Yellowknife, without the mines, would be a completely and utterly different place."

Higher prices have attracted more exploration, to the point where $15 million was spent on mining exploration in 1974.

"As short a time as three or four years ago people weren't really interested in looking for gold and there is quite a lot of gold in the Northwest Territories," Mr. MacPhail said in an interview.

"It is also the one material which you can mine and remove without having your transportation problems. You can put a couple of gold bricks in an airplane and fly them away pretty quickly, whereas if you wanted to produce a few thousand tons of lead or zinc or something, it's a different story.

"We also have benefited, both the Yukon and the Northwest Territories, from the diminishing exploration in B.C.," he said, attributing the reduction to what he called the attitude of British Columbia's NDP government to the mining industry.

Con Mine, said the South African-born mining engineer, is encouraged by higher prices. It is spending more than $17 million on an expansion program, including the sinking of a new shaft to the 5,800-foot level, 500 feet deeper than the mine now goes.

Con Mine, opened in 1938, had "just about come to the end of its tether" when a new shear was discovered and, coupled with the higher prices, saved the jobs of 230 miners, most of whom live in housing subsidized by their employer.

The mine produces about 420 tons of ore a day. It takes about one ton of ore to yield ¼ ounce of gold and "as long as gold mines go that's not too bad."

Con is about 15 miles from the territorial capital and along with its larger counterpart, Giant Mines, provides an annual payroll in excess of $6 million, virtually all of which is spent in Yellowknife.

NEW YORK (AP) — The singing Jefferson Starship hocked down in Central Park for nearly two hours on Monday afternoon, and more than 20,000 persons turned out to enjoy the musical event.

The free concert was given because the Starship members said they like the atmosphere of an aisles, no ushers, no hassles and no "no smoking" signs.

This was also the 10th anniversary of formation of the group, originally known as Jefferson Airplane. Other free concerts are planned in Los Angeles and San Francisco.

Marty Balin, who has rejoined the group, and Paul Kantner and Grace Slick.

The Starship started playing at 1:05 p.m. with Hide the Tiger, and didn't halt the free concert until 3:30 p.m. when they wound up with Volunteers.

FORT WORTH, Tex. (AP) — Bandleader — composer Bob Wills, whose San Antonio Rose became a western classic and his range "Lash-Lash" a popular trademark, is dead at 70.

The colorful Texan died in a nursing home here Tuesday. A stroke six years ago silenced his fiddle and ended his song-writing career. He suffered a second stroke last year.

Despite his health problems, Wills fulfilled one of his wishes in 1974 when he participated with members of his original band, the Texas Playboys, in a Dallas recording session.

He was elected to the Country Music Association Hall of Fame in 1968.

Although San Antonio Rose, which sold millions of copies, was his biggest hit, one of his favorites was Take Me Back to Tulsa.

FOUNTAIN VALLEY, Calif. (AP) — Gladys Bonneman Karakiewicz, the costume designer who made box-office dynamite out of movie comedy sequences that Mack Sennett's bathing beauties, died of cancer Wednesday. She was 78.

Satin wear had little yet appeal before Sennett hired Mrs. Karakiewicz to head the wardrobe department of his Hollywood studio in 1916.

She snipped yards of material off the insipidly continued that bathing beauties could fill screen the screen in smart but brief ensemble.

NEWBURGH, N.Y. (AP) — An estimated 1,000 rock enthusiasts turned out at nearby Stewart Airport early Thursday to watch Mick Jagger and the Rolling Stones rehearse in an airport hangar for their coming tour.

Airport manager Chuck Mason said he had tried to keep the Stones' presence a secret because "I didn't want 10,000 groupies jamming the airport." Not he said the crowd was "peaceful and behaved well."

The British rock group, which begins a U.S. tour June 1, held its first rehearsal at the airport early Wednesday morning and the second, three-hour session that ended at 3 a.m. Thursday. The Stones flew from Long Island to the airport near this Hudson River city by private plane.

Quebec Crisis Film Screened at Cannes

Agence France-Presse

CANNES, France (CP) — Les Ordres, Quebec director Michel Brault's film on the October, 1970, mass arrests under the Canada's War Measures Act, was warmly received by both the audience and critics at this year's Cannes Film Festival premiere, Tuesday.

The film, the only entry from Canada, appeared to veteran festival-goers to give Canada a slim chance of winning its first Cannes festival prize since Canadian movies began competing here in 1968.

The main obstacle may be the fact that the film deals with a politically controversial issue, and might be passed over by the festival jury for fear of offending the Canadian government.

Les Ordres, half-financed by the Canadian Film Development Corp., was chosen for Cannes by the festival chief, Maurice Bessy, himself.

The paradox of the Canadian government financing a film that attacks its own policies was explained by Brault, considered a Quebec nationalist, in an interview that appeared Tuesday in the daily festival bulletin published by the French film industry's trade paper, Le Film Francais.

"Canadian politicians haven't had much political experience," Brault said, adding that the politicians do not know how to go about blocking a film like Les Ordres.

He said his film had been turned down by Canada's National Film Board and that he had to spend two years to raise the necessary production money.

At a news conference after the film's first Cannes screening, Brault said that in preparing Les Ordres, he had talked to 20 out of 450 persons arrested in the October, 1970, roundup, and that the effect of their arbitrary jailing had been to radicalize them politically.

SEATTLE, Wash. (AP) — Comedian Steve Allen says it is fine by him that his son and grandchildren are living on a religious commune here.

Allen's son, who took the name Logic Israel when he joined the commune, is one of the hour-long members of the Love Family commune, which has several houses in Seattle. But his identity as son of the famous comedian was generally unknown here until this week.

Opening lead—10 ♥

By OSWALD and JAMES JACOBY

Oswald: "Any time you give a player a chance to make a mistake he is likely to do so."

Jim: "South was well aware of this and managed to bring home an impossible slam by trying East that chance."

Oswald: "South started by bopping gold about North's lonely opening bid. After all, the slam might well be legitimate in spite of North's lack of real values. South was the best placed and played his ace of trumps. When the king failed to drop he let the lead stay in clubs and continued with the deuce to dummy's ace and then played dummy's jack. East thought about it for a time and discarded a heart. South took his queen, entered dummy with the ace of clubs and led a club to cash his losing heart on the king of diamonds."

Jim: East looked right foolish, didn't he? He had a chance to go wrong and he had fallen for the deception. Put thermers, West had helped foul East. West could have schemed in diamonds by playing the ace and then the five. This would have shown an even number of cards in the suit. East would have known that South held the other diamond and the film-flam would not have worked."

What do you do now?

Answer: Bid two spades. This will show five spades, at least five clubs and a good hand. (10)

Unions Ask Power To Probe Hazards

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario Federation of Labour (OFL) today called on the government to amend the provincial mining act to give unions the power to hold investigations into safety and health hazards in mines, quarries, refineries and related operations.

The proposal was among 19 recommendations contained in a brief prepared by the OFL for presentation to the Cabinet royal commission on safety and health of miners.

The brief criticized both industry and government for failure to act on the recommendations of the commission, which was expanded to include asbestos and dust.

"Judging by the submissions made to the hearings so far, it is obvious that . . . measures were not taken in time to prevent many workers in Ontario mines and related operations from being afflicted with industrial disease, being disabled or having died as a result of working in conditions far below the required control of contaminants in the mines . . . the brief said.

The OFL brief also criticized the provisional for not giving sufficient power and importance to the work of the occupational health protection branch. The branch's report on occupational illnesses indicates that even minimal protection is not provided workers from injury from "noxious gas, fumes, dust or dust" are not being enforced by government agencies responsible.

The federation also urged the government to amend the Workmen's Compensation Act to fully compensate an employee who has suffered total or partial disability while employed in mining or related operations.

The OFL requested a complete check by the Workmen's Compensation Board for all coals, lung cancer, or any other ailment suffered by miners, and all employees working on mining or related operations.

Text of the brief was released in advance.

'Easygoing' Ex-con Kills 2 and Rapes 2

DAYTON, Ohio (AP) — Evelyn Harris of Dayton said her nephew, Russell Lee Smith, is easygoing and soft-spoken, but "all hell would break loose if somebody pushed him."

Early Saturday the ex-convict killed two persons and wounded nine others in a 2½-hour shooting binge. He raped two women and then took his car keys.

"He had concluded nobody cared and proceeded to do exactly as he pleased," Mrs. Smith said. "But he never did."

Authorities said the incident began after Smith had left his father's home to date his friend, Joan Gatewood.

Police and Smith opened fire shortly after midnight. Smith fled early. Before he shot himself to death, police said, two women died, including Miss Gatewood were raped and shot. Seven other victims were in critical condition.

Smith was sentenced to prison in 1970 after killing a Dayton man in a shootout in a local tavern. He pleaded guilty to first-degree manslaughter and was released after serve ing two years. He was placed on probation in 1971.

Inner Ear Woes Hard to Diagnose

By G. C. THORTESON, MD

Dear Dr. Thosteson: That is one question I have been asking a number of attacks of severe dizzy spells with considerable vomiting each time. I also notice a peculiar deafness in my left ear.

It has been diagnosed as an inner ear problem. I have been given medication, but have heard that a salt-restricted diet will help me. Will I be troubled with this all of my life?—Mr. R.C.

It is often difficult to be specific about problems involving the inner ear. Finding the exact cause can be a long, painstaking procedure. I can only suggest a few possibilities.

The inner ear contains a very sensitive set of nerves and canals. These canals are usually involved in balance disturbance.

From the symptoms you list, Meniere's disease comes to mind as one possibility. As in Meniere's, there is a buildup of fluid contained in the canals. This fluid causes disturbance in balance and hearing. Meniere's disease is a thing often by a disturbance in blood circulation or by an abnormal fluid retention in the body. The suggestion of a salt-restricted diet than has seemed to work in that is your problem. Salt, as you may know, does promote fluid retention generally.

In about 99 per cent of the cases, Meniere's disease affects one ear only. It is most common in males between the ages of 40 and 60.

Often, hearing in the affected ear is diminished or lost, and the symptoms can last as long as two or three years. Special care must be taken to avoid falls. The victim will tend to fall in the direction of the affected ear.

The treatment, meanwhile, should be to eliminate the primary cause—antibiotics to combat an infection, diuretics to eliminate excess fluid, and medication to promote blood circulation, if that is a factor.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I have high blood pressure, and am on medication for it. My friend says I should be on a diet. I have been told I shouldn't eat pork, which I like very much. I would like your opinion also on liver. Would beef liver raise blood and cause your blood pressure to rise?—W.T.

Raised blood pressure figures you mention seem within safe limits for a middle-aged man such as you. This is probably why you were advised to eat liver because this does aid in blood formation. However, liver is high in cholesterol, so if your blood pressure gets elevated, you might want to avoid it.

But as far as liver increasing your blood volume and that your blood pressure, the answer is no. The quality of the blood might be improved but not its volume.

Canadians Obtain Good Eclipse View

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Only Canadians in Newfoundland and Alberta were thwarted in their attempts to get a good view of the lunar eclipse Saturday night, but in other possibilities reported favorable viewing conditions.

The eclipse, billed as the best lunar eclipse in a decade, began around midnight EDT and lasted until 2:34 a.m. The period of total eclipse was from 1:03 a.m. until 2:23 a.m.

In Halifax, persons watched from Point Pleasant Park and Citadel Hill. Another vantage point was the giant deck of the British aircraft carrier Hermes berthed in the harbor, but few sailors came out for the view.

"A lot of them went out of town," a sailor on night watch said. "To tell you the truth, sailors aren't one of our favorite subjects in ports."

Excellent viewing conditions in British Columbia saw hundreds of sedentary building campfires along the beaches near White Rock, south of Vancouver, to watch the show.

Members of the public were also able to view the eclipse through telescopes set up at the Vancouver planetarium by members of the Royal Astronomical Society of Canada. One telescope was used to permit photographers to take pictures.

The eclipse was visible across most of the United States. In some places, like Atlanta and Seattle, conditions were perfect. In others, like the Northeast, clouds and fog sometimes hindered visibility.

In Seattle, it began with a sunset, topaz moon and, less than an hour later, the earth satellite looked like a smoldering hole in the sky. In Dallas, observers said the moon was a light orange.

All that could be seen in Los Angeles was a cresent-shaped sliver of thin layers of cloud distorted the view in Kansas City.

From Chicago, Boston and New York, the eclipse was hidden behind clouds.

In the lunar eclipse, the earth passes between the sun and the moon, with the planet's shadow gradually moving from east to west across the lunar landscape. Even during a total eclipse, some light is reflected from the sun around the earth.

"It's dark, it's neat," said army Pvt. Carrie Hanks in Atlanta. "Everyone ought to do it every year."

Mine Union Protests

SUDBURY, Ont. (CP) — An official of Local 6500, United Steelworkers of America, says the Ontario Mining Act discriminates against men miners by not allowing women to work underground.

There are jobs in yards and other surface areas that might be preferred by older miners but they can't bump them (women) out of their jobs because they (women) can't work underground," Norm Carlson, local vice-president, said.

He said some of the men think the women get easier jobs although they receive equal pay.

Quebec Social Climate Deteriorating: Trudeau

MONTREAL (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau told about 400 young Liberals during the week that the social climate in Canada in general and Quebec in particular appears to be deteriorating.

Speaking after a dinner of meatballs and tourtiere in a crowded high school cafeteria, he urged more attention to "concern, friendship and a sense of justice."

There had to be more understanding among Canadians themselves and between them and their governments. Unless youth prepared itself by showing interest in today's problems, the problems would get worse tomorrow.

He mentioned increased crime rates, civil disobedience and labor management breakdowns in a call for a return to greater harmony in society.

Canada has the worst strike record of any western country except Italy, he said in reply to a student who suggested that fewer labor unions might mean less strike disruptions.

Mr. Trudeau agreed, noting that succeeding strikes by various unions can tie up a single industry, such as Western grain, for several months.

The meeting of young Liberals from 10 federal ridings in the metropolitan area was the last stop for Mr. Trudeau after two days in Ontario, where he visited Belleville, Lindsay, Port Hope and Toronto.

This week he will be in Europe for a NATO meeting, but next week he will venture into the Niagara region for another meet-the-people session.

Trade, Sea Law, Fish Will Occupy Trudeau

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau heads back to Europe this week to talk of economic, Western affairs, sea law and perhaps even salmon with fellow leaders.

He goes as a somewhat reluctant participant to the NATO summit conference in Brussels on Thursday and Friday. This stop will be preceded by a visit Wednesday to Denmark and followed by a stop Saturday in Luxembourg.

It will be his third trip to Europe in seven months and, in part, will be a continuation of attempts to gain what Mr. Trudeau has described as a contractual link with the European Economic Community (EEC).

If all goes well, he may be back in Europe again in the fall to attend the Conference on European Security and Co-operation (CSCE).

External Affairs Minister Allan MacEachen will join the prime minister in Brussels after meetings of the International Energy Agency (IEA) and the Organization for Economic Co-operation and Development (OECD) in Paris.

Canadians consider the NATO summit meeting, called at the request of the British and Americans for stocktaking and a show of western solidarity after Communist military victories in Indochina, largely unopposed.

Mr. MacEachen, reiterating views expressed by Prime Minister Trudeau, told the Commons external affairs committee last week a NATO summit might be better if it followed a CSCC heads of government meeting.

Mr. Trudeau will take advantage of his European visit to talk with Prime Minister Anker Jorgensen of Denmark and Premier Gaston Thorn of Luxembourg, the only two EEC countries he has not visited in recent months.

June 23 Budget Date Means Shorter Holiday

OTTAWA (CP) — Friday's announcement of a June 23 budget destroys any lingering hopes of Parliament clearing some of its legislative backlog before the summer holidays.

The budget will be presented two days before Parliament had been expected to adjourn. It likely will keep MPs at their desks until mid-July.

There are 70 sitting days left before budget day, but unfortunately for the government, it belongs to the opposition. These are days on which government business is set aside while the House debates topics chosen by the other parties.

That leaves the government with more than 30 bills, at various stages of the legislative process, and only 10 days on which to handle them. Considering past performance, the House probably will not make a dent in the list.

The government's top priority now is to get as many bills as possible through the preliminary stages and into committee. The committees then could work them over in September and have them ready for final debates when the full House returns from holidays, probably in early October.

However, there are two matters the government undoubtedly does not want left hanging throughout the summer. One is the bill to establish a national petroleum corporation, the other to give pensioners' husbands' spouses between the ages of 60 and 65.

Portugal Army Body Backing Communists

LISBON (AP) — Portugal's ruling military clique sided with the Communists today in their struggle with the Socialist party.

The clique said it will develop its own "popular organizations" to counter partisan disputes and "guarantee a correct carrying out of the revolutionary process."

The Armed Forces Movement, the action-dominated assembly of 240 military men, said in a communiqué after a lengthy meeting that it "approves a recommendation to rapidly resolve the (political) crisis, informing the leaders of the Socialist party of the hard general tone of the criticisms expressed in the assembly because of the party's failure to take part in the last cabinet meeting."

The assembly said it was naming a working committee to develop "popular organizations" to "reinforce the alliance between the people and the Armed Forces Movement."

There was no immediate reaction from the Socialists, who have been the main targets of leftist harassment since they endorse the Communists three to one in the constitutional convention elections last month.

The two Socialist members of the coalition governments, party leader Mario Soares and Francisco Salgado Zenha, have been boycotting cabinet meetings to protest the government's closure of the Socialist party newspaper Republica, after its editorial staff refused to take orders from Communist printers.

Republica was the only paper in Lisbon not controlled by the Communists, who also dominate the trade union movement and many local governments. Soares has threatened to withdraw the Socialists from the government unless the Communists are checked.

The military assembly also reaffirmed its support of leftist Premier Vasco dos Santos Goncalves.

The assembly's statement was viewed as another move toward Marxism and a further erosion of non-Communist civilian political influence.

The military leftists already wield near-dictatorial powers through their Revolutionary Council, or politburo, and the chief of the army's Copcon keeping forces, Brig.-Gen. Otelo Saraiva de Carvalho, urged Monday that the military "assume local leadership of the (political) process, bypassing party heads and making direct contact with the rank and file."

Meanwhile, the foreign ministers of the nine countries of the European Economic Market agreed to offer Portugal a multi-million-dollar program of aid in an effort to prevent a Communist takeover. The assembly's action indicated that the leftists would not be bought off.

Montreal Postal Workers Back After Staging One-day Walkout

MONTREAL (CP) — Inside postal workers were back on the job at the main post office today following a one-day walkout to protest suspension of fellow employees.

Officials of the 4,500-member Montreal local of the Canadian Union of Postal Workers said the move was off because of the Mackasey file," named after Postmaster-General Bryce Mackasey.

Post office management said 72 workers received one-day suspensions during the weekend while union officials said the men were suspended.

According to union figures, since the dispute over the hiring of casual employees and the "slowness" of contract negotiations began, 19 postal workers have been fired, 39 have been suspended for periods varying from one to nine months, eight for indefinite periods and 700 to 800 for one day. The union wants all workers reinstated before resuming contract negotiations.

Marcel Perreault, president of the local, replied Monday to charges Sunday by Mr. Mackasey that the Montreal post office is a "national disgrace" and references to a "hoodlum element" among the workers.

He said Mr. Mackasey is acting as if the country were a totalitarian state and accused him of capitalizing on the aftermath of the Cliche commission report on violence in the construction industry by making subtle accusations against union leaders.

The dispute over the use of casual laborers was partially resolved with union acceptance of a department proposal to hire 36 new workers by next Wednesday to Sunday to handle the weekend backlog of mail.

They will also help attack the over-all backlog of 25 million pieces of mail that has built up as a result of the numerous work stoppages.

Lebanese Gunfire Ebbs to Skirmishes

BEIRUT (AP) — Gunfire subsided here today as President Suleiman Franjieh consulted politicians and tried to line up a new government after a week of sporadic but isolated skirmishes were reported between leftist Moslems and right-wing Christians.

An increasing number of armed men manning barricades in the streets and barricades erected by armed youths from a dozen factions began to disappear. But most shops and offices remained closed as fearful residents waited to see if the calm would last.

The city government called on employees to return to work but there was fear of disease as garbage uncollected for a week decomposed in huge piles under a hot sun.

Leftist Lebanese political leaders appealed for an end to the clashes after a week of paralysis. They were joined by leaders of all Palestine guerrilla factions.

Brig.-Gen. Nouredin Rifai's government resigned Monday, ending after three days the republic's first experiment with parliament. Rifai's cabinet had the 76-year-old president premier Friday after nearly a week of street battles between Palestinian guerrillas and militiamen from the right-wing Christian Falangist party.

Rifai's appointment was greeted with an outcry from Moslem leaders, who voiced resignation to military rule and fear that the officer corps is pro-Christian. Left-wing Lebanese Arab Nationalist Party called for a cabinet meeting. "The Tanzanian government fully rejects all of the demands. Now we must wait."

He told reporters this was the "final government statement on the matter."

"We are not willing to accept that a resolution of the problem can free the remaining students." But he said he was not sure what the next steps would be for U.S. or Tanzanian government.

"President Nyerere expressed his personal and his government's concern about the safety of the students who are still held captive and decried kidnapping as a tool to gain publicity," Carter said.

Tanzania Rebuffs Kidnappers

DAR ES SALEAM (AP) — United States Ambassador Rawrly Carter says he has hoped that two American students and a young British woman held by guerrillas in Zaire will be released despite the Tanzanian government's refusal to meet the kidnappers' demands.

The Marxist-oriented Popular Revolutionary party threatened to shoot the three hostages unless the Tanzanian government paid them $400,000 within 48 days. Freed a number of the party's leaders held in Tanzania and handed over hundreds of rifles and cannon and thousands of rounds of ammunition.

"Tanzania will not be blackmailed," said President Julius Nyerere's press secretary after a cabinet meeting. "The Tanzanian government fully rejects all of the demands. Now we must wait."

Hastings Receives Bulk Of Quinte OFY Grants

By HARRY MULHALL
Staff Reporter

Hastings County has again received the bulk of federal opportunities for Youth Grants granted Quinte-district projects this year.

In total, $153,400 has been allocated OFY projects in Hastings, Prince Edward and Lennox and Addington counties.

Hastings with the most submissions for funds and what local groups received approval for 21 projects — received $104,900.

This compares with $141,000 last year which saw the bulk of work community schemes were involved in the counties.

In Prince Edward County the federal grants will be distributed five projects with a total of nearly $22,500. Last year, seven OFY schemes received about $25,000.

Lennox and Addington gets $26,000 for six projects compared to $33,200 for the same number of schemes in 1974.

As in previous years the largest grant goes to a project involving recreation and community services with a number of leadership projects.

The biggest grant — $10,500 — goes to a project with a teaching project for youngsters in Hastings. Bernice Edward, directed out of Belleville, Tilled Water Safety Theatre, it will involve five young people in a tour, presenting plays to prove streaming safety habits.

Second largest grant $8,500 went to Queen's Legal Aid, the law students service for citizens which has operated in Belleville for the last five years. It is a project of Queen's University students.

The smallest grant — $1,875 — goes to a young Belleville-Marmora student who will write and research the history of the woods and fields of Marmora area. The route was one of a network of colonization roads built in 1820s.

A heritage project receives the largest grant in Prince Edward — $3,000.

Heritage: Prince Edward was allocated $7,600 for 10 heritage projects, research and collect previously unrecognized aspects of Canada's early ground. Research will include local, political, social and economic factors which have influenced local life. The data will be compiled into an inventory and 1,000 copies distributed at cost. Free copies will be presented to schools, libraries and historical societies.

Criteria for OFY projects emphasize local jobs for youthful participants and contribution to local communities.

Education Board Considers Policy on Open Meetings

By RON CARSON
Staff Reporter

STIRLING — The Hastings County Board of Education has committed itself to encouraging its new policy on closed meetings in view of the new Education Act.

Belleville trustee Eloise Burr recommended to the board that the policy committee meet to determine "if our present policy observes both the spirit and the letter of the law, and to recommend changes in our policy if deemed desirable".

In the past few months, the board has been making an effort to put more of its business into open session rather than in committee of the whole or closed sessions. Mrs. Burr said the board's current policy does not clearly express the board's intentions towards openness.

Stirling trustee Donald Williams said this board has always been open, continues to be open and gives out public information when requested."

He agreed the bylaw should be reviewed, in this light, not necessarily for legal implications.

The new education act gives an indication that all board meetings and committee meetings should be held in public. The board's bylaw blantly prohibits the public from attending committee of the whole and committee meetings.

Strikes to Be Studied

Advisory Council Is Being Formed

OTTAWA (CP) — Government, labor and business representatives have begun setting up a tripartite advisory council to suggest ways to improve industrial relations and collective bargaining as aide to Labor Minister John Munro said Monday.

Gordon McCaffery said the first meeting of the special council is expected to be held in July.

Last week, Joe Morris, president of the Canadian Labor Congress, and William Wightman, industrial relations spokesman for the Canadian Manufacturers' Association, met labor department officials in an organizational meeting.

The council, first proposed last year by Mr. Munro, would be set up to examine industrial relations and make recommendations particularly with a view to reducing the number and intensity of strikes.

Mr. McCaffery said there may be up to 12 representatives of each from business and labor with Mr. Munro as chairman of the council.

A secretariat provided by the department of labor could be established if the council proved workable.

Mr. McCaffery said the plan is voluntary, but if the council is successful it would may go to cabinet for legislation to make the group more permanent.

Among those on the council would be senior union representatives and a broad cross-section of employers.

Regional representatives might also be appointed although the council would not tread on provincial jurisdiction, Mr. McCaffery said.

Trudeau Wants Oil Floor Set

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau wants an international floor price established for oil, he said Monday he is "not very hopeful" it will be achieved at the International Energy Agency meeting beginning today in Paris.

Replying to Commons questions from James Gillies (PC-Don Valley), Mr. Trudeau said Energy Minister Donald Macdonald will report back to cabinet on the meeting and decide what action, if any, should be taken in Canada.

"I can't predict what will happen," he said.

Mr. Macdonald left during the weekend for the conference whose 19-member participants, mostly industrial countries, are attempting to restore some price order in the international oil market.

The prime minister, when asked whether Mr. Macdonald will propose any specific figures, said there is no binding bargaining position.

Mr. Macdonald told a Commons committee recently that he would be reluctant to agree to any floor price above current domestic crude oil price of $6.50 a barrel.

The United States has been pushing for a floor price of between $7 and $9 a barrel to encourage development of alternate, more expensive energy forms such as oil sands and shales and coal gasification.

Two Convocations

"Growth has its drawbacks", says Wilf Wilkinson, chairman of the Loyalist College board of governors, noting it now is impossible for the college to hold just one convocation. He says Loyalist has its graduates this year of whom 341 were recognized last Saturday's convocation. He explains it will be necessary to hold a second one on June 21 for diploma nursing, nursing assistants, retraining and DND electrical and electronic technicians.

WASN'T POPCORN

High-speed Chase Ends in Arrest

BRIGHTON — A high-speed chase on Highway 401 Monday has led to the arrest of a Desoronto man on charges of criminal negligence, possession of a weapon and possession of liquor in a place other than a residence.

Charged is Gregory Arnold Sargent, 18, of 67 Mill St., Desoronto.

The chase, at speeds up to 80 m.p.h., was taken up by Brighton Constable Bruce McLean on line of Trenton. It ended 30 miles later when a half-ton truck driven by Sargent slammed into an earth embankment on the Highway 45 exit ramp north of Cobourg.

Constable McArthur said he says the chase began when he tried to motion the truck off the road after noticing it was weaving from lane to lane.

Fabricon Head Defends Plant Move to Belleville

By AL ZARAS
Staff Reporter

TRENTON — Fabricon Manufacturing Ltd. president Ken Allmendinger said Monday Trenton will not attract new industry unless it assembles serviced land in an industrial park similar to the one in north east Belleville.

He assessment comes two weeks after news was released that his company will build a new 50-employee plant in Belleville. It also follows what he called several months of frustration in attempts to locate the plant in Trenton.

He spoke with The Intelligencer Monday after Fabricon's attempts to build the plant on 20.9 acres of CNR-owned property in southwest Trenton. Failure forced him to conclude the town's answer for attracting large scale industry rests in establishment of an industrial park.

"I believe if Trenton would have had industrial sites available, and that is the responsibility of council, that we would have had no trouble putting up a plant in Trenton," said Mr. Allmendinger.

They better look for industrial land or it does of a giant will happen again," he warned. "I know it costs money, but to make money, you have to spend money."

Mr. Allmendinger agreed in an interview saying that although he didn't want to create a "storm" of public reaction, he felt the need to tell Trenton that Fabricon tried to remain in Trenton.

He termed a "whitewash" the town's explanation for loss of the new Fabricon plant to Belleville. Mr. Allmendinger said it made it appear the company did not try to locate here, contrary to what actually occurred during some three months of talks with the town.

Public criticism of the loss of Fabricon prompted town officials to release a report, sections of which Mr. Allmendinger called confidential, that outlined the talks.

Following a mid-May announcement in Belleville, Mayor Bob Patrick issued a second statement aimed at clearing up "some misunderstandings that are obviously circulating concerning Fabricon's location in Belleville."

Mr. Allmendinger said Monday the initial report "makes us look like we didn't try to remain here".

"If they say we tried everything, I say, where was the land?"

To illustrate his point, Mr. Allmendinger pulled eight maps from a closet outlining alternate plant siting and control of the 20.9 acres he said he was willing to buy, provided access for service was available. "Does that look like we weren't trying to do anything?" he asked rhetorically.

Control of the land rested with at least three different groups. Town clerk Anthony Sharp stated in a report to council that Trenton had got agreement over several land exchanges precluded location of the plant in southwest Trenton.

Mr. Sharp blamed the lack of large-size areas of serviced industrial land for the loss of Fabricon.

He directly compared the reception he received in Trenton to that he received from Belleville when a Fabricon consultant looked in the city for land.

The same night he asked a company consultant to look for an alternate site, he received a Belleville official plan and preliminary outlines of a 30-to 50-acre site in the city's northeast industrial park. An outline of services was delivered the following day.

"It took a day and a half to get what I wanted," he said. "Try the way a community should work".

On the other hand, Trenton should have known in February that it was not in the position to provide land, he said.

"If Trenton wants to exist as an industrial community they will need to buy land," he stated. Mr. Allmendinger suggested the purchase of land on Trenton's borders as an eventual site for an industrial park.

District at a Glance

Youth Better Prepared

PICTON — Bicycles no longer are "just for kids" since hundreds of adults have discovered the exercise value of cycling.

Picton Police Chief Charles Fletcher observed Monday that most youngsters applying for bicycle licences are better briefed than the older generation. They come fully prepared with the serial number of their bikes while adults sometimes overlook this information.

Child's Body Found

WAUPOOS — Ontario Provincial Police searchers Monday recovered the body of a five-year-old Kirkland Lake boy who drowned Sunday afternoon when he fell from a boat as it overturned in Prince Edward Bay near here.

Dead is David Michael Craig, five, son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Craig of Kirkland Lake.

The child's body was found in Prince Edward Bay off the shore of North Marysburg shortly after noon Monday.

The boy was one of five youngsters riding in a 19-foot boat, Sunday, operated by William Little, 21, of Waupoos.

Police say the craft was in a tight turn when it suddenly flipped, throwing its passengers overboard. All were rescued except for the deceased.

Wins Promotion

Picton police officer George Wight this month celebrates 20 years of service with the town police force with a promotion to the rank of detective. He is the first member of the department to earn this rank and scored in the top 10 per cent of his class in a six-week course in criminal investigations held recently at Aylmer.

Groundwork

Parks and recreation director Dino Gattas gets dirt under his finger nails as he plants marigolds behind Trenton Memorial library Monday. The flower planting program is under way this week in town parks and other municipal properties.

About 21,000 square feet of bedding plants in 10 to 12 different varieties are being planted this year.

Mayor Wants Crackdown On Picton Hot Rodders

PICTON — Picton mayor Donald King this month called for a police crackdown on tire-spinning hot rodders and several Picton merchants told the town they are closing Friday nights because of obscene language on Main St.

Picton police chief Charles Fletcher said Monday that more than 100 charges have been laid by police already this month, 16 of these for unnecessary noise.

He added that 27 speeding charges were laid, 26 liquor charges, 13 charges under the Criminal Code and a total of 39 other charges. The other charges include offences related to licences and similar matters.

In April, 1975, approximately 80 charges were laid by police in comparison with the 103 charges laid during the first three weeks in May.

Chief Fletcher says public co-operation is needed to assist police in apprehending motorists creating unnecessary noise.

He observed most of the drivers charged plead guilty to the offence and it is seldom necessary for citizens to come forward as witnesses. The police make every effort to hold the names of those reporting offenders in confidence but sometimes the citizen is required to come forward.

Chief Fletcher added the use of obscene language on Main St. frequently relates to impairment and use of profanity and obscenities by impaired persons will be noted in police reports and brought forward in Justice of the Peace court here.

Wright Named Picton's First Detective

PICTON — A veteran officer with the Picton police department, Constable "George Wright, has been promoted to the rank of detective following completion of a six week course at the Ontario Police College.

His promotion was announced this week by chairman of the Picton Police Commission, Jesse Mason, and Picton police chief Charles Fletcher.

Constable Wright, who joined the town police force in May, 1955, recently completed a six-week course in criminal investigation at the Ontario Police College in Aylmer. He scored among the top 10 per cent in his class.

He is the first member of the Picton Police Department to earn the rank of detective.

Migrant Workers Constitute Enormous Problem for the European Community

By JOHN D. HARBRON

Foreign Affairs Analyst

Thomson News Service

Dr. Patrick Hillery, the former foreign minister of Ireland, was in Ottawa last week to talk about the social problems facing what he is Canada conceived to be an economic phenomenon, namely the European Economic Community.

He was doing this in his present function as vice-president for social affairs of the European Commission.

Dr. Hillery, who managed in his speech to divest himself of any International group of complexion," as he also put it.

had some devastating things to say about migrant workers in the member countries of the EEC.

What he referred to as "the weak groups" are six to eight million immigrants, officially calculated by him to be 15 millions if you include their families), who have come into the booming industrial heartlands of Germany the 60s and 70s to find work.

About 75 per cent of them are drawn from countries outside the market, for example Spain, Morocco and Turkey; they have arrived illegally "products of an International group of exploiters," as he also put it.

To cope with what must now be staggering problems of unemployment and bad housing for these migrant millions (from the plenty standpoint of 1973-75, the EEC has established a 1500-strong staff to whose operations in detail he did not elaborate.

He spoke so dispassionately about such a grotesquely unfloating population (as large as Cuba's), and only in answer to a query from the floor, that the immensity of the problem wasn't obvious.

It's not that Dr. Hillery, an Irish medical doctor with three medical degrees, is a cold man, rather he displayed typical Irish warmth in what he said.

But the problem he faces, like any many others one today, basically is too much for the EEC bureaucrats to solve.

If so, what is left to say about so many floating human beings within the affluent Europe sharpened his earlier comments that the two major areas of concern for today's governments and international organizations are "social justice" and "local aspirations."

By these, he meant the big problem of how increased oil prices helped to increase inflation, a heavy problem, unresolved since the mid-70s, and the small problem of citizen's survival.

The concern of the average citizen is not abstractly but concretely, said Hillery.

This brings us back to the endless and unprincipled millions within the EEC and what it can do for them. They cannot be bundled off to their homelands.

Other than the inhumanity of such a move, their hard-pressed native governments don't want to absorb them either.

In the case of Spain, where the boom of the late 60s has changed to high inflation and massive labor strife, the Franco-ish immigrant worker wants remittances home once freedom Spain's foreign earnings, would be a drain on the economy if he left and returned home.

In France, racism affects the deprived North African unemployed worker. And elsewhere in the EEC, the unemployed semi-skilled Italian labourer would be unemployed at home as he now is becoming in northern Europe.

Italy is of course, a full member of the EEC, but the one where even economy is closest to collapse.

A Smooth Performance

The visit of Prime Minister Trudeau passed off without incident — that is, if we discount a youth chased by police after being caught on the roof of a nearby apartment building.

It was all very civilized, and Mr. Trudeau himself very civilite, witty, and frank, even to the extent of acknowledging that the postal service is not what it might be.

But the great man was never really extended, say in the way he might have been by a thoroughly probing and merciless opposition. In fact he was applauded, almost in the manner of an audience having its first taste of the opera.

At least the Prime Minister might have felt encouraged to embark on such public relations ventures more often. Certainly he is not seen in public all that often these days.

About the only heat generated by the audience came from a young man unabashedly in favor of legalization of marijuana. Doubtless running through Mr. Trudeau's mind was an encounter he had while out for a brief walk in the Vancouver area some years ago. "Why don't you legalize pot?" he was asked by a pair of hippie types. His answer, similar to the one he gave at Confederation, noted in part that there were better ways of getting "a high" in life. It was an appropriate answer too from the non-smoking and fitness-conscious Prime Minister.

Of course there was a lot left unsaid, on a variety of subjects, from the decline in public and private morality to Canada's often strange posturing in foreign affairs, to the apparent receptiveness of many in this country to undemocratic trends abroad.

Mr. Trudeau may have been right in suggesting that the forces of nationalism will ultimately prevail, especially in Asia, but he betrayed some naivety when he expressed doubt that people who take over power by force, whatever their political aftinations, would "hurt their own people."

The Prime Minister seems to ignore the massacre of innocents and the firing squads that have accompanied many a totalitarian takeover in years past, most recently in Asia.

On the subject of capital punishment here at home, Mr. Trudeau makes no distinction between cases of deliberate murder. As former RCMP Commissioner L. H. Nicholson put it recently, the robber for one who shoots down a policeman or a corner grocery store owner. Police, he says, are frustrated in face of a lenient attitude by government in such cases.

Mr. Trudeau's performance in Belleville was in his best tradition, but his words were those of a man and a government that bend with political winds (as witness his answer on the drugs issue), rather than take a strong stand. A Government careful to give little away or to commit itself firmly.

Water Safety

Someone has said that not enough is being done in Canada to prevent drownings.

With the summer season upon us, it is a time to reflect on such a claim. Trenton now has its own underwater search and recovery unit. So too has Belleville; indeed the latter has proved its worth many times.

But how much is enough in water rescue, remembering that in the case of the above units their use, sadly, is often "after the event."

How often this year are we going to hear of such tragedies as the loss of a Toronto father and son while fishing in the Welle's Bay area in Prince Edward county? Or of drownings in unsupervised river or lake waters? Not to mention the beach?

We can go only so far in the provision of water safety facilities. In the last resort, each individual must be responsible for his own safety. Attention to basic precautions could save many lives.

Government Or Unions?

Who is running the country — the government or the unions?

The question is one of uncommon urgency these days, with one union after another emerging like so many jacks-in-the-box to hamstring the smooth functioning of society.

The right to strike of course is enshrined in legislation, but it has meant dislocation of the economy and has earned us the ill-will of customers abroad.

In Quebec we see the effects of strong-arm methods by unions: Asked why he was on strike at the Olympic site, one man said he had to "follow the others." When some returned to work but nothing was happening, another said, "there is no one here to tell us what to do."

It is clear the orders whether to work or to down tools come from someone at the top, to whom the men may not even know. This way, we have a situation in which a few people are holding the country to ransom.

Mortgage Rates Rise Again

By VINCENT EGAN

Business and Consumer Affairs Analyst

Thomson News Service

The renewed rise in interest rates is expected to see the mortgage loans back up toward last year's record levels.

Anyone who is home today in Canada's most heavily populated area, centrally located, faces these cost factors:

—The interest rate on a conventional first-mortgage loan (for up to 75 per cent of the value of the house) will probably be at least 11 per cent, and perhaps as much as 11.5 per cent, compared with 10.75 per cent in April.

—Even if that, the availability of loan funds is only fair, according to mortgage brokers.

—On a 25-year mortgage loan guaranteed under the National Housing Act (for as much as 95 per cent of value), interest rates range from 10.75 to 11 per cent, up from 10.5 per cent in April. Again, the supply of mortgage money is just fair.

—For mortgage money, availability of funds is described as excellent. Interest rates have risen a half-point in the last month, and range between 13 and 15 per cent.

Before the end of June, one mortgage broker predicts, first-mortgage interest rates may well have risen to the 10½ peak of 12 to 12.5 per cent.

The reason is that interest rates is part of a broad international pattern.

Canadian interest rates reach about mid-way between the lower rates prevailing in the United States, and the much higher U.K. levels.

The Japanese in most countries is a clear reflection of investors' unwillingness to lend their money for long periods, when the outlook for inflation and recession is so cloudy.

Trust companies here in Canada are being hit by increased investment certificates (mutual funds, in effect) which are slow, even through the inflated rates, to pick up. Bank of Canada rate has boosted to 8.75 per cent.

If high interest rates spell trouble to the home buyer, they are welcome to the officials of the Bank of Canada.

The Bank's policy has been to keep Canada's rates well above U.S. levels.

That helps to attract an inflow of foreign investment capital, which is the traditional Canadian way of financing our deficit on international trade—a deficit which is ballooning in the current recession cuts this year's high foreign demand for our exports.

So, in a roundabout way, the rise in interest rates is one of the measures for some of

Nixon Plans Brief Tour Through New Riding

BANCROFT — The prospect of a possible provincial election in the fall has become increasingly evident in the New Hastings-Peterborough riding with the nomination of candidates in represent most of the parties and with visits to the area by cabinet politicians from both the provincial and federal governments.

The most is a series of visits that has included Prime Minister Trudeau and provincial cabinet minister Eric Winkler as well as Stockwell of Stoke High Falkner, will be Richard Nixon, leader of Ontario Liberal Party.

Board to Test Early School Bus System

STIRLING — It's hard to please everyone and the Hastings County Board of Education learned the lesson once again — but this time ever school bus scheduling.

The board Monday night approved an experimental early bus system at Bayside Secondary School but not without some serious doubts and reservations from some trustees.

The transportation committee recommended the board approve an early bus to leave the high school at 3:25 p.m. rather than 4 p.m. This would allow students who did not wish to take part in extra-curricular activities to leave for part-time jobs, baby-sitting or just because they had no further business at school.

Stirling trustee Donald Williams objected on the grounds that students who need needed extra help after school would be most likely to leave. Secondary schools generally have an activity hour from 3:10 to 4 p.m.

Mr. Williams noted it was that Centennial had made a previous request and that the board approved this request. It would be flooded with more requests next fall. One trustee suggested that many try to hitch-hike rather than wait for the bus.

Firemen Busy

FICTON It was a hot time in the old town last night for Fictonian firefighters who answered three alarms in a short period.

Shortly after 7 p.m. firemen were called to extinguish a car fire at the Trees Hill. Damage to the vehicle, owned by Roger Burrell of Disraeli St., Ficton, was minor.

Shortly after midnight, the second alarm took firefighters to the Fairway Apts. on Spring St., where a garbage can in the basement was ablaze. No damage resulted.

At 1:30 a.m. a third call was answered at the R. J. McFarland home for the aged. It was a false alarm.

A Long Walk

It was a weekend in Bancroft for marathon enthusiasts. Along with a relay then at the local arena, six members of the local TOPS Club walked the five miles from Birds Creek to Bancroft, on an attempt to raise

Field Worker Outlines Role Of Social Service Program

MARMORA — A 24-hour-a-day service is maintained by social services and welfare to assist people with their problems, a field worker, James Jessop, told members of St. Paul's ACW at their May meeting.

One of six persons working in the Quinte area, Mr. Jessop outlined the many services and kinds of help that are available.

There is supplementary help for pensioners who require drugs, dental work or eye glasses; mothers, whose husbands have left their families, can get assistance to retrain at Loyalist College for a job; young people 16-18 may be provided with financial assistance to move out of a troubled house; sleeping accommodation and meals will be provided for persons in need who are passing through a community; people on welfare in one area can move to another and apply for assistance.

In addition, transportation to hospital or clinic is provided for people on welfare if they have no means of getting there themselves; the services of the Victoria Order of Nurses can be obtained, if needed, through the Community and Social Services; children under 18 is a broken or troubled home are referred to the Children's Aid Society, Mr. Jessop explained.

The Social Services and Welfare Committee also works closely with the county homes for the aged and nursing homes for the admitting of senior citizens who are no longer able to look after themselves, Mr. Jessop said.

Mrs. Lillian Johnson reported on the Diocesan ACW meeting held in Kingston recently. The theme of the conference was "Let the Spirit take over".

Residents Walk, Skate For Community Funds

BANCROFT — It was an expensive weekend for North Hastings residents who participated in a walk-a-thon and a skate-a-thon at the local arena, sponsored by the local TOPS Club.

Although there are more than 30 people in the local TOPS Club, only six hardy women endured the hot weather to raise $135.

Sunday, Bancroft's first Roll-a-thon on roller skates was held in the Ken Reid Bastien Community Centre.

The roll-a-thon was organized by the arena commission in an attempt to raise enough money to purchase another 35 pairs of roller skates.

Most of the two-score who participated in the event had a number of sponsors who were willing to pay one cent a minute for the possible 24 hours spent skating.

One young girl had more than 50 sponsors.

According to Jim Bruce of the Community Centre, the youngster raising the most money will be awarded a new pair of skates.

The bad news to the sponsors will be arriving soon when the bills are sent out by the commission.

Forbes Wants Schools Open

STIRLING — Separate school trustee Jim Forbes told the Belleville Times here Monday night that teachers and students should be kept in schools during the Remembrance Day holiday.

Mr. Forbes, from Trenton, gave notice of motion Monday, to keep teachers and students in the classroom. The board will deal with the suggestion at its next meeting.

After the meeting Mr. Forbes said he felt students could better observe Remembrance Day by doing planned activity rather than just having a day off. He said the students never attend services.

Art Lovers Gather

The Belleville Art Association will hold its monthly meeting Wednesday at 8 p.m. in Corby Library. Guest speakers will be Warren Thomson, a graphic artist and Howard Mandel, a photographer. They are instructors at Loyalist College. The public is invited to attend. Refreshments will be served.

Hastings Highlights

Arnold Lashes Out At Abortion Policy

TORONTO — The Social Credit candidate in Hastings — Peterborough for the provincial election claims the government's policy encourages abortion as a means of birth control.

Nancy Arnold has been nominated to run in the reconstructed riding. In a statement at Queen's Park recently supported by a large woman who shouted "baby murdered" before being escorted from the floor of the legislature.

"The unidentified young woman is right," she says. "Ontario MPP's are baby murderers. In a two-year period, 1973-74, 41,000 unborn, human babies were murdered through unnecessary abortions in hospitals under the jurisdiction of the Ontario government.

"In effect, she contends, government health insurance coverage which pays for hospital stays and operation costs in abortion cases prompts many women to neglect contraceptive birth control methods.

"All a person has to do is get most hospital abortion committees to say she does not want a baby. The board decides that having the baby will make her unhappy, and subscription is held for your health," Mrs. Arnold says.

"At least that is how the people sitting in the legislature permit the law to be interpreted."

Province Plans Drive For Seat Belt Use

The proposed child belt safety program to be introduced into Grades 2 and 3 as a pilot project in Ontario's elementary schools this autumn is a "pretty logical outgrowth of the idea of reaching all age groups," says an official of the provincial ministry of transportation and communications.

Cathy Stephens of the ministry's driver-vehicle operations research department told The Intelligencer in a telephone interview from Toronto recently, both local, regional and mass media advertising has been attempted but the success rate has not been as great as desired.

She said the pilot might last as long as six months after which the ministry will review it to determine if any changes are required before adopting an in-depth program to all public school grades.

Ms. Stephens said the review will likely include a survey of various areas to see if the rate of seat belt use has increased, a telephone survey of some parents to discover their reactions and a look at any possible behavioral change in the students.

She said the Ontario Educational Communications Authority (OECA) will work with the ministry to develop both the pilot and future ongoing programs, specifically producing an animated, 15-minute film and providing printed matter.

When the pilot begins, hopefully in September, community services and safety officers from municipal and regional police departments and Ontario Provincial Police detachments will visit schools once a month with the entire package and will leave follow-up material with the teacher for student projects. The teachers will also be engaged in follow-up interviews to gauge their feelings.

Ms. Stephens said the project has been in the works for almost a year and has also received input from police officials.

Auld Works Hard

Herb Young, president of Loyalist College says it is easy to imagine the tremendous responsibilities thrust upon minister of colleges and universities, as he introduced Mr. Auld as guest speaker for the Loyalist convocation Saturday. Mr. Young noted that demands on post-secondary education are on a brightening increase and funds are limited. He said the college hopes these problems on a small scale and has to fight to cope with them.

Parade Planned

On Sunday June 1, a parade including the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment will commemorate the cessation of hostilities of Second World War in Toronto. Starting at 2 p.m. from the Queen's Park, the march will go down University Ave. to City Hall where an Ecumenical Service will take place at 3 p.m.

Eggs Stress Benefits Of Using Seat Belts

Constables Don Hunyk and Brian Turner, community services officers with the Belleville detachment of the Ontario Provincial Police, may have found a use for some of those controversial surplus eggs.

The two men are responsible for a unique method to explain seat belt safety to elementary school students using fresh eggs and model cars.

For example, an unstrapped egg flys out of the car upon collision while a strapped-in egg sustains but minor cracks.

Cathy Stephens of the driver-vehicle operations research department in the provincial ministry of transportation and communications says the method will be used in some form in the ministry's proposed seat belt safety program to be introduced to Grades 2 and 3 in Ontario's elementary schools this autumn.

She relates police officials from across the province were invited to suggest the best way to explain the necessity for wearing seat belts to public school pupils and the egg method was the most impressive.

Ms. Stephens did not say if the method would be used in a pictorial sense as part of the proposed school package but notes it will probably be included in an animated, 15 minute film to be produced by the Ontario Educational Communications Authority (OECA) to be shown in the schools.

Constable Turner says the film will likely portray Humpty-Dumpty who gets like a car accident, falls out of his car and is attended to by "all the king's constables."

Home of the Week

DESIGN R2-107
1,254 Sq. Ft.

The home design illustrated could be a vacation cottage or it could just as well be a year-round home. It is a real ranch style with a genuine western tang and it would be particularly suitable if you happen to own a pie-shaped lot with restricted frontage.

Its 1,254 square feet of living space are but comfortable for municipalities that specify 1,000 square feet as a minimum area.

The plans show the home built with its main floor a concrete slab-on-ground with forced air heating ductwork cast in the floor. This is sometimes the best method in areas of high ground water levels or rock close to the surface, often the situation in vacation country. If electric heating is used, the furnace room could become an additional closet for the master bedroom or a generous storage for wood for the fireplace.

Plans for Design 2-107 cost $25 for the first set, $11 each additional set and are supplied by return mail.

Sparks Fly

CAMBRIDGE, England (CP) — A blazing row broke out after firemen were summoned to a hotel here only to find County Chief John Maxwell had turned in the call as a demonstration for businessmen he had addressed in the hotel earlier. The firemen's union complained and Maxwell finally said he was sorry. But Maxwell did prove the efficiency of his force—the men made it to the hotel in only 55 seconds.

Gardening Column

Manure Not Best For Gardens

In what is basically a farming community, I should probably have my head read for trying to overturn some sacred cows and their sacred product — manure. But I've got to set the record straight, at least as far as the home gardener is concerned.

First of all, when you examine barnyard manure for its fertilizing qualities, it's just not what it's cracked up to be. Or rather, as the home gardener speaks it about to be. In fact, manure is a very poor fertilizer that adds very little to the garden in the way of nutrients.

Perhaps the misconception comes about because of the common sight of farmers heavily manuring their fields every spring. But that's not because it's a great fertilizer, but rather because it performs very well in making heavy soils friable, in acting as a conditioning agent that allows the development of sturdy root structures.

The term manure is of course a general one that applies to many agent besides animal manure. But since it's animal manure we are dealing with, let's take a closer look at them and their fertilizing qualities.

Cow manure contains about 1 per cent nitrogen, 2 per cent phosphorous and 1 per cent potash. And that's when it's "well-rotted, well-aged stuff," that is so sought out by gardeners. Horse manure is probably lost 50 per cent of its nitrogen and 30 per cent of its phosphorous through the decomposing process. That means a ton of well rotted barnyard manure provides you with the equivalent in terms of nitrogen, phosphorous and potash, of a 50 pound bag of commercial fertilizer.

So one manure if you like, but don't use it believing that your plants or vegetables have been well fed. Rather, use it as a compost, an agent to break up soils and keep them porous. But at the same time, be aware of some of the problems manure can introduce. Its first and most obvious problem is its high content of weed seed. And it carries some additional potential problems that are not so obvious. For example, manure on compost or a fully bed can be disastrous since manure is a prime source of fireblight. And it's bad business to put it on tomatoes or peonies because of botrytis blight.

Now I stand to set one thing straight. I am not making a mass condemnation of barnyard manure. I'm just suggesting that you don't consider it has some magic qualities that automatically make your garden grow. Manure can and should be used wherever the supply is plentiful and weeding is no problem. Provided you use it with some discretion and are prepared to add fertilizers to manured soils rather than expect manure to perform the feeding function.

Now I am sure there are some readers who may believe I am some kind of fertilizer. In the same way that many people are leery about adding fluorine to drinking water. And who is to say they are wrong. But on the other hand, there has never been any evidence that commercial fertilizers cause ill side effects whatsoever. And so, in the long run, the choice is yours — manure or commercial fertilizer — or both.

Incidentally, you can achieve the same basic results by incorporating and working your own compost heap. And without the many possible problems that manure can bring to the home gardener. And there's no better time to talk about compost — that's next week.

Drivers Compete

Industrial safety is the Quinte district theme of a boat through competition Saturday.

The event was the third annual contest for industrial forklift operators run by the Prince Edward-Hastings branch of the Industrial Accident Prevention Association.

Some 18 operators entered the contest held at Dick Ellis Rink, main objective of which was to promote industrial safety in the handling of forklift trucks in local plants, said co-ordinator Ken Fisher of Bloomfield.

Two main winners emerged — Ray Lucas, Union Carbide, Belleville, in first place and Gary Clooney, Crane Ltd., of Trenton.

Both men now go on to the provincial championships in Owen Sound June 8.

The team prize was won by a group from Trenton Cold Storage, for the second successive year.

To gain points, each operator had to properly maneuver loads around obstacles and marked paths.

Fatalities Decline

TORONTO — Figures released recently by the provincial ministry of transportation and communications indicate that for the first time since 1970 there has been a 5.4 per cent decrease in the number of fatal collisions and a 15.7 per cent decrease in the number of fatalities.

During 1974 the number of fatalities involving bicyclists declined 34.8 per cent from 69 to 45, while pedestrian deaths were down 11.8 per cent from 346 to 305.

John R. Rhodes, provincial minister for transportation and communications, says, "These figures are the most encouraging we've had to date. In addition, it's the lowest death rate per 100 million miles travelled over the past 20 years."

The 1974 statistics show 12ai there were 204,771 reported motor vehicle collisions, an increase of 5.8 per cent as compared to 1973.

Partly reflecting the inflationary trend, motor vehicle — related property damage costs increased from $171.1 million to $205.8 million, while personal injury collisions increased from 28,981 to 28,416.

Fatalities involving motorcycle drivers increased by 2.1 per cent from 48 to 49, whereas motorcycle driver injuries increased 16.8 per cent from 2,633 to 3,238. Injuries involving bicyclists increased six per cent from 3,272 to 3,467.

Mr. Rhodes concludes "close to 40 per cent of those fatally injured are once again in the 15-to-24-year-age group."

Art Association On Culture Tour

What could be more enjoyable, for anyone interested in arts, crafts and the springtime scenery, than a trip through the countryside to visit potteries and art galleries?

Members of the Belleville Art Association had the opportunity to spend a day in this fashion recently, taking a bus tour arranged by Ben Williamson and Barb Whelan.

The first stop of the morning occurred at the new art shop and boutique in Stirling, owned by artist William Kilian who moved to the village in December. The Mill Street Studio houses Mr. Kilian's own watercolor studio upstairs, as well as the displays of his, and other artists' work on the main level.

In addition to the paintings, Mr. Kilian sells handcrafted items, has a framing business, and continues to do free-lance color separations for the printing of colored photographs, but full-time work before he left Toronto.

Mr. Kilian guided the visitors through his studio, and gave a brief demonstration of the four-color separation process. Planning to extend his career to the teaching of art, he holds classes in oil and watercolor, and gave the group some experienced advice about drawing.

"Look so carefully at what you're drawing that you feel as if you're touching the object with your pencil as you draw on the paper," he said. "You'll be amazed at how much more you see."

Mr. Kilian joined the tour as it continued its progress to the Pearl Rose Studio on Front Street in the village, the pottery studio and shop of Pearl Fletcher.

Demonstrating the making of molds and describing the potting process, assistant Vi Peale showed the group through the work room where shelves of newly-formed vases, centrepieces, cups and figurines wait to be painted with glaze before final firing.

Sheila Lambert, one of the members on the tour showed two of the hand-painted coffee mugs she has made for her family under the tutelage of Mrs. Fletcher, who teaches extension courses in ceramics for Loyalist College.

In the village of Lonsdale the bus made its next stop at the home of Harlan Hone, nationally recognized expert in the field of porcelain pottery. Here the women observed a completely different approach, in which the making of pottery has been elevated to an art form.

Mr. Hone, who is Canada's only full-time porcelain potter ("as far as I know", he says) explained how slow and difficult his pottery-making process is.

"But, it's because of its delicacy and its challenge that I love porcelain," he said, noting that although this type of work is "new" to this country, it was an important art form 4,000 years ago in China.

Mr. Hone, who has some of his work on exhibit in a small showroom adjoining his home, sells most of his work in cities such as Montreal, and also supports himself and his family by the sale of large ceramic wall pieces.

After lunch on the lilac-shaded banks of the Salmon River in Lonsdale, the group travelled to the hamlet of Wilton where potters Ken and Diane Cumberland have made their home, in an old schoolhouse, for the past five years. Here the approach to pottery is more functional than decorative.

Mr. Cumberland described the "work hard, play hard" life he and his wife and apprentices lead, potting 16 hours a day during their intensive periods.

He showed the visitors his massive propane-heated kiln, where he can fire between 300 and 700 pots at a time, following a demonstration of his pottery-making skills. The group then spent time examining — and buying — the hanging pots, bowls and lamps in the large showroom.

The Agnes Etherington Gallery on the campus of Queen's University in Kingston was the tour's final stop. The recently-hung exhibit of drawings by 65 Ontario artists included work by Belleville's Linda Mustard. Also showing at the gallery this month and next are sea paintings by Toronto artist Ron Bolt, that captured the attention of most women.

Tired feet were forgotten during lively discussion about the day's events as the bus made its way back to Belleville at the end of the afternoon.

Today's Child

By Helen Allen

RON

When you've just turned 12 and you are having your picture taken for Today's Child, you want to look your best. You make sure your hair is shining clean and choose your shirt and sweater with care. This handsome lad was enthusiastic about the whole idea of appearing here — full of questions about sitting for the photographer, how the picture would get into the paper, how many people might see it, what will happen to the responses.

Ron very much wants to be adopted so he will have a family of his own. But, he knows it is not as easy at 12 as it would be at 12 weeks or 12 months and he is trying not to build his hopes too high. Mary Jones hopes soon he realized and Ron get the mother and father he wants — and needs — so much.

Anglo-Saxon in descent, Ron is healthy and good-looking with brown hair, hazel eyes, clear fair skin and a lovely smile.

After a rather poor start in school, Ron is doing well this year. His teacher says he is an average student with the potential to be above average if he had the motivation. That might well develop if he had a mother and father to take a proud interest in him. Last year Ron's behavior in school left as much to be desired as his academic work but he has changed in this area too. He gets on well with his classmates and his report indicates that he is not a discipline problem.

Ron lives with a widowed foster mother who manages a nice balance between affection and firm control. But she feels, as does his Children's Aid worker, that he needs a father to look up to, to love and be loved by and to share activities with. He is good company for he is alert, inquisitive, interested, eager with questions and comments.

Ron will be a fine son for parents who are at once flexible, warm, firm, patient and loving. It will be best if he can be the only child or the youngest by several years.

To inquire about adopting Ron, please write to Today's Child, Ministry of Community and Social Services, Box 888, Station K, Toronto M4P 2E2.

Tea Sets for Boys? Why Not!

Dear Ann Landers: I was very surprised when you raised the question, "Why should anyone give a boy a tea-set?" A tea-set is a thing of beauty and or conveys a sexual identity crisis. It's the artifact of parents that does the damage.

In our neighborhood, boys as well as girls have tea-sets. They enjoy using them for "pretending" as well as for serving fruit juice and cookies to their playmates. My pal's collection—cops, robbers, soldiers, sailors, engineers and doctors all set—don't they?

It's foolish to think that just because a child is a boy he will never have to prepare or serve a meal. There's no excuse for a man to be helpless in the kitchen. If a parent can't handle the idea of a tea-set for a boy, let him call it a "chow-set" or a "mess kit."—Equal Opportunity Mother

Dear Equal Op: Mess! You have a point. Or with the chow sets or mess kits. But don't you agree "tea-set" sounds a bit drab?

Dear Ann Landers: Do you have room for one more letter from a mother who has discovered who found pictures of her late father in pornographic poses? I agree with you 100 percent. Let sleeping dogs lie. Let bygones be bygones. Let the past be forgotten. Let bygones be bygones. Let bygones be bygones. Let bygones be bygones

Education Board Endorses Provincial Study of Violence on TV

By BOB CARSON
Staff Reporter

BELLEVILLE — The Hastings County Board of Education here Monday night gave the stamp of approval to the provincial study of violence on television and looking into the impact of television and movie violence on today's society.

The board endorsed a resolution from the Halliburton Board of Education which calls for fourth series Ontario to petition the provincial government for the study and action resulting from the commission's work.

Belleville trustee Richard Williams said the board should table the resolution until the commission indeed recommends actual concrete action. He then said the board should either "endorse or reject the governments recommendations."

Stirling trustee Donald Williams said he approved the resolution fully but added he too enjoyed some of the violence he sees on television. "However, on minds less impressionable than mine it's different story," he added.

Richard Williams said there is no doubt there is a relationship between television violence and the increased violence in society. He said it's the remedial steps that are important.

Board vice-chairman Mitlam Graham objected to the resolution on the grounds that "the government had already done a study on this subject and if they looked hard enough they could find the results." The royal commission is being headed by former cabinet minister Judy LaMarsh.

Donald Williams told his fellow trustees he is concerned as both trustee and a parent about the amount of violence on television. "This would be an excellent opportunity to express concern," said Mr. Williams, referring to the resolution.

Richard Williams said the board "should put its full-weight behind any remedial solutions to this problem." The Haliburton County Board of Education has been seeking support from boards of education across Ontario.

Council Approves Longer Hours For Station Street LCBO Outlet

Here's bad news for bootleggers.

Belleville is to get a self-serve liquor store that will stay open long hours seven days a week.

And city police readily approve, city council was told Monday.

It won't mean another liquor outlet outside the city.

Plans of the Liquor Control Board call for converting its Station St. store — one of two in the city — to a self-serve operation. It will be open from 10 p.m. five days a week. Saturdays it will close at the present 6 p.m. closing time.

Council approved the change in hours, although the proposal drew a caution from Ald. Ben Corke.

The councillor said the project would make a difference in the number of employees needed and increase policing problems with the dangers of robbery and violence.

But Ald. Brian Knudsen said he had been informed the change would mean two or three additional workers would be hired.

And Mayor Robin Jeffrey said Police Chief Douglas Crosbie had indicated the change would create no problems.

"In fact, it would help in that there are a number of bootleggers in town," said the mayor.

In other communities where similar projects had been liquor stores.

The proposal was carried on a recorded vote.

Councillors Corke and Joe Cox voted against. Mayor Jeffrey and councillors Dever, Knudsen and Meeks approved the request.

Authority Gets $70,000 For Conservation Site

The provincial government has approved a grant-in-aid to the Lower Trent River Conservation Authority for the multi-use conservation area in Sheffield Township.

Sheffield borders Hungerford Township in Hastings County.

Among its plans, the authority proposed to create a protected area for rare species of cactus on the site. This is believed the only area in Ontario where the species grows naturally.

Total cost — including acquisition, legal, survey and appraisal fees — is estimated at $140,000.

Yardmen Centre Topic Of Special Meeting

A city hall meeting Friday will discuss the proposed Belleville Yardmen's long-awaited sports centre.

The scheme will involve discussions between city council, the Yardmen, and an official of the provincial government's lottery branch.

The session, a closed meeting, was arranged in Town council Monday by Mayor Robin Jeffrey.

The mayor later said the talks will deal with details of the scheme including what provincial grants are available. Such funds must be channelled through local government.

The session is a sequel of two recent meetings in Toronto between the mayor and provincial authorities.

The mayor said no problems were involved with the project — the major goal of a lottery run by the Yardmen.

Pedestrians A Hazard

Bellevillians are running traffic hazards by indiscriminately crossing North Front St. despite its heavy traffic flow, city council was told Monday.

Ald. Joe Cox said politicians trip that wandering back and forth across the street crossing vehicles to stop for them.

He queried if there was any means of educating the public to the fact there are no legal pedestrian crosswalks on the thoroughfare.

Balancing Act

The Belleville Arena was crowded Monday as the Garden Bros. Circus presented its show. Part of the troupe performing was The Sulo Sisters, a balancing and juggling act. After three shows, the circus travelled to Napanee.

Thousands Attend Jaycee Circus

The Garden Bros. Three Ring Circus made a one-day visit to the city Monday, sponsored by the Jaycees. Performing three shows, the first was a special showing for over 2,000 public school students. The second and third shows had close to capacity crowds.

Residents were presented with a variety of acts ranging from Tajana with her Nubian Lions and Royal Bengal Tiger; to Salami Dennis, whirling himself through a blazed fiery hoop while blind-folded.

The circus is in its 36th year on tour. This year they will be going to 118 different locales across Canada.

There are more than 70 members of the troupe working as performers and stagecrew. The oldest performer is 85-year-old Mrs. Hazelred of the Original Hazelred Family and the youngest being The Winn Brothers 13 and 15-year-old. The Garden Bros. Circus even has a local member: He is the Ringmaster, Richard Moffatt.

From here they will be travelling to Napanee and eventually to Montreal.

Council Briefs

Kinsmen Plan Air Show

Belleville's Kinsmen Club is planning an air show as the feature attraction for its annual Highland Tattoo next month.

The show, organized through CFB Trenton, will include a search-rescue display, parachute drop, low-level flyby by big Hercules transport aircraft.

There's also the possibility of a simulated mid-air refuelling demonstration, city council learned Monday.

Formal permission for such a demonstration is required from municipalities.

Ald. Meeks moved the permission be granted.

The tattoo is scheduled for the Quinte Exhibition Grounds June 22.

Road Funds on Way

The provincial government has approved the first installment of its annual roads subsidies for Belleville.

The first payment of $104,300 — 30 per cent of the total — has been endorsed for forwarding to the city treasury, city council learned Monday in a letter from Transportation and Communications Minister John Rhodes.

Longer Hours Rejected

A request from a Front St. businessman, that his bicycle sales and service operation be exempted from the city's store-hours closing bylaw was denied Monday by city council.

A report to council said the Belleville Downtown Association did not wish any change in the closing ordinance.

The request originally was made April 14 by G. J. Bongard, owner of Stephen Lillie Ltd.

Colden Joins Library Board

City council Monday appointed Mrs. Thomas Colden to Belleville's library board.

She will fill a vacancy created by the transfer of Mrs. Dorothy Brown, promoted to a new position in Oshawa by Canada Manpower.

ROM Seeks Advice

The Royal Ontario Museum (ROM) is seeking opinions from community groups on plans for expansion of the institution.

An invitation to city council from the ROM to participate in such input Monday night was directed to be sent from city hall to Marion Lewis, Hastings County Museum curator.

It is the ROM's first general invitation in 40 years, said the letter.

Land Study Approved

The latest move to organize a use study of the Potter property — the proposed recreation-conservation area west of Belleville — came at city hall Monday.

City council approved tentative terms of reference that could be used for commissioning consultants.

The terms already had been endorsed by the city's parks board.

Corke Acting Mayor

City council moved Monday to regulate changes necessitated visit to Lake—Belleville's by the upcoming friendship visit city-to West Germany.

Mayor Robin Jeffrey and several councillors are participating in the trip, a charter flight of Belleville's which leaves June 4.

For the interim Ald. Ben Corke, a veteran city councillor, was named acting mayor.

Council also advanced its — scheduled for June 9 — by next regular meeting one week to and Monday.

Lottery Gets OK

City council Monday gave permission to the Pelton and District Minor Hockey Association to sell lottery tickets in Belleville.

Prize for the prize — an automobile — will be held at Picton Nov. 1.

Subdivision Trips Over Curb Issue

Reg. Breault, (right) representing Breault Construction, met with Sidney Township council Monday searching for amendments to a water agreement that includes specifications for curb and sidewalk construction. The township is negotiating with Belleville for provision of services to the development property on the city's western fringe near Harder Drive. Mr. Breault contends the city has no business "dictating" the specifics of the project in sewer-water hookup and water lines. Reeve Gordon Wilman (left) said he is optimistic about the project and that paperwork should be concluded soon to permit building start up.

Newsmaker

James Auld, provincial minister of colleges and universities and guest speaker for the Loyalist College convocation here Saturday, noted how nice everyone was being to him. "There must be something you want to build," he commented.

Land Sale Approved

City council Monday moved to accommodate Belleville's two newest industries.

Council passed bylaws authorizing sale of lands in the city's two industrial parks where the industries — announced in the past month — will locate.

Under the agreements Fabricon Manufacturing Ltd. — wire and cable producer — will purchase about 30 acres in the Northeast Industrial Park. The cost set was $6,500 an acre.

Tri Glass Ltd. will be sold 4.32 acres for $27,139 in the Northwest Industrial Park. The company manufactures glass products for the transportation industry.

Family Debt Often Problem: Mayor

More Belleville families may be in need of counselling on their financial affairs than is popularly realized, it was indicated to city council Monday.

In fact, "there's a great need for financial counselling," said Mayor Robin Jeffrey. "It's amazing what's going on in the lives of some of our people."

But help for those in debt is already available, a city councillor added.

The Citizen's Bureau now is offering a counselling service on family credit problems, said Ald. Joe Cox.

The remarks were prompted by a letter from the voluntary Credit Counselling Service of Kingston which suggested city hall might be prepared to donate to its operation.

The letter threw some light on the extent of problems posed by families in debt situations.

The Kingston organization said it provides a service for families within a 70-mile radius, and Bellevillians are among those who have sought its advice.

Since 1966 it has been involved with 989 families whose total indebtedness exceeded $2 million. In that time it has arranged with creditors of repayments of more than $242,000.

The service disengages for families to repay debts while striving to bring order to their affairs.

Council took no action on the letter after Mayor Jeffrey said a counselling service was available in the city.

Four Seasons Protests Nearby Train Noise

Freight trains are loaded with problems as far as one of Belleville's major hotels are concerned.

The complaint comes from the Four Seasons Hotel and was aired at city council Monday.

The problem is noise — caused by hooking of freights at unprotected level crossings in the city on the Canadian Pacific Rail Lines which run close to the hotel along the Bay of Quinte shoreline.

Christopher Davies, hotel manager, recently wrote Four Seasons vice-president Fred Eisen that he was "appalled" by the "prolonged hooking."

The hotel has a major accommodation contract with Bell Canada which operates training centre on the premises.

Mr. Davies wrote Bell executives say they get an average of six complaints a week about the noise.

He's also sure other hotel guests will "never return."

In fact, one guest refused to pay his bill because of the noise.

In forwarding his manager's complaint, Mr. Eisen reminded council Four Seasons Ltd. is presently considering an addition to its Belleville establishment. He said he did not suggest the noise would be a decisive factor not to proceed. But it would obviously mean fewer rooms would be rented and increase the number of visitors leaving the city dissatisfied.

Mr. Eisen offered to appear before council personally.

Police Identify Body Found in Trent River

TRENTON — Trenton police have identified the body of a woman found in the Trent River Monday as that of Adelise Bernier, 38, of 66 Dundas St. West.

The woman's body was found floating in the river early Monday by a Canadian Tire Corp. employee off the store's breakwall.

Police say the cause of death will be determined upon completion of an autopsy.

A change purse and a pair of slippers were discovered on a dock behind the store about 60 feet from where the woman's body was recovered. Police say it "possibly" provides the woman's entry into the river north of where the body was found.

Police are continuing their investigation and at present do not suspect foul play.

Pay Raised

Payment for service on the Belleville Parking Authority was raised by city council Monday.

Council approved a bylaw increasing the honorarium of the Authority's chairman from $454 a year to $600. Pay for Authority members was raised from $240 to $300.

Solandt Report Ready

— tabled in the legislature May 5 and the result of lengthy hearings on often-controversial proposals — can read a summary report in the city clerk's office, city council was told Monday.

The report, by a committee of a standing committee on Ontario Hydro's Lennox generating station to Oshawa is now available at city hall.

Any persons interested in reading details of the report

Bardon Unbeaten in 3

Bardon Supplies remained the only undefeated team in the Quinte Fastball League after Monday night action at Aleshire Park. Bardon kept its perfect record intact by hanging Trenton Anger Men's Wear its first loss of the season.

The Supply team pushed across the winning run in a 3-1 game, in the bottom of the second extra inning. Wayne McConnell's second double of the contest drove in the winning run. Bardon is now 3-0.

In the first game of the twin bill, Devolin Motors picked up its first win after a pair of reversals, extending Ellis Juniors' lose streak to three straight with a 5-0 victory.

Don Holoway's struck out six hitting. Holoway struck out 11 and walked two while fashioning his tidy effort.

A walk and sacrifice preceded McConnell's clutch double in the ninth inning of the nightcap, sending Anger's Bob Swan down to defeat and giving Ken DeMille the pitching win.

DeMille outdueled Swan on a solid four-hitter, fanning 14 and walking only two. He finished with a six-hitter. He retired 19 on third strike and walked four.

Al Ferguson tripled home Anger's lone run in the top of the first inning. Bardon got it back in the bottom of the fourth and that was it until the ninth.

McConnell had his two doubles and both Bardon runs batted in to lead the winners. DeMille checked in with a double and a single. Rob Wallwork doubled and Ron Weese slapped a single to round out the Bardon attack.

Ferguson's triple and a double by Joe Theriault were the big hits for Anger's. Ted Cornell and Dave Lott each collected a single.

Scoring all their runs in the bottom of the second inning, Ameliasburg A's nipped Consecon 3-1, Monday, in Prince Edward North Shore Softball League play.

Winning pitcher Gary Eardley gained the nod over loser Art Keller. Eardley allowed four hits, struck out two and walked one, Keller limited A's to three hits while issuing four and walking two.

Ken Burkholder, Gil Nisbet and Bill Cannons shared the winners' hits.

Stan Clarke collected two Consecon safeties while Ted McDonald and Lionel Adair each had one.

Karate Enthusiasts Busy in Competitions

Though karate is yet a fledgling in the nest of Belleville sports, city representatives have already left their marks on the province.

"I think the sport has developed so quickly because more and more people are becoming educated as to what it is real-ly about," said Black Belt Studio instructor, Steve Morton.

"It's not what everyone sees in the movies," added Nelson at Karate Studio instructor, Lonnie Dawes.

Though both belong to different associations and both teach at different locations on Front Street, the two karate pros attended their respective Ontario championships on the weekend.

Morton, who has only held classes for a few months, took one of his students and participated himself in the Black Belt Studio provincial championships. He placed first in Senior Kata (form) and second in fighting. His student, John O'Connor, came fourth in Kata.

While Dawes did not compete in his association's championships, 27 of his pupils did. The sport has grown rapidly enough that he feel competition is the only way left for his students to improve at a comparably rapid enough rate.

One of his students, Ron Gray, took second place in Intermediate fighting.

In women's Kata, Marlene Tomaty placed fourth.

Steve Morton, Black Belt Studio karate instructor, displays the fruits of his sweat and labor — a trophy for first place in senior Kata and one for second place in senior contact fighting. He captured the trophies at the Black Belt Studios Ontario championships on Sunday.

Constellation in Groove And So Are The Lenders

Constellation Carpets and the Lenders proved something in the Belleville Industrial Softball League, Monday, but Post Office and CNR couldn't pass a thing.

Chalk up win No. 5 for the Constellation squad. Ken Ferguson did it in spite of the Carpetmen showed they're not about to sample the grape of defeat by keeping their perfect record intact with a 5-3 defeat of Maud Johnson. Keith kept the winning habit by posting the victory.

And Lenders just can't get ruling. They took their fifth straight loss as Brooke Bond powered its way to a convincing 15-3 win.

The Post Office-CNR match up finished in a 1-1 tie with the Pualies recording a triple play in the process.

Keith put the Constellation win on a seven-hitter. He struck out nine and walked two. Fred Davis was the loser, allowing nine hits while fanning two and walking five.

Wayne May hammered a pair of triples for the winners. Blaine Mullins poked a triple and a double and Neil Gorrell bagged a pair of singles.

Terry Maud homered were Jim Woods, Mark Reid and Charlie Rowbotham with a double apiece.

Bob Wiedyka's double plated CNRs only run as the Trainmen jumped in front in the first inning. Ron Ellis plated the Postjer run with a timely single in the fourth. And that was it.

Brian Plante worked the first six innings for CNR with Perry Soule coming on to strike out the side in the seventh. Plante fanned one, walked six and was nicked for seven hits. Both were strong in the clutch. Pualies left 13 men stranded on the bases.

Norm Lockhart went the distance for Post Office. He limited the CNR swingers to just three hits while putting third strikes past seven and walking five.

Lockhart and Tugnett each bagged a double and a single for Pualies. Bob Duvall, Williams and Jim Murray took care of the CNR hits.

Brooke Bond took command early in the game with Lenders. It was 11-3 after two innings.

John Maloney took over Lenders' pitching for the final two innings and was impressive. Doug Mitchell, Bob Marr and Ed Dawson shared the duties in the first five innings.

Tues St. Jules went the route to get the win, throwing a seven-hitter. He fanned seven and walked three. At the plate, he led the way with a double and a single. Ron Stratton and Lou Rivers each wheacked up a pair of singles.

Rob Wilkes and Dave Weldman collected two singles each for the Lenders.

Who's in Goal for the Sabres?

BUFFALO (CP) — For the first time since the 1975 Stanley Cup playoffs, Buffalo Sabres face elimination and right now the biggest guessing game in this city's which goaltender coach Floyd Smith will start in tonight's game.

Rene Robert

French Line Disconnected

By: AL COLLETTI

The Canadian Press

The humiliation of one-sided defeat was too much for Rene Robert to take. His French Connection line had been disconnected.

Philadelphia Flyers bounced Buffalo Sabres 5-1 Sunday, and if they repeat tonight in Buffalo, the Flyers will remain Stanley Cup champions.

"I hate losing a game like that," said Robert. "It's not the money. It's the pride. You know you can win and you don't win."

All of Robert's frustrations were wrapped into a few moments of bitter comments before the journey back to Buffalo for the sixth game in the best-of-seven National Hockey League final. The Flyers lead 3-2.

"I don't know what we can do," said Robert, hoping the line will click tonight despite the close checking by the Flyers.

The French Connection in Buffalo's pride and joy, a line that scored 121 regular-season goals, and added 999 assists for 295 points.

Robert at right wing, Gil Perreault at centre and Rick Martin at left wing blazed through the playoffs against Chicago and Montreal with 14 goals in 11 games. But they haven't been able to overcome the Flyer checking on Philadelphia ice.

The Sabres have yet to win a game there since they joined the league in the 1970-71 season.

Coach Fred Shero couldn't have done a better job disconnecting the wings of the French Connection than if he had been a master plumber. The Flyers held them to Martin's one power-play goal in winning their three home games.

The Flyers were geared to handle the French Connection in particular. Shero had all the films he needed of Sabre action and set about the unbearable task to his players, detailing what to do and not to do.

"He's got to be doing something because they're playing two lines against us," said Robert. "We had three bad games in Buffalo."

Against the Flyers, Robert was one goal in five games. Martin two and Perreault one.

Maybe it would be better to break up the French Connection tonight?

"I'm not the coach, I'm just a player," said Robert bitterly.

If Robert was completely disillusioned, his linemate, Martin, hadn't given up yet. Martin said that while the line hasn't scored the goals it should have, it has been playing a strong defensive game against the Flyers, allowing only one goal.

That has helped prevent the Flyers from making a runaway of the series.

Martin said he felt "pretty hurt" coach Floyd Smith will leave the French Connection intact for tonight.

Jocelyn Guevremont, the big Buffalo defenceman, said he felt with the shift game so crucial to the Sabres, it was time for Smith to make some changes.

"I think he should try something different," Guevremont said. "Not breaking up the French Connection. I don't even say that. Maybe changing the matchup of the line."

People seem to forget the French Connection has improved defensively and contributed to this series, Guevremont said. "They have only one goal scored against them which is very unusual for those three guys."

But, as Martin said, "our job is to score goals."

"I think any one of our three goaltenders can win the game," Smith said before the Sabres' 45-minute workout. The three decoies, goaltenders Jo Daigneault, Roger Crozier or Gary Bromley.

Bromley, who played for Smith in Cincinnati in the American Hockey League, action has not seen action since March 26.

Aside from the goaltending parade, Smith said the Sabres are healthy, which includes captain Jim Schoenfeld, who took a slap shot in the groin in Sunday's game at Buffalo, and will be back in the lineup.

Schoenfeld practised with the rest of the Sabres Friday. Rick Dudley and Fred Stanfield were out on the ice Sunday was recycling treatment for a groin injury while Stanfield, who is still being bothered by an ankle injury, skated in the sixth game of the Sabres' semi-final against Montreal Canadiens.

The Flyers are seeking to become the first team to win the Stanley Cup championship in consecutive years since Montreal did it in 1968 and 1969.

"The toughest game to win is the last game," said Flyers forward Terry Crisp. "We're looking for a tough hockey game.

"We know in order to beat them that we have to come out with a few quick goals and then hold them off. We have to keep taking it to them. We can't lay back."

The Sabres came from behind in both their victories here, spotting Philadelphia a 2-0 lead in the first period of the third game before winning 4-2 in overtime, and a 3-1 lead in the second game before rallying for a 4-2 victory.

"We went to sleep," said Crisp. "It's sad mistakes in a little leery knowing we blew two games. I mean we really blew them.

"I'm not taking anything away from Buffalo. They came back hard and fought. But we shouldn't have to go for the regular rein when we get a goal or two up."

But if Smith has his way, the playoffs will be stretched three more games at Buffalo's game in Philadelphia on Thursday.

"I'm taking it, he, have notching left if we can get back to game. We've been in holes before and we've got to do it and we have to win now. We have to play as long and as hard as they can because there's no tomorrow."

Tonight's game will be televised on the CBC national network, starting at 8 p.m. EDT.

NBA PLAYERS MEET

RIO DE JANEIRO (AP) — More than 100 players from 17 clubs in the National Basketball Association met here Monday to discuss new tactics in their collective bargaining contract due to expire June 1. Larry Fleisher, chief counsel for the 200-man NBA Players' Association, said the players discussed developments on a U.S. court suit the association has filed "against the use of the last reserve clause, common draft and other restraints violating anti-trust laws."

Montreal Quebecois scored six straight goals in just over seven minutes in the second period on the way to a 9-3 romp over Philadelphia Wings in one of two National Lacrosse League games Monday night.

The victory boosted the Quebecois into a first-place tie with Maryland Arrows. Each club has 18 wins and five losses in 23 games for 39 points.

In other action, Long Island Tomahawks grabbed a share of fifth place after a 17-11 victory over Quebec Carbone. The Tomahawks and Boston Blazers each have eight point, but the Long Island club has three games in hand.

Nick Delmonico's second goal of the game at 8 minutes gave the Quebecois into a 5-5 tie at 10:19 of the second period and the home club fired five more goals by the 12:23 mark to take a 10-5 lead after 46 minutes.

John Davis scored the goal and added five assists before 6,401 Montreal fans, while Ken Winnell, John Mitchell and Dale MacKenzie each matched Delmonico's three-point output. Singles went to Bruce Arena, Gerry Pauley, Jim Nunn, Jim Lynch and Bill Sheehan.

Tom Marshall, Jim Richbell, Terry Lloyd and Ken Grant added two apiece.

Ali, Mrs. Namath Will Tell It All

NEW YORK (AP) — Joe Namath's mother and Muhammad Ali have decided to "tell it all" in two books which soon will hit the American literary scene.

Rose Namath Sminoff discloses in Namath, My Son Joe that just as much as football Namath likes "peace and quiet" and also "loves to stay at home."

Muhammad Ali, in The Greatest: My Own Story, tells of being a bicycle thief who threw his Olympic gold medal into the Ohio River.

The American Booksellers Association held two news conferences Monday—within minutes apart—for Joe's mother and Ali to discuss the books, scheduled for release in September.

Nothing in the book will embarrass the New York quarterback, who turned down a $4-million deal from the Chicago Wind, because "there is nothing to be embarrassed about," she said.

3 Stampeders In the Fold

CALGARY (CP) — Calgary Stampeders of the Canadian Football League announced today the return of veterans Don Moulton and Joe Pisarcik, and the signing of rookie defensive back Mike Stubbs.

Moulton, six foot, three inches tall and 190 pounds, is a graduate of the University of Calgary and is starting his fourth year as a Stampeder. A defensive halfback, he was Calgary's No. 1 draft choice in the 1972 Canadian college draft.

Pisarcik, six feet, three inches tall, and 225 pounds, took over the quarterbacking job after Peter Liske was traded to B.C. Lions last year. He directed Calgary to win three of its last four games. A graduate of New Mexico State University, he was a second-round draft choice of Philadelphia Bell of the World Football League.

Stubbs, five feet, 10 inches and 185 pounds, is from North Carolina State. He was an all-conference selection in 1972 and 1973 and was North Carolina's top punt returner in those two years.

BOWA, MADDOX OUT

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Philadelphia Phillies said Monday night that shortstop Larry Bowa and centre fielder Garry Maddox have been put on the disabled list and both will be lost for about two weeks. Bowa, last year's starting National League all-star shortstop, broke his left thumb diving back into first base on a picked attempt in a baseball game Monday night. Maddox, acquired recently from the Giants, hurt his hamstring Saturday night in Cincinnati breaking in to cover second base on a run-down play.

Injuries Hit Phillies

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Philadelphia Phillies, who were expected to have become bitter National League rivals Ted Sizemore's Dodgers, two weeks ago when they signed shortstop Dick Allen, quickly dropped out of contention Monday night after the loss of two key players.

The Phillies said shortstop Larry Bowa and centre fielder Garry Maddox were not expected to stay on the disabled list about two weeks.

Bowa, who was hitting .327, broke his left thumb on a foul tip late in the 11th inning of a game Monday night against San Francisco Giants. He stayed in the game and scored the only run in a 2-0 win over the Giants.

Maddox, a recent acquisition from the Giants, suffered a knee injury in a game Saturday.

Monday's other National League action saw Cincinnati Reds sweep a doubleheader 4-0 and 5-4 over Montreal Expos while Chicago Cubs defeated Atlanta Braves 8-6, New York Mets defeated Los Angeles Dodgers 4-3, Pittsburgh Pirates whipped Houston Astros 12-1 and San Diego Padres beat St. Louis 3-1.

LARRY BOWA

Louis Cardinals 8-6.

Bowa was hit on the thumb by pitcher Ed Halicki's attempted pickoff throw in first. But Bowa took second on the throw and came home when third baseman Ed Goodson missed Allen's ground ball.

Bowa went to hospital after the game for examination and it was discovered the thumb was broken.

He was about time we won one," Allen said of the game which snapped the Giants-Phillies losing streak and broke the Giants' seven-game winning string. "Never mind how we won it, I'll take it."

The unearned winning run followed a brilliant performance by Halicki, 3-1, who went the route by striking out 10, giving up only five hits and at one point retiring 21 consecutive batters.

Manny Trillo's slump-breaking home run knotted of a five run fifth inning for Chicago and Ray Burris pitched a five-hitter as the Cubs Chicago whipped Atlanta and snapped a five game losing streak.

Pinch-hitter Wayne Garrett blasted a three-run homer in the ninth inning, giving New York its victory over Los Angeles and previously unbeaten Andy Messersmith. Messersmith, 7-1, had allowed only one hit since the third inning.

Pittsburgh's Bruce Kison pitched a five-hitter and Willie Stargell hit a two-run triple and a bases-empty home run, leading the Pirates over Houston.

Willie McCovey's game-long single started a three-run rally in the ninth inning as San Diego beat St. Louis.

Sun Hides on Renko And the Sky Falls In

CINCINNATI (AP) — A little cloud helped Cincinnati Reds' longest winning streak of the season Monday afternoon.

Johnny Bench unloaded on a slider hung by Montreal's Steve Renko for a grand-slam homer, giving the Reds a 5-4 win and a sweep of their National League baseball doubleheader.

"I had been impatient all day," said Bench, who stepped in with the bases loaded. "I thought if I could wait and get something I wanted, I'd try to hit it out of the park."

"The sun went behind a little cloud just before that," explained Bench, who also had added by brilliant sunlight and murky stadium shadows, "had to go to sleep."

Bench connected for his sixth career grand slam, tying him for the Reds' all-time club record.

The Reds won the opener 4-3 when veteran Wonder Fryman's base-loaded balk pushed in the go-ahead tallyer.

The sweep moved the red-hot Reds to within two games of first-place Los Angeles Dodgers and thrust Bench into a share of the league leadership in home runs and runs batted in.

A Memorial Day crowd of 25,... 694 rewarded the 27-year-old Bench with two rousing ovations as Cincinnati ran its home record to 19-4.

It was Bench's 10th homer of the year and boosted his RBI total to 21.

He tied Vada Pinson, who had

six in 11 years with the Reds. Bench is in his eighth season.

Expos manager Gene Mauch responded by locking the news media out of the locker-room between games.

The twin killing gave the Reds a six-game victory streak and their seventh triumph in the last eight games.

For Montreal, it was the fourth loss of a taloon. The Expos have lost eight of their last nine games.

The Expos blew a 3-2 lead in the first game and Renko was working on a two-hit 4-0 shutout in the second game when the Reds scored five runs in the fifth inning.

Fryman, who hasn't beaten Cincinnati since 1968 and is 1-11 over-all against the Reds insured three successive walks in the seventh inning to allow the Reds to tie it.

Then facing rookie Ed Armbrister, he was charged with a balk, by plate umpire Andy Olsen for interrupting his delivery.

"The ump said 'that's a . . . then he hesitated," said Armbrister. "Just when I thought he had changed his mind, he added 'that's a balk.'"

Reds manager Sparky Anderson concurred.

"It was a balk," he said, adding that it appeared Fryman was confused over a sign.

Frank Robinson Gets His Message Across

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Cleveland Indians wanted to boycott their American League baseball game Monday night. Instead, they got a pep talk from suspended manager Frank Robinson and then went out and whipped California Angels 9-3.

The expected boycott was to protest Robinson's three-day suspension. And before turning the reins over to coach Dave Garcia, he asked his players to "play as hard for Dave as you have been for me."

Elsewhere in the American League, Oakland A's beat Baltimore Orioles 6-5 in 11 innings, Boston Red Sox outslugged Texas Rangers 7-5, Kansas City Royals defeated New York Yankees 6-5 in 11 innings, Chicago White Sox beat Milwaukee Brewers 4-3 and Detroit Tigers defeated Minnesota Twins 6-2.

Coach Tom McCraw said Robinson's pep talk "was nothing dramatic." But the Indians, who had dropped 23 of 28 starts, battered four California pitchers for 13 hits, including Charlie Spikes' first home run of the season.

"We played the game exactly as if he was here," said Garcia, who hit the ball and was got the runs. It was just easy. Everything we don't always play that way."

On the flight to California, the Indians, in a show of unity led by pitchers Tom Buskey and Dave LaRoche, chartered a bus to the league office stating they would join Robinson in citing out the suspension he drew for a bumping session with umpire Jerry Neudecker in a game May 17.

"I'll make me feel good and I am deeply touched," Robinson said, "but there was no way I could let them send the petition."

Oakland's Gene Tenace drove in his fifth run of the game with a two-out single in the 11th inning. It was Baltimore's fifth consecutive setback and ninth in 10 games and dropped the Orioles into last place in the AL East.

Tenace, who knocked in Oakland's first four runs with a single and a three-run homer, delivered his game-winning hit off Doyle Alexander following two-out singles by Joe Rudi and Angel Mangual. Phil Garner also homered for the A's.

Dwight Evans' tie-breaking two-run homer in the eighth inning capped a late-inning exchange of home runs and enabled Boston to open a 1½-game lead over Milwaukee in the AL East.

Evans' fifth home run of the season came off Texas reliever Steve Foucault, who also yielded a three-run homer to Bernie Carbo in the seventh when the Red Sox scored four times and erased a 3-1 deficit.

Frank White's single squeezed home second Jim Wohlford with an unearned run in the 11th inning capped a late Kansas City rally that beat the Yankees.

Chicago's Bucky Dent and Brian Downing hit consecutive two-out homers off Jim Colborn in the ninth inning. Dent's first home run of the season broke a 3-3 tie and Downing followed with his third.

Home runs by Don Mayer and Aurelio Rodriguez backed the six-hit pitching of Vern Ruhle as Detroit ended the Twins' four-game winning streak. Both homers came in the first two innings off Bill Campbell, a relief specialist, who was making his third major league start and first since 1973.

How to save money at our expense.

Money makes money. It's a simple fail-safe idea.

Put it into one of the many Commerce savings accounts, and you'll always collect the benefit of interest.

The question is, are you collecting the maximum interest?

The person who can answer that, is one of our over 1600 Commerce managers. Because it depends on your particular requirements.

Take a for instance. A Chequing Savings Account only earns you 3 3/10 calculated on the minimum half-yearly balance. So the idea is to keep your balance low there, and take some of your surplus funds and put them somewhere else.

Maybe into a Savings Account where they'll collect 6½%, calculated on the minimum monthly balance. Or perhaps a Term Deposit. Or Growth Savings Certificates. Maybe even a Commerce SMART registered savings plan so you can also benefit from the income tax deduction.

We think now is the time to make the most of the money you have. At our expense.

So talk to your local Commerce manager. We don't think there's anybody in the world with so much money he doesn't know what to do with it.

But if there is, send him to the Commerce.

IT'S YOUR MONEY. MAKE THE MOST OF IT.

Bitter Memories? Not for Chuvalo

TORONTO (CP) — George Chuvalo grimaced when someone mentioned that a fellow named Chuck Wepner fought Ali twice for less than half that. The first time I got $25,000. The second fight gave me my top payday — $60,000."

The remark suggests the 37-year-old Chuvalo has some regrets about a career in which he fought 81 times. And who can blame him?

He never came close to winning the world heavyweight championship. He never got a shot at the Commonwealth crown. And his main claim to fame was his durability. He was never off his feet.

But Chuvalo is not a man to spend much time letting about regrets.

"Along the way there were a few good ones for $40,000 and $60,000. I was grateful."

What's more, his considerable intelligence is intact, unaffected by the relentless punishment he endured in his long career.

While punch-drunk former pears are living on rundown farms, like Sonny Liston near Queen Street, Chuvalo resides in a fashionable part of Toronto where the houses sell for six figures.

He is a partner in a company called the Georgian Group which invests in real estate and mortgages.

ABC's Wide World of Sports has recognized his ability as a boxing color commentator on television and he has been offered a chance to work in that capacity in the 1976 Olympics in Montreal.

All of which has earned him enough so that last year he could pay cash for a backyard swimming pool, "escaping the rat race to a cottage every weekend."

Chuvalo and his wife Lynn have five children—Michael, 15, Steven, 14, George, 12, Jesse, 10, and Vanessa, 7.

George Jr. is the only one of the four boys with more than a passing interest in boxing. The boy trains at Sully Sullivan's gym and gets tips from his dad. But George Sr. knows the kids aren't going to follow his example.

"In boxing you are just a piece of meat. No middle-class kid is going to have that. You have to be poor, like I was. It's still very much a science for the underprivileged."

Hockey is the boys' No. 1 love.

Your Horoscope

By BERNICE BEDIN OSOL

Wednesday, May 28

Be cautious with your good psychic energies today. Those who would deceive you (i.e. you're fooled) will be sorry later.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Doubtful situations will be made more informative from other sources. Don't allow her to sit on the problem side today.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Your best course again today is to stay in arm's length from situations that are not your direct concern. Don't worry, you'll hatchet-whom are needed.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Today and today is great where your reputation or image are on the line. A thoughtless gesture will leave a poor lasting impression.

Body Heat Used To Warm House

COPENHAGEN (Reuter) — An experimental new home, partly derived its energy sources from the body heat of its occupants, is Denmark's latest technological contribution to energy-saving efforts. Among the first bodies to offer it heat was that of Queen Margrethe of Denmark. She and the visiting monarch from neighboring Sweden, King Carl Gustaf, inspected the house during a visit to the Danish Technical High School.

The single-story, six-room house draws 20 per cent of its energy from the sun via TV screens of a heat-absorber plate on the roof. But its real innovation is its method of heat insulation and a "heat recovery system."

These enable the house to use as energy sources as heat from electric lights, television sets, kitchen appliances and human bodies. All these provide 80 per cent of the heat energy.

The full oil-free system provides an average of 77 gallons of hot water a day, even in winter months when the sun barely rises over the Danish horizon.

HEAT WATER HOT

A heavily insulated, 1,000-cubic-foot storage tank under the house maintains a minimum water temperature of 43 degrees Celsius (110 F.) in winter and up to 86 degrees in summer.

The sun's energy is captured by a 64-square-foot plate attached to the slanted glass roof of the dwelling. A glass-encased area separating the two rectangular living areas of the futuristically designed house.

An electric pump circulates increase hot water around the plate. Warmed in repeated temperatures, the water is then pumped through radiators in air ducts running along the ceiling. By this method, cold air sucked in through the air ducts from outdoors is warmed up.

The ducts maintain a constant flow of freshly heated air, bringing indoor temperatures to a comfortable 21 degrees, despite near-freezing weather outside.

A sliding door in the glass roof at the atrium can be left slightly open to keep the temperature from rising higher.

The solar energy collector, which automatically shuts off when the sun is not shining, is a type of technology developed in the United States but extensively adapted to Denmark's climate.

Under the heat recovery system, designed by Danish engineer Vagn Korsgaard, a professor at the Danish technical high school, the cold, warm air that has already circulated through the house is sucked back into the air ducts and used to heat up fresh outdoor air.

Windows are equipped with insulated shutters that can be closed at night to stop heat escaping. The heating system is balanced to ensure equal use of solar and other energy sources. It included a small auxiliary electric machine that keeps constant track of heat consumption and calculates how often doors and windows are opened.

A young couple with two children have been invited to move into the house this autumn for a year on a day-to-day basis under customary living conditions.

Korsgaard's system may go a long way towards freeing Denmark from its dependence on oil, virtually the country's sole energy source.

The average family house in Denmark uses about 800 gallons of oil annually. Price increases last year caused the country a record balance-of-payments deficit of $1 billion.

It is unclear, however, when the house will appear on the market. Estimates place current costs, including complete with heating system, at about $13,000.

See if you can figure how expert South managed to go down at three notrump (WE) give you one chit. East and West were also experts.

Now for the play. South held off twice with the ace of hearts. He discarded a diamond from dummy and East dropped the four of diamonds.

Then came four rounds of clubs. East got rid of another diamond on the fourth club. He could do this with no worry because West had thrown the 10 of diamonds on the third one.

East's two diamond discards were important since he could not have afforded to throw a spade. But the key and winning discard was the card West held second on the last club. He hang on to the master card in the diamonds and threw one of his good hearts.

Now East had a spade, fumbled the jack, cashed dummy's ace of spades, noted the fall of the queen from West, thought a while, counted the hand carefully and came up with an original holding of three spades in the West hand. Clearly the third spade was the 10 rest so East led a spade to [illegible] for his eighth and last trick.

To Your Good Health

Hernia Operation May Bring Woes

By G. C. THORSTEON, MD

Dear Doctor: I am 68 years old and have just had a diagnosis of a hernia. Should I have it operated on, or can I delay the operation a year or so without too much risk? What precautions should I take in the meantime? Should I wear a support, certain kind of clothes?

How should I handle the situation?—Mr. M.V.A.

Until you see your doctor again and explain what you are lifting and straining at stool.

Delaying necessary surgery could be courting trouble, and only your doctor can determine whether surgery is necessary and how much of a factor time is.

The hernia can become larger, and it could strangulate, further damaging the bowel. Two times in the area. In spite of improperly attended to, the hernia could create a rather nasty situation for you.

A support can give temporary relief for a small hernia, but at 68 it is only a partial answer and can be a troublesome nuisance, especially in the hot climate where you live.

Your general health would be a factor, too, in deciding upon surgery, especially at your age. But the other side of that question may dictate immediate surgery. Time might be on your side in any delay.

I am surprised the possibility or urgency of surgery has not been discussed with you. It may doubtedly will be during your next visit to the doctor. The sooner you settle the matter the better.

Dear Dr. Thorsteon: I have a rectal bad case of acne which is concentrated mainly on my face and neck. I wash my face at least three times a day and I am taking tetracycline capsules. How effective is the tetracycline?

I watch my diet carefully but. I feel it getting better. It is a condition actually has me worried a little. Do you have any suggestions?—K. F.

Tetracycline is often used effectively in some cases of acne. Small amounts of the drug suppress inflammation of the sebaceous glands.

The coming sunny summer months should bring you some relief if you continue with your good skin hygiene and with the diet your doctor recommended. Often, there is a tendency for overtreat acne without giving the skin a chance to adapt to the natural sunlight. Sunlight is a good therapy for some conditions actually has improved a little. Do you have any suggestions?—K. F.

Dear Dr. Thorsteon: When the price of sugar went out of sight, I decided to try a sugar substitute.

Two of my diabetic friends told me saccharin is the safest only if a doctor prescribes it. I'd be grateful for your opinion.—V.S.

Sugar substitutes are quite all right for non-diabetics. However, diabetics should probably avoid them. Most of the artificial takes contain about 90 per cent carbohydrates, which diabetics generally avoid. It is for this reason that they should not use the substitutes without consulting their physicians.

Genesis Quotation Overruled

TORONTO (CP) — A former California narcotics officer Monday lost an appeal against a nine-month jail sentence for growing marijuana.

The Ontario Court of Appeal rejected an appeal by Jack Brabener, 38, of the Kirkland Lake area. He already has spent six months of the nine-month sentence in jail.

Brabener's appeal was based on the Bible—Genesis, Chapter 1, Verse 29—which states: "And God said, Behold, I have given you every herb bearing seed, which is upon the face of all the earth, and every tree, in which is the fruit of a tree yielding seed; to you it shall be for meat."

Brabener contended that the passage is God's word and the Criminal Code should not interfere.

During his trial last year, the court overruled Luke, Chapter 20, Verse 25, which states: "Render therefore unto Caesar the things which be Caesar's, and unto God the things which be God's".

Brabener, a member of rural commune, appeared in court Monday in a white T-shirt with the lettering "Legalize Marijuana—Chapter One."

In 1969, he was convicted in California of possession of marijuana.

The federal immigration appeal board now is reviewing his immigrant status.

Given 2 Years

WHITBY, Ont. (CP) — Mr. Justice Elton Halnes of the Ontario Supreme Court sentenced Edward McGaughey, 23, of Oshawa, Ont., to two years less a day in penitentiary Monday in connection with a shooting incident in Oshawa.

McGaughey pleaded guilty April 21 to a charge of possession of a dangerous weapon in connection with the incident last Jan. 31.

Several shots were fired at an automotive centre from a house directly across the street.

Insurance Head

TORONTO (CP) — Sidney Hendleman, Ontario minister of consumer and commercial relations, said Monday Murray A. Thompson has been appointed superintendent of insurance and registrar of loan and trust companies for the province.

Mr. Thompson joined the ministry in 1968. He is a graduate of the University of Toronto and Osgoode Hall law school and has experience in legal and financial matters.

Award Made

TORONTO (CP) - A Welland, Ont., woman who organized a spring clean-up campaign in her community received the Environment Ontario Award of Merit on Monday.

Judy Van der Meer was presented with the award by Environment Minister William Newman.

More than 8,000 Welland residents participated earlier this month in the campaign to gather litter.

Robarts Gets Less

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario government is paying former premier John Robarts less to head a royal commission on the future of Metropolitan Toronto than it is paying Judy Martin to study violence in the media.

A senior government official said Mr. Robarts, who started being public submissions last week on the way Toronto is being governed, is being paid $45,000 a year as a one-man royal commission — $100 a day for about $50 working days in the year.

Miss LaMarsh, paid $250 a day to head the royal commission on violence, would make $62,500 if she worked a full year on the study.

Retain Forms

TORONTO (CP) — Consent forms for donation of human organs after death should remain attached to new Ontario drivers' licenses, the ministry of transportation and communications said Monday.

The ministry said in a new release a number of drivers have mistakenly detached the forms and mailed them to Queen's Park.

It is next to impossible to trace drivers who have mailed in their consent forms because they contain no return address, ministry officials said.

Anyone who has mailed in the form can obtain a replacement from any driver examination centre or ministry office in Ontario.

Use Flashers

TORONTO (CP) — Heavy trucks will be directed to use four-way flashers as they climb grades on highways 400, 401 and 69, the Ontario ministry of transportation and communications said Monday.

No Decision

TORONTO (CP) — Treasurer Darcy McKeough said Monday the Ontario government has reached no final agreement about borrowing Arab oil funds to finance expansion of Ontario Hydro.

He told the legislature the province still is negotiating and is looking at other money markets.

Mr. McKeough said he visited Europe last week and found the province has "several options open."

The treasurer said any borrowing outside Canada would likely be on behalf of Ontario Hydro rather than for general funds for the government.

Hydro has estimated it will need $22.8 billion to finance expansion plans to 1982.

Welcome Waiting

MOSCOW (AP) — Two cosmonauts docked their Soyuz spacecraft with a research station which has been circling the earth for five months, climbed inside the ghostly ship and found a welcome sign left by previous residents. Tass news agency said Monday when Soyuz 18 commander Pyotr Klimuk and engineer Vitaly Sevastyanov climbed aboard the Salyut 4 orbiting laboratory shortly before midnight, they encountered a sign inside the door: "Welcome to our common home." The description was left by the Soyuz 17 cosmonauts, Alexei Gubarev and Georgi Grechko, who returned to earth Feb. 9.

Today's Consumer Is Distrustful

TORONTO (CP) — Today's consumer is sceptical and in many instances distrustful of the food business, Mel Mc-Ivor, a professor at Toronto's York University, said Monday.

As a result, the consumer tomorrow will be pragmatic, organized and unpredictable, said a seminar sponsored by the Grocery Manufacturers of Canada.

He said that "the picture of the friendly man behind the meat counter is dimmed each time he turns out to be neither friendly nor there."

The promise that a supermarket "really cares" is undermined each time the shopper is hassled by phony production, out-of-stocks or interminable check-outs."

He cited rich groups as the consumers Association of Canada and government-sponsored complaints-handling agencies such as Box 99 and media programs to solve consumer complaints as examples of the consumer concern.

"These types of organizations could have implications for the food industry," he said. "And this could lead to a role of consumer advocate, public ombudsman and market reformer as consumer views are mobilized."

News Missed

TORONTO (CP) — Harry Boyle, vice-chairman of the Canadian Radio-Television Commission, says the Canadian mass media are too concerned with political and national issues that they often miss what people are doing for leisure and in outlying areas of the country.

Government Fails Business Must Lead

TORONTO (CP) — The president of Bristol-Myers, Canada, said Monday the federal government has failed as leader in the fight against inflation and business now must accept the role.

Robert McNair told a seminar sponsored by the Grocery Products Manufacturers of Canada that because of an energy crisis, inflation and labor strife the country is in its most serious situation since the depression of the 1930s.

"At this precise moment, no one has any real understanding of how we are going to get out of this mess," he said. "Most critical fundamental issues are solved, the stop-and-go, short-term approach is ludicrous and doomed to failure."

He said that people are afraid now, as they were during the depression.

"People fear for their jobs when thousands of industry employees have already been laid off and they fear their financial resources won't keep up with prices," Mr. McNair said.

"Senseless bickering" between federal and provincial governments over resources should be ended and a national energy policy should be established, he said. "Until we can come to grips with the cost of energy we will not totally come to grips with the cause of inflation."

Mr. McNair said the federal government tells the public management and labor to show restraint without demonstrating any itself.

Canadian-made Cars Have Defect Also

TORONTO (CP) — A spokesman for General Motors of Canada Ltd. said Monday if a safety defect exists in the power brake system of certain GM cars manufactured in the United States, Canadian-built models would also be affected.

The U.S. transportation department said Sunday it has tentatively determined that a safety defect exists in some 1969 through 1979 GM cars.

The alleged defects are found in the power brake vacuum check valves, supplied by the Delco Moraine division of GM, the department's National Traffic Safety Administration said. It said failure of the check valves might lead to loss of the power brake assist feature.

J. R. Hamilton of GM Canada said he believed the same components were used in manufacturing both Canadian and U.S. GM models in question but did not know how many Canadian cars might be affected.

The U.S. safety agency estimated that more than 10 million vehicles originally equipped with these vacuum valves are still in use.

Faulkner Denies Grits Split On Time-Reader's Digest Bill

OTTAWA (CP) — There is no serious split in the government caucus over the Time-Reader's Digest bill, State Secretary Hugh Faulkner said Monday.

The 40 members of the governing Liberals have been opposed to the government's bill to end special tax privileges for advertising in the Canadian editions of Time and Reader's Digest. The bill also affects advertising on United States border TV stations broadcasting in Canada, for small foreign-owned newspapers nationally and a few small periodicals.

Mr. Faulkner said in an interview that he does not think any more of the 140 Liberal MP's will break ranks.

"Even the Liberals who spoke against the bill — I expressed concern privately about it possible implications and I think we can deal with that in committee."

He blamed the Progressive Conservatives for the bill's rocky legislative progress. It was introduced in the Commons April 15 and probably will not travel far on the path to legislative approval until late in the fall.

Neither Mr. Faulkner nor Mitchell Sharp, government House leader, would predict when the bill will be back in the House for debate. It was debated Monday, then dropped for an unspecified time.

"We have a lot of legislation to get through and the Opposition parties are stonewalling us," Mr. Faulkner said.

Mr. Sharp accused the Conservatives of delaying the bill "because they do not want to declare themselves."

"They are trying to put off the inevitable," Mr. Sharp said in an interview.

But Conservative House Leader Gerald Baldwin said the party will be solidly against the bill when it comes up for second reading, the formal approval in principle.

Party information is that there is a cohesive and caucus split on the bill and that "we are doing all the drag he can," said Mr. Baldwin.

A number of Liberal backbenchers were opposed to the bill when it came up. Them have been kept quiet.

"It's hard to predict whether the Liberals will keep on fighting or drop it," Mr. Baldwin said.

Liberal Ralph Stewart (Cochrane) recently raised the possibility that the bill will be withdrawn. He said a number of Liberals oppose the bill.

Stewart (Lac-Saint-Jean-Kingsway) recently issued a statement opposing the bill and suggesting the government is "being used by a small but vocal Toronto-based anti-American clique." It also would "abrogate the right of advertisers to use free enterprise system to select the media through which to advertise."

Harald Herbert (L—Montreal Vaudreuil) has said the bill almost certainly would end the French-language edition of Reader's Digest.

"If we believe in the objectives of the bill, we may get a situation whereby Time will disappear and when we should be killing it and Reader's Digest will be trying to continue although it is the better of the two corporate citizens," he recently was quoted as saying.

About 30 employee-owners of Harpell's Press, operated as a co-operative in Mr. Herbert's riding, are engaged in printing the French edition for Reader's Digest.

The Conservatives continued to hammer away at the bill in the House Monday.

Douglas Neil (PC—Moose Jaw) opposed the bill because "you cannot legislate culture." "Culture has to evolve with time."

Sinclair Stevens (PC—York Simcoe) said press freedom will be jeopardized if Parliament approves the bill. He criticized the government's power to decide "who should be treated as a Canadian magazine."

"We are getting into difficulty when the government states that magazines should have a content that is some arbitrary way meets the requirements of the department of national revenue."

A Canadian magazine is defined for tax purposes as one having content "in a way considerably different from a foreign magazine. Those with less than 60 per cent Canadian content are regarded as foreign and the government will make individual decisions on publications falling between those figures. It also must be 75-per-cent Canadian owned.

Heath Macquarrie (PC—Hillsborough) questioned whether the bill is the best way of achieving "a healthier Canadian in the realm of publications."

"I have always been wary of anything that looks like the erection of maple leaf curtain along the 49th parallel."

Davis Ducks Havrot Queries

TORONTO (CP) — Premier William Davis ducked questions from Opposition members and reporters Monday about whether the Progressive Conservative party he heads will continue to support Ed Havrot (PC—Timiskaming) in the next provincial election.

Mr. Havrot, renominated Sunday by his local riding association, was first last week from his post as chairman of the Ontario Northland Transportation Commission for derogatory remarks about Indians.

Replying to questions in the Legislature, the premier told Opposition leaders to "worry about" their own candidates.

He later told reporters he had no comment to make about the Timiskaming candidature.

Opposition leaders were quick to respond with sharp criticism.

Publisher Will Sue

TORONTO (CP) - A Toronto publishing and educational testing company said Monday it will sue the London, Ont., board of education for copyright infringement in a case involving computer retrieval of test material.

Thomas Nelson and Sons (Canada) Ltd. said company lawyers have been instructed to launch the suit this week in Ontario Supreme Court.

Evel Knievel Is Hurt

LONDON (AP) — Evel Knievel hit the dust at 100 miles an hour Monday night accepted the claim of his aides that he had set a flying motorcycle mark of 140 feet.

"In two or three days, Evel may well reconsider the decision not to ride again," said his publicity man.

Air Fare Increase Okayed

OTTAWA (CP) — The third-day increase in air fares increase by Air Canada and CP Air in two years was cleared by the Canadian transport commission Monday.

The commission left untouched the higher fares filed by the two national airlines last month. The increases take effect today.

Air fare increases submitted by Pacific Western Airlines and Eastern Provincial Airways (EPA) also were allowed to stand and will be effective today. But the commission rejected an EPA proposal to reduce fares on St. St. Anthony, Gander and Charlottetown-Fredericton routes.

The commission said that those routes are already subsidized by the government and taxpayers should not have to pay even more to operate them. The higher rates affected by Nordair, Quebecair and Transair were not contested by the Nordair and Quebecair increases will be in addition to EPA proposals to reduce fares on St. St. Anthony, Gander and Charlottetown-Fredericton routes.

Overpayments To Farmers Recovered

OTTAWA (CP) — "A very high amount" of overpayments made to wheat farmers last year has been recovered, Otto Lang, minister responsible for the Canadian wheat board, told the Commons Monday.

He rejected suggestions from Paul Yewchuk (PC—Athabasca) that letters advising farmers of the overpayment had been held up until after the July 8 general election.

"Many farmers received the letters before the election," said Mr. Lang.

Mr. Yewchuk had asked whether it is still government policy to collect the overpayment from farmers.

The minister said the money is being collected by usual collection procedure.

Democrats Unhappy

Tax on Oil Imports Is Doubled by Ford

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Democrats who control Congress are criticizing President Ford's latest actions to force up petroleum prices, but they can't guarantee the votes to substitute their own energy program.

As a result of the president's action, announced in a national television broadcast Tuesday night, the price of gasoline is expected to increase by at least 1.5 cents a gallon nearly immediately. And if Ford has his way, the price will go up another six cents or more over the next 18 to 24 months.

The president chided Congress for failing to approve a broad energy program, as he recommended in his State of the Union message last January. Therefore, Ford said he will:

—Impose a second $1-a-barrel tariff on imported oil, effective June 1. Although the tariff is designed to reduce consumption of foreign oil, the extra $1, like the previous $1 tariff, also is likely to be added by oil companies to the 40 per cent of domestic production that is exempt from price controls. This would mean an extra $25 million a month in oil company profits reflecting both dollar increases. Ford also has proposed a windfall-profits tax on all producers.

—Levy a 60-cent-a-barrel tariff on imported petroleum products, such as gasoline and heating oil, also effective June 1. The effects of this increase will be felt most in Hawaii and on the East Coast which are heavily dependent on oil refined abroad.

—Send to Congress next month a plan for removing federal controls from domestic oil prices, probably over the next 18 to 36 months. Such a move, which could be blocked by Congress, would raise consumer prices for petroleum products by at least six cents a gallon.

In addition, Ford administration officials say they expect exporting countries to raise the cost of their petroleum products by 10 to 15 per cent this autumn. Such an increase would add up to 1½ cents to a gallon of gasoline made from crude imported by the U.S.

Ford said he had delayed the tariff increases in March and April after congressional leaders had "promised to come up program better than mine." But Congress had failed, in four months of try'ng, to pass an alternative plan.

Democratic legislators said the higher petroleum prices would set off a new round of inflation and further dampen the economy, while Republicans said the failure of Congress to act left Ford no choice.

Henry Jackson (D-Wash.), chairman of the Senate interior committee and a key influence in energy matters, said the president's scheme to force energy conservation by driving up fuel prices would cost the average U.S. family $600 a year. The burden would fall most heavily on the poor and middle-income groups.

The Democrats "haven't done anything to encourage the importation of foreign oil," said Carl Curtis, ranking Republican on the Senate finance committee. "They do not seem to recognize the danger to our economy in permitting domestic production to go down and increasing our dependence on foreign sources."

Meanwhile, Al Ullman (Dem.-Ore.), chairman of the House of Representatives ways and means committee, predicted ultimate approval by Congress and the president of his group's conservation package.

That plan would raise the tax on gasoline used for pleasure driving by as much as 23 cents a gallon and impose a stiff tax on gas-guzzling cars.

And freshmen Democrats in the House and key Democrats in the Senate are opposed to that concept, while House leaders are just as skeptical of a Senate-passed bill imposing mandatory fuel-conservation standards on the states.

Despite loaded majorities in both the House and Senate, it appears doubtful that Congress can impose any energy program that does not have Ford's approval. Democratic leaders would be hard pressed to put together the two-thirds majorities needed to override a veto.

Third World Aid Vital: Kissinger

PARIS (AP) — U.S. State Secretary Henry Kissinger said today international conditions must accelerate their economic growth to help the Third World—or face dangerous and destabilizing political pressures.

"Economic development is not an inner-central political issue," he told the 24-country Organization for Economic Co-operation and Development (OECD).

Kissinger said the 1973 oil embargo is an example of "misused economic power" that threatens the political stability of the West.

He said the United States will resist "blic pressure tactics," but also will try to accommodate the interests of developing countries.

"Any nation, with a moral claim to world leadership—as well as the sheer weight—must contribute to easing the plight of the poorest countries. For who can deny that every economic problem—inflation, inflation, high energy prices, food shortages—hits them hardest?"

Meanwhile, Algeria gave a cool response to Kissinger's proposal Tuesday for the creation of consultative discussions on raw materials and special problems of developing countries.

Under his proposal, such commissions would operate separately from any future international oil conference. But Algeria indicated it would not accept this division, saying the other raw materials with less bargaining power.

The official Algerian news agency said the proposal "proves that the U.S. still is trying to manoeuvre to dominate not only the countries of the Third World but the Western industrialized as well."

Kissinger was offering "an American solution taking account of only America's interests," the agency said.

The Algerian government radio said Kissinger and the 18-member International Energy Agency (IEA) still want discussions on oil only.

Ford Off To Europe For Talks

WASHINGTON AP — President Ford, embarking on his first European mission since taking office, said today he goes as a representative of "a country and united American-American democracy with its allies, to safeguard our vital interests."

"The United States seeks international co-operation not confrontation," the president said in a statement prepared for delivery before leaving on a six day journey to Brussels, Madrid, Salzburg, Austria and Rome.

"I pledge to work unstintingly to advance our common interest with Europe as part of a bourder efforts to achieve better co-operation with 81 countries," Ford said.

The U.S. "is equally determined to reduce the chances of conflict, to increase co-operation and to enhance the well-being of Americans and all peoples.

"I am confident that each step and each meeting will contribute to these objectives."

In Brussels, the first stop, he will join State Secretary Henry Kissinger for a two day NATO summit. There he plans informal meeting with leaders of all 14 NATO countries. French President Valery Giscard d'Estaing does not plan to attend the summit, but will meet with Ford in the Belgian capital.

Mackasey, Union Leader Have Different Views

OTTAWA (CP) — Post-master-General Bryce Mackasey said Tuesday regular workers, who returned to work Tuesday morning in Montreal after a one-day sick-in, showed indications they were ready to work at a "reasonable pace" with casual, non-union workers to clear up mail backlogs.

But a spokesman for the Canadian Union of Postal Workers, national vice-president Jean-Claude Parrot, said in Ottawa that Montreal mail sorters were escorting casual workers off their jobs Tuesday in the past, even though they were being watched by riot-equipped police.

In another development Tuesday, the union applied to the federal public service staff relations board for appointment of a conciliator.

The appointment of a conciliator is not one of the necessary steps required under the law applying to bargaining for federal employees, before workers can legally strike. However, Mr. Parrot, says the union wants to put pressure on the government to get contract talks moving especially on the technological change issue.

Mr. Mackasey told reporters the recent one-day protest by workers in Montreal and other centres in which union members booked off sick were illegal and the employees could not be paid.

He said it would be their responsibility to prove they were ill before they would receive money. Union officials argue the onus of proof is on the employer to prove workers are not sick.

Davis Calls on Turner for Expansionary Budget

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont. (CP) — Premier William Davis, calling on federal Finance Minister John Turner to put forth an expansionary budget next month, Tuesday announced formation of a special committee to "study the ways and means the province at its disposal can use its level of expenditures."

He told the annual meeting of the Ontario Chamber of Commerce that sound government "requires a continuous review not only of the efficiency of all programs, but of the continuing effectiveness of established programs."

Representing the private sector on the committee, which will report to cabinet in the fall, will be Maxwell Henderson, former federal auditor-general, Robert Hurlbut, president of General Foods Ltd., and Toronto broadcaster Betty Kennedy.

Ontario Treasurer Darcy McKeough will act as chairman. Other members include Eric Winkler, employee of the cabinet management board, and Rendall Ick, James Fleck and W. A. B. Anderson, all senior deputy ministers.

Mr. Davis said the provincial government has held spending to a minimum, given escalating demands upon it to expand services, "but the pattern is there. Some is not that the demands will not lessen; on the contrary, they are bound to increase.

"Looking to the future, I believe action is necessary now to find ways of ensuring that these demands will not 'become an unnecessary burden on society.'"

The premier said Ontario is doing better than its trading partners and better than most of its provincial partners in spending restraint, but "but we should not find too much solace in that fact."

Groom with a View

Janet Whyte Arscott and her husband Bob Arscott pose as the bride's father, Jack Whyte photographs the newly married couple on the restaurant level of Toronto's CN Tower, 1,150 feet above the city. Jack Whyte, assistant project manager of the tower, took the bride and groom aloft after the wedding and photographed them in their finery plus the required hard hats and safety boots.

Touching Is Believing

Scott Barry, a member of the Ontario Wolf League, touches the nose of Mori, a two-year-old timberwolf. Students at Harmony Public School Tuesday had an opportunity to pet this animal, which belongs to an endangered species. Members of the League travel more than 100,000 miles a year showing the film Death of a Legend to school children in an effort to change public opinion about wolves.

Building Maintenance Bylaw Likely to Get Fall Study

By COLIN BRUCE
Staff Reporter

City residents will likely have to wait until next fall to see Belleville's revised edition of a municipal minimum maintenance bylaw, Mayor Robin Jeffrey said Tuesday.

The subdivisions liaison committee — composed of members of council and representatives of the Quinte Home Builders Association — met Tuesday to thresh out 36 items of home builder complaint.

The central criticism of the document drafted by city manager Wilbur Purcell is that it attempts to cover maintenance standards for both residential and commercial structures.

Because different standards are required for residential and commercial structures and because regulations pertaining to each are dispersed throughout the document, home builder Reg Brassil said, "it's difficult for the average person to determine what his responsibilities are in respect to this bylaw."

City alderman Ben Corke, chairman of the committee, said a preamble to the document explains what areas apply to each building division but that council would consider segregating housing from other building areas in the proposed bylaw.

Mayor Jeffrey said comments from the meeting will be studied by city staff and, if necessary, the bylaw will be revised.

The basic document, first proposed some months ago, is an amalgamation of similar documents from Kitchener, North York and Scarborough.

The mayor said a special meeting of council will be held in June to give the proposed bylaw a final screening before public meetings will be called, giving individuals an opportunity to speak on the bylaw.

She said "likely, the public meetings will have to be held in September once the holiday period is over," giving all residents a fair chance to comment on the document.

Several community agencies and civic departments have been asked for input and these comments will also be given the final editing of the bylaw, said the mayor.

Once passed, the bylaw will serve to ensure buildings are maintained in a safe, clean condition. The bylaw will be enforced by the city's building inspection department.

Laotian Students Release Americans

VIENTIANE (AP) — Student demonstrators ended their occupation of the United States compound in Vientiane today, freeing two marines and an American civilian who had been confined for a week during anti-U.S. demonstrations.

The three appeared to be in good condition as they emerged under an agreement in which U.S. authorities bowed to demands for an end to U.S. Agency for International Development (AID) mission by June 30.

Sgt. Donald Wilburn, 28, of Osgood, Ind., at first refused to roll up the metal protective gates of the building where he had stuck by his guard post.

"Everybody keep telling me I'm in open up except my boss," he said later, referring to the non-commissioned officer in charge of his unit. Wilburn finally relented for U.S. Charge d'Affaires Christian Chapman.

The other American released were Sgt. Roger Murphy of Gresham, Ore., and William Darden.

Darden was identified as a civilian electrician.

Along a corridor inside, Wilburn had spread an incendiary powder which he said would have gone up in thick smoke when lit.

Asked how he spent his hours of confinement, Wilburn took out a paperback Bible and thumped it on a desk.

Wilburn and Murphy, 22, jumped into a station wagon and drove off to get their first regular meal in a week.

Authority to Examine Purchase of 411 Acres

FRANKFORD — Lower Trent Region Conservation Authority officially will soon look into a possible purchase of 411 acres of land on an island in the Trent River west of Glen Ross.

The property is adjacent to an existing conservation area — the 350-acre Keating site.

Directors over the weekend approved the land ended here Tuesday with an agreement to turn over initial negotiations for the property to an authority selected board.

Authority secretary-treasurer Bill Lawson told the executive the authority may not be able to buy the land this year because of budget limitations.

He suggested the authority negotiate with owners Ray and Ralph Keating for a longterm option to buy and long-range financing of a purchase.

The Keating brothers own two separate parcels that include about 125 acres of agricultural land, 200 acres of woodland, and the remainder of marshland.

The land has approximately five miles of shoreline and was termed an "ideal conservation property" by authority vice-chairman Russell Sills Tuesday.

He said purchase arrangements initially broached by the Keating brothers were reasonable, as was the asking price.

It was agreed the authority would make an attempt to knock some dollars off that price.

In opting for a long-term option of purchase, the authority executive recognized potential difficulties involved if a sizable portion of the $37,000 set aside for property acquisition in the 1975 budget was used. Mr. Lawson said part of the funds may still be put to use on the Proctor House property in Brighton. An executive decision still pending.

Purchase Contemplated

Litter on Main Street Angers Picton Mayor

PICTON — Picton mayor Donald King this month stressed the importance of a clean town and urged action against weekend littering but Main Street on Monday morning still reflects litter bugs at work.

At the regular session of town council held May 6, Mayor King observed that Streets of the town are in very poor shape on Sunday morning.

"I want Picton to be a clean town," he added.

Mayor King has spoken to the chief of police asking that anti-littering bylaws be enforced.

He has also addressed the Prince Edward Chamber of Commerce urging co-operation from merchants in an effort to tidy town streets. Businessmen endorsed his suggestion.

Monday morning a new business directory erected on the lawn of the Armory Mall showed evidence of pranksters at work as litterbug had been transgressed. Newspapers and other debris littered the lawn where grass and weeds are thriving uncut.

Across the street in front of the post office two new signs designating five minute parking have been wrapped around the heads of the parking meters.

A beer bottle was tossed against the curb as a footnote to the weekend.

Many Main Street store fronts, however, were swept clean, however, in keeping with Mayor King's appeal for a cleaner town.

Picton police chief Charles Fletcher says no charges of littering have been laid so far this month and describes this offence as "a very difficult one to nail".

He observes paper, in particular, can be dropped without ready detection of the litterbug.

"We are more interested in beer bottles," he adds.

Chief Fletcher notes the bottles are seldom tossed from a car in view of police unless motorists are attempting to dispose of evidence.

He says police officers try to curb littering with papers and bottles but suggests the problem is a chronic one that usually begins when parents permit their children to drop papers without stopping them. As the children grow older their disregard for protection of their environment surfaces with more serious littering.

Dry Spell May Kill Newly-planted Trees

FRANKFORD — General technologist Jim Keleher told conservation officials Tuesday he expects the mortality rate among young trees planted in Cramahe Township this year to be higher than the normal 10 to 15 per cent.

He attributed the higher death rate to an "abnormally" dry spring.

The tree-planting program was undertaken as a pilot project by the Lower Trent Region Conservation Authority this year. At a total cost of $1,500, between 40,000 and 45,000 red pine and white spruce were planted on 50 acres of land in north-central Cramahe.

All trees were planted by last week on five separate 10-acre plots at the headwaters of Cold and Salt Creeks.

Mr. Keleher told the authority executive the program has been embraced enthusiastically by the landowners. He said he has been asked for small signs with which to post the planted areas "to warn snowmobilers that there are young trees planted in the area".

The program is aimed at cutting down soil erosion during run-off periods and siltation of stream beds, as well as stabilization of creek water flow.

Results of the pilot project are not expected for some 10 years when the trees will have grown enough to provide some drainage and water control.

Park Conduct Improving

OUTLET PARK — Robert Davison, superintendent at Outlet Provincial Park, says there is an "overall improvement in conduct" at the park this year and attributes the change to closer surveillance by the park's law enforcement officers.

During the recent Victoria Day weekend, everything "went very well" he reported, despite the fact that the park was filled with young families and individuals were turned away.

Future of Greenbelt Worries Authority

FRANKFORD — Conservation officials here fear Trenton council's recent move to stop land purchases in the town's greenbelt is motivated by a desire to use project funds to buy another property in Trenton.

Lower Trent Region Conservation Authority chairman William Carter said here Tuesday he fears the greenbelt project will "go down a sidewalk". He expressed concern that it would never be completed if funds were diverted.

Conservation Area Board chairman Art Wartman told the authority executive that Trenton has verbally requested the authority to use part of funds alleted for greenbelt purchases on another property.

He recommended no action be taken on the request until the authority knew where it stood legally.

The undiscussed parcel of land is reportedly valued at $100,000 and is available only as both study a map Tuesday of a possible authority land purchase on the Trent River. Executive committee member Art Wartman studies the map outlining the Keating property west of Glen Ross that is up for consideration.

this year. The dollar figure represents a major chunk of the $117,500 set aside in the authority's 1975 budget for greenbelt acquisitions. Trenton provides $33,250 as its share of greenbelt costs.

Mr. Wartman said he fears the town could in future return to the authority again and again and ask for diversion of funds and "nothing is left for the remainder of the authority".

Discussion over Trenton's intentions Tuesday was prompted by talk of plans for a meeting in mid-June. Then the authority and Trenton council will sit to chart the future course of land acquisition.

Property purchases from roughly south of the I.G.A. Supermarket on Front St. were from May 1 when council requested an indefinite curtailment.

At the time, Mayor Bob Patrick said the move was taken to permit council to reassess its possession in face of possible involvement by authority in land purchases.

CORTS (Canada - Ontario Rideau-Trent-Severn advisory committee) has indicated it will become more deeply involved with development in the Trent River Valley.

White Chapel Opens For Special Services

PICTON — Worshippers will meet Sunday, June 1 at 3 p.m. at the White Chapel for an anniversary service maintaining this historic Prince Edward landmark as the oldest building of Methodist origin in Ontario's tenth community for church meetings.

The congregation of The Old White Chapel was established in 1792, the year following the death of John Wesley, founder of Methodism. The chapel itself was erected in 1809 and has been maintained essentially in its original state since that date.

A provincial government plaque erected on the chapel grounds in 1959 confirms the little church as an historic site.

It was constructed on land donated by Stephen Conger, a Loyalist from New Jersey who settled with his family in Hallowell Township in 1787.

The White Chapel was the first Methodist Church in Prince Edward County and one of the earliest in Upper Canada. Built by William Moore and financed through local subscription it has been maintained as a place of worship longer than any other church of Methodist origin in the province.

Although regular service have not been held there for many years, once annually on the first Sunday in June an anniversary service is conducted.

This yearly service is popular not only among local residents but with many out-of-county persons who return to Picton especially to attend. A small burial ground at the rear of the church contains the graves of many of Prince Edward's pioneer settlers.

This year's service will be conducted by Reverend Robert Gowen of Picton United Church.

His Birds Control Pests

WEST LAKE — In an era of insecticides, at least one man still relies on Mother Nature for insect control.

Since erecting apartment houses for purple martins in his back yard, Douglas Caley, West Lake, says he no longer has a need for sprays or other insecticides. Mr. Caley has four acres of asparagus and he says the annual attack by the asparagus beetle has ceased to be a problem. The population of mosquitoes on his premises, he adds, is almost nil.

"It's far better than wasting money on sprays", comments Mr. Caley.

The purple martin, famous for its colonial habits and predation on flying insects, is a common swallow in Prince Edward County.

Canada's Labor-Management Split Shows Parallel with the United Kingdom

By JOHN D. HARBRON

Foreign Affairs Analyst

Thomson News Service

Perhaps the best way now to assess yet again the slow British descent into the abyss of economic disarray is to compare the British plight with our own.

On the surface, there doesn't appear to be much reason for making the parallel, except that many important activities within the present Canadian domestic economy look enviously like those of Britain in the mid-1960s.

With our 11-per-cent inflation is comparing to the British rate of more than 20 per cent, we appear to be on the same road, if further down it, from the British.

The kind of events which paralyzed the British in the growing inability of management and labor to agree on almost anything except they both need wide increases to be their slice of the economic pie.

The Canadian labor movement made by post office union leaders, and by Canada's many walkouts, that their members will "look off side" involved in the policies in the British unions beginning in the 60s and continuing until now.

One wonders if the only reason industrial workers in this country have not used the tactics as so well by the British, or used it because we don't have it in Canadian unions.

As for Canadian management, they have followed their opposite numbers were swayed by the British business and managerial press of Britain at a distance.

It sounds like the private grousing that goes on today in the select clubs where Canadian industrialists gather.

Industrially speaking, we are indeed on the same dismal road as Britain, delayed only because we have applied Keynesian policies of cyclical and anti-cyclical budgeting ten years behind Britain.

But "boom-or-bust" is implicit in Canadian economic policy-thinking. If there is an alternative, we presumed it was Canadian economists in government and industry would find it. However it is socially speaking where the rub is. It becomes perceptibly and tragically in Canada, it is way not unlike Britain of the 60s.

When various elements of society can't agree on what is reasonable to each other, especially when a concerned politician attempts to make them do so, the slide has begun.

Prime Minister John Turner's highly-commended efforts to get something new and innovative from labor and management largely failed. That failure wasn't all his fault, of course.

It is a sense of national responsibility about economic and our status which we lack and which the British also have let slip from them.

Even the politicization of the professions, the campuses and the unions show parallels with Britain. It begins with the union movement has a social ranked élite different in context, but identical in purpose to the politically, hard-line unions of Britain's Trades Union Congress.

What is lacking at the political level is the slice down the middle between the Tories and the Tories who believe—growing state control are dangerous and trade union intransigence are evil and British Labour has left the first is essential and the second is a lie.

The NDP (our socialist party), pays some lip-service power. Nor may Canadian Tories for a long time the way they are going. But British-Tory issues which can spin a nation are here just the same.

Sporting Facilities

The Belleville Yardmen have a circular in the mail informing householders that plans for the Quinte Sports Centre are "progressing favorably."

The Yardmen envisage the project being ready for use early in 1978. Facilities will include an ice surface suitable for both hockey and figure skating. Also in the plans are facilities for outdoor tennis, bowling, skating, a playground, as well as an indoor pool and gymnasium.

With the circular there is a form listing these and various other potential facilities and citizens are asked to list their preferences. These include such provisions as a gift shop, restaurant, community hall, and squash courts. Alternative membership proposals are also listed.

Meanwhile, the on-again-off-again saga of another municipal arena for Belleville has come to the fore again.

Council is talking once again about such a possibility, regardless of what the Yardmen do. It should be remembered though that much of what the latter's concept incorporates is of the kind a municipal arena might envisage also. Duplication should be avoided, unless it should be determined there would be a demand for similar facilities in both.

The cost factor will be a vital one in whatever is planned at the municipal level. But there is the future to consider; any such complex would be for this as well as ongoing generations. In these circumstances, half-measures would not be enough.

In any event, the psychological moment in this matter has come. Council must take it from here.

Bank Robbery Reflects Rise In Crime Rate

The bank robbery in Stirling was the second involving a small community in these parts in recent years.

There was the one in Consecon a few years ago and the suspects in that one were picked up in Vancouver. They had reached the end of the line, but it showed just how potentially successful such a robbery could be.

It is a lesson for banks wherever they are located, to be watchful. Good work by local citizens was responsible for setting police on the trail of the Stirling robbers.

The public at large must be on the alert also, not to mention the police. Prime Minister Trudeau, who maintained his "soft" line on capital punishment when he was in Belleville last week, might do some more thinking on the subject, especially with the release of preliminary statistics for 1974 which show that the rate of violent crimes increased by 5.7 per cent in Canada over 1973.

Putting a Spoke in It

Members of Hastings-Prince Edward separate school board have been asking themselves a question that has a parallel at the national level.

Can a handful of employees disrupt government and board policy, to the decriment of the majority?

It appears janitors in the board's employ object to working on nights such as Mayor Tom Ryer thus making it difficult for the board to permit community use of schools, say for a dance.

And the question in the minds of some board members' is, is it effect: "Who is in charge here — the board of the janitors?"

One member suggested hiring a cleaning service if the janitors did what they want to work, but then, who is going to pay for that? Certainly it should not be laid at the door of separate school taxpayers.

More and more today, it is every man for himself.

A Career in the Civil Service

Ottawa Journal

The last people to believe that the British public service was not the best in the world would, one would have thought, be British. Well, the Economist, at least, apparently thinks that the French may just be better off than that. What is wrong with the British civil service is that its its elitist recruiting system," the Economist says in an article defending that system, "but the late retiring age and the lack of swapping between the civil service and private business."

The article continues:

"Ask the French. They recruit and train the very brightest and they recruit them to move out of public service into the business world at a relatively young age. Prince manages to run a brilliant government machine along the way. There is a place for powerful, clever civil servants, particularly in a time of political turmoil. There is no place for dunce ones, who simply entrench the power of the civil service without actually using it to good effect, either either good ministers or bad."

The trouble in Canada is that some of the best public servants do move out into the business world at a relatively young age and never come back.

Farm girls of Hastings County are active in garden brigade work according to H.F. Ely, agricultural representative who states that 26 girls have signed in for brigades. Each girl agrees to plant and take care of a garden.

Achievement days will be held for each brigade when girls will display fresh vegetables and canned vegetables from their gardens.

Local collectors awaiting the new regular series of postage stamps expected to be issued by the postal department at Ottawa on June 1, will not be able to procure them until about Thursday. The new stamps from 1 to 5 cents, with the exception of the 4 cent one, will contain the picture of King George in uniform. The ten cent one, the picture of a Royal Canadian Mounted policeman; the 13 cent one, the picture of the Confederation Assembly in 1864; the 20 cent a picture of Niagara Falls; the 50 cent a picture of the Parliament Buildings, Victoria; the 6 cent a picture of Alsmall Flight; the 20 cent a Special Delivery Express and the 10 cent a picture of the Champlain Monument. ## Paper Recycling Curbed

Editor,
The Intelligencer:

Mr. Peoples's distress at the cancellation of the Belleville paper pick up for recycling is understandable. It is a shared undoubtedly by many other communities who have been placed in the same position, and I felt perhaps even more keenly by many paper mills whose lack of orders has forced them to curtail drastically their purchases of paper for recycling, adopt a shorter production week and consequently lay off a number of their employees.

This is absolutely no point in blaming the Ontario Government and the Ministry of the Environment. Factuately, both bodies realize that it is impossible to legislate the greater usage of paper for recycling if the consuming mills have no orders for which the recycled fibre can be used.

The greatest users of paper for recycling are the "board" mills, i.e. those who are primarily engaged in the production of paperboard for the packaging industry. These mills are virtually 100 per cent recycling mills for recycled fibre. In other words, they use little or no pulp. Mr. Peoples will agree that it is difficult to improve upon 100 per cent usage.

Mills engaged in the production of other types of paper, e.g. the papers, corrugating medium, etc. are already using as much recycled paper in the production of their product as is technically feasible. There is little or no improvements in this direction.

It is regrettable, unfair and untrue to infer, as Mr. Peoples does, that mills have suddenly decided that they prefer to "destroy the trees in the forests" rather than recycle. In fact, the statement borders upon the ludicrous. Given the ability to choose, it would be economic madness for paper mills to use virgin pulp, in preference to "secondary fibre", as paper for recycling is more properly known.

The blanket statement that "the pulp and paper industry have been allowed to poison our water and air and destroy our Natural Environment" is so exaggerated as to be barely worthy of comment.

While not being blameless, in common with other types of industry, the pulp and paper mills are spending great sums of money to correct those bad situations which have been permitted to develop.

Two points must be made clear:

First, any reduction in the usage of recycled paper by mills does not, mean a corresponding increase in the usage of virgin pulp.

Second, the current situation in the pulp and paper industry is a very real reflection of the current economic recession which is plaguing Canada, the United States and many other countries.

To ignore these controlling factors and to blame the situation on the paper mills is less than honest.

The current lack of demand for waste paper for recycling will be corrected when, and only when, the present economic recession is over and the mills are once again back in full production. Only the purchasing power of the consumer will achieve this reversal — not any legislation, regulation or conservation programs. The law of supply and demand is still the supreme controlling factor.

Lenin's Long-term Strategy

Editor,
The Intelligencer:

In 1921 Lenin wrote these prophetic words: "For as a result of my own personal observation I know of no other conditions, I must say that the so-called democratic Western countries Europe and America are not capable of understanding the contemporary state of affairs nor the real relationship of forces; we must regard these states as dead weight and accordingly . . . the capitalists of the entire world, and their representatives in the rush of conquering Soviet markets, will close their eyes to realities, and will that become blind deal with Soviets. They will open credit which will serve as a support for the Communist party in their countries and will provide us with essential machinery and technology essential for our future victorious attacks on our suppliers. In other words, they will be working to prepare their own suicide."

In 1967 Brezhnev said that "Detente should be construed as signifying a change in the fundamental objectives. Detente is simply a means of creating conditions favorable to the old end — the worldwide advance and ultimate victory of Communism." What he meant was that detente should be ended, not in the interest of peace, but because it hampers the "inevitable revolutionary democratic forces" which he says they are. He describes themselves even though they are a minority, representing the democratic but static and totalitarian.

Later he was questioned by two Irish journalists about his membership in the civil rights movement, which he acknowledged, and about his participation in the IRA, which he denied.

"After, they threw me in the truck and for the first time I was beaten by three or four men. Someone put a sack hard on the side of the head and I fainted.

"Next thing I knew, I was in the helicopter again. Then back to the truck and the same afterwards. I kept thinking, I'm beaten. I'll never be able to sit round the fire with my children again.

"The noise-room was unbearable. In the noise-room, fog-room was always freezing. Then they made me sit on the floor, legs out straight, with a sharp rod in my back so I couldn't move. That was worse than the wall. I could hear other people groaning and someone kept saying he was dying.

Suddenly after eight days, it ended. Shivers was told the authorities could "get nothing on us and it was time transferred to Crumlin Road Jail in Belfast.

Before leaving Magilligan, he was weighed. "I'd lost 13 pounds."

"On the way out they made me strip again so they could take pictures. I'm sure the worst of all because my whole body had shivvied to nothing. It hurt the most they had taken my manhood.

"We flew to the Crumlin Road in a helicopter, and but this time the Special (Special Branch man) came along too and he would not let his hand gently on my arm from time to time in the air. I was then though I hated his guts I was grateful."

In prison, Shivers kept trying to climb up the bars of his cell when he fell asleep and psychiatrists put him in a padded cell.

"Someone told me my wife was worried about me because nobody had told her where I was. But at the time I remembered my wife. I was in a dream. I'd wake up when she came to me, she faded."

Shivers has received almost continuous psychiatric care since he was released from Crumlin Road in October, 1971.

"If they came to me again, he said, "I'd try to run so they'll shoot me and then it'll be all over."

Ulster Detainee Won Damages But Hatred and Fear Were Sequel to Beating

By KEVIN DOYLE

TOOMEBRIDGE, Northern Ireland (CP) — In the spring of 1971, this sleepy County Antrim fishing village was a fairly peaceful republican stronghold.

Summer came and it had been dragged into the vicious sectarian barrens which pass for politics in what some commentators call the meanest corner of the British Isles.

The change began at 5 a.m., Aug. 9, when British soldiers and Ulster security forces first entered the houses of suspected terrorists through the whole of Northern Ireland with the power to hold these men without indictment and without trial if they thought it necessary.

Some were quickly released when they established their innocence. Some are still being held and — nobody knows is were how many—were tortured. Although the internment practice has been reduced, it remains perhaps the single greatest source of bitterness in the entire tragedy of Ulster.

One of the first men to be picked was 45-year-old Patrick Shivers, a local construction worker, Roman Catholic, father of five and husband of an epileptic wife.

His treatment by security forces later resulted in an out-of-court award to him of £15,000 ($36,000) paid by the Northern Ireland authorities and the British ministry of defence, ultimately responsible for Ulster security. It was one of the largest settlements ever paid to a detainee.

Neither Shivers nor Toomebridge has been the same since. Toomebridge seethes with anti-British hatred and Shivers is a shaken, worried bundle of nerves.

There is no way of authentically every detail of his description of the way he was treated. Some of his stories may be true, but some prisoners were brutally handled by soldiers and police by a British government commission. Shivers is not certain whether it was Ulster security police or British troops, or both, who manhandled him.

His case has been carefully documented by Amnesty International.

Shivers is extremely reluctant to talk to strangers. Only after lengthy persuasion would he consent to tell his story over a late-night beer in a dim, smoky room of Paddy Taggart's Hotel.

"That morning, Aug. 9, there was a heavy knock at the door. An English voice shouted for us to open up and 15 or 16 soldiers with guns raced into the house. They gave me my clothes to dress. There was no explanation. They ran for me, no time to say goodbye."

Shivers was taken in a truck to Ballykelly army camp in County Down where he was stripped and made to stand naked behind a blanket which kept him from view. He was later transferred to a cage named Magilligan with a number of others.

"Then I was given some stew and bit of bread. This was Tuesday, I think, and I hadn't had a bite since the first night, Monday, because the soldiers kept throwing slices at the roof and the police dogs kept barking at the doors. I was afraid they were going to send them to Someone kept firing water cannons through the window.

"The next morning I heard a Scottish voice shout: "Right, you, bastards, up."

A canvas hood was suddenly pulled over his head. He had been stripped naked earlier but now someone pulled some loose-fitting clothes on to him.

"Then they shoved me across a field and into a helicopter. I couldn't see anything. I'd never flown before. I was suffocating from the hood and I remembered pictures of people being thrown out of helicopters over the sea. We must have been up an hour and a half. Nobody spoke. I was afraid. I was afraid.

"When we landed I was tossed into a truck and driven back to an army camp. They stripped me again and a cold hood kept running all over my body.

"Then a terrible whining noise, like a generator, filled the whole room. Two of them shoved me up against a cement wall, kicked my feet apart and pulled my legs apart as far as they could. They shoved my bottom in so that all the weight was on my fingers.

"My hands got numb and I slipped and fell on a hot pipe. Someone grabbed my hands and beat them on the floor to get the feeling back. They pushed me up against the wall again.

"They screwed the bottom of the hood to cut off the air. I started to think I was dying. There was an awful thirst and the noise, always the noise.

"I started to pray. I prayed out loud to stop the noise. I prayed to a boy we had lost when it was six months old. I prayed to my dead sister. I was so desperately thirsty. Someone put a drop of water on my lips. I'd gone crazy."

The same process of falling and being propped up continued for probably three days. Shivers's shaking, one hand with the other to sip his beer.

"I had an illusion where I saw hundreds of people, cool, sparkling lemonade in front of me. I tried to grab them. Then I seemed to see a bright light inside the wind and I thought I was dead and my youngster was with me. I'd been talking to him I ever felt. I was so happy to be dead.

Shivers was taken again to the helicopter and flown in terror around the area for another hour.

"When we landed they made me run barefoot over a stony field until my head crashed into a wall and I passed out."

No Break For Seniors

Belleville City council has decided at present not to take any action on a request to grant pensioners an educational tax exemption.

It was the second time the appeal — for a $150 rebate on education taxes — has been made by council by the Belleville Branch of Pensioners Concerned Canada Inc.

Council's decision this week came after a review by city manager Wilbur Purcell of present tax credit systems and other assistance available to the elderly that reduced the cost of municipal property taxes.

Frank Morrell, city treasurer, reported that if elderly owners of average residences took full advantage of available Ontario tax credits they would pay a "very insignificant amount" of local property taxes.

Health Councils Endorsed

The Ontario health ministry has strengthened its push for development of district health councils.

The ministry's area planning co-ordinators are being asked to concentrate on organization of such groups, Belleville city council learned this week.

The explanation came in a letter from W. Alan Backley, assistant deputy minister, outlining the regions for which the co-ordinators are responsible.

The number of such officials was increased from three to five earlier this year.

Learning The Natural Way

Student teachers, Mary May (back left) and Pamela Sager, from Michigan, spend a few moments with two Grade 1 students Kerk DeVries and Susan Burtt at the H.R. Frink Outdoor Education Centre. The student teachers are on a four-week course with the Hastings County Board of Education.

Baker Elected to Top Association Position

STIRLING — Board of education officials learned here this week its manager of purchasing Eva Baker has been elected president of the Eastern Ontario District of the Purchasing Management Association of Canada.

Miss Baker, who works at the Ann St. Education Centre becomes the first women president in the eastern Ontario district and only the second time a woman has been president of any district in Canada.

The eastern district covers an area from Brockville to Trenton and includes people purchasing responsibilities in industry, commerce, government, education and other institutions. Miss Baker was also the first woman in Canada to earn the designation of professional purchaser.

Two U.S. Teachers Learning At Education Outdoor Centre

By RON CARSON
Staff Reporter

Student teachers Pamela Sager and Mary May came all the way from Michigan to be bitten to death by mosquitos — but that's part of the education in the outdoors.

The two student teachers, Pamela 22, and Mary, 21, both attend Alma College at Alma, Michigan, north of the state capital of Lansing. At their own expense they have spent the last four weeks in Belleville at the H.R. Frink Outdoor Education Centre, sponsored by the Hastings County Board of Education.

Under the direction of Wayne Brooks, co-ordinator of out of school learning for the board, the two teachers work directly with elementary school students at the outdoor centre. The centre was opened in 1973 and is used as a 205 acre outdoor resource facility for schools in Hastings County.

The outdoor facility is located about 5½ miles north of 401 on Highway 37. It is a good cross-section of landscape and geography in south Hastings.

Mr. Brooks, who was in charge of any out-of-the-class learning, said the program for the American student teachers now is in its second year and he hopes it will continue to expand. The teachers live in the Belleville community.

Mary, who will be a senior student at Alma College next year, said she is interested in the program because she wants to be able to lead her own classroom on field trips and handle nature studies.

Pamela, who has graduated this year, said she wants to learn as much about outdoor education as possible in order to work with youth groups.

She does not want to enter teaching the classroom direct-ly.

Both teachers were generally impressed with the outdoor educational facilities in Hastings County and both enjoyed working with the students. They will graduate with Bachelor of Arts in Education. Pamela already has a degree in political science.

Barbershop and Brass Concert Planned for Tweed

TWEED — Residents of Tweed and district will have an opportunity Sunday to hear an unique combination, barbershop singing and brass in concert, at the auditorium of the Tweed-Hungerford Senior Public School.

The Bay of Quinte Chapter of Sweet Adelines Inc., is made up of 44 members from Belleville, Trenton, Brighton and Picton, who meet every Monday evening at 8 p.m. at the Bridge Street United Church, Belleville. They have been singing together since September, and hope to be chartered soon.

Sweet Adelines Inc. is an international organization for women who enjoy singing barbershop harmony. The local director is Aileen Speed and the president is Mary Jo Letersky.

The Concert Brass was started in 1973 by several Belleville and Trenton musicians, who wanted an opportunity of playing music, tastefully and with color and precision. These musicians also wanted an outlet whereby they could bring aspiring brass students along, and the formation of this group gave them the perfect vehicle.

Trustee Questions Rising School Cost

STIRLING — Trustee Donald Williams thinks one ministry of the provincial government should be financially responsible for the demands of another ministry.

The statement was made here this week when the Hastings County Board of Education learned the estimated cost of the new Foxboro Senior Elementary School has jumped from about $860,831 to just over a $1 million due to additional work required by the ministry of the environment.

Business superintendent Ken Wormald pointed out that the ministry of the environment required additional tile bed area at the school site because of soil condition. This jumped the cost of the project by about $30,000.

Additional fire safety alterations also contributed the cost of the school by about $6,000. Mr. Williams said the board should not be financially responsible for this additional requirements set down by another ministry of the provincial government.

The ministry of education would have approved the working plans when the original project was started. Mr. Wormald said he would convey Mr. Williams's feelings to the government and press for additional grants to cover the cost.

TODAY IS KIWANIS PEANUT DAY!
"WATCH FOR THE PEANUT MAN"

Ann Landers

'Doggy Bag' Embarrasses Date

Dear Ann Landers: Last night I had a blind date with an attractive young man who is a second cousin. He took me to a fashionable (and expensive) restaurant. As the waiter was about to clear the table, I asked him if he (please put the remainder of his steak in a doggy bag so I can take it home to his dog.) I'm sure the waiter knew I have cared less. In spite of that, some of the most elegant gentlemen in the country encourage "toting." They even use the phrase "Doggy Bags."

Dear Ann Landers: I'm the mother of three teen-agers who read your column faithfully. You have printed several letters from parents of teen-age daughters. You always advise the mother to "quit nagging your daughter about her dress." Well, I'm sick of it. I say nothing about what the girls eat at their dog-house. You insist it's an emotional problem that should be worked out with a physician and a counselor.

My problem is the opposite. It's a 16-year-old starver. The girl is 5'6 and a size 8. She's catching cold — and she looks like a scarecrow.

I've tried everything to get her to eat but she insists she's never hungry and says nobody needs three meals a day. What can a mother do with a child like that?—Beside Myself in New Jersey

Dear N.J.: My advice to you is the same as to mothers who have overweight daughters. It's in your letter to me. I hope you find it and take it.

Dear Ann Landers: Concerning the dilemma that the man supposed to make the first move, but what if the woman has that certain feeling before he realizes he's interested in her?

I met Kurt at a party and fell for him immediately. I decided to be open and honest instead of coy and subtle. I invited him to come over for an evening of conversation. He accepted and we had a pleasant time.

Kurt never called me back, but we've bumped into each other several times. He always says, "Call have to get together soon." But he's never done anything about it. I've seen him a couple of clinical notes in the mail. No response. Please, Ann, tell me how can I win him over? He's not just another guy to me.—Sadena

Dear S.: You've tried the aggressive approach and it didn't work. Now take the hint and cool it, honey. There's no way you can "win over" a man if he's not interested.

CONFIDENTIAL to Longwinded But I Love Him: Tell the dial that conclusions are an important part of every speech, especially when they come close to the beginning.

Be Swift to Love, Hasten to Be Kind

"Life is short and we have not too much time for gladdening the hearts of those who are travelling the dark way with us.

"Oh, be swift to love! Make haste to be kind."

Henri Amiel.

The above words were artistically inscribed on a colorful poster, tacked up on the wall of The Pastoral Institute of Calgary, and I read them there a few weeks ago.

Mr. Mullen, the director, was kind enough to have them copied for me. They contain, in a large path, the philosophy which makes the Institute tick.

There is a lot goes on there: Personal counseling, family and life education, community development, professional research, to name just a few.

Here, also, is to be found the Personal Acquaintance Service, which has developed many ways of bringing lonely men and women together, often bridging great distances in finding new friends to match one another in the important aspects of living — interests, age, religion and other things.

They can help one elderly woman to find another elderly woman with whom to travel, congenially. Ad infinitum.

If you want to use their correspondence service for finding new friends, write to The Pastoral Institute, 1134 - 8th Avenue S. W., Calgary, Alta. T2P 1J8.

Dear Doris: After 37 years of marriage, I don't love my husband like I did before. I learned that he is always interested in those trashy magazines, and used to go to see those stripper girls.

How can I trust a husband like that? I wish I could have a really loving husband.

Help Me.

Dear Reader: Perhaps you do have a really loving husband. Did you entertain the sexual relationship with him in a light-hearted, giving spirit? If he is in a sense, deprived, he may feel compelled to turn to this sort of entertainment for release.

I do not condone strip shows or pornographic magazines; but don't take it so seriously. Instead, work at being more attractive and loving yourself. He is not unfaithful; but you might just drive him into the arms of someone more sympathetic.

Dear Doris: I am 13. My parents are always bugging me to get a job. I had an opportunity to work at a drive-in restaurant, but my parents wouldn't let me because it would be night work. I baby-sit here and want to move out because they're old-fashioned. What can I do?

Fed Up With Old-Fashioned PARENTS.

Dear Fed Up: Not old-fashioned; concerned. Night travel at your age has terrifying hazards.

Would they agree to letting you baby-sit near home or working Saturdays in a local store? Why not work on those possibilities? It's no picnic being on your own; forget it for now and be glad your have parents who care about your safety.

(Doris cannot begin to answer all your questions in the column. To make sure of your reply, remember to enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope, sending your letter in care of this newspaper.)

Will Skip Lunch

TORONTO (CP) — More than one million secondary school students across Canada have been asked to give up their lunch for one day, May 7, for Project Canada Fast. Organizers, the Canadian Save the Children Fund, say proceeds collected by the students will be donated to the fund.

Quick Retorts for Put-Downs

VANCOUVER (CP) — Question: How can you, a mother, go out to a daily job? Answer: Sweat like hell.

Question: Does a size did like you ever get married? Answer: Sweat like hell. Or, alternatively, I haven't asked anyone yet.

Vancouver Status of Women is holding a series of informal meetings to help women come up with these and similar stages when confronted with sexist put-downs. Jo Lansday, a member of the group, says it helps to compile a booklet of them.

"You can't think of them when you know there's nothing wrong with what you're doing," she said. "The challenge, after a put-down, is usually made to you when you're a little off-guard.

"You're on the defensive; you spatter something out; a few days later, when you think about it, you can come up with a really good retort.

"We're trying to get as many women as possible to relate the sort of experiences they've been faced with."

She said the group is looking for a core of 10 to 12 participants, as well as telephoned contributions, to find answers to put-down comments.

"You don't want the response to be the put-down person, but sometimes you just send one sharp line to show that you don't accept it.

"We try not to counter a put-down with another put-down. You don't want, after all, to go after a mosquito with an elephant gun. But then neither do you want a fly-swatter in your hand when somebody rolls out the cannons."

Ms. Lansday said women feel embarrassing and sometimes degrading comments and questions in social situations and employment areas in particular.

"A lot of times humor helps defuse a situation. The people who challenge you usually don't really want a proper explanation—a quick answer can be the best tactic.

"If you answer belligerently, both of you sometimes refuse to your corners without solving anything."

Finding Mates Becomes Difficult, Russian Men Seek Matchmakers

By LYNNE OLSON

MOSCOW (AP)—An old Russian women was on trial for accepting money for a matchmaker. One of the witnesses, a young woman, was asked by the judge why she had engaged the matchmaker's services.

"Where else should I look for a bridegroom?" the girl replied. "At work? One guy works at our factory for every ten girls. In the 'teen' Days that's come there to look for brides."

Like their American counterparts, young people in Soviet urban centres often have a hard time meeting prospective mates.

What can be done to solve their predicament? A number of Soviet social scientists are growing intrigued by a West-era invention — match-making by computer.

Although computer dating has never been tried in the Soviet Union, it has been established in several Eastern European countries, including East Germany, Czechoslovakia, Poland and Hungary.

The idea was briefly brought up here in 1970, when several newspapers advocated the establishment of a computerized matchmaking bureau.

But the Communist Party newspaper Pravda ended the discussion in 1971 by saying the proposal was seen to be "evil society" and "did not include one word about love."

In reviving the idea, its advocates have been careful to explain that the computer would only be an aid and that love would still be all-important.

One explained the need for a wider choice of prospective mates: "What kind of life does a person have today? He sods his apartment, structure and work. His circle of acquaintances is limited. And the bigger the city, the more complicated."

In the 1970 census, there were 12 Soviet women for every 11 men. In some towns, particularly inside centres where women have most of the jobs, the ratio jumps as high as 17 women to 10 men.

The pros and cons of marriage are not as heavily debated in the Soviet Union as they are in North America. There's still a belief that every person ought to get married if he truly wants to be happy.

"The number of bachelors and spinsters in this country is dangerously increasing," said Mikhail Yu. Smirnov, "A quarter of the men between 25 and 30 years old are unmarried. There are tens of millions of people who haven't found mates.

"This is not only a sea of personal disaster just also a social disaster. It means there are tens of millions of unborn children, tens of millions of future ot—to be more accurate—not future workers."

Russians take the idea of computer matchmaking much more seriously than did many North Americans who considered computer dating serving a fad.

Here, computer technology is considered king. Many believe a computer can solve just about any problem, including those in personal and social areas.

Discrimination Strong

SASKATOON (CP) — Fewer women than men reach the upper echelons of public administration, says Dr. Sybil Shack, former president of the Canadian Teachers' Federation. She told a lecture there is a "strong societal bias against women in administrative positions, especially when that means they will be directing men."

Mushrooms Boast Lots of Flavor, Few Calories

Lots of flavor, low calories — what more could you ask from a food favorite? You get them from mushrooms — and a plus. Though relatively expensive, they go a very long way.

Fresh mushrooms can be stored for several days in the refrigerator. Remove mushrooms from bag and spread on a tray or plate. Cover with a slightly damp cloth. If mushrooms are packed in a perforated box, remove plastic wrap and store in the refrigerator covered with a damp towel. Do not wash or wipe mushrooms before storing.

To prepare mushrooms for eating or cooking, just wipe with a damp cloth and trim the very end of the stem if you feel you must wash mushrooms, it's best recommended, they're so absorbent — cook them in plenty of water and dry individually after. Do not soak or wash.

For a real local bargain, try buying mushrooms at the low price of two pounds for $1 at the Wellington Campbell Soup factory.

Mushroom Crepes
½ lb. cottage cheese
½ cup parsley, chopped
two eggs
½ lb. mushrooms, sliced
one onion diced
three tbsp butter cheese sauce
12 crepes

In a skillet, saute mushrooms and onion in butter slowly for about five minutes. Remove mushrooms and drain with slotted spoon. Mixe cheese sauce in same skillet. Cook parsley, beat cottage cheese well with a fork, and beat in eggs. Add parsley and salt and pepper to taste. Mix in mushroom and ¼ cup of cheese sauce. Refrigerate immediately. This mixture may be refrigerated in a covered container for 24 hours before using. Place two to three tbsp filling on each crepe and roll up or fold as desired. Place crepes on oven dish and cover with remaining sauce. Heat in moderate oven about 30 minutes. Serves 4 as first course.

Mushrooms Sauce
two tbsp butter
three tbsp flour
¼ cup grated parmesan
½ cup grated cheddar cheese
¼ cup vermouth or dry white wine
1½ cups milk or light cream

Heat butter with flour from mushrooms. Mix in flour and slowly add milk or cream to make thick sauce. Keep over a low heat and gradually stir in cheeses and wine.

Mushroom Bouch Salad
one pkg. lemon gelatin
two cups boiling water
½ tsp. salt
½ lb. fresh mushrooms
two tbsp lemon juice
½ cup chopped celery
two tbsp chopped cucumber
tbsp chopped green olives, pitted, sliced
Dissolve gelatin with 2 cups boiling water and salt; stir in lemon juice. Add ice, 1 cup cold water. Chill until at thick syrup consistency.
Meanwhile, slice mushrooms (make about 24 caps). Toss mushrooms with lemon juice; set aside.
Stir celery and cucumber into slightly thickened gelatin. Spoon 1-inch layer of gelatin into a 2-qt. mold. Chill. Dip side of mold with mushrooms, pressing them gently into gelatin. Repeat until mold is filled. Top with layer of olives. Chill until firm. Just before serving, unmold onto serving plate. Garnish with mushrooms and watercress if desired. Serves 6.

Italian Mushroom Pulsate
½ lb. fresh mushrooms
four cups cooked, peeled and diced potatoes one lb. (3 medium) zucchini, sliced
one tomato, diced
½ cup fresh chopped onion
One-fourth cup butter, oil
two tbsp lemon juice
½ tsp garlic powder
½ tsp. coarse ground black pepper
½ cup pine nuts (optional)
Rinse, pat dry and slice mushrooms (makes about 3½ cups). In a large bowl, combine mushrooms, potatoes, zucchini, tomato and onion; set aside. Combine remaining ingredients, except nuts; mix well. Pour over vegetable mixture; toss well. Chill thoroughly. If desired, sprinkle with pine nuts. Serves 6.

Hearty Mushroom Salad Bowl
one lb. fresh mushrooms
two cups diced boiled ham three cups sliced, cooked potatoes chilled one package (10 oz) frozen peas, cooked and chilled
½ cup sliced scallions
¼ cup olive or salad oil
¼ cup vinegar
four tsp basil leaves crumbled one tbsp salt
¼ tsp ground black pepper
½ tsp ground cumin seed
Rinse, pat dry and slice mushrooms. In a large salad bowl, arrange clusters of mushrooms, ham, potatoes, peas and scallions. Mix remaining ingredients. Pour over salad. Toss gently. Serve on lettuce-lined salad plates, if desired. Serves 8.

Mushrooms and Potatoes
½ lb. mushrooms, sliced thinly (through cap and stem) one large potato, sliced very thinly crosswise
one onion, diced
one cup milk
Nutmeg
Mace
Salt
Pepper
three tbsp bread crumbs
one tsp butter or margarine, melted

In a buttered casserole, cover a layer of potatoes with a layer of mushrooms, sprinkle with the four seasonings. Add some of the milk. Repeat until ingredients are used up. Toss bread-crumbs with the melted butter, sprinkle over casserole. Cover and bake in a 350 deg. oven until potatoes are tender, about one hour. Cover may be removed from casserole during the last 15 minutes or so of cooking. Serves two.

Mushroom Dip or Dressing
¼ lb. fresh mushrooms
½ tbsp minced onion
one tbsp minced green pepper (optional)
one tbsp flour
¼ tsp salt
¼ cup milk
¾ cup cooked, flaked fish
two tbsp grated Cheddar cheese
2 - 3 tbsp breadcrumbs

In a small heavy skillet heat butter, add mushrooms, onions and green pepper. Cook until tender, about five minutes. Stir in flour and salt. Add milk stirring well until sauce is thickened. Remove from heat and gently stir in fish. Place mixture in a greased two-cup casserole, individual scallop shells or ramekins. Sprinkle with the cheese and crumb mixture. Bake in hot oven until brown, about 15 or 20 minutes. Serves two.

Mushroom Dip or Dressing
¼ lb. fresh mushrooms
one clove garlic, chopped
one cup salad oil
¼ cup wine vinegar
two tbsp chili sauce few dashes Worcestershire sauce
¼ tsp salt

For a Dip: Early in the day, mix all ingredients in a blender. At high speed blend until mixture is creamy. Store in refrigerator in a tightly covered container to chill thoroughly. At serving time, set in a bowl of crushed ice as mixture keeps its thick consistency. Use for dipping fresh vegetables. Makes about 1½ cups.

For a Dressing: You will get the same exciting flavor by shaking the recipe ingredients in a covered jar, chilling thoroughly, and using as a dressing for a vegetable salad bowl.

Fresh mushrooms seem to float in shimmering lemon gelatin; tucked in are chopped parsley, cucumber and celery.

IODE Emphasizes Concern for Children

FREDERICTON, N.B. (CP) — The Imperial Order Daughters of the Empire (IODE) will emphasize concerns for children this—its 75th anniversary—year, Mrs. R. W. Adams of Toronto, IODE national president, said during opening ceremonies of the order's annual meeting Saturday.

Mrs. Adams also outlined the various programs of concern for children being carried out by IODE members in the country's provinces and territories.

The programs, she said, included work with children with physical disability, grants to research for parents with inherited diseases, and a travelling library with books for native children.

The IODE contributes $1 million each year to its various projects which include education, service, and citizenship in this country and in under-developed countries.

Lieutenant-Governor Pauline McGibbon of Ontario presented a $2,000 graduate-level nature-student scholarship Saturday night to Miss C. E. Mackay of Willowdale, Ont.

The one-year scholarship will be used by Miss Mackay to her work towards a doctoral degree in clinical biochemistry at the University of Toronto School of Medicine.

Later in the evening Prince Charles, who is participating in military training exercises at nearby Gagetown, met briefly with the national executive of the IODE.

Wine to France

England Now Exports Some Wines to France

LONDON (CP) — England is producing some high-quality white and rose wines and even exporting them to France. And some experts say the much-criticized English climate is no hindrance to the growing of good wines.

Actually, southern England is no farther north than some of the best vineyards of northern Germany. English soil is no different than that found in the Champagne region of France. And a vine needs only 100 days of 15 degrees Celsius weather to produce excellent quality white and rose wines, and even England has that.

Hitler-Hitler once boasted the Earl of Salisbury's 20,000 vines. And every gourmetry in British produced its own wine.

But in the 16th century Henry VIII closed the monasteries and that was the end of commercially produced wine in England up to the end of the Second World War.

Extensive survey

As England has only recently begun growing grapes on a large scale, growers have not yet had time to find varieties resistant to parasitic fungus diseases which can reduce a harvest by up to 90 per cent.

This problem is being dealt with by an experimental vineyard and research program being carried on at Wye College in Kent. There now are 350 vines comprising 17 varieties being studied for their suitability in English climate and conditions and resistance to disease.

The other single most important problem in England is birds. As fleshy, of birds can literally strip a vineyard in a matter of days, vineyards must be netted over when the fruit ripens.

Though still in its infancy, English wine growing is expected to continue expanding.

African Poverty Produces Genius In Utilizing Trash

CAPE TOWN (AP) — With a wife, five children and an income of 50 cents a day, what would you do about a leaky roof?

Poverty stricken Africans have found the same answer to the shanty towns of Cape Town as they have in the slums of Kinshasa and Lagos and other capitals across the continent.

All that's needed is a quick trip to the rubbish dump and the production of an appropriately-sized tin can that soon held tomorrow.

When it is flattened out and attached to the roof of corrugated iron, which is standard in slums throughout Africa, the effect flops will no longer turn a roof into an igloo.

The poverty of Africa has produced a genius for "recycling" the trash of a society it's enjoyed by all elite minority.

The knack is evident even in Johnnesburg Township, the symbolic end of the world on the populated tongue of the Sahara in northern Mali.

There, city Tuareg, the famous blue-men of the desert, latch on to unsuspecting tourists who trickle through the ancient caravan crossroads.

This award belonged to my grandfather who fought in the holy wars of the last century and is the pride of my family," says a Tuareg who, after an hour of haggling, pleading exclusive poverty, agrees to give up this treasured heirloom at a price.

It's a tourist eventually learns an antique sword and hundreds of others like it are the prolonged and hammered remains of Russian tanks.

Stripping broken-down cars is a lucrative business in Africa, producing windows, engines, mirrors, aerial wires for harmonas, ash trays, nuts and bolts for lampposts, spare wire for electricity, tires for children to play with and metal for Tuareg swords.

In Zaghouli, a small village in Upper Volta that rejects the poverty of Africa's rural areas, an open-air market sprouts after innovation.

One stall sells locally made cooking pots. Next door it displayed bicycle frames. In another, the few villagers who own bicycles can purchase about 50 drops of oil, contained in throwaway penicillin ampoules from the nearby medical center, for a few cents.

A variety of empty bottles in Upper Volta and elsewhere in west and central Africa are filled with pebbles or beads and used as musical instruments.

At Jankara market, in the heart of Lagos, the bustling Nigerian capital, large oil drums are sliced in half and sold for use as stoves.

The rims of old bicycle wheels are used widely by children in Africa who expertly guide their "hoops" through the streets with a stick.

Children also make automakers with a few pebbles and a sardine can.

In Nouadhibou, Mauritania, huge packing crates that once contained machinery for the iron-mining industry have been turned into homes by the destitute.

The trash cans of the rich in Africa produce treasures for the poor. Servants carefully sift through everything their employers throw away.

Shoes no longer fit for a European business executive may have at least another year of good wear for a less-fussy cook.

Transistor radios that are not worth repairing and antiquated gas are quickly sold to local "radio doctors" who pay a fee for the spare parts.

Old newspapers are great for the small fires used to cook food in the servants' quarters and American girly magazines provide favorite wall decorations.

Baby food jars are ideal for the wives of many household servants in west Africa who run small businesses on the side to boost family income and use them as containers for pepper and other condiments.

Empty flour sacks, appropriately stitched, turn up on the streets as durable if not stylish T-shirts.

Ship for Home

Tom Sukanen, a Moose Jaw area homesteader, worked for 20 years building a ship that would take him home to his native Finland. When he died in 1943 his health was broken and his ship lay on the banks of the South Saskatchewan River until restoration work was begun in 1972. A group of senior citizens, in co-operation with the Antique Car Club of Saskatchewan, is restoring the keel (left) and upper deck. The ship will go on display at the car club's pioneer museum near Moose Jaw. (CP Photo)

New Additions to the Reference Collection:

ENCYCLOPEDIA OF AUTOMATIC MUSICAL INSTRUMENTS — Q. David'Bowers.

You may be familiar with a player piano or a calliope, but have you heard of an orchestrion, an automaton, or a musical stereoption? These are only a few of the self-playing instruments which entertained people between 1700 and 1940, and which are included in this large encyclopedia. The history of each instrument, as well as descriptions of the numerous models, and a wealth of illustrations, make this an interesting book to browse through.

SILENT WITNESSES — Herbert Fairlie Wood and John Swetlenham.

A complete guide to the memorials to Canada's war dead, with maps, guides to the locations of the cemeteries, and a wealth of photographs, this book is the only full account of Canada's commemoration of the men and women who died in the service of their country.

KWIC INDEX TO THE GOVERNMENT OF ONTARIO '75 — Ministry of Culture and Recreation.

Are you looking for government information but not sure where to find it? In this new KWIC (Key Word in Context) index, you can look up the key words describing your area of interest — Housing, or Senior Citizens, for example — and find a description of each Ontario Government agency which is active in that area.

NUTRITION CANADA REPORTS

Nutrition Canada has recently released the detailed reports of its findings in the national nutrition survey which was completed two years ago. These twelve volumes (one for each province, and one each for Indians and Eskimos) show nutritional characteristics and point out deficiencies of each area in comparison with the nation as a whole. Of interest to anyone concerned with nutrition, these reports provide a sound basis for assessing the significance of nutrition in our life style.

TORONTO: REFLECTIONS OF THE PAST — Mike Filey.

This nostalgic collection of photographs covers a century of Toronto life, and provides a glimpse at people and places as they were before the days of skyscrapers and expressways. Architecture, VIP's, sports events, and ordinary people at work and play, were some of the camera's subjects in a vanished era.

Foreigners in Paris Get Own SOS Service

PARIS (Reuter) — Foreigners are overwhelmed by the city pressures in Paris now have their own S O S Help-Crisis Line, a service in English set up by a determined young Frenchwoman.

The crusade to throw a line to the lonely was started by Patricia Greenstone, wife of an English lawyer in Paris, who felt as much at sea on arriving here as do many of her nightly callers.

As a result, she decided to put 10 years' experience as a social worker to good use and opened S O S Help-Crisis Line with a staff of 24 volunteers ranging from a Dutch banker to a Swedish student.

Because of a lack of funds, its the line operates only four hours every evening. But she is determined to expand the service, having witnessed the ravages of city life in New York and London before.

"Paris has 200,000 English-speaking people," she said. "That's a vast community the size of a small town."

Like the program of S O S Amitie in France, the Samaritans in Britain and the various hot lines and drug lines in the United States, our service attempts to provide the community with a source of help in time of distress.

"Certainly the problems faced by people living in a foreign country increase the need for such a service."

Her initiative has been widely applauded by many large United States companies whose staff detachments are often bombarded with the problems of the disoriented in a strange land.

She said: "A number of companies report that wives start to drink in the city, are very lonely, can't manage the language and have no one to discuss family problems with."

On both ends of the telephone crisis line the situation is a highly informal one.

The volunteers, who undergo an eight-week training course under the direction of a French psychiatrist, include British, Dutch, Swedish and American helpers, aged between 19 and 50.

The clients are mostly American but include Indians, Arabs and Scandinavians.

Mrs. Greenstone said the service "often acts as a safety valve for people who are totally lost in a strange city."

Summing up the crisis line's role in an impersonal urban society she said:

"We are a kind of listeners' wailing wall. Our clients range from 16 to 90. There are also a number of French people with depressive problems who find it easier to express their deepest fears in a foreign language.

"Our French girl rings up to English-speaking people who can't be able to understand if they screeches on the line."

Pregnant girls also have used the line. "They need an unhurried ear to listen to them," she said.

"We have many habitues who call and like to chat for an hour just for company."

Needed Books Could All Be Produced Here

CALGAY (CP) — Canadian publishers are capable of producing all the books necessary for Canadian schools, says the managing director of a new book marketing organization called Canadabooks.

"There's absolutely no need for schools to encourage the importation of the books and, therefore, the values of other countries," said Michael Preston.

But that is exactly what is happening, he said. Eighty-eight per cent of the books purchased by Canadian school libraries in 1971 were foreign-produced.

"In dollar terms, Canadian publishers accounted for only $1.6 million of the $87.5 million that was spent on books by Canadian schools in 1971."

Canadabooks was set up last year with the help of the federal and Ontario governments to provide schools with a central information and ordering point for the books of 57 member publishers.

"Our members are small, independent, Canadian owned publishers who have never before had access to the education market," Mr. Preston said.

Many Draft Dodgers Not Sought

TORONTO (CP) — At least 10,000 draft evaders living in Canada are unaware they are no longer wanted by United States law enforcement agencies, Tim Maloney, a spokesman for the War Resister Information Program said Tuesday.

Mr. Maloney said many draft evaders have just assumed going back means five years in prison.

"At the same time, the selective service system has kept referring their cases to the department of justice for review," he said.

Mr. Maloney said many of the cases were full of errors caused by deadlines set by couriers follow the complex draft law and drafted people illegally.

Since January, the Winnipeg-based organization has been checking names of draftees living in Canada against a list of men wanted for draft evasion in the U.S. The list, provided by Senator Edward Kennedy, contained only 4,400 names although 120,000 men were alleged to have dodged the draft during the Vietnam war.

Mr. Maloney urged anyone wishing to clarify their legal status to contact the centre.

Taxes Evaded

TORONTO (CP) — National Painting and Decorating (Toronto) Ltd. was fined $17,777 by provincial court Tuesday after pleading guilty to 13 counts of conspiracy to evade taxes.

Court was told the firm agreed to bill corporate clients agreed to bill corporate clients for work it did privately for corporation executives.

As a result executives got free home decorating and their companies saved a corresponding amount in taxes by writing off the repairs as business expenses, court was told.

The total unreported income was $68,118 and the total federal tax sought to be evaded was $17,775.

Tighten Controls

TORONTO (CP) — The age limit for operators of motorized bicycles in Ontario will be raised in revised legislation, John Rhodes, minister of transportation and communications, said Tuesday. At present operators of motorized bicycles need no licences and may be 14 years old. Operators of motorcycles and minibikes may apply for a licence at 16 years with parents' consent.

Fees Inadequate

TORONTO (CP) — Attorney General John Clement agreed with opposition critics Tuesday who condemned fees paid to jury members in Ontario as totally inadequate.

More Benefits

OTTAWA (CP) — Unemployment insurance payments for the first four months of 1975 totalled $1.232 billion, up almost 30 per cent over the $950 million total for the same period in 1974, government officials told the Commons manpower committee Tuesday.

If projected for the remainder of the year, the total cost of the program would be about $3.8 billion—far more than the 1974 total of $2.118 billion.

Complicated

OTTAWA (CP) — A federal inspector suspected that tainted meat was being sold in Quebec four months before going to the RCMP, Health Minister Marc Lalonde said Tuesday.

Mr. Lalonde told the commons that when the Montreal inspector first stumbled across the tainted meat scandal in October, 1973: "He was dealing in rumors. His investigation took time and it was very complicated."

Expand Station

TORONTO (CP) — Premier Davis said Tuesday that Union Station will be expanded to serve as a new transportation terminal for the Metropolitan Toronto area.

Oppose Tolls

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont. (CP) The Ontario Chamber of Commerce decided Monday to continue to seek removal of tolls on the Welland Canal section of the St. Lawrence Seaway.

Smoking, Not Radiation, Worst Hazard for Miners

TORONTO (CP) — A Rio Algom Ltd. official told the royal commission on health and safety of mine workers Tuesday that smoking should be emphasized as the main cause of lung cancer in mine workers, not radiation.

Ted Cheesman said in a brief to the commission there has been "an exaggerated and misleading emphasis attributed to radiation as a cause of lung cancer."

The brief said smoking as a cause of cancer had been "belittled and neglected" during the hearings and cited a United States study in July, 1974, which showed that of 300 uranium miners who died of lung cancer, only three were non-smokers.

It said an Ontario study last September, which examined the cases of 41 uranium miners who died of lung cancer, is not meaningful because it did not contain information on actual radiation exposure in each case, smoking histories, the exact time between exposure and the development of a tumor and the incidence of lung cancer in non-uranium miners.

The company brief said there is need for a "thorough epidemiological study of Canadian uranium miners and other workers exposed to carcinogenic air contaminants."

Mr. Cheesman said the firm wants standards established in which all parties have confidence.

He told James Ham, commission chairman, the firm does not have enough workers to find men who smoke from working underground.

The brief also dealt with questions raised during commission hearings in Elliot Lake, Ont., in January, saying the firm took steps in 1969 to reduce radiation levels below the level then allowed in the U.S.

Richardson Pledges Support for NATO

OTTAWA (CP) — Defence Minister James Richardson reiterated Tuesday a pledge to maintain the level of Canadian military contributions to NATO but refused to be pinned down on how many Canadian troops it will take.

Testifying before the Commons defence committee, the minister said the Canadian troops are among the finest in Europe—by the testimony of allies—and their quality must be judged as much as the quantity.

Canada has 5,000 servicemen in Europe and the government is considering under its current defence review whether to change the structure of the force from its present composition of land and air elements.

Mr. Richardson was questioned by a fellow Liberal on reports that Canada is considering changing to an all-air commitment.

The matter was brought up by Paul Langlois (L—Chicoutimi) who went to Brussels with the minister along with Allan McKinnon (PC—Victoria), Progressive Conservative military critic.

Mr. Langlois said Europeans he talked with wanted Canadians on the ground, and more of them. Mr. McKinnon protested about the "dissipated" state of equipment used by Canadian forces in Europe.

Mr. Richardson reiterated that an all-air element is one option being considered. The other options was to retain the same or go to an all-land element.

Reject Bar On Quebec Meat

TORONTO (CP) — Two Ontario cabinet ministers rejected a Liberal suggestion Tuesday that the province suspend the sale of meat bearing a Quebec stamp of approval.

The suggestion followed a report that Leo Ar.cand, a Quebec meat merchant, said he told thousands of pounds of tainted meat for shipment to Ontario.

Donald Deacon (L—York Centre) requested the temporary ban and a full inquiry into procedures by which the meat entered the province.

Agriculture Minister William Stewart told the legislature the province had no control over the inter-provincial movement of meat—a federal matter.

He said his ministry's authority stopped at the slaughter houses in the province. He was not aware of any cases of tainted meat in Ontario, he said.

Health Minister Frank Miller, whose ministry is responsible for meat inspections through local medical officers of health, also rejected the Liberal suggestion.

He said the medical health officer in Ottawa, where some meat allegedly was shipped, was investigating but had found no evidence of tainted meat to date.

Command Shuffle May Mean Staff Cut

From The Ottawa Bureau of The Intelligencer

OTTAWA — Creation of the new Air Command in Western Canada will require 110 fewer personnel in the administration of the armed forces air section, Defence Chief of Staff Gen. J. A. Dextrase said yesterday.

A spokesman at CFB Trenton today said transfers from the base will be kept to a minimum.

Gen. Dextrase told Dan McKenzie (PC—Winnipeg South Centre) during proceedings of the standing Commons defence committee that the new Air Command which is expected to move from Ottawa to Winnipeg next year, CFB Trenton is "underfed" in transfers will be kept to a minimum," he said.

Gen Dextrase said that the new Air Command will result in a saving in the areas of communication, command and control of the Forces.

The general made the remarks during criticism by Opposition members of the committee that the creation of the Air Command constitutes demilitarization of the armed forces.

On the contrary, he said, the new command will push militarization even further in what he termed an inefficient way, producing even more savings.

City's Official Plan Still Awaiting Approval

By COLIN BRUCE
Staff Reporter

Belleville's official plan is still six months away as it continues some of its way through governmental channels.

Bill Dolman of the official plans branch of the ministry of housing, said during an interview Tuesday, "it could be set back as three months but it would be a lot a after to say six months," before the plan will be ready for final local approval.

He said administrative delays had slowed the plans journey through provincial channels for about a month and actual circulation of the until March.

The plan must be circulated to 36 "agencies" including all the municipalities surrounding the city.

"We are, waiting for three, major responses . . . from the ministries of transportation and communication, environment and natural resources," said Mr. Dolman.

"They're always a little slower, so I thought I don't think it will be too much longer now," he said.

Once each of the agencies has replied to the plan, a total package of objections and proposed modifications will be forwarded to Belleville, said Dolman.

"The responses have been generally okay," said Mr. Dolman. "There are a couple of minor objections."

Once the province has completed its circulation it will report its findings to the municipality . . . plan approval will be in local hands, he said.

Commenting on the plan, Mr. Dolman described it as "clear, concise and detailed."

"It's not a re-development plan but a good urban plan," he said. "It's long overdue — the last official plan for the city being approved in the early 1950s — and will guide Belleville for the next five to 10 years."

He said it is impossible to guess what effect will any provincial recommendations and that "there are a lot of 'ifs' in plan approval," he said.

"Belleville's plan is going through normal channels and I don't think it will be too long now."

Quinte Planning card deputy director Frank Stokman said consultants have completed a preliminary set of zoning bylaws to accompany the official plan but "nothing can be done officially until the plan and the province's recommendations in front of us."

Ellis Seeks Opinions On Gun Legislation

Jack Ellis, MP Hastings, expects gun control legislation will be before Parliament "reasonably soon" and is seeking opinions from constituents on such a measure.

Mr. Ellis says he wants the comments because the bill — calling for registration of all firearms — is another "quite controversial" . . .

Opposition comes primarily from sportsmen who object to having their guns registered, says Mr. Ellis in his latest, regular newsletter to constituents.

Sportsmen argue criminals, in any event, would not have their weapons registered.

"Arguments for the bill are made by people of all walks of life," says Mr. Ellis. These "view with alarm the increasing number of violent crimes involving firearms of all types."

The bill is multi-purpose. It requires registration it prohibits a sawed-off shotgun, machine guns, switchblades, illuminant and fully automatic-firing weapons.

Authorization would be required for sale, loaning or transfer of the registered weapons. Penalties for possession of a weapon without a permit — for which tests would be required — range up to maximum two years.

New Job Offers Chance To Learn About Inner City

Special education teacher Jill Smeets is leaving the security of Hastings County to join the Cabbagetown revival — a move that will take her into Toronto's inner city.

The 30-year-old Campbellford native has accepted a special education post with the Toronto Board of Education's Winchester Public School, located in the heart of the city's Cabbagetown district.

While most people are trying to escape Toronto she describes her motivation as "a chance to learn about the inner city and how children survive." This area of Toronto is predominantly lower-income families with a large transient population. In recent years a revival has occurred to restore and renovate buildings in the area.

Jill, who has a son, four, and a daughter, six, says she believes that moving to Belleville will have "inner city schools" and they will be confronted with the same problems. Although her duties have not yet been defined Jill is looking forward to "some ground at the school.

"They've given me a classroom for the special education students but no instructions on what to do — I've a blank open hand . . . and it should be a challenge," said Jill, who took a year off from teaching spent to travel to England and observe the infant primary school system in that country.

A graduate of the Peterborough Teachers' College in 1966, Jill began teaching in North York and picked up special education courses during a summer. She also worked for the Peel County Board of Education before joining the Hastings board in 1969.

Not yet a firm believer in teaching it again spent in 1969 to work as a clerk and lecture at weight watchers' groups. She started back full time with the board in 1972 as a special education instructor mainly working with teachers in the Bayside Family of Schools.

Jill said she will be interested in continuing use of schools in Toronto and particularly in her own school. "Anywhere I go I'm going to do what I want to discover Toronto and experience many students living there all their lives haven't yet done," she added.

She said she may even enrol her own children in a nearby French school. "I can't see why taking advantage of these facilities," she explained.

Fire Chief Warns Cooks Of Kitchen Hazards

City firefighters are burning over the forgetfulness of some Belleville residents.

Chief Leo Culhane said today the department has received four calls in less than a week to residences where pots of food have been left on hot stove burners, boiled over and caused a considerable amount of smoke.

The latest calls came within a five-minute span Tuesday shortly after 6 p.m. and in both cases pots of chicken were left cooking unattended with the burners on high. In one case, people had even left their apartment.

Chief Culhane noted a boiled-over pot was the cause of a $90,000 fire several years ago in Belleville. He urged residents to keep an eye on their stoves when cooking and to make sure their stoves are turned off before leaving their homes.

Smoke Brigade

Gord Miller (left) and Stan Uens of Belleville fire department rush the smoke ejector to an apartment at Mill Town Apartments Tuesday after a pot of chicken boiled over on a stove. Firefighters were summoned to a Front St. apartment just five minutes before to deal with a similar occurrence. Fire Chief Leo Culhane advises residents to ensure their stoves are turned off before leaving their homes.

Big Change

Jill Smeets, special education teacher with the Hastings County Board of Education has accepted a new position at an inner city school in Toronto. In an interview with the Intell Jill outlines some of her reasons for the move.

Annual Peanut Drive To Cover Entire City

City residents will go "nuts" this evening — and it's all for a good cause.

The Rivards Club of Belleville will hold its annual peanut drive this evening and proceeds will go toward club welfare project and the Rivards shelterbelt project located in the Rivards Centre on East Dundas St.

Armin Quickert, event chairman, says the drive will begin about 6 p.m. with club members going door-to-door on 38 routes. We intend to cover the entire city if possible."

For sale will be one-pound jars of peanut butter at a cost of 3 ½ spices and about one pound tins of cocktail peanuts for $1.50 each.

Members will be identified by their Rivards stickers, orange aprons, caps and carrying trays. Mr. Quickert says the drive has taken place for so many years the club has lost count.

He explains the sheltered workshop employs 12 physically-handicapped persons who would find it difficult to enjoy a industrial environment to find work."

Assessment Calls Fake Says Trenton Officials

TRENTON — Fears by one Trenton woman that her home might be broken into after a telephone call from a man claiming to be with the regional assessment office has prompted a warning to homeowners not to divulge information about their homes over the telephone.

An assessment office spokesman said today, "there is no way that we will assess a home over the phone".

He issued a warning to home owners not to answer questions about the value of a home's contents, number of rooms and room dimensions.

The woman and a Trenton police officer both received telephone calls Tuesday from a male with a raspy voice who identified himself as an assessment officer. His questions dealt with the value of the two homes.

The Trenton constable spoke with assessment officers who denied any knowledge of the telephone questioning. The woman, who has lived amid fears other people in Hastings, Prince Edward and Northumberland Counties could receive similar calls.

Spokesman said the value of the property is established through a personal visit by regional office staff.

Each visiting officer carries identification and carries an identification card that contains his picture and signature.

"We just don't go out and ask a home owner what he thinks his home is worth," said the spokesman. "That's our job."

Tapes Taken

City police are investigating the theft of 70 worth of eight-track tapes and a tape player valued at $85 from a car parked behind Alan Hedley Farm Implements Ltd. at 271 North Front St. sometime between 10:45 p.m. Monday and 8 a.m. Tuesday.

Police said the car, owned by Brian Hedley, was entered by prying open a no-draft window on the driver's side door. The dash and glove compartment which were rifled, were damaged to the extent of $40.

Alarm Box

Belleville firefighters responded to the following calls for assistance during a 24-hour period which ended at 8 a.m. today:

Tuesday, May 27, 5:18 p.m. — false alarm at Stephenson-Adamson Division of Allis-Chalmers Canada Ltd. at 30 Franklin St.

Tuesday, May 27, 6:18 p.m. — pot of chicken boiled over with smoke logged in apartment above Up-Town Submarine and Burger Shop at 234 Front St. smoke ejector used.

Wednesday, May 28, 6:12 a.m. — another pot of chicken boiled over onto hot stove burner at Mill Town Apartments, just north of Victoria Ave., smoke ejector also used.

Carnival Raises $42.52 for St. Thomas

The impulse to aid others at time manifests itself unexpectedly early.

Take the kids of King George Sq. off North Front St.

Recently two of them — Jenifer Cox, 8, and Joanne Newlands, 10, were sitting on a stop and talking things in somewhere.

The recent loss by fire of Belleville's historic St. Thomas Anglican church cropped up. The girls, one Catholic, the other United Church, discussed it awhile, then hit on an idea: How about a penny carnival in the neighborhood to raise a donation for the church's restoration?

Tuesday, with their playmates they did just that.

With stalls laden with used toys, books, countless children knick-knacks and items donated by adults, the youngsters went into business.

There were some novel touches. Greg Paisley, 10, played accordion music; his nine-year-old brother Warren created-on-the-spot art sketches for sale.

Business boomed — even though penny carnivals are not exactly penny carnivals anymore.

You could see the results of inflation around the stalls. Fishpond cips these days cost two cents; drinks two to five cents; a toddy bear brought 15 cents, plastic jewelry five cents to a dime.

When it was all over, Mrs. Gloria Paisley, on whose lawn the carnival was staged, reported $42.52 had been collected for St. Thomas.

The spontaneous event warmed the reaction of one St. Thomas parish official, involved in the church's rebuilding decision — now awaiting the advice of an architect.

"They say kids aren't interested in religion or the church," added Harold Carruthers, chairman of St. Thomas building committee. "But maybe here's an example that belies that fact."

Search Continues For Missing Boaters

NAPANEE — Ontario Provincial Police divers are still frustrated in their efforts to recover the bodies of two men missing and presumed drowned in the waters between Amherst Island and the mainland just south of here.

The men are identified as Bradley Gibson, 21, of Amherst Island, his brother, Robert Gibson, 21, of Napanee, their brother-in-law Donald Lougheed, 27, of Napanee and Robert McGinnis, 20, of Kingston.

They were part of a party of six people which included two women, who left the northwestern tip of the island at about 1:30 a.m. Sunday morning. They were reported missing about nine hours later when they had not arrived where their cars were parked off Highway 33 near the Lennox Generating Station.

Police recovered the body of Patricia Lougheed, 23, of RR3, Napanee, at 11:16 a.m. on the shore of the mainland Sunday at Conway, about three miles west of the generating station. She was the sister of Robert and Bradley Gibson and the wife of Donald Lougheed.

About 15 minutes later, Deborah Gibson, 23, wife of Robert Gibson, was found on the shore at Bayshore Rd., about two miles west of where the first woman was found. She is conscious and in fair condition at Kingston General Hospital.

Land Use Debated

FRANKFORD — Detailed plans and then a firm, long-term lease must be in the hands of the Lower Trent Region Conservation Authority before it okays construction of a new tennis court and a change room at Wartworth Conservation Area land.

That decision came Tuesday after a request for permission to build the courts was received by the authority from the Community Service Club in Wartworth.

Chairman William Carter said the club project was feasible and in keeping with the general conservation aims of the Wartworth area.

The conservation area contains a small park, and a dam and reservoir which is normally used as a village "swimming hole".

Province Grants Extra $363,700 for Roads

The provincial government this year has granted an extra $363,700 in subsidies for construction work to Hastings County municipalities.

The supplementary subsidy allocations are divided among 19 of the county's 27 townships and villages.

Biggest grant goes to Madoc Township which gets $40,125. The smallest allocation goes to Marmora Village which receives $1,500.

The remainder of the supplementary subsidy is broken down in this way:

Villages — Bancroft, $15,400; Madoc, $2,500; Townships — Carlow, $28,000; Dungannon, $17,000; Elzevir-Grimsthorpe, $7,300; Faraday, $18,000; Herschel, $28,000; Hungerford, $36,650; Huntingdon, $15,000; Marmora and Lake $27,000; Marsh, $13,000; Montenaje $32,000; Rawdon, $24,000; Thurlow, $13,800; Tudor — Cashel, $22,000; Tyendinaga, $15,100; Wollaston, $20,000.

Sheppard New OPSMTF Head

A 30-year-old Trenton public school teacher has been elected to head the Hastings District of the Ontario Public School Men Teachers' Federation (OPSMTF).

Wayne Sheppard, a teacher at Queen Elizabeth Public School, at Trenton was elected last week to replace past-president Steve Brooks, who is now co-ordinator of outdoor education for the Hastings County Board of Education.

Rollins to Challenge Land-use Ruling

A spokesman for Maurice H. Rollins Construction has charged Peterborough council with making an arbitrary decision that resembles "expropriation without compensation" in connection with a 77-unit townhouse development in that community.

A committee of the whole — responding to neighborhood residents' complaints — passed a recommendation to be dealt with by council June 3, down zoning the density on 5.5 acres of land owned by the Belleville construction firm.

The parcel of land was earmarked for a 77-unit development and had already been serviced with over-sized lines in preparation for the project, Bob Marcotte, vice-president of the firm, said today "we paid top dollar for the land which had the zoning we needed already in effect".

"At we thought we needed was site plan approval — approval which technical staff had recommended to Peterborough," said Mr. Marcotte. Peterborough politicians overruled the planners and suggested the land be used for single-family units.

"If council upholds the committee recommendation we will ask for an Ontario Municipal Board hearing," said Mr. Marcotte.

"They didn't even invite us to discuss the site plan they was going on," said Mr. Marcotte.

"It was an arbitrary decision — expropriation without compensation," by reducing the use of the land, said Mr. Marcotte. He said responsible for out-of-town Rollins developments.

The largest loss through the decision if it is upheld by council is that federal government AHOP (Assisted Home Ownership Plan) grant will be lost, said Mr. Marcotte.

The grant applied to the development would give buyers low down payments, long-term mortgages and low interest rates.

"If we lose the deal through council, AHOP monies won't be held for us," said Mr. Marcotte.

Flyers Repeat as Stanley Cup Champions

BUFFALO (CP) — Bobby Clarke's name did not appear on the scoring summary Tuesday night but once again the Philadelphia Flyers team captain was a key figure in a Stanley Cup victory.

The Flyers defeated Buffalo Sabres 2-0 to take the best-of-seven National Hockey League final 4-2 for the second consecutive year. Last year, the Flyers also won in six games against Boston Bruins.

Clarke helped set up the winning goal by left winger Bob Kelly with only 11 seconds gone in the third period.

The play started when Reggie Leach fired the puck into the Sabres zone and Kelly and Buffalo defenceman Jerry Korab raced in after it.

"I got behind Korab to get it," Kelly said. "He drove me into the boards and Bobby came in and dug the puck out and then he held Korab.

"I just happened to walk out. I tried to stuff it and keep my body between (goalie Roger) Crozier and the puck. I shot it and it went in."

The goal stood up and Bill Clement scored his first goal of the playoffs to make it 2-0 at 17:13.

While Flyers goalie Bernie Parent was receiving accolades for winning his second consecutive Conn Smythe Trophy as the most valuable player in the playoffs, Flyers coach Fred Shero took time out to lauds Clarke who he calls "the greatest player in the game for holding his team."

"He's the greatest leader I've seen in any sports," said Shero. "He'd do anything to help a player. He worked harder than anyone. I know for a fact he's given away his points. He'd get 50 goals in this league if he wanted to. He finds some players but you've got to look at both ends and do your job. Right?"

Clarke was especially considerate of the first two games of the final at Philadelphia when the Flyers won 4-1 and 3-1 and it appeared he would be forced to take the Smythe Trophy this year.

However, he had trouble in the next two games when the Sabres won 1-4 and 4-0. The Flyers won the fifth game at home 3-1 with Parent taking most of the spotlight as he did Tuesday in recording his fourth shutout of the playoff season tying a record held by four other goalies.

Shero and his assistant, Mike Nykoluk, decided to put Kelly on a line with Clarke in the third period.

"Mike wanted me to do it (Clarke) and he was mad at me because I didn't," Shero said. "They were saying it on Clarke and we needed a tough guy out there like Kelly.

"They always had some tough guy trying to give Clarke a rest while the referee wasn't looking. Bobby can take care of himself, but they were unloading on him when the ref's back was turned. Someone gave him a real shot, a dirty shot from behind. You put a Kelly or a (Dave) Schultz out there and this is going to put a stop to Clarke. They aren't that brave."

However, Kelly did not work on Clarke line-late in the game as Shero said he decided that he thought he would jog with his best because "one goal was enough if you play it right."

Shero also announced that Clarke has had a bad leg in recent games. "He gets pains in there and it gets numb. I don't know what it is exactly."

Clarke refused to discuss the injury, saying that his leg was fine.

"Everybody gets bruises at this time of year but you've got to play.

"You just feel on top of the world. You have to be a part of it to know the feeling you get.

"I think if we would have fallen flat on our faces, they would have said we didn't was lucky. You win it two years in a row and you've got to say it's a pretty good team."

Clarke said the Flyers realized that they had beaten a good Sabres team.

The Sabres, playing in front of a partisan crowd of 15,365, had some excellent scoring opportunities in the first two periods as they held a 26-19 scoring edge. The Sabres ended with a 32-24 edge in shots in the game.

Sabres captain Jim Schoenfeld said he felt the Sabres had handled the Flyers well in the series and "just didn't get any breaks."

The Sabres weren't even in the playoffs last year and many had predicted they would have

Parent—Conn Smythe Trophy

Intelligencer Sports

Two Straight Proves It

We're No Fluke—Kelly

BUFFALO (CP) — Philadelphia Flyers said they proved a point Tuesday night but they needed help from goalie Bernie Parent to get their message across to Buffalo Sabres.

"Everybody knocked us last year," said Flyers winger Bob Kelly. "They said it was a fluke when we won the Stanley Cup last year, that we couldn't do it again.

"We won it to prove to ourselves and everybody else that it was no fluke. We're not a fluke hockey club."

Kelly, who missed 13 of 17 playoff games with an injury last year, including the final series when the Flyers defeated Boston Bruins, scored the winning goal at the 11-second mark of the third period Tuesday night as the Flyers blanked Buffalo 2-0.

The win gave Philadelphia the best-of-seven National Hockey League final series 4-2 and their second consecutive championship.

"We're a bunch of guys who work hard for one thing. Everybody's happy and there's great harmony here."

However, it might have been a different story without Parent who was named winner of the Conn Smythe Trophy for the second year in a row. The trophy is an annual award to the most valuable player in the playoffs and is decided by a vote among a panel of sports writers.

"Well, I like to think it was more than hot goaltending," said Buffalo coach Floyd Smith. "I thought their whole club played well, their defence, their forwards and they had excellent goaltending.

"Maybe a little bit of our inexperience showed up at times. That's the way it goes. We got here on inexperience. Maybe inexperience is the end, cost."

Parent stopped 22 shots in recording his fourth shutout of the playoff season, tying a record shared previously by four others.

The shutout also enabled Philadelphia to set a team record of five shutouts. Wayne Stephenson got the other Philadelphia shutout in the semi-final against New York Islanders.

"Bernie made the saves we needed until we got that lead," said Flyers winger Gary Dornhoefer who boomed home the winner of the Sabres throughout the series, holding the high-scoring Buffalo forward to two goals.

"He (Parent) came up time and time again." Dornhoefer said. "If you'll recall, he did the same thing to Boston last year when we won 1-0 in the final game."

Parent preferred to talk about next season. "We did it twice, why not a third time?" said Parent who added the Smythe Trophy to the Vezina Trophy he won as the top goalie in the regular season.

Coach Fred Shero of the Flyers said:

"They (Buffalo) might be more powerful than us next year. We never underestimated them because we know damn well how strong they are, even though we were beating them all year or the last two years."

Smith said the Flyers "skated hard" and "outmucked us on one goal."

"I'm very happy with our performance," he said (the Sabres) played this way all season. They didn't quit until the end.

BOBBY CLARKE

Bruins Sign Phil

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. (AP) — Phil Esposito, the National Hockey League's leading goal scorer last season, signed a new multi-year contract with Boston Bruins on Tuesday.

At a news conference, Harry Sinden, managing director of the National Hockey League team, said right winger Terry O'Reilly also had signed a multi-year agreement.

Sinden did not disclose details of the two contracts, but both were reported to be for three years.

"There is no need for me to go into any great details concerning the value of these players to our team," Sinden said.

"Phil has established himself as the finest goal-scorer in the game today, while Terry has become the epitome of aggressiveness and desire as one of the most improved players in the league," he said.

Esposito, 31, is fifth in the all-time NHL goal scoring list with 127 goals in 11 seasons. He led the league in total points in five of the last seven seasons.

He had 61 goals and 66 assists for a total of 127 points last season, second only to teammate Bobby Orr.

O'Reilly had 15 goals and 30 assists last season, his third with the Bruins.

"Plumbing is our only business . . . come to us for everything including the kitchen sink"

Moira Forward Ross MacLeod

Ontario Title Is on the Line

By DOUG JEFFRIES

When the competition gets tough, the Moira Secondary School Senior Trojans get tougher.

With the Ontario High School Soccer championships coming up, the calibre of play is slated to be very good.

Moira will be the first team from the Bay of Quinte league to venture into the Ontario finals and the team's record proves why Trojans should go.

The Trojans lost last year's league final to Brighton in the pouring rain but still qualified for the Central Ontario championships and won it all, beating out Lakefield of Peterborough and Curtis High School from Oshawa. Curtis is a perennial top-seeded team at the OFSAA, and has won before. This could be some indication for the Trojans.

"The teams and their talent are really unknown to us," said Bill Jacobs coach of the squad.

"I think our boys will show exceptionally well, but we'll just keep our fingers crossed."

The Trojans will not be upset by opposition with more size, because they are used to playing against men.

To keep in shape over the winter the team participated in the Indoor Soccer League and played well.

"We owe a lot to the Belleville Olympics who helped us along the way with a couple of pointers," stated coach Jacobs.

The Trojan style of play is a 3-5-2, but when the team is attacking, two of the full backs move up, and when on defence, two stay back. "The system works very well" says Jacobs.

The attack is led by Tom Britton, Dave Powell and Ross McLeod.

Further experience comes to the team in the Bay of Quinte Soccer League, where many of the players from Moira compete with the Parsons club of Belleville.

In league play last year the team scored 28 goals and yielded only two to their opponents. Jim Asselbine is the goalkeeper.

The year's tourney will be a one-day event with an opening game less moving a team to the consolation round. Two 35-minute halves are played with the top 12 teams in Ontario competing. Newmarket is the site for the games, to be held Saturday.

The top seeded teams should come from the Toronto-Hamilton area at Dundas High School of Burlington is the defending champion.

Coach Jacob summed the situation up saying "You never know in a one shot deal, because anybody can win, and we're certainly going to give it a good shot".

CANADA TO FACE BRAZIL

OTTAWA (CP) — The Canadian water polo team will meet Brazil June 24 in a three-game world championship qualifying tournament at Laval University in Quebec City. It was announced Tuesday. If Brazil loses to the Canadian team, it would be ineligible to compete in the Olympic games.

Howard and Robert Gains Share of First Place

Howard and Robert Printing gained a share of first place in the Quinte Football League Monday night when they kept their unbeaten streak alive and extended their winning run to three games with a 3-0 shutout over the Anger Men's Wear.

In the other QFL contest at Alemite Park, Deveils Motors evened their record at 2-2 with a 9-2 win over Rorabeck Real Estate, Wellington.

Ron Ethier earned his third win in as many starts in the game. Ondaro scored twice in it, walking one and allowing four hits.

Anger pitcher, Jamie Hunter struck out four and walked none while giving up three hits.

Ethier's shaky wrong field triple drove in one run and Terry Pope brought around Shelton with a single in a fourth inning rally.

State Farm Bantams Prevent Belleville Sweep

Chris Walsh played the part of the spoiler in the Belleville's Eastern Ontario Baseball Association (EOBA) action Monday night. The Trenton State Farm bantams fired third strikes count 15 local batters and gave up only six hits and three walks as the visitors edged the Legion bantams 3-1.

In two other EOBA contests Monday, Belleville Tardiness midgets travelled to Kingston and upset the local powerhouse 8-7 while Belleville Elliott Motors tyke squeezed Coxhoburg 9-5 at Parkdale Park.

Walsh not only held Belleville off the plate, Kingston scored one run for his team — the eventual winner and drove in the first tally. In all he crashed a triple and a pair of singles to top the winners nine hit attack.

Paul Discracomo punched out three singles and Don Hamilton was next in line with two, one-baggers.

Belville's Bob Dafoe responded with a triple and Steve McDonnell singled twice.

Steve Carr was the loser with relief help from Peter Manderville. They combined to fan nine State Farm batters while walking only one.

The Yardmen midgets fell behind 3-0 in the first inning, but each back with two in the third and exploded for seven in the fourth to top Kingston. Gary Shapley picked up the win walking seven and striking out six.

Mike Burke topped the losers attack with a triple and a triple and Terry Pascoe, Pete Badgley and Brent McInoche each singled once.

Dave Burnett had a home run and a pair of singles.

Robert Boomhower had a home run and Bill Harvey and Dave Coughlin each banged out a pair of singles as the Elliott tykes counted five runs in the fifth and four in the sixth to beat Cobourg.

Bubble Beyer went the distance for the locals walking three, giving up seven hits and three runs. Fred Ryan was the loser with four strikouts, one walk and 12 hits.

Dave Peters topped the Cobourg hitters with two singles.

Latta Scores 6-0 Win On Reid's Two-hitter

Bob Reid fanned 14 batters and held the opposition to just two hits while giving up only one walk as Latta shutout Thamesville 6-0 in Monday night's only South Hastings Baseball League game.

Bob Smith and Rob Allison topped the Latta offence with a double and a single each and Brad Sullivan crashed a double. Barry Ray and Wayne Harrison each singled once.

Jason Morris was the spoiler in Reid's bid for a no-hitter. He collected both the Latta hits — a double and a single.

The Reid and Glen Barbarotsick three for the losers striking out nine and walking three.

Black Diamond Undefeated in 4

The Intelligencer handed Black Diamond two points in Industrial Softball League action Monday night as the winners capitalized on several errors to score four of their eight runs. The Intell was limited to three runs.

In the other contest, UIC dumped the Independents 15-4.

Ron Andrews picked up the win on Black Diamond's mound while Jim McKay absorbed the loss. Andrews fanned three and walked four while McKay struck out six and gave up three free passes.

Myles McDonnell cranked a home run, a double and a single to lead the Black Diamond attack while Jack Colloden was tops for The Intell with a homer.

UIC won their second of the season behind the pitching of Rick Sullivan and Joe Scanlon.

Carl Boomhower cranked a grand slam home run in the sixth inning to cap off a seven run Deveils explosion. Until the bottom of the sixth the score was even at 2-2.

Ron Marsala was the winner fanning eight and walking one. He gave up five hits.

Wayne Casselman was the loser striking out four and walking one. Gary Kleinsteiber came in half way through the sixth for Rorabeck and gave up a walk and a hit.

Ralph Plane added a pair of triples to the Deveils offensive attack and a pair of walks.

Greg Bellis was the loser with relief help from Paul Trumpour. They fanned six and walked three.

Joe Clark led the winners with a homer, a double and a single and Bill Healy added a trio of one-baggers. Doug McKay had a pair of doubles and a single for the Independent.

Pele Still Undecided

VANCOUVER (CP) — Pele, the superstar of international soccer for almost 20 years, said Tuesday that he would need at least one more week to consider an offer to play in the North American Soccer League.

Offered about $7 million to play three years for New York Cosmos, Pele said through an interpreter that he would be in New York today to talk to Cosmos officials.

"I go to New York to see Cosmos play Vancouver. (Whitecaps) but I won't play. I'm still thinking because it's a new thing for me."

Pele said he thought he could play for two or three years at the same standard at which he performed when he left international competition two years ago.

"I never stopped playing. I've been in constant training with Santos and have played many exhibition games and club games. I believe in one week or 10 days I could play in the North American Soccer League."

He said he was approached by the NASL in 1971 and 1972 and said he felt his participation would give credence to soccer in North America.

It would be tremendous for the improvement of football. This, I believe, would be my help to football in this area."

Chicago Cougars

WHA Franchise Is Suspended

LOS ANGELES (CP) — The franchise of Chicago Cougars has been suspended, the World Hockey Association announced Tuesday.

WHA president Dennis Murphy said chief executive officer Ben Hatskin of Winnipeg Jets has been allowed to "transfer" his players to the Chicago roster in lieu of future disputes.

Murphy said Hatskin said the franchise was suspended because of the lack of an adequate arena for the club and that the league will consider granting the area a new franchise if that situation is corrected.

When Jerry Mullenix announced recently that a group he heads had been granted a WHA franchise for Denver, there were reports that his group would get the Chicago franchise.

There has been no subsequent indication how players will be provided for the Denver team.

The demise of the Chicago franchise leaves the WHA with nine in Calgary, Edmonton, Winnipeg, Toronto, Quebec, Hartford, Conn., Cleveland, Baltimore, Indianapolis, St. Paul, Minn., Houston, San Diego, Phoenix and Denver.

Still in doubt is the future of the Baltimore franchise, which was operated by the league.

Jones Fills Spot

NEW YORK (AP) — New York Mets' shortstop Bud Harrelson was placed on the 60-day emergency disabled list Tuesday and outfielder Cleon Jones was returned to the active list, the National League club announced. The Mets said Harrelson would undergo surgery to remove a fragment of bone cartilage from his right knee within the next few days. Jones had been on the disabled list since April 5 after an operation last October on his right knee.

after being moved from Detroit in mid-season.

Chicago had one of the original WHA franchises in 1972-73. Only teams surviving in the same location from that first season are Edmonton, Winnipeg, Quebec, Cleveland, Houston and Minnesota. Flying Salmon, who play out of St. Paul.

Montefusco, Miscues Sink Phils

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Philadelphia Phillies have been known to brag about having the best infield in baseball but it wasn't in evidence Tuesday night when they lost 1-0 to San Francisco Giants in 10 innings.

To quote the Phils' press guide: "In 1974, the Phillies' infield of Mike Schmidt, Larry Bowa, Dave Cash and Willie Montanez all finished second in balloting for the National League Gold Glove awards. The Phillies' foursome hit for the highest average, .300."

But Third Baseman Schmidt took this year's .150 average to the bench Tuesday night, ending the league's longest consecutive game string of 331. Montanez was on the disabled list with a broken thumb suffered a night earlier.

Cash was in his accustomed spot at second base, but he went hitless in four trips and committed two of Philadelphia's five errors. And Montanez was at first base but he was wearing a San Francisco uniform, having been traded to the Giants three weeks ago for outfielder Garry Maddox. And Maddox was alongside Bowa on the disabled list with a cracked kneecap.

Elsewhere in the NL, Los Angeles Dodgers beat New York Mets 10-4, Atlanta Braves defeated Chicago Cubs 7-4, Pittsburgh Pirates edged Houston Astros 9-8 and St. Louis Cardinals whipped San Diego Padres 9-1. Cincinnati and Montreal were not scheduled.

In addition to Cash, the Phils' outmanned infield had Dick Allen at first, Terry Harmon at second and Tony Taylor — two errors at third.

The Phillies' fifth error was the one that cost them the ball game. San Francisco's Gene Joshua singled with one out in the 10th off reliever Gene Garber and continued to third when the ball got away from centerfielder Jerry Martin, just up from the minors to take Maddox' spot on the roster. Joshua scored on a double by pinch hitter Glenn Adams and that was all. John Montefusco needed as he pitched a five-hit shutout.

Bill Robinson's ninth-inning single capped a three-run rally that lifted Pittsburgh over the Astros.

The Astros walked Manny Sanguillen intentionally to get to Robinson with two out and the score tied. Robinson, hitless in four previous at-bats with three strikeouts, faced a 1-2 pitch from Ken Forsch into left field to win the game and lift the Pirates into second place in the NL East, one-half game behind the Cubs and one game ahead of the Mets.

Jimmy Wynn knocked in three runs with his ninth and 10th homers for Los Angeles and Dave Lopes hit a three-run shot to back Burt Hooton's shaky pitching. Steve Garvey started the Dodger scoring with a two-run double off Harry Parker in the first inning and Wynn homered in the third with a man on and again in the sixth. Ed Kranepool homered for the Mets.

Marty Perez' two-run, two-out single off Chicago's Rick Reuschel following an intentional walk to Ralph Garr snapped a 1-1 tie in the seventh inning. The Braves added four runs in the eighth, two on a single by Garr. Phil Niekro checked the Cubs on seven hits, including a home run by Reuschel.

Lou Brock hit a homer for St. Louis and Bob Forsch pitched a five-hitter. The 36-year-old Brock, who was struggling with a .223 average May 8, improved his mark to .321. He led off the first inning with a single, slugged a bases-empty homer in the third, a run-scoring triple in the fifth and a double in the eighth.

Coach Gets Heave-ho But Tomahawks Win

Coach Morley Kells of the Tomahawks got the chop from game officials, but the Long Island club held on for a 19-17 win over Quebec Caribous in one of two National Lacrosse League contests Tuesday night.

Kells was banished at 6:08 of the second period for arguing a slashing call and the Tomahawks entered the intermission with an 18-11 lead. Quebec outscored the host club 6-1 in the final 20 minutes but could not overcome the deficit.

In other action, Boston Bulls stymied Maryland's efforts to take over sole possession of first place, upsetting the Arrows 14-11 before 7,340 fans at Boston.

Draw from Hat Does the Trick

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Del Crandall has come up with a most unusual way to win a baseball game.

It goes like this: Let the ballplayers choose the starting lineup.

The Milwaukee Brewers manager, in a desperate move to change his luck, had the lineup picked out of a hat at random by the players Tuesday night and it resulted in a 9-5 victory over Chicago White Sox.

"I was just looking for something to kind of take the pressure off things and I thought it was worth a try," said Crandall, whose team had lost six consecutive games and eight of nine before Tuesday night. "Billy Martin did the same thing a couple of years ago."

The Milwaukee starters determined their positions in the batting order by drawing scraps of paper with numbers written on them. This luck of the draw found Hank Aaron, the all-time homerun king, batting seventh and Kurt Bevacqua, a .158 hitter, in the cleanup spot.

That wasn't all. Aaron suggested to Crandall that he play left field instead of starting in his familiar designated hitter position and Crandall agreed.

In the other American League games, Kansas City Royals beat New York Yankees 3-0, Minnesota Twins defeated Detroit Tigers 6-5, Cleveland Indians beat California Angels 5-3 and Oakland A's defeated Baltimore Orioles 4-2. The Boston-Texas game was postponed by rain.

Bobby Mitchell capped a five-run fourth inning with a three-run homer, rallying Milwaukee over Chicago. The Brewers rallied from a 4-0 deficit to win it for rookie Tom Hausman, who relieved Ed Sprague in the second inning.

BEEF BARBECUES WITHOUT COSTLY STEAKS

It pestersome and sticin for barbecues are beyond your summer budget, try some of the medium and less tender cuts like lower round, blade, chuck, shoulder, brisking ribs.

Not recognize that cuts other than those from the loin or ribs. The are less tender and adapt your cooking method accordingly. Some, such as brisking ribs, can be simmered first, then grill them, brushing with barbecue sauce while browning them over the coals. Or first treat with a meat tenderizer, then barbecue.

Some of the less-tender beef cuts are more flavorful than those from the loin. And if the demand for the most-wanted, tender barbecue steaks lessens, supply would catch up so that their price would be more in line with our means.

Flaming Wreck As Sneva Slams Into Wall

More Precautions Needed Warns USAC Supervisor

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — As a result of a crash during Sunday's Indianapolis 500 which left driver Tom Sneva with burns over 15 per cent of his body, one official is prepared to recommend removal of one pit truck from championship race cars.

Frank Del Roy, technical supervisor for the United States Auto Club (USAC), said the fuel which ignited, and burned Sneva came from a five-gallon tank mounted behind the driver's head.

"The tank didn't have a quick-close valve on it, and when the hose from it pulled off, the fuel just sprayed."

Del Roy said he would recommend this stopper that the Swegellin tank be replaced. In its place, he will recommend replacing the main gas tank in the racers, providing proper energy-absorbing material is installed around the tank.

As a stop-gap measure, he said he would recommend that cars running USAC races in the near future have breakaway, self-sealing valves installed on the small tank near the driver.

INDIANAPOLIS (AP)

Driver Tom Sneva, injured in a crash in Sunday's Indianapolis 500-mile auto race, was moved Tuesday to a private room at Methodist Hospital.

Although he suffered first, second and third-degree burns over 15 per cent of his body, doctors said Sneva might be well enough to go home in seven to 10 days.

"I could be racing again by the Milwaukee 150 on June 9," Sneva said Tuesday. "But I'm definitely be back by the time practice starts June 18 for the Pocono 500."

Car owner Roger Penske said he will have a new car ready when Sneva is ready to drive again. Sneva's Penske McLaren, wrecked Sunday, was carted off in two dump trucks.

Tournament of Champs Will Return in 1976

ATLANTA (AP) — The cancellation of professional golf's Tournament of Champions was rescinded Tuesday and the event re-scheduled for 1976.

The action was announced by pro golf commissioner Deane Beman at a meeting of the tourney planers at the Atlanta Country Club on Tuesday night following a daytime meeting of the Tournament Players Division Policy Board.

"The board reconsidered the matter today and asked me to inform you that the board has rescinded its previous decision and will reschedule the Tournament of Champions in 1976," Beman told the players.

The Tournament of Champions, for 25 years one of the game's top events, was cancelled in a phone call from Beman shortly after the event's contract expired after the 1973 tournament in Carlsbad, Calif., in April.

The players expressed indecision at the time, and the action has been the subject of intense speculation for have weeks.

Tournament was cancelled the action was taken because of a conflict in the Tournament of Champions schedule for that with a new and expanded World Series of Golf which will go into effect in 1976.

The Tournament of Champions was reinstated, Beman said, on a recommendation by the board.

The board's action was based on the expressed willingness of the sponsor to adjust the fixtures of the Tournament of Champions to accomodate the development of the World Series of Golf," Beman said Tuesday in a prepared statement to the players.

Bugner A Must

NEW YORK (AP) — Mohammed Ali said Tuesday he will beat Jeff Bugner in his next title defense because "if a white man whipped me, I couldn't walk the streets of America."

"I couldn't go to Harlem or to Watts," said the heavyweight champion at a news conference to formally announce a closed-circuit championship triphleheader, topped by his fight against European champion Bugner of Britain in Kuala Lumpur, Malaysia, July 1.

The fight will probably start about 10 a.m. Malaysian time and be seen on television in the U.S. at 10 p.m. EDT. The other two fights, to take place June 30 in Madison Square Garden, will be a middleweight title fight between champion Carlos Monzon of Argentina and Tony Licata of New Orleans, and a light heavyweight title bout between champion Victor Galindez and Jorge Ahumada, both of Argentina.

Promoter Don King said that Ali was getting $3 million, Bugner $500,000, Monzon $9,000 and the other three $20,000 each. He said the $20,000 for Monzon strictly an live-show price and that the middleweight champion's total purse would be in six figures with his closed-circuit cut. King also said that Galindez would get something from closed circuit.

No Stodgy Menus By Camp Caterers

EDMONTON (CP) — "It's Tuesday, it must be pork chops" is definitely not the philosophy behind Canada's largest backwoods catering company.

"We try to model our meals after the traditional Sunday dinner," says Doug Cox, president of Edmonton-based Liberty and Associates Ltd.

The company, which caters to about 3,000 workers daily in isolated bush camps from Alaska to the Gulf of Mexico, emphasizes variety and "family-style feeds," he said.

Fresh vegetables, choice steak, Yorkshire pudding and banana-cream pie are provided to workers as far north as the Arctic Circle, and almost all items are "cooked from scratch."

The Canadian-owned company serves about 3.5 million meals a year to oil, construction, and mine workers at about 150 locations in Canada and the United States.

"We have to be able to provide supplies on the spur of the moment to a client who may be 1,200 miles north of here," Mr. Cox said.

Although most of the camps are in Alberta, British Columbia, and the Northwest Territories, Liberty operations opened offices in Anchorage, Alaska, and Denver, Colo., and has had inquiries from as far away as the Middle East.

Founded in 1949 by Ted Cox, father to provide camp trailers, the company expanded into catering in 1956 and has continued to provide both services since then.

Further camp equipment includes house trailers that contain beds with spring-filled mattresses, individual closets, modern bathroom, shower and dining area, office space and a recreational area if desired.

Clients are charged a daily base rate of $21 a man, which includes three meals, laundry and room services.

"It's like a hotel, really," Mr. Cox said.

Steaks, roasts and chicken are selected and prepared by the company's own butcher shop in Edmonton, which employs up to seven persons to ensure a continuous supply of premium meat.

Good cooks are important too. Cooks, who may be of either sex, are allowed some latitude to do what they do best" and are rated for ability in the trade.

Menus are built around the nutritive requirements of physical laborers and prepared in advance; then orders are filled at the Edmonton base and shipped to the camp by truck, Mr. Cox said.

The company uses various methods of transportation to get supplies and personnel to camp, including trucks, barges, tractor-trailer convoys, helicopters and Hercules aircraft.

Catering style is dependent on camp size. Camps usually range from 20 to 150 men, with the average. Four employees man the small camps, usually a cook, cook's helper and two cabin attendants.

In small camps, we try to make mealtime as personalized as possible," Mr. Cox said.

"The workers are served a 18-man table, meat is cooked to order, seconds items are placed on the table, and there is no limit on quantity."

Large camps necessitate a semi-style serving, but cooks still try to provide no quantity limitations are imposed upon the worker, Mr. Cox said.

Of course we all use some trade gimmicks though, such as always serving soup before a meal to decrease the workers' appetites.

Providing meals in the wilderness is not without problems. Water supply is often limited. And, although camps are stocked with two-week reserves, supplies occasionally fail to arrive on time.

Opening lead — 5 ♥

By OSWALD and JAMES JACOBY

The late Willard S. Karn was probably the greatest exponent of lead-directing bidding of all time.

Take today's hand as an example. After North jumped to three spades, Willard decided he was going to play it. He could have bid six directly. This was back in the early 30s before bidding was at all scientific, but Willard decided that he would open a club. Of course, if West bold the ace-king of clubs there would be no way to stop a club lead, but Willard couldn't help that.

Willard could have bid four clubs and then jumped to six spades, but West had played against Willard before and that four-club bid would have been like a red rag to a bull. It would have caused West to go out of his way to lead the ace.

So Willard went the opposite route. He bid diamonds, hoping heartsion the way to the slam. Now any conscious West wasn't sure of anything except that Willard was ready for a club lead so he opened a diamond.

This gave Willard time to lose the heart finesse but get rid of his losing club. Against a club lead Willard would have had to lose two tricks.

CARD SENSE

A — Bid four clubs. This hand is not going to produce nine tricks in notrump.

TODAY'S QUESTION

Instead of bidding two clubs your partner has jumped to three clubs over your one spade. What do you do now?

Tubal Pregnancy May Be Repeated

By G. C. TROSTESON, MD

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I am 28-years-old and married. Shortly after my marriage I had one miscarriage followed a year later by a ruptured ectopic pregnancy. I was 8 months.

My periods have been erratic, averaging one every four months. I am considering marriage again, and would like to have a child.

What are my chances, at my age, of having a normal child? What about my chances of a second ectopic pregnancy? I have another ectopic pregnancy? M.W.

An ectopic pregnancy is one in which the ovum attaches itself to one of the Fallopian tubes, beginning its fetal development there. The result can be a spontaneous abortion, but more often, as the growing fetus will ras in your case) rupture the tube. Tubal removal is necessary, including the tube involved.

If the other tube remains intact, then another pregnancy is possible. Your age would be an ho. However, with your erratic menstrual cycles, your fertility may be decreased. The possibility of a second ectopic pregnancy cannot be predicted, except to say that the same factors which caused the first miscarriage could cause another.

The surgeon who performed the operation would be able to tell you the condition of the second tube. It would also be important to know the cause of your ectopic (tubal) pregnancy. Inflammation of the tube prior to pregnancy is the cause in about 25 per cent of cases. Other causes can be a deformity in the tube, endometriosis (within the tube), or adhesions from previous infection.

About all you can do is try to become pregnant as soon as possible, if your physician feels you are capable. You should probably discuss your limited fertility with your fiance before your marriage, especially if it is a matter of great importance to him. There always remains the possibility of adoption, and this, too, should be discussed.

A Further Note to Mrs. G.F.: — Regarding bowlegs, many infants appear to have bowlegs but they eventually straighten out. However, true bowlegs can be caused by what is called infantile tibia vara, a matter of tension in one of the larger bones in the lower legs. If not corrected, this condition can persist. The ideal time for correction would be at the age of three or four months. The youngster's condition can be evaluated by a bone specialist, if you feel bowlegs are suspected.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I have been experiencing dizziness and nausea for about six months. Could this be eye fatigue? Can eye fatigue cause illnes? What can I do about it?—K.K.

It is most likely something more serious than simple eye strain, considering symptoms that have persisted as long as have yours. If you wear glasses, you may need to have your prescription adjusted. Or your headaches could signal something more serious, such as beginning glaucoma or cataracts. I suggest you see an eye specialist. Do not let the situation deteriorate. Eye strain is not of itself, is not usually the cause of such things as persistent headache and dizziness. Your eyes are too valuable. Allow such symptoms to go unchecked.

Answer to Previous Puzzle

Dief Rolls Out His Big Guns To Fire Rousing Salvo at PM

OTTAWA (CP) — John Diefenbaker delved into his crystal ball Monday and promptly produced an indignant denunciation of Prime Minister Trudeau for attempting "to destroy my reputation with future books."

The former Progressive Conservative prime minister, orally dissecting a Trudeau speech delivered last week, denied the allegations made in the Commons as he accused the prime minister of making statements "that bear no resemblance to what occurred in the facts."

As Diefenbaker trip sparred Mr. Trudeau from the wrath of the Opposition, Prime Minister Mr. Trudeau defended the specific Trudeau statements and used them to hurl accusations at the governing Liberals.

"I have never, in all the years I have been here, seen such a collection of statements

Munro Denies High Wages Major Cause of Inflation

OTTAWA (CP) — Labor Minister John Munro appeared out of step with the government Tuesday, delivering a hard-hitting speech which denied that high wage settlements are the major cause of inflation.

Both Prime Minister Trudeau and Finance Minister John Turner have cited wage settlements as a main inflationary factor.

Mr. Munro criticized in the Commons "the prevailing myth that excessive wage settlements are the main cause of inflation, that they are running double the average rate of wages in the United States and that they threaten our competitive advantages over the Americans."

Mr. Trudeau Friday night in Belleville, Ont., that labor is making settlements that will provide a hedge against inflation before bargaining is able to meet current needs. The prime minister said the so-called "catch-up factor" means that wage settlements are markedly higher than in the U.S. and are affecting Canada's ability to sell its goods abroad.

Mr. Munro quoted from recent news reports "which go further to debunk this myth about allegedly excessive wage increases."

"Canadian wages have been rising faster than those in the U.S.; but so has our productivity."

Mr. Munro also criticized suggestions that all pay raises should be held at the same general percentage increase.

"It is all very well for us to sit in the House and express horror at certain percentage increases without examining the base rate," he said. "We might have different ideas of what our percentage increase should be if we had to spend our pays in hospitals or cleaning garbage in the streets."

The government has asked business and labor to adopt voluntary wage and price restraints, but Mr. Turner said no agreement has been reached.

Mr. Turner, who will bring down a new budget June 12, has said that annual wage increases be held to 12 per cent or $2,400, whichever is lower.

Mr. Munro said if all wages rose by the same general percentage, the same persons would continue to be locked-in at the bottom of the packing order.

Mr. Munro's views later were supported by Paul Moliss (Lanark-Renfrew) who said labor has been in the position of catching up and cannot be blamed for inflation.

The labor minister attacked the Canadian Labor Congress (CLC) and warned the organization to set up a code of ethics for its affiliated unions or face the possibility of government action to correct any cases of wrongdoing.

He said "the yet that pervades the construction industry in Quebec . . . underlines a glaring omission in the internal mechanism of the labor movement in Canada—the lack of a code of ethics and the means to enforce it."

"The reticence of the Canadian Labor Congress concerned during the Cliche commission hearings (into Quebec construction violence) and its aloofness from the latest controversy involving Union has not been particularly impressive."

Several major construction unions in Quebec are to be placed under provincial trusteeship as a result of the inquiry headed by Judge Robert Cliche.

Mr. Munro added, however, that most CLC affiliates "are scrupulous and honest," and that most unions are not powerful enough.

"Power, instead of being constrained in one union or one bargaining unit, is diffused among several competing groups.

"When we talk about the need for industrywide bargaining to keep with this fragmentation of contract negotiations, we are, in effect, advocating the concentration of more union power."

Tainted Meat Labelled As 'Quebec Approved'

MONTREAL (CP) — The manager of a Montreal meat packing firm was given police protection Tuesday after telling an inquiry into organized crime that he said tainted meat to a distributor in Magog, Que.

Andre Smith, manager of R. Drolet Ltd. of Montreal, told the Quebec Labor Commission inquiry that he sold meat from diseased or dead animals.

He said the meat was bought from dealers who specialized in blending the carcasses of dead cows and live diseased animals which were brought in. Mr. Smith's firm where they were packed in containers marked "Quebec approved."

The meat was then taken to the Federal Packing plant in Magog where it was re-distributed for sale. He said he paid 70 cents a pound for tainted meat and re-sold it to Federal Packing for up to 80 cents a pound, but added: "I still didn't like it."

"Why didn't you like it?" asked inquiry chairman Judge Jean Dubé.

"It wasn't inspected," Mr. Smith replied.

"Would you feed it to your family?" Judge Dubé asked.

"I wouldn't give it to my family," Mr. Smith replied. "I knew where it came from. It wasn't good."

He said much of the meat came from Marcel Pelletier and his son-in-law, Luc Bernier, who operated out of St. Theodore d'Acton, Que. Officials of Federal Packing had made the main decisions and he had acted as go-between in receiving the meat.

Asked how his firm had access to boxes bearing the "Quebec approved" seal, Mr. Smith said he only needed information from inspectors for numbers of the special boxes and that "once the containers were approved and examined, we took what we needed."

Following his testimony, Mr. Smith asked that police protection be given him and his family.

Judge Dubé praised Mr. Smith for his courage in appearing before the inquiry and said police would be assigned to make sure no one would harm him.

The inquiry adjourned until Friday when Mr. Smith is to testify again.

Waterfront Aid Planned

TORONTO (CP) — A program to assist municipalities in developing waterfront recreational facilities was announced in the legislature Tuesday by Leo Bernier, minister of natural resources.

"In co-operation with the federal government, the program will provide financial assistance to municipalities to develop waterfront recreational facilities for fishing and boat launching, moorings and the necessary access, parking and service needs," Mr. Bernier said.

Three Plead Guilty

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — The murder trial of three men charged with the beating death Jan. 13 of Eugene Pozer ended Tuesday when all three pleaded guilty to manslaughter.

Robert Chadwick, 20, Eric Stewart Blanchette, 20, and Larry Boyden Ferguson, 21, all of London, will be sentenced June 2 in Ontario Supreme Court.

Maximum penalty for manslaughter is life imprisonment.

Senate Wants Pardons For First Use of Pot

OTTAWA (CP) — A senate committee stopped just short Tuesday of proposing that possession of marijuana no longer be a crime.

The committee amended the cannabis bill it was studying to extend an automatic pardon to first offenders who are given an absolute or conditional discharge for possession. Toughest penalty for possession would be a maximum $500 fine. The present maximum is a $1,000 fine and six months in jail.

The committee, whose report was tabled Tuesday in the Senate, nudged judges toward giving out absolute or conditional discharges of first offenders, followed by an automatic pardon to erase a criminal record. It would go no further.

"From a practical point of view there is no way we could get that law (removing simple possession as an offence) through in Canada today," Sen. Leonard Marcus Hanson (L.-Ontario), who is piloting the Senate bill, said in an interview later. "There is no way the public would accept it."

A federal commission on non-medical use of drugs recommended in 1972 that possession of marijuana no longer be a crime. The Law Reform Commission of Canada indicated before the committee that it felt the same way.

Arthur Maloney, Ontario's top criminal lawyer, reflected these views in recent committee hearings.

Senator Carl Goldenberg (L.-Quebec), the committee chairman, said he feels a forward step will be taken if automatic pardons are granted first offenders, now saddled with criminal records that can be a handicap in getting jobs or travelling abroad.

Three Dead, 13 Wounded

Brampton Student Wields Two Rifles

BRAMPTON, Ont. (CP) — A 16-year-old student, whose last note to his parents said he was "fed up with life . . . I am going out to eliminate people," killed his teacher and a fellow student, then committed suicide, in a shooting rampage at his school Wednesday.

Michael Slobodian, a Grade 11 student, went to Centennial secondary school in this city northwest of Toronto and killed Margaret Wright, 25, his English and art teacher, John Slinger, 17, and wounded 13 other students before turning a semi-automatic rifle on himself.

Chief Douglas Burrows of Peel regional police said Slobodian entered the men's washroom of the school at about 11:30 a.m. armed with two rifles—44-calibre and 22-calibre hidden in a guitar case—and fired at random, killing a student and seriously wounding another.

Chief Burrows said Slobodian then left the washroom and went to the immediate area, wounding two male students, then fired in the general direction of a home economics classroom, wounding two female students and one male teacher.

He proceeded through a first-floor hallway and fired at random in the area of the school's cafeteria, allitting minor gunshots to six students, then went turned towards the art room, fatally shooting Mrs. Wright and seriously wounding two male students.

Then "the gunman turned the gun on himself, inflicting a fatal head wound," the police report said.

"I was standing there outside of the hall when I heard a bang," said Ted White, 17, a Grade 12 student. "I started to toward it not decided against it because everybody was running and I was afraid something was wrong. I heard another bang and the people started yelling that someone had been shot."

Trudy Wright, 13, said she was walking toward the cafeteria for lunch when "I turned and saw a guy with a rifle and he turned and shot towards the art room and then he shot towards the washroom."

Jane Mullin, 15, a Grade 9 student, said:

"The guy apparently came out of the washroom shooting everywhere. He shot the art teacher. The shots were so loud we had to plug our ears. I heard a loud click and the guy shot his own head off.

"His nose was flying off to one side. Another boy was lying in the doorway moaning and saying why did it happen to him. There was moaning and screaming everywhere and a lot of blood."

Steve Jefferson, 18, a Grade 12 student, said he and his girlfriend were standing in the hall when the gunman "cocked two rifles and aimed at people in class once."

"Then I looked back I saw the guy behind me fall," he said.

Dona Slobodian, 18, sister of Michael, said that he was perfectly fine. There was nothing wrong with him this morning."

She said her brother, before returning to school from a morning break, wrote a note that he loved his family and "was going to kill people and eliminate people."

She said Michael left upset because Mrs. Wright had telephoned to say her brother had missed another English class. Dona said he had missed English classes.

She said she then laid down and shortly after, Peter Slobodian, 47, their father, woke her up and showed her the note he had found on Michael's dresser.

Miss Slobodian said she and her father, who recently suffered a heart attack, went to the school to find wounded students being carried out.

Mr. Slobodian telephoned police.

Mother Tends Wounded Unaware Son Is Dead

BRAMPTON, Ont. (CP) — The mother of one of the five persons slain by a high school gunman Wednesday admitted fired first aid to wounded students, unaware that her 17-year-old son lay bleeding to death only a short distance away.

Pat Slinger, who is taking two subjects at Centennial secondary school and is a St. John Ambulance first aid instructor, was one of the first persons on the scene after the shooting.

Mrs. Slinger said she was told someone was shooting inside the school about 11:40 a.m. and went to investigate.

She said she entered the corridor, saw a great deal of blood and a boy sprawled face-down in a pool of blood. Beside the boy were two rifles and several spent shells.

"I went into the classroom and there was a woman lying on her back . . . with a bullet wound in her chest," she said.

Mrs. Slinger said she administered first aid to the woman, later identified as one of 5 dead, Margaret Wright, an arts and language teacher.

She said she thought she was conscious with blood bubbling from her mouth. Mrs. Slinger said she told the teacher to stay calm and went back to lie her in the hallway.

"I knew nothing I could do. There was no head."

She said she said someone for her first-aid kit and "we worked . . . all of us," no knowing that the corpse her own son lay fatally wounded.

Mr. Slinger, a heavy truck specialist with Ford Motor Co. of Canada, lives in Oakville. Ont., said later: "John was one of those kids I tried to deal, but couldn't sure him."

"I did what I could have helped," said Mrs. Slinger.

She said she rode in hospital in the ambulance with Dean Nadon, one of the injured, and school teacher Ken Wilson to see whether John was safe.

Mrs. Slinger said a nurse brought her son's wallet and called her to police and the operating table.

Later, unable to hold back tears, she added: "He was such a lovable rapscallion."

Bank of Canada Governor Says Slump May End Soon

OTTAWA (CP) — Gerald Bouey, governor of the Bank of Canada, said Wednesday that money available for loans should be held down as part of an attempt to reduce the rate of inflation.

Mr. Bouey said that Canada has a reasonable chance of coming out of a recession soon, but must expect relatively large losses in foreign trade and relatively high unemployment for some time.

"The distinctly easier monetary environment that we have had since last summer is one of a number of influences working in the direction of an economic upturn," Mr. Bouey said in a speech to the annual meeting of the Canadian Life Insurance Association.

However, he said it would not help the economy if the bank simply provided enough money for economic expansion without regard to inflation.

Money supply was increased in the early 1970s in an attempt to boost economic activity and cut into unemployment and this was one of the main causes of current high inflation rates, he said.

Making more money available helps hold down short-term interest rates — at about three years—but long-term rates are affected by expectations for future inflation rates, he said.

Jail Is Urged For Bad Meat

OTTAWA (CP) — Federal law should provide a minimum one-year jail term for persons convicted of selling tainted meat, Armand Cloutier (SC—Villeneuve) told the Commons on Wednesday.

Extortion From Banks Continues

MONTREAL (CP) — Quebec Provincial Police estimated 20,000 was taken out Friday in the 15th extortion on financial institutions in Quebec in eight months.

Two attempts to extort $150,000 from Montreal banks each failed Wednesday when money was not picked up from designated drop-off points.

Police said Roger Falanaude, a Caisse Populaire manager, had his wife swept held in their suburban Chateauguay Centre home for four hours late Wednesday night and early today by two men armed with a small calibre revolver.

One man left at 3 a.m., taking the chary to the nearby Caisse Populaire. He telephoned his partner at the manager's home after he had taken the money, police said. The second man left the manager and his wife unharmed.

In one of the unsuccessful extortion attempts Wednesday, a $150,000-dollar payment left in a telephone booth by the manager of a downtown branch of the Bank of Montreal was retrieved when extortionist did not appear.

In the second incident Wednesday, police were alerted by 20-year-old Claude Rivard, who had been tied up with his mother and two brothers after thieves broke into the Rivard home shortly after 4 a.m.

The thieves had forced his father to go to the north-end Montreal branch of the Provincial Savings and demanded him in $150,000 in a parking lot.

The youth broke free after the family had been left in a van in suburban Ville d'Anjou, and alerted police who staked out the parking lot.

But the extortionists failed to show up, according to police, because they were apparently warned off by reports on local radio station based on information picked up on police radio network mouthers.

Alliance's Weaknesses May Show

NATO Just 15-minute Topic When Trudeau and Dane Confer

COPENHAGEN (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau leaves here early today for the vital North Atlantic Treaty Organization (NATO) summit meeting in Brussels, a two-day session that some analysts fear may point up the alliance's weakness as much as its strength.

He departs after a one-day round of talks with Danish Prime Minister Anker Jorgensen in which Trudeau said he again received support for Canada's proposed contractual link with the European Economic Community (EEC).

He said Jorgensen indicated his attitude would be positive when the matter is brought before the community's council of ministers, the governing body, in mid-summer.

There already have been two (two years ago) 15 minutes on NATO seemed to lend weight to fears expressed in other quarters that enthusiasm for the alliance is wavering among some member countries.

The basic idea behind the summit—first suggested only several months ago by Britain's Foreign Secretary James Callaghan—is to unite and reinforce the West in advance of crucial East-West European security conference later this year.

There already have been two years of negotiations toward a declaration of East West principles on security and co-operation and the crunch comes at a 35-country meeting in Helsinki, Finland, now likely to be put off until the late fall.

But the fact so little time was allowed for preparation for such a high-level alliance meeting prompted some observers to suggest that the outcome will be something short of a vigorous declaration of a new NATO course in a fast-changing world.

Ford to Try to Push Greek, Turk into Pact

BRUSSELS (AP) — After five hours of sleep, Greece today launched a new search for a Cyprus settlement today before joining leaders of other North Atlantic Treaty Organization countries for a summit meeting.

Ford held separate meetings with the premiers of Greece and Turkey. There was no immediate word on the outcome of his talks but U.S. officials expressed guarded optimism in advance.

The president also had arranged meetings with Chancellor Helmut Schmidt of West Germany and the premiers of Luxembourg, Denmark and Portugal.

Control of Downtown Projects Sought

Council to Be Asked to Pass Bylaw On Development But Powers in Doubt

By COLIN BRUCE
Staff Reporter

Belleville city council will be asked to approve a downtown development control bylaw that it is not yet sure is enforceable.

The proposed document was handed to city legal staff five months ago to determine if powers granted in the document are enforceable.

Legal staff replied Wednesday saying specific test questions would be needed to test enforcement.

Several months ago the city's industrial commission urged council to accept a bylaw that would give the city administrator the right to adjudicate all applications for exemptions from zoning. The document would also give powers to control covering all facets of new development and the right to require that certain standards be met by developers.

A similar bylaw is now in effect for subdivision development under which council can set standards for all phases of housing development.

The area affected by the downtown document extends from the east side of Coleman St. to the west side of Pinnacle, bounded on the north by Moira St. and on the south by Dundas St.

Because the downtown bylaw would give council such far-ranging powers, the document was handed over to city solicitor Thomas Lady for legal interpretation some five months ago.

Mr. Lady replied to the committee Wednesday in a letter stating there is little he can do without some specific instances with which to test the city's powers and determine if the bylaw would be enforceable.

The committee passed a motion to ask the city solicitor specifically if the city — through the bylaw — would be able to demand a certain set-back from the street, parking space, walk space and if the city could demand amounts of parking space to be made available by the developer.

Alderman Orr, chairman of the committee, said he feels the proposed bylaw will be approved by council.

"There'll be a lot of discussion but I think council will generally agree with the document," he said.

Ald. Orr' committee recommended to council that the bylaw be accepted. Before the document becomes law, a number of public meetings will be held in the downtown area giving merchants an opportunity to discuss its ramifications.

Ald. Orr said following the meeting he hopes some firm legal word will be available for council when the proposed bylaw before council sits down to discuss it.

Trenton Waterfront May Get Facelift Under New Program

By AL RABAS
Staff Reporter

TRENTON — Mayor Bob Patrick called "great news" the announcement Monday by Natural Resources Minister Leo Bernier that the Ontario government plans to put $50,000 to $60,000 into a program to develop waterfront facilities on the Great Lakes.

Provincial money will be spent as part of a beautification program to develop waterfront and boat-launching facilities, and easier access to lakefront areas.

In his announcement, the minister specifically singled out Trenton as one of three municipalities where work could begin soon.

Mayor Patrick said Wednesday the minister's announcement is "great news" and the fulfilment by Mr. Bernier of an indication he gave the mayor in mid-February that a similar program was forthcoming.

The mayor asked Mr. Bernier whether the provincial government would give Trenton help in developing a marina off Central Park during a mini-cabinet meeting in Belleville.

Mayor Patrick said he had no idea what effect the program will have on Trenton, but expected some information shortly and felt he had set the minister this week.

The letter outlines the town's efforts to elicit funds for various resources-related projects — marina and greenbelt — in Trenton.

He attributed the minister's mention of Trenton specifically to two factors.

Firstly, the mayor brought Trenton's desire for assistance to the minister's attention in Belleville in February. Secondly, as a municipality that sits at the mouth of the Trent River and the entrance to the Trenton Canal, Trenton, he said doesn't have anything where a need exists.

The provincial program will pay municipalities 75 per cent of their costs for lake-related projects, including the purchase of privately-held lands. Federal government assistance — in the form of breakwater construction and harbor improvement — will also be forthcoming.

A natural resources ministry spokesman said Wednesday the entire $500,000 will be spread out over a number of municipalities, with no single one receiving all the funds earmarked this year.

He said the government has no specific committee in mind as recipients of funds. No framework for the program has yet been set up.

Mr. Bernier said once waterfront development projects could begin immediately and would be staged over several years before completion.

It is not known if Trenton is among the communities made reference to by the minister.

Architect at Work

Restoration architect Peter Stokes and his assistant David Lane (right sult) Wednesday visited the Macaulay House adjacent to the Prince Edward County Museum & accompanied by Jeanne Minhinnick, an historic furnishings expert from Prince Edward. The trio studied the entrance to the old rectory and discussed removal of the porch added after construction of the house.

PICTON — Restoration architect Peter Stokes of Niagara-On-The-Lake is expected major role in restoration of Macaulay House in accordance with a master plan released recently.

No contract for the work has been signed but the museum management committee has approved Mr. Stokes for the project which is split into three phases spanning a five-year period.

Mr. Stokes, who played a major role in restoration of Upper Canada Village met Wednesday with the Prince Edward Museum management committee to discuss Macaulay House.

Later, in an interview, he said June and July will be "pretty productive months" in relation to the old rectory adjacent to the county museum.

Mr. Stokes added measurements on the property will begin within the next two or three weeks.

Restoration work will begin on phase one in accord with the master plan. No target date for completion of initial stages of the work has been set but Mr. Stokes predicts changes "before the snow flies."

Museum curator James Gooding noted Macaulay House will be opened in the living room area only for tests this summer.

He added this part of the house can be viewed "eventually this summer" after needed work is completed.

To assist with restoration of Macaulay House the curator is seeking old photographs of the rectory as it may have appeared in various decades.

Athol Township Outlines Summer Rec Program

ATHOL — Athol Township Recreation Committee has promoted an active summer program this year including a holiday playground at Athol Central School, Cherry Valley.

The summer playground program will begin soon after schools close next month will be operated by trained leaders Holly Newell, and Cindy Gelcaster. There will be no charge of participants who join in games, sports, crafts and other activities.

A softball program is being finalized and plans were made recently to improve the diamond. An exhibition game will be held July 13 between members of the recreation committee and radio station CJBQ players.

Fund-raising events planned by the committee this summer include an ice cream social on July 2 and an auction sale for school grounds on Saturday, July 13. A pick-up throughout the township is planned before the sale and residents will be asked to contribute sale items.

Chamber Continues Drive For More New Members

TRENTON — A Trenton Chamber of Commerce drive to boost its membership has fallen short of its 150 member goal and has prompted the group to continue the push past its May 31 deadline.

Treasurer Gary Birt said Wednesday a membership drive over the past several months has produced 135 members, 18 more than signed the Chamber roll in 1974.

To date, $7,050 has been collected in dues and represents half of the Chamber's 1975 budget of $14,073.

Mr. Birt said the Chamber is "behind the eight-ball" as far as finances are concerned. He anticipated a deficit year of $3,000, caused mainly by an accumulation of debts over the past two years.

The $3,000 shortage this year is due to the failure of the Chamber to get an $8,000 grant from Trenton council.

"The town only gave us $5,000," said Mr. Birt. "The town is that we needed $8,000 to balance the year off."

Trenton's grant is $2,000 less than the Chamber requested but $1,000 more than it received in 1974.

Chamber officials will continue the push to increase membership in the hope of raising part of needed funds to offset the deficit. Mr. Birt said he expects some new members at the end of this month, when most businesses close their books for the month.

Notice of the continued drive marks the second time the Chamber has postponed an end to the push for new members. May 15 was the original deadline.

The show will open Friday night, June 20, at 7:45 p.m. with eight classes scheduled including the Arabian Costume class and the three-gaited saddle horse class.

A highlight of Friday's program will be a steer roping competition presented this year for the first time.

On Saturday, June 21, the show will begin at 7:30 p.m. and feature numerous horse and pony classes.

The final day of the show, Sunday, June 22, a program of western events will be held in front of the grandstand at Picton fairgrounds.

Model on Display

This model of the old county court house was constructed by Anne Hagerman, 16, of PECI. The model is as large as a kitchen table and almost every detail is exact. It was a project for her law class and may be seen in the school library. It was made from scraps of cardboard which were painted over to give the appearance of the courthouse. Miss Hagerman received high marks for her project.

When the time comes to sell your home, the inevitable question will arise, Which items will stay with the house and which will not? Certain items carry little doubt such as tacked down wall-to-wall carpeting, storm windows, and items permanently attached to the house or property. They normally stay.
It's a good idea to include as many extras as possible. If you'll have no further use for draperies, particularly when they were made for an odd-sized window, be sure to include them. That porch furniture you will have no further use for or that extra lawn mower may be just the "frosting on the cake". The idea of getting something extra is a strong motivating force, especially if it appeals to the general surroundings.
One bit of advice. Home should either stay or go! Do not try to sell them to the buyer. The sale of a home is a big enough negotiation without muddying the water.

Canada's Mining Industry Battles Overseas Competition as Well as Recession

By VINCENT EGAN

Business and Consumer Affairs Analyst

Thomson News Service

Remember when Canada's mining industry was the undisputed king of the hill?

Our mineral deposits were thought to be unlimited and the demand for our ores for essential supplies was insatiable.

That's all changed today.

Rich deposits in rival Canada's have been discovered around the world, while the demand for metals and minerals has been sharply curtailed.

It all spells trouble for Canadian mining—and so quick, easy and to the trouble appears to be in sight.

The most fundamental problem beesting the industry is the current recession here and abroad, which has trimmed industrial demand for metals and minerals.

An obvious example is the slowdown in car production because of sluggish automobile sales.

This has left the mining companies stuck with high inventories of some metals, and forced them to curtail operations at several Canadian mines and refineries.

Financing these inventories has been expensive for many of the mining companies, because of the generally high level of interest rates—borrowings last year and this.

On top of everything else, many provinces have sharply increased the taxes and royalties they impose on mining, while Ottawa has refused to allow these provincial levies to be deducted from federal taxable income.

Mining is a major industry in Canada, as production figures show.

Mineral output in 1974 was valued at $5.5 billion, or 4.5 per cent of our gross national product.

Last year's exports of crude and fabricated metals were worth $6.3 billion. The United States took about half the total. The United Kingdom 15 per cent and Japan 14 per cent.

Canadian imports in the same category—but mostly in fabricated form—came to $2.6 billion last year. Our biggest supplier was the United States.

A certain proportion of the imports consist of specialized metals and forms that Canada may never be able to produce economically, because the sales volume could conceivably be manufactured only in the U.S. or Canadian market.

Why must we still import as much as we do? Largely because of the inadequate capacity of Canadian metal refineries, which is being offset to some extent by current expansion programs.

But any significant further development of imports depends upon much greater investment in Canadian steel, steel making capacity. And that, in turn, is hampered by Canada's chronic shortage of savings.

The primary mining companies find only limited sympathy with the steel-makers for capital in the years ahead.

Mines will probably have to invest more of their own operations over the next few years—to meet environmental protection standards required by law, to pay for new equipment and transportation facilities, and to introduce new exploration techniques that are more effective than the methods they replace.

A Changing World

The scene is an area drivein and nearby a young couple sit in their small import waiting for the show to begin. Overhead is a full moon just hours away from eclipse. In the car is the couple's small daughter; about six years old, she is standing in the back.

Soon afterwards the youngster is asleep, or has to be bedded down in the back seat, which is a good thing for this performance is supposed to be restricted to persons over 18. There is another anomaly: an advertisement on the screen informs patrons there is bottle-warming service at the canteen.

It's a good thing the youngster is asleep for other reasons. As the teenage girl hitchhikers of the French-made film exclaim, on finding what at first seemed to be an empty mansion in the woods, "little did we know what was to happen next." It was the start of another evening's mass entertainment in Belleville 1975-style.

It was what is commonly called a "skin flick," which if put together with an eye to art, social significance and the times in which we live, with an eye to as well to the environment or background in which the film is made, can have some redeeming features; they can even be entertaining, after a fashion.

There was little of it in this case. The mansion turned out to be home to a petty thief and some companions who accosted the girls of making off with jewellery. What followed was a crude mixture of eroticism, perversion, and sadism. And some present might have wondered if all those young people at the canteen at intermission were 18 and over.

A second feature exhibited some mildly entertaining science fiction with erotic overtones which of course was the intent of the program. It adds up to the new style of exploitation — sexploitation — that has burst upon society. Or what Pope Paul has denounced as "the most ignoble and seductive" of amusements.

The public though must have its right to choose. Movie houses and drive-ins provide other film fare too, some of which can be termed "wholesome." However, there is increasing emphasis on sexual exploitation — often amateurish from a production and acting standpoint — but no less corrupting for that. In these circumstances, the movie houses should be careful about age limits. The same applies to parents accompanied by small children.

Y's Debt

The Belleville Family YMCA is well on its way toward a greater degree of financial solvency.

For some time now city alderman and businessman Ben Corbe has been working quietly toward this end.

In doing so he has enlisted the aid of industry and individuals — commercial enterprises and supporters alike who believe in the Y and the work it is doing in this community.

The outcome is that the Y's debt now totals only $3,400.

This is still a fair amount of money, but consider that in February it was $30,000 and a year-and-a-half ago it was $37,750.

The debt is now at manageable, and very probably creditable proportions. In fact the debt may well be wiped out before long. This will only happen though with more of the same kind of backing; we are sure it will be forthcoming.

At a time of economic recession, this is a sign of the community's underlying stability and generosity.

Viewpoint

Oshawa Times

Community Social Services Minister Rene Brunelle has taken a tiny step forward in his announcement of changes in general welfare benefits with the aim of encouraging mothers to take full or part-time jobs.

Only one bigger step remains. Track down those scoundrel fathers and make them help carry the load.

With a logic that escapes us, he announced increased benefits which would still leave a mother and two children getting more via welfare than by working at the province's minimum wage.

The benefits in the case cited would total $423 per month. If the mother worked at the minimum of $2.40 per hour she would bring home 60 cents less in a 31-day month.

Even the Bunny Girls Have Lost Their Bounce as Ulster's Malaise Deepens

By KEVIN DOYLE

LONDONDERRY, Northern Ireland (CP) — On the barrel of an old cannon lying along the historic walls of this rugged city, two shoots, one Protestant, one Catholic, are being slowly obliterated by rain and mud.

Written on one side is the strident, traditional Roman Catholic refrain: "No Queen, No Crown, No Pope, No Hun town." On the other is an equally Protestant rejoinder: "Up Paisley, he's our man."

Ironically, although they were probably scribbled on the mild spring days ago, when Ulster was at the most overt and spectacular the sentiment they express now evokes a hint of nostalgia among calm, hard-bitten Ulster Protestants.

"Then we knew where we stood," said Billy Smyth, a leading Ulster Orangeman.

"If you were a papist republican you were as sunny and (Rev.) Ian Paisley was our champion.

"No matter what you think of the actions we took and which we thought necessary, you'll have to admit there was a strong measure of direction and purpose. Now that's starting to go, I'm afraid."

He's not the only one who's afraid. During the last six months or so a series of disquieting and deeply divisive events in Northern Ireland have created a new, deeply felt mood of unease which seems somehow more unsettling than the violence of recent years even at the height of the current struggle.

In cities such as Londonderry, Belfast and other scenes of the worst violence since 1969, there is an almost palpable sense of tension, a fear that old lines of conflict will harden again, that the gains that nobody quite knows where he stands anymore.

Joe Caston, a moderate republican barman, said: "I used to know exactly what areas it was safe for me to drive in. There weren't many places I wouldn't go but I knew where to be careful. Now I don't know that anymore. You've got Catholic shooting Protestants as well as Protestants shooting Protestants as well as Catholics and Protestants shooting each other."

The trouble seems to have begun after the provisional, or extremist, wing of the Irish Republican Army called a ceasefire in December and extended it indefinitely in January.

Almost overnight, a plethora of republican murder squads appeared to have sprung up to fill the gap left by the provisionals. Informed sources say they are mostly made up of men in their mid-teens and 18 years old, weaned on violence, out of work and full of hate.

The hatred of the Catholic groups seems directed as much at the provisional leadership, whom they accuse of cowardice in calling the truce, as at Protestant civil gangs. Protestant murder squads now are also operating without clear cut chain-of-command leaders.

At the same time a split has developed in the Marxist official wing of the IRA which has been more active in war with the British forces since 1972.

A break-away group, calling itself the International Republican Socialist Party (IRSP), is widely believed to have killed as many as 20 members of the official IRA in a feud which has followed the split.

The IRSP has as a prominent leader the former Westminster MP and firebrand socialist Bernadette Devlin, and Mrs. Bernadette McAliskey, the woman of the unease which the group's internal battle has caused since recently when a once-fearless Catholic taxi-driver refused to take a reporter to her country home.

"She's been marked by the officials," he said, "and I don't want to be around when they get her."

New terrorist groups, calling themselves the Irish Revolutionary Republicans or the Protestant Freedom Fighters, appear to spring up daily, voicing confused, conflicting aims and ideologies that sometimes cut across religious boundaries, leaving nobody sure who their enemies are.

These developments, as much as any others in the six-year conflict, seem to have cast a thick, grey pall of gloom over the people in Ulster, who in the past never failed to impress with their buoyancy and unfailing good humor, or "bit of crack" as they call it.

In the burned and bombed out streets of Belfast, for example, people seldom stop to talk any longer. Most of the pubs have long gone since been replaced by clubs.

Havrot Affair, Denticare, and All

By DON O'HEARN

Queen's Park Bureau

Thomson News Service

TORONTO — Premier Davis has been quoted as saying there is nothing in the PC party constitution or in precedent which would have given authority for Ed Havrot being nominated in Temiskaming.

The premier is a bit loose with his history for there is a precedent or a precedent which is in.

Back in 1955 James Dempsey who had represented the riding for the PC's for three terms was renominated.

But there had been a bit of a scandal in lumber deals which involved Dempsey, and Leslie Frost, as premier and leader of the party, refused to accept him as a candidate. He declared the nomination meeting void.

But the local Tories wouldn't accept this. They held a further nomination meeting a week later and again nominated Dempsey, who went on to again win the seat.

What the premier could have had in mind was that there was no successful precedent and that he could have been playing with a loss of face if he had tried to stop it against Havrot.

For the same thing could have happened as with the Dempsey nomination.

It is noteworthy that there has been no criticism from private members of the appointment of Havrot, the appointment of Art Maloney as provincial ombudsman.

One of the standard arguments against the appointment of an ombudsman was that he would be taking over duties which properly belonged to the elected members.

This was the position of J. C. McHurter in his Royal Commission report on civil rights.

The members, however, apparently don't feel this way.

If anything they probably welcome establishment of the office as a potential help to them in their work.

Premier Davis said that the province couldn't adopt denticare now.

He said the cost would be $50 million and there just wasn't the money at this time.

The question is whether this decision will carry through to the end.

Both opposition parties undoubtedly will have some form of denticare in their platforms.

And they should be pleased with wide appeal.

Particularly in any family that recently has been hit by a dental bill.

And after all, compared to some of our spending today what is just $50 million for such a vital service?

Leslie Frost's War with CBC

By DON O'HEARN

Queen's Park Bureau

of The Intelligencer

Leslie Frost never had much liking for the CBC.

His most common description of the Corporation when its name came up was "damn fools".

Mr. Frost was a man of boundless energy. He would spend a dollar when a nickel might do. And his opinion of CBC expenditure was roughly equivalent to that of drunken bar flies.

In his early days, however, this was only a dislike. He would go along with the agency. After all he was a politician.

But in the last years as premier he was almost paranoic on the question of the Corporation.

This grew out of a situation in the 1959 election, the last one Frost ran.

It happens that I had a very slight part in it as I was on retainer with the CBC at the time.

The crux of the situation was how Frost could be covered on the election and his opponents.

He would be spending the evening at Queen's Park headquarters and the CBC's problem was that there was no way it could get live coverage out of Lindsay.

It was all right with Liberal leader John Wintermeyer in Kitchener because it could feed through its affiliated station there. And NDP leader Don MacDonald was in Toronto and no problem.

But Lindsay was way.

A month ahead of the election the CBC asked me to tell Frost about the proposal that if he were willing to go for an interview in Peterborough, the nearest point from which the CBC could transmit, it would drive Mrs. Frost and back or even provide a helicopter.

It was a polite request explaining that the only possible way he could get on live it he didn't do so was by coming to Toronto or the CBC to lay a land line from Lindsay. It said it was sure this would be prohibitively expensive.

He didn't seem too concerned at the time, but said he wouldn't leave his headquarters. He had always spent his election nights there and he wasn't going to change.

About a week ahead of the election, however, he publicly raised hell.

It apparently struck him that he would be losing votes towards the end of campaigns he was always lazy surveys. And he let out a blast at the Corporation.

It was intentionally discriminating against him, he said. In federal elections it had always managed to put all three leaders on live. Yet in his case in the provincial election it wasn't doing this.

The CBC repeated its offers publicly, but otherwise there was nothing it could do but have a live voice interview out of Lindsay (this could be worked with telephone lines) and put this on behind a still picture of the premier out of Toronto.

So on election night this was the way it happened. There were live interviews of Wintermeyer and MacDonald and a voice interview with Frost.

But the situation in the Lindsay headquarters was tense.

For the CBC, with easy access to Wintermeyer and MacDonald and embarrassed by the fact that on a number of interviews with them it had gone live nationally, the one voice interview with Frost.

There was much grumbling that night and the next morning it was obvious that Frost was furious. And he remained furious. From that date on the CBC had a great problem in getting any cooperation out of him at all.

There was one strange quirk to this situation.

People close to the premier insisted that this intransigent attitude of the premier was not due so much to the CBC's failure to carry his live vi ewin to the fact that he had only the one appearance while his rivals had more.

Rather it was the still picture that he CBC had use, at him.

Frost particularly disliked and the insistent pleas of the Corporation intrigued.

She had an extremely unfavorable photograph of the premier, of course. And she appeared on it.

He didn't seem too concerned at the time, but said he wouldn't leave his headquarters. He had always spent his election nights

Marmora Residents Face Only Modest Tax Hike

MARMORA — Village residents here will be relieved to learn that, despite the large increase in Hastings County and County Board of Education 1975 budgets, public school residential homeowners here can expect to pay a modest tax increase of 12.67 mills this year.

"This is a year for holding steady," Reeve Jack Reynolds commented when announcing the results of a recent budget meeting.

Reeve Reynolds said he credits the small increase in the mill rate to three things: A solid financial position as of December 31, 1974, (a surplus of $323.14), government grants and the fact that council scrutinized every item in the budget, cutting it to provision for only necessary expenditures for 1975.

The public school residential rate goes from 128.13 mills in 1974 to 140.80 this year, an increase of 12.67 while the public school commercial rate raises from 143.87 mills in 1974 to 160.72, a slightly higher rate of increase at 16.85 mills.

Separate school residential mill rates will advance from 134.42 last year to 146.15 this year for an increase of 15.58.

Separate school commercial taxpayers are hardest hit — with an increase of 20.06 mills from the 1974 rate of 139.97.

The village council and clerk-treasurer William Shannon should be congratulated on holding expenditures to the line last year for it enabled us to break even on our 1974 expenditures," Reeve Reynolds said. "This has proven an excellent base for the 1975 budget and is reflected in our modest increased mill rate."

Mr. Reynolds added provision has been made for the expected expenditures on the Marmora Arena. Council will be disclosing what those provisions are at a public meeting tonight at the Town Hall which has been arranged to acquaint people with the details of the proposed repairs to the arena.

The public school residential rate is broken down this way: public school — 33.00; secondary school — 34.86; general rate - 37.37; county rate - 29.03 and water 6.50.

The 160.72 mills for public school commercial consists of public school 36.72; secondary 27.62; general rate 43.97; county rate 45.91 and water 6.50.

The separate school residential rate of 140.15 was arrived at this way: separate school 32.43; secondary school 34.86; general rate 37.37; county rate 28.03 and water 6.50.

The allocation for separate school commercial was separate school 36.02; secondary school 27.62; general 43.97; county rate 45.91 and water 6.50 for a total of 160.03.

Bean Machine

A recent antique engine exhibit at Hastings County Museum attracted a large crowd and much of the attention was centered around this 1916 bean mill (background) powered by a 1914 Mogul engine in operating condition. The engine owned by John Howe of RR 5, Trenton.

PCs Want Drug Users Controlled

OTTAWA (CP) — Western Conservative expect Solicitor-General Warren Allmand to introduce legislation to amend the civil rights of accused persons in the federal criminal code, so the courts could go with a backing of more than the Tories.

John Reynolds (PC—Burnaby-Richmond-Delta), whose motion on bail set considerable debate, asked that bail be extended to all heroin users.

Mr. Reynolds said the War on Drugs act had been used to spell terrorism in Montreal where bail for heroin users should be used in Vancouver, which has the worst crime situation in Canada.

"I think we have to take some serious action and take the rights from the hardcore rights people," he told Mr. Allmand, who is chairman of the Commons justice committee.

Gordon Fairweather (PC—Calgary North) said the right to a jury trial should be taken away and a special court set up to handle the two-year backlog of cases.

Mr. Allmand agreed that the situation is bad. One problem was that police were tied up watching witnesses who might be harmed.

RCMP Commissioner Maurice Nadon said the situation is improving now that the British Columbia attorney-general has agreed to preferred indictments for the heroin cases, getting them into court faster.

Douglas Uneasy

OTTAWA (CP) — Signing of a financing agreement for the export of a reactor to South Korea brought renewed concern Wednesday over the spread of nuclear technology and materials.

"If there is a trouble spot in the world now, its South Korea," T. C. Douglas, the New Democrat energy critic, told the Commons national resources committee.

OTTAWA (CP) — A commitment by Agriculture Minister Eugene Whelan has averted the possibility of the Canadian Egg Marketing Agency (CEMA) dissolving, agency general-manager Max Roybenbergh said Wednesday.

Mr. Roybenbergh would not reveal details of the commitment, however, the agency had been seeking to halt imports of pre-priced U.S. eggs which could hurt domestic producers.

Admit Abortions

MONTREAL (CP) — At least 138 doctors in Quebec have signed a declaration admitting they performed abortions or helped women get them illegally, a spokesman for the group said Wednesday.

"It is the first time such an important group of doctors in Quebec have made such a clear and committed stand on the abortion issue," Dr. Henri Bellemare told a news conference.

More Hit-runs

OTTAWA (CP) — More than 185,000 hit-and-run accidents were reported last year in Canada, perhaps reflecting the impact of the 1969 breath-test law.

Other indications in Statistics Canada figures on traffic in 1974 A decreasing number of fatal accidents and a rising number of convictions for driving while disqualified or suspended.

No French Officer

OTTAWA (CP) — The Canadian Union of Postal Workers accused the post office Wednesday of deliberately delaying the appointment of a staff relations officer to handle grievances from Quebec.

"There hasn't been one French grievance heard for over two months now because the post office has not replaced the person who heard grievances in the past," said Andre Marcoux, national chief steward of the union, in a news release.

New Election Head

Allmand Orders Mounties To Probe CIA in Canada

OTTAWA (CP) — Solicitor-General Warren Allmand ordered the RCMP on Wednesday to investigate allegations the U.S. Central Intelligence Agency (CIA) operated loosely in Canada.

Mr. Allmand described as "serious" allegations made in Commons justice committee by John Reynolds (PC—Burnaby-Richmond Delta).

If it was found that the CIA was operating illegally in Canada, the matter would be turned over to external affairs. His comments came as Mr. Reynolds read portions of an affidavit from Virginia Gonzales, a Mexican who said that he operated in Canada on behalf of the CIA.

Mr. Allmand said policy is for the CIA to inform the RCMP when an operative is coming in Canada. However, there have been a number of reports of CIA agents and informants operating in Canada without RCMP knowledge.

Mr. Gonzales alleges he was ordered to monitor the activities of a Howard Hughes employee, John Meier, in 1969 after Meier failed an attempt to compromise Senator Edward Kennedy in Las Vegas.

The agent began personal surveillance of Meier in early 1972 and between then and 1974 his activities took place in Canada. Interiel, owned by Hughes and heavily involved in Canada "found him (Meier) in the Vancouver area," the affidavit says. The inference is the Meier called someone in the U.S. on the bugged by Interiel.

"I learned that Meier had applied to be an immigrant to Canada but (I) was told by interiel that they could block this easily," it says. "I was warned to be careful about involvement because the contacts were at a low level in immigration."

In early 1973, Mr. Gonzales said he was told by interiel a meeting had been arranged between Meier and "a Mr. Cowley of Vancouver immigration on Feb. 4." Meier would be served with a writ outside Cowley's office in a move to embarrass him with immigration.

Mr. Gonzales said he had again entered Canada Dec. 3 as Meier met John Reynolds at the publisher of Parliament's office.

"It was arranged that we should have our own Conservative contacts pull Reynolds away from Meier but this did not work out," the affidavit says.

NDPer Says CIA Agent Beats Deportation Order

OTTAWA (CP) — Immigration Minister Robert Andras, under attack for allowing a former South Vietnamese general into the country, faced a new barrage Wednesday about an alleged CIA agent given landed immigrant status.

Derek Blackburn (NDP—Brant), who has been grilling Mr. Andras about Gen. Dang Van Quang, asked in the Commons about Nelson Bardico.

Mr. Blackburn told reporters later that Mr. Bardico arrived in Toronto in 1972 from Uruguay "where he was working for the CIA." He was ordered deported a year later "but he made a direct appeal, as opposed to a public hearing, and in the meantime he went out and bought a $27,000 duplex.

"It didn't look as though he expected to be deported."

The deportation order was quashed, "and Bardico seems to have gone underground."

Meanwhile, Mr. Blackburn said that "other names are trickling in" and that it appears Canada has become "a dumping ground for these types of people."

Mr. Blackburn has referred to Gen. Quang, who now lives in Montreal, at "the epitome of everything that went wrong in Vietnam."

The letter also said the board has set up an advisory committee to advise on continuing education courses which will be offered in the fall.

Legislation was passed last spring allowing denture-therapists to sell full dentures without as instructors caused cancellation of the courses.

It's a Shad Story

TORONTO (CP) — Fish experts say recent hot weather has created one of the worst years for deaths in Lake Ontario of the Atlantic Ocean fish, the alewife.

Rapid changes in water temperatures caused mass deaths which means massive shoreline cleanups to get rid of the small, of rotting fish.

E. J. Crossman, curator of ichthyology at the Royal Ontario Museum and co-author of a book on fresh-water fish, said this year has been the worst that he has seen.

Jack Christie, director of the Lake Ontario unit of the fish research branch of the ministry of natural resources, said the Deweydalewife has simply not adapted to the lake. It first appeared in Lake Ontario in the late 1950s and moves in shallow from deep water to spawn in the spring.

Look Back at Childhood For Clues to Friendship

How many friends do you have?

To answer that, you need to know what I mean by friends.

If friends are persons with whom you've never quarrelled, with whom you attend the same church, school or job, or with whom you share the backyard fence, then you may have 20, or as many as 200.

If I mean the sort of friends you invite to dinner parties, or the ones you write to more than three times a year, then the list goes down, doesn't it?

And if you're talking about the individuals for whom you don't ever "put on the dog," with whom you are absolutely open and trusting and to whom you know that if you were in trouble . . . then how many is that?

Not very many? Don't feel unloved. It would be unusual to have more than two or three.

Henry Brooks Adams, a 19th century American writer put it this way: "One friend in a lifetime is much; two are scarcely one, and three are hardly possible."

Yet, when you look back to your childhood, doesn't it seem you had more "best friends" than? Sometimes they lasted for a season, sometimes for a decade, but somehow we were able to form stronger, more independent relationships before we grew up and became more choosy.

Many of you must have been like the kids in my neighborhood the summer I was 12. Since the two girls my age became blood brothers or sworn friends, I felt I was pricking each other with pins as if we were pirates. Ballooning holding bleeding fingers together, and repeating vows as if our lives depended on it.

Our mothers breathed sights of relief when none of us came down with jaundice or lockjaw, and school began that autumn with a rash of new alliances in the classroom, kids who shared colored ballpoint pens and secrets.

Oddly, or perhaps not oddly at all, these pacts were never made between boys and girls. (We had to wait a few summers before those alliances began.)

Odd, too, is the need for affection that shows itself in the primitive try, to make the friends we love most into relatives ("Shall I just like a sister to me") and to compliment our relatives who are favorite by calling them friends ("My sister has turned out to be a real friend").

In these lines, when little is certain, when the patterns of our lives are fragmented, there are few emotional secrets to hang on to. We move from place to place, we change jobs, we climb the social ladder, we leave old beliefs behind us and we have few guideposts any longer to show us where to go.

Perhaps now is when we need friends as never before. Perhaps we should do whatever we can to bring back the intensity, generosity and total acceptance that was part of those "blood brother days."

We may never have a lot of close friends again — and that may not be a bad thing anyway — but we can do a lot to make the friendships we do have a meaningful, valuable and lasting once.

Where do we start? Pick up the phone, or pick up your pen, and get in touch.

It hurts less than a pin.

People and Events

The 3rd annual convention of the Kingston Diocesan Council of the Catholic Women's League (CWL) was held recently in Kingston.

Attending from Marmora were Wilma Brady, Ina March, Marilyn Maloney, Isabel O'Connor, Leona Brady, Beverly Maloney and Jean Hanley.

Also present were Lillian O'Connor, Provincial Treasurer, and Dorothy Meehan, Diocesan first vice-president.

One of the guest speakers, Sister R. B. Cline of the Catholic Church Extension Society, with the aid of a slide presentation, depicted the work of missionary priests and lay people in Northern Canada.

Guest speaker at the banquet, Sister Joan Whittingham, religion consultant from the Hastings and Prince Edward Counties Separate School Board, chose the theme of the convention "Harmony with God, within ourselves, with others" as her topic. "We should be less serious in our daily lives and should laugh more" she said. "And when we truly give of ourselves to others we shall live in harmony".

This year's convention was hosted by St. John's CWL in Gananoque.

Pet Care In Summer

The Tropical Gardens Pet Shop at 361½ Front St., Belleville, has some timely hints for taking care of your pets during the summer. Remember your kids in the yard and hound dog need more water. Replace it often with fresh cool water. And don't forget the tiny animals; the gerbils, hamsters and mice. They need a lot more water during the summer and less food as they won't eat as much. If you have a bird, it too will appreciate water often during the summer months. A tip here for aquarium owners is to turn up the temperature in your aquarium two degrees during the summer to save your tropical fish from fluctuating temperatures when the outside temperature goes up during the day and down at night. If you have any questions on pet care the friendly staff at the Tropical Gardens will be pleased to advise you.

A New Economy Car

Vader's Car Sales, 21 College St. W., Belleville and the Datsun car company have a new slogan. "Have you got a car for you." Well, they really have. Now here is a real switch. This is an economy car WITHOUT all the extra frills that the other car companies are always bragging about. This new car is the Datsun B210 ("B" for "special" model) and it will save you hundreds of dollars as compared to other competitive models. Mileage test have shown no other competitive model gets better gas mileage than the Datsun B210. Come in and drive this new Datsun B210 with its 1397cc engine, unibody construction and power assisted front disc brakes. Then talk to the sales people at Vader's in their air-conditioned offices. After all, "all you really need is a Datsun."

A Beautiful Home on East Hill

The good weather has arrived and it's the time of year when families often consider a move. Well consider this new listing with Gord Rehbin Real Estate, 117 N. Front St., Belleville. The home is situated in a prestige area of the east hill, in close of Moira Secondary, Catholic Public School, St. Joseph's separate school and the Y.M.C.A. This good size family home is a four level side-split, with four bedrooms, two floor to ceiling fireplaces — the one in the living-room is of angel stone. A large "pie shaped" lot gives you an ample side yard. Call 968-6475 today and have an agent from Robbin Realty show you this home on Vine Cres. It's worth considering.

There's Still Time To Plant Annuals

The hot spell seems to be over for awhile and now would be a good time to get your plants in the garden. The Sidney Inn, 283 West Moira St., Belleville has a wide range of good healthy stock from which you may choose. Beautify your flower beds with a wide range of annuals. Finish planting your vegetable garden with healthy tomatoes, cabbage, peppers and more. And if you're in a new home, or perhaps some of your evergreens were winter-killed, the Sidney Inn has a good selection of sturdy junipers and ever green for your garden. Remember, the Sidney Inn is open seven days a week to serve you.

Special Carpet Prices

Getting Ready For Summer

Most everyone realizes the hair problems that arise in the summer. Studio 231, 231 Front St., Belleville has a solution. A charming wig boutique with styles and colors to suit everyone. These easy-care wigs may be worn to and from the beach with little fussing. If your hair is long and tends from swimming or too much exposure to the sun, don't turn down a last minute engagement, but pop on a wig from Studio 231. They have two new models in their shop this week. Both are short with lots of loose curls; right in style with the new curly cuts. And while we're thinking of summer, don't forget that white is always fresh-looking and suitable. Studio 231 has a good selection of white pantsuits, dresses and skirts. You'll forget your summer problems when you visit Studio 231.

Gems Around The World

W. Wonnacott and Son Jewellers, 247 Front St., Belleville serve you not only with the finest jewellery, but also with the latest information. Mr. and Mrs. Wonnacott have recently returned from a National Convention of Canadian Jewellers at Quebec City. One of the highlights of the convention was an illustrated gem identification lecture by Bert Krutzen of the Gem Institute of America, New York. The lecture dealt with changes in the gem market around the world and factors affecting the value of precious stones. The lecture was followed by actual gem identification, which was done in small groups. A second highlight of the convention was a jewellery fashion show planned by the National Information Centre and Delbera in which the latest diamond jewellery was shown for both men and women. The Wonnacotts felt it was a most informative program.

Easy Summer Listening

Superior T.V., 183 Cannifton Rd., Belleville, besides being a "superior" T.V. repair service, also sells quality radios, T.V.s and stereos. They sell Fleetwood which has a less expensive line of stereo components. You can buy a combination radio-record player from $260.00. Other units are available with eight track tape decks and extra speakers too. Superior also handles Heathkit stereo equipment, its premium line. You can pay anywhere from $200. or $800., to $2000. or $3000. for a unit. The AM-FM receiver is completely separate from the bigger more powerful amplifier and extra speakers are available. Consult the men at Superior T.V. They stand behind their products.

Dining-Out Pleasure

We recently had a camping weekend, which is good family fun, but not always a holiday for Mother. Returning in the late afternoon, it was decided that Mother should be treated to dinner out after all her efforts, sunburn and bug bites. What better place to go for a quiet relaxing meal than the Dinn-Dn The Bay in Trenton. It's just a pleasant drive from Belleville or Trenton. The food and service are outstanding. For the special times, or anytime treat yourself to dining excellence. Give a happy weekend a perfect ending at the Inn on the Bay.

Ann Landers

Facts About Artificial Insemination

Dear Ann Landers: My husband and I have been married eight years. We've been trying without success for at least three years to have a child. My gynecologist suggested that my husband have a sperm test (artificial), I agreed. The results showed he has a very low sperm count in actual fertile cause involved? How does a couple go about getting the sperm? What if the child is born deformed? Would we be able to keep it? Please answer.—Empty Cradle in Pa.

Dear E. C.: Yes, artificial insemination is practiced. There are approximately 20,000 people alive today who were conceived that way. No blood contact is needed. The sperm is injected with a syringe.

The couple doesn't select the donor—the donor does. Usually it is a medical student.

Doris Clark

Unmarried Mother Favors Adoption

Dear Doris: Two months ago I gave birth to a beautiful baby girl. I am 17 and unmarried; my parents helped me and I let my baby be adopted.

My worker, of course, couldn't tell me who adopted her but she did say my baby's parents are mid-forties and have a three-year old adopted son.

Of course I'm sad that I'll never know my girl but I'm glad she has a loving family who will love her and care for her.

There's always a chance the child will not be normal, but it's very slight. Only two or three per cent of all children born have a congenital deformity.

Yes, you would have to keep the child. Once you become pregnant it's your baby.

Dear Ann Landers: There's another side to the Babysitter Blues. As a young mother who has been looking for two years for one competent, dependable person to sit with my children, may I speak my piece?

I'd like a sitter who arrives on time, and who doesn't with a girlfriend who, between the two of them, will eat everything in sight, including jars of caviar and cans of pineapple.

Is there a sitter alive who can be trusted not to have her boyfriend over the moment we leave the house?

Last minute cancellations have ruined more than one evening for my husband and me. Why can't a sitter provide a substitute (even her mother) if she is unable to make it at the last moment?

Where is a sitter who will stay off the phone for 10 minutes so I can get dressed when I want to check on my children?

One sitter complained from the sitter who wrote to you was that people expect much of her. Gee, I don't.

I've had several sitters who expected ME to clean up after them. I'm sick of finding potato chips ground into my rugs, pop stains on my kitchen curtains, wet glasses on mahogany tables and ink scribblings on my white telephone.

Please don't suggest a baby-sitting service. My last four came from there. All they do is demand higher wages.—Sign Last Name—Still Looking

Dear S. L.: Have you considered an older woman or a college student? I recommend you try.

Dear Ann Landers: I have a friend (my age, early 60s) who is becoming very hard of hearing. He has been advised when he attends group meetings and can't hear the speaker, he has gone up to several speakers and told them they "mumble" and suggested that they take elocution lessons. Recently he complained to the custodian of the hall that the audio doesn't work and needs replacing.

It's always someone else's fault. Why can't he accept the fact that he is getting deaf? Should I recommend a hearing aid?—Sleet Falls Reader.

Dear Sleet: Go ahead. But I'll bet anything he won't hear

Physical Fitness Is for Every Day

EDMONTON (CP) — Physical fitness programs should be a "by-product of the average people involved," says Dagmar Carlsen of the Edmonton Gym Club.

Women like the Olympics improve the world with a few chin performances and then they're over," she said.

The news media in North America concentrate their attention on the professional entertainment sports. They've been much a gladiator type of thing where athletes are called on to amuse others by proxy, and the rest of the people sit and watch.

"In Europe, most of the radio and TV stations are state-owned and amateur sport is widely and properly covered."

Mrs. Carlsen, who teaches gymnastics at various communities, said she is appalled at the young boys and girls who are overweight and have poor respiratory conditions.

"Three laps around the gym and they're huffing and puffing," she said. "Of course, they're being driven to school. And I just don't understand why schools allow those machines that discourage foot drills and potato chips."

She said she believes, if pressed about parents who bear about compulsory physical fitness programs.

"I think it should be mandatory for them, the elementary and even the pre-school levels.

"But you have to have well-trained physical education teachers. Accidents happen when there is not enough preliminary preparation done to develop agility and strength. You mustn't run before you can walk properly."

Born in Dresden, Germany, Mrs. Carlsen said she was a competitive swimmer and diver, took part in track and field sports and was competitive in gymnastics.

After a group of German gymnasts visited Edmonton in the late 1960s, Mrs. Carlsen and her husband, Carsten, began a correspondence with them which resulted in their being invited to bring a group of children to a gymnastics competition in Stuttgart in 1971. The Edmonton youngsters did well and have been asked back to participate this summer.

Sixteen youngsters will go overseas in June on the Edmonton Gym Club's European tour.

"We will also be going to Prague, but only as spectators because participation is restricted to sect-ly countries," she said. "I am interested to see the level of fitness in these countries compared to ours."

While the Edmonton youngsters will be entering some group and individual competitions, it is the opportunity to learn more about the various sports that is important in the long-range view.

"I believe it's important that everyone counts, not just the gold-medal winner," she said. "Sometimes, there is just a fraction of a point between the winner and the next one, and both politics in judging and luck are involved.

"Enjoyment and an appreciation of fitness are as important as prizes. We want these children to have long participation in sport, not just a short hectic competition."

Gift for Cancer Patients

EDMONTON (CP) — The gift that Irene Hertz provides the patients she visits in hospital cannot be smelled or eaten not has a visual effect that is therapeutically valuable.

She carries a football-shaped fibre pad in her Canadian Cancer Society tote-bag and that simple, fluffy pad may provide some of the most important short-term therapy a mastectomy patient receives during the first traumatic days after breast-removal surgery.

Pressed under her tightened, the pad removes the embarrassment of walking down hospital corridors with one side draped conspicuously across her chest.

"It has to be the nicest gift the cancer society gives," said said Mrs. Hertz, co-ordinator of the society's mastectomy rehabilitation program, who had the operation herself more than 11 years ago.

And I'm betting my bottom dollar it will change, as the population gradually grows older and we value more the storehouse knowledge and stability which is the young person's heritage from those older.

Have a good time with your friend, kick up your heels if you feel so inclined!

Dear Doris: I am sending the words of the poem "Chick-a-de-dee", I still have many of the old poems in my handwriting found in the old New Brunswick first reader, and I love to recall them.

Dear Doris: I am sending "Chick-a-de-dee", as I am in possession of that particular reader. I hope it is the one Gloria wants.

I have several other readers of that same decade (1920) about, and if you should desire a copy of any just write me.

A.E.S.

ear Friends: My thanks and Gloria's, to A Friend, A.E.S., Mrs. R.L., Mrs. R.W.L., A.S. (Gr.), Mrs. A.L.B., G.D., and others whose names are still rolling in

(Don't just muddle along. Do something about what's troubling you. A letter to Doris, in care of this newspaper, can put you on the way to more Successful Living.)

When Cariocas Holiday They Flock to Bahia

BAHIA, Brazil (CP) — The Cariocas—the people of Rio de Janiero—are great civic boosters. But when they go on a special holiday or honeymoon, the city they like best is Bahia, also known as Salvador.

Bahia, 90 minutes by air on the northeast coast, has beaches much better than Rio's Ipanema or Copacabana and its traffic isn't as insane. Its charm is its mixture of colonial buildings, special traditions and a carefree, relaxed spirit of the Bahianos. They have their own festivals, arts, crafts, shopping boys, voodoo rituals, dances and regional dishes.

The colonial buildings date back as far as the 1549 century when Bahia became the capital of Brazil for more than 200 years.

Sugar plantations made the area prosperous and Bahia's churches, monasteries, mansions, palaces and government buildings were showcases of affluence.

Along its beaches are old forts, churches and lighthouses, museums and the yacht club and its large bay is dotted with islands and alive with sailboats, freighters, motor boats and fisherman's boats.

Bahia is a little reminiscent of Quebec City with an upper and lower town, distinctive restaurants and an atmosphere of savoring the finer things of life at leisurely tempo. But it is really more like Lisbon with its red tile roofs, shutters, wrought-iron balconies, mosaic terraces, narrow 17th-century hilly streets, paving set in wavy patterns of chipped stone, squares with fountains, elaborate churches, pillars, columns and facades carved in the ornate, heavy Manuelin style of mother Portugal.

The National Arcistic and Cultural Patrimony Foundation, set up in 1941, looks after preserving monuments and the colonial section of the city. Old homes are being repaired with from money and money lies and owners of colonial buildings can apply to the foundation for advice and low-interest loans to restore them.

The patrimony is a rich one—more than 20,000 buildings including 76 churches 300 years old or so. Sao Francisco Cathedral is rated the most famous in all of Brazil and one of the most beautiful in the world with its carvings, sculpture, 7 tiles painted and lavish use of gold—about 1,000 pounds of the precious metal gilds statues and ceilings.

Bahia didn't become a great city when the capital was moved to Rio in 1763. Instead it developed as a centre for rubber, coconuts, bananas, cotton, tobacco, sugar and cattle ranching. Now it is prospering with new hotels and apartment blocks. More than a million people live in Bahia but it's still the kind of place where you can lie about and hear a rooster crow.

A convent of 1386 has been converted into an inn with its wear wings enclosing a round swimming pool in the cloister yard. Most of the rooms are rich in atmosphere with gothic beams, stucco walls, alcoves, colonial furniture, hand-woven bedspreads, bedspreads and rugs, but modern hermits have 20th-century luxuries like refrigerators and color television.

Street Vendors

Street vendors are a symbol of Bahia, Brazil. They set up instant restaurants with a stand and brazier and cook bean paste and shrimp in hot coconut oil. Their traditional garb is a white blouse, long full skirt, turban, beads and bracelets. (CP Photo)

Artifical Finger Joints Aid Arthritic

LONDON (CP) — Artificial finger joints for arthritic patients are being fitted to a master of hours at a London hospital.

The Arthritis and Rheumatism Council says a patient can go into the surgical unit in the morning, have diseased and stiff joints removed and new ones fitted and be out by lunchtime.

The operation is carried out under a local anaesthetic. The only sign of the replacement is a thin cut along the finger and thin scar soon fades away.

The council is financing research under the direction of Prof. J. S. Calnan at Hammersmith Hospital. The work is aimed at producing simple, efficient joints and easy operating techniques.

The development of a joint made of plastic and in one piece has made the advance possible. It is narrowest, or "waisted," in the middle, so that it will bend easily. No hinge is necessary, so there are no rubbing surfaces to wear out.

Calnan's operation was evolved partly to release hospital beds. The hospital set up a special surgery unit which now does finger joint replacements and other operations on the same basis. "Many patients have been off work for only half a day after quite extensive hand surgery," said Calnan.

Northern Freight

One of the principal means of shipping Arctic supplies is by Pacific Western Airlines, now owned by the Alberta Government. PWA carried eight million tons of freight last year and most of it went by Hercules aircraft. The plane has a 46,000-pound payload and lands on ice strips throughout the north. (CP Photo)

Ice Will Soon Release Ship

EDMONTON (CP) — The ice will soon be breaking up on Canada's longest river, opening a 1,200-mile route to the Arctic for barges that must carry a year's supply of almost everything in one summer.

If the ice goes as expected, barges pulled by tugs will leave Hay River, N.W.T., about June 1, follow the shoreline of Great Slave Lake and enter the Mackenzie River. They're bound for Inuvik and Tuktoyaktuk or the river delta and points between.

Some of them even continue on through the Arctic Ocean to Alaska's North Slope to supply rig drilling for oil and gas exploration towards in such communities as Spence Bay on the Boothia Peninsula, Inuvik and the Arctic south pole.

It's a demanding kind of highway.

Mackenzie River pilots are among the most skilful in Canada but even this talent is not always adequate to deal with the hazards of constantly shifting channels and shoals, not to mention the huge waves that can rise suddenly on the vast Great Slave Lake.

There is also the always-impending threat of freeze-up.

Late last September, the ice locked up about $20 million worth of ships and barges along the Arctic coast. The 15 ships and 53 barges belong to the Northern Transportation Co., largest shipper on the river system.

Last year, it carried 237,000 tons of freight, much of it vital supplies for the towns and smaller Indian and Eskimo communities, DEW-line stations and exploration camps. Fuel, machinery, drilling equipment, non-perishable food supplies and the whole range of things that people need in a year go on the barges.

Lionel Montpetit, vice-president of the company, said he expects a slight increase in tonnage carried this season to perhaps 240,000.

But he expects no great upsurge in northern shipping "until some of the basic issues in the North are resolved."

"I wish it would be soon."

He was referring to lengthy and often fickle factors that have delayed the go-ahead for the huge Mackenzie Valley pipeline to bring natural gas from the Arctic.

River barges would be used extensively to bring in the equipment.

Some of the company's northern shipments don't start until mid-summer when ice finally clears from many passages and harbors. For example a sailing leaves Hay River Aug. 1 for the Arctic Ocean communities such as Cambridge Bay, Gjoa Haven and Spence Bay.

Hudson Bay sailings from Churchill, Man., go out July 29 to Eskimo Point and later to other communities.

The other principal means of shipping Arctic supplies is by air. Pacific Western Airlines, now owned by the Alberta government, is the largest northern air shipper.

A PWA spokesman expects the steady growth in tonnage of the last four years to continue in 1975. PWA carried four million tons in 1971 and eight million last year.

Most of it went by Hercules aircraft which has a 46,000-pound payload and can even handle oil-company washrooms or bunkhouses without the need to take them apart. It lands on ice strips throughout the North.

Summer is the stick season for this kind of shipping since the strips are best used away, although cargo shipments continue to the established airstrips with gravel or paved runways.

Larger Moose Population Is Predicted

EDMONTON (CP) — Experiments to increase the food supply have been pronounced successful and a larger moose population is predicted near the Shingobank Lake area about 30 miles northwest of Edmonton.

Gerry M. Lynch, a wildlife biologist, said the area at one time provided good moose feeding for the animals but the mature aspens and willows grew out of the reach of the moose, resulting in a decline in the animal population.

In the experiment 200 acres of old willow growth, some 20 feet high, were knocked down and the stumps sawed back in to make use of the tops and, as new green shoots sprouted, the area provided good summer forage last year. It provided total use of the old and new growth.

More food means more animals, Mr. Lynch said, adding that while the area should not be made a sanctuary, it might become a special management area so the harvest could be regulated.

Perhaps in 10 years the barvest could be 200 moose in a 100-square-mile area." He said the rough country has good tree cover which also is ideal for deer and elk.

University Teaching Future Criminologists

BURNABY, B.C. (CP) — While many people had little claim to consider grieving crime has been the bane of their existence, police knowledge, skills and ability to prevent crime and rehabilitate criminals, their success had not been overwhelming.

"In spite of their hard efforts and their good intentions, their achievements were, far from satisfactory and university programs in criminology emerged to meet a strongly felt need for well-educated and well-trained criminologists."

Dr. Fattah said in an interview the highly trained graduates. He said the program additional is better equipped to utilize available resources in the fight against crime.

He left the University of Montreal to direct the criminology program at Simon Fraser.

Britain Offers Cheap Shelter

LONDON (CP) — Normal tourist hotel prices may be beyond the reach of travellers who are still at school or university but Britain offers a number of inexpensive alternatives.

One way is to stay at a university. The British Universities Accommodations Consortium, which controls more than 30,000 university beds, offers a variety of facilities ranging from comfortable single bedrooms costing up to $3.30 ($8) a night to apartments with four to six bedrooms costing $30.50 to $40.50 a week, plus tax.

The campuses, most of them on extensive parkland, also offer lounges, recreation rooms and television.

Youth hostelling is one of the best and cheapest ways to see the countryside. Members of a youth hostel association in their own country are accommodated for a minimal charge, mostly in dormitories. Facilities are simple and guests usually help with light domestic duties.

The British Tourist Authority offers a list of farmhouses offering accommodation at prices ranging from about $1.25 to more than $3 a night. The authority lists details of the number of beds, bathrooms and meals included in the price and visitors write to the farm of their choice for reservations.

Britain has a wealth of camping sites and trailer parks, many of them in areas where hotels are few. Many have such amenities as bars, restaurants, lounges, shops and laundries and even heated pools. Some have trailers stationed on the site for hire.

The Aviemore Chalets Motel in the Spey Valley in Scotland offer a holiday of five to seven days that includes hiking, fishing and sailing. Accommodation is in self-contained four-bedded rooms in comfortable timber chalets.

The resort offers instructional courses in angling and sailing as well as movies, dances, discotheques, an indoor swimming pool, folk-singing performances, an artificial ski slope and other entertainment. Prices range from $19.30 to $41.72.

The British Tourist Authority also offers a guide to cheap accommodation in London including moderately priced hotels, guest houses, private homes, self-catering establishments and hotels costing less than $4 a night for bed and breakfast. It also gives details of campsites and accommodation in converted schools.

Seeks A Record

LONDON (CP) — Wing Cmdr. Kenneth Wallis, who makes autogyros, plans to seek the world's distance record in one of his machines. The autogyro, while it looks like a helicopter, functions differently. The current world record—100 miles—is held in the United States. Wallis built the helicopters for the flying sequences in the James Bond film, You Only Live Twice.

Battled Bilingualism

Conservative leader Robert Stanfield rejected Leonard Jones as the party's official candidate for Moncton for the July 8 voting last year. The reason was Mr. Jones' opposition to bilingualism. Backed by a group of volunteer workers, he ran as an independent, winning more votes than his Liberal and Conservative opponents combined. (CP-Paxton)

Bilingualism Foe Seated with French

OTTAWA (CP) — If someone is thinking about running for Parliament as an independent and asks Leonard Jones for advice, he will say, "Go right ahead."

But with a wry smile, the 59-year-old independent MP for Moncton adds, "There are not too many left, I guess."

He seat is tucked away in one of the back corners of the Commons chamber behind the French-speaking Social Credit members — but he still is one of the best-known members nationally. Leo Jones now is a household name across Canada and it all started in Moncton when, as mayor, he became baffling bilingualism in the mid-1960s.

Conservative Leader Robert Stanfield rejected Mr. Jones as the party's official candidate in Moncton for the July 8 voting last year. The reason was the mayor's opposition to bilingualism.

However, backed by volunteer workers, Mr. Jones ran as independent, winning more votes than his Liberal and Conservative opponents combined.

Since then, his legal action against the constitutionality of the Official Languages Act has been rejected by the Supreme Court of Canada.

In his maiden speech in the Commons, Mr. Jones attacked Quebec legislation to make French the province's work language, saying it would cause "injustice and inequities."

But, so he tells his constituents and the Commons federation building, there are other things he wants to discuss, the life of an independent MP and serving his constituents.

He says he enjoys the freedom of being on Hansard — not not being forced to follow party lines.

"I can vote by conscience because I always have a free vote. I'm trying to reflect the collective majority conscience of the people of Moncton."

But that freedom has brought him into conflict with Government House Leader Mitchell Sharp in the Commons.

Periodically the House leader will say there is unanimous consent or general unanimity to proceed with a matter. But generally he has had complaints with the House leaders of the Conservatives, NDP and Social Credit. And unless he starts asking I intend to deny unanimous consent."

Recently Mr. Sharp told the Commons he had general agreement for a special Wednesday night sitting to continue debate on legislation ordering striking Quebec longshoremen back to work.

Mr. Jones was on his feet immediately saying the House he had not been consulted.

"I don't like being pushed around by the government House leader."

To jeers from government back-benchers, Mr. Jones said, "The people of my constituency need me."

Those people should have no trouble bringing their problems to his attention.

"I go home every weekend. I have a constituency office and its phone numbers as well as those for my law office, and home are easily available."

He has planned a series of meetings in the current sitting weeks throughout his riding "as I had promised I would during election time."

Like most MPs, he gets requests for help with voters' pensions, unemployment insurance cheques, jobs and new facilities for Moncton. He says that despite his independent status he does not find it difficult to get access to cabinet ministers or civil servants.

"All I have to do is phone them or see and see them. They're always available."

He seldom says much in the Commons and, when he does, he keeps it short.

"I don't make masterpieces in oratory. I just want to say what the issues are."

He prefers to put questions on the order paper and get written replies.

"That way I get more detail."

One thing that has rankled him since his arrival here is not being able to get a vote on any of the standing House committees. Membership is based on party standings in the Commons.

Lethbridge University Trains Students on Job

LETHBRIDGE, Alta. (CP) Students enrolled in a program begun at University of Lethbridge can receive credit for experience in work as diverse as political organization, pottery and content analysis — all at the same time earn credit towards a degree.

The university's co-operative studies program, which finds students jobs in their field of interest, is unique in Canada, says Dr. Edwin Webking, program co-ordinator.

"There is no other Canadian university that offers a co-operative program in the liberal arts, or any university offering a co-op program outside the applied arts and business."

Other Canadian co-operative education programs are open only to students in specific fields such as business or engineering, Dr. Webking said.

Participants in the program, open to students in any faculty, major in such diverse fields as art, political science, physical education, economics and history.

The program, which tries to place students in jobs as close to their academic and career goals as possible, has found them positions as recreational directors, business/publication editors, teacher aides and social workers.

"I've had some students who have been thinking of leaving university and have been persuaded to give it one more chance by taking a co-op studies 'work experience,'" Dr. Webking said.

"The co-op studies job has turned them on to university again and they have returned to complete their degree."

The program, one of the few that allows students to apply credit gained on the job to their academic degree, awards a maximum of 10 credits in arts and science and five in education—the number usually earned during a year of on-campus study. The number of credits awarded is decided by a faculty committee that assesses the student's work experience.

The program also allows students to earn money while furthering their education, an important factor for Lloyd Dwenin of Taber, Alta.

"My family is better off now than they have been since I went back to school," said Mr. Dwenin, a father of three, who works as a native court worker in Taber under co-op studies.

Whitecollar Crime Costs Top Crimes of Violence

WASHINGTON (AP) — Whitecollar crime is evidently costing billions of dollars more per year than violent or street crime in the United States, yet there is no comprehensive effort to keep track of it.

Despite public blinking at recent years to high-level officials' corruption, massive stock frauds and other illegal activities, federal agencies concerned with crime are making few attempts to study white-collar crime, its magnitude or effects.

Estimates of the cost of crime of all types range as high as $50 billion a year and the offences loosely grouped in the white-collar category account for perhaps four-fifths of it.

It is widely agreed among law-enforcement officials that white-collar crimes, such as fraud, embezzlement, bribery, stock theft and manipulation, kickbacks, pilferage, tax evasion and computer-related schemes are growing.

There are signs of a growing official response to the problem, some of it perhaps the result of pressure from critics who believe too much emphasis has been given to street crime.

Justice department officials said a special branch is being organized to address the overall problem of white-collar crime, spurred partly by increased concern over massive frauds involving both corporate and federal money.

The security chief at one major government agency said he was particularly encouraged by a department decision to give its criminal division's fraud section increased staff and a more direct involvement in prosecuting cases.

"It's my view that there were many cases so difficult to make that the U.S. attorneys were not interested in trying," he said. "And sometimes they were just too lazy."

Foreshadowing this proposed new drive on white-collar crime was the FBI's annual report for 1974 which said there has been a 30-percent increase in convictions for white-collar crime since mid-1971. FBI Director Clarence Kelley was quoted as saying the cost of white-collar crime "dwarfs" that of street crime.

However, the FBI's own Uniform Crime Reports are indicative of how white-collar crime has been ignored, critics say. These reports, based on data collected from local police across the country, cover only certain types of street and violent crime. Consumer frauds, embezzlements, bribery and other crimes in business and government are not mentioned.

The Law Enforcement Assistance Administration, another justice department agency, has a $1.4 million white-collar crime project with the National District Attorney's Association but makes no effort to obtain data.

A recently-published computer department book, titled The Cost of Crime Against Business gives a total figure of $20.6 billion for 1974, up from a "conservative estimate" of $15.7 billion in 1972. The survey mixes some white-collar crimes—such as pilferage, bad cheques and credit-card frauds—together with burglary, robbery, vandalism and other street-type crimes. But it excludes embezzlement and other white-collar offences.

It reports the loss to banks from credit-card frauds in 1973 was about $420 million.

Business in general lost $2 billion to bad cheques, of which $600 million affected banks, it says. Meanwhile, a continuing increase in internal bank crime-employee embezzlements and so forth — pushed annual losses from $44.1 million in 1963 to $135.8 million in 1973.

The last figure is six times the amount of money—$23 million—taken by bank robbers in the same year.

The census bureau's crime statistics branch uses "victimization" surveys to record crime data on a national and selected-city basis. But like the FBI's, these are all crimes against persons and property.

Robert P. Parkinson, who directs the operation, said a pilot project to tabulate white-collar crime data was tried in the late 1970s but was abandoned because information gathered was meaningless.

In trying to determine losses from employee pilferage, for example, it was found that most businesses had no way of separating this from shoplifting losses.

Defining white-collar crime has proved baffling to statistical analysts, authorities said.

Pilferage of a company's inventory might be considered plain larceny, or it might be white-collar crime, particularly if accompanied by manipulation of records to conceal the losses.

Arson is a "street" crime by nature but is being used increasingly to defraud insurance companies or obtain phoney tax write-offs.

One recent study of the Standard Research Institute reports a threefold increase in the rate of "deliberate burning" in 15 years.

Other crimes that can be defined both ways are bad cheques, credit-card frauds and cargo theft.

Government agencies which try to keep track of white-collar crime through their own statistical methods admit their results too, are imprecise.

The Securities and Exchange Commission, whose function is to watch over the stock market and pursue criminal fraud, has seen the number of cases referred to the Justice department for prosecution about double in three years.

Haunted by Sir Walter Scott

Plumpton Hall Oldest Home in North England

Said to be haunted by Sir Walter Scott, Plumpton Hall standing just outside the 12-century market town of Ulverston, is believed to be the oldest house in northwest England. It was begun in 1114 A.D. by a Viking named Plum. (CP Photo)

NEWLAND, England (CP) — The clock goes back 800 years when you enter the old wing of Plumpton Hall standing sentinel on the shores of the Leven Estuary in Newland, near Ulverston.

The original building dates from the 1100s, and is reported to be the oldest inhabited house in northwest England.

Contemporary with it is St. Mary's Parish Church, little more than a mile away, which was begun in 1111 A.D. and like Plumpton Hall, still is flourishing.

Plumpton has been acquired by Gloria De Fenton, a poet and romantic who loves old things. She now is planning to open Plumpton as a guest house for people within easy reaching for history.

"I don't want any rowdies," Mrs. De Fenton said. "I am very selective and I know the house is haunted by good spirits. I wouldn't want it to be defiled by newcomers. The medieval banquet hall will be available for private dinners and I hope they will be merry in the true sense of the word."

Plumpton Hall is believed to have been the "inn" of a Viking chief named Plum who landed on the shores of the Leven Estuary and decided to make his home there.

Late in the 12th century Plumpton Hall passed into the possession of the barons of Kendal. It is recorded that William De Lancaster granted permission to the prior and canons of Conishead Priory to use whatever dead wood they required from the grounds of Plumpton Hall.

Mrs. De Fenton is particularly proud of a 700-year-old lantern that hangs from a hook in the entrance to her home. This is the legendary Lantern of Plumpton, and, according to the legend, if it is taken out of the hall it will somehow return of its own accord.

"We are told it was once thrown into the sea," Mrs. De Fenton said, "yet somehow it was returned to this house and still is here today."

She believes Sir Walter Scott, the novelist and poet, stayed several times at Plumpton Hall and that he revisits the old place in spirit.

RESTORED HALL

Plumpton Hall was empty when she took it over. She has tried to restore it to what she thinks it was like in the 17th century by accuring period furnishings and fixtures of that time.

There is a wig room in which the 17th-century guests of Plumpton Hall hung their wigs and cloaks.

There is an Elizabethan dining room that was locked up for 30 years.

There is a Woodsworth Room, very much haunted—though not necessarily by William Wordsworth. In fact there is no evidence he ever stayed at Plumpton Hall.

The place is full of old chifoniers, old dressers, old ornaments, old paintings—and a portrait of William Sawrey whose family occupied the house in the 16th century. It is recorded that William Sawrey presented a "richly chased" silver patten to St. Mary's Parish Church, Ulverston.

A stained glass window on the first floor bears the coat of arms of the Sawrey family.

Mrs. De Fenton said most people today are skeptical about ghosts.

"They do not understand," she said, "that man is not just a body, but a spirit also. When the body dies, the spirit lives on. It is as simple as that."

In more recent times, Plumpton Hall was a farmhouse.

There is something about this old place with its time-blackened oak beams, its log fires and old four-poster beds that invites peace and repose. It has a peaceful, relaxed atmosphere that as Mrs. De Fenton said could only come from "good spirits."

Steering Clear

LONDON (CP) — Whitbread brewery group, trying to avoid giving publicity to its competitor Bass Charrington, has made an alteration in the route for the second round of its world yacht race in 1977. Competitors will not be going through the Straits next time.

Saudia Arabia's Supply Of Cash up 84 Per Cent

JIDDA, Saudi Arabia (AP) — The supply of money in Saudi Arabia, in banks, wallets and under mattresses, has risen 84 per cent in two years, says a report by the central bank here.

In many countries this would mean runaway inflation. For Saudi Arabia, engulfed in an oil boom, even with 15-per-cent annual inflation, mostly in the price of imported Western goods, it means that the population is at least 10 per cent richer in cash holdings than in April, 1973.

The Saudi Arabian Monetary Authority (SAMA) reports that the money supply rose in this period to 7.4 billion from 3.9 billion riyals—to $2.1 billion from $1.1 billion. This is more than $1,000 a family.

Statements about the Saudi Arabian economy often sound like science fiction. For example, in three years this country of about five million people will be self-sufficient in money, one statement goes.

This projection would mean that in 1978 the country could theoretically stop working—in Saudi Arabia's case, producing oil—and all back like a millionaire living off the income from his investments.

Under this theory, Saudi reserves, now about $22 billion, are expected to rise to $100 billion by the end of 1978.

Income from $100 billion invested at current high interest rates would be more than $8 billion. Saudi Arabia's expenditures abroad in this year, for consumer goods and massive public development projects, are also estimated at $8 billion.

Saudi Arabian officials say this figure does not take into account two other factors they fear most: inflation in the West, which reduces the buying power of the investment income, and possible new devaluations affecting most of the reserves which are in Rockefeller issues, United States treasury bonds, or dollar deposits.

But stories about the Saudi Arabian economy tell something about what the rise in oil prices has meant to this desert monarchy.

A SAMA official listed efforts by the government in 1974 to spend the oil billions. The Saudi Industrial Development Fund was set up to give businessmen long-term, interest-free loans for new industrial projects.

The real estate development fund was set up to give interest-free loans for home building. Only 50 per cent of these loans will have to be repaid.

Both these funds will be given whatever amount they need to meet the demand, the official said.

Another government investment fund was set up to buy shares in new enterprises. When the enterprises start showing a profit the profits will be sold at their nominal costs "to Saudi citizens of low income or limited saving ability so as to improve their income," a SAMA booklet said.

A fund of 19 billion riyals ($2.9 billion) was set up to give easy-term loans to developing countries.

Allocations during the fiscal year ending in July for current and future development projects were $7.5 billion, up 26 per cent from the year before.

Some of the major projects mentioned by SAMA for the next five years:

—New airports for Jidda and Riyadh to cost more than $570 million.

—New desalination plants to cost $866 million, raising the total national capacity to produce fresh water from the sea to more than 130 million gallons a day.

—Two refinery petrochemical projects to cost $2.3 billion.

—Two auto assembly plants with General Motors and Nissan of Japan to produce 75,000 cars a year.

Munro Denies Cabinet Split on Wage Settlements

OTTAWA (CP) — The suggestion of a cabinet rift over the inflationary effect of wage settlements was played down Wednesday by Labor Minister John Munro.

"I don't think we are split," he told reporters after opposition members in the Commons pressed for a clear statement on government policy.

Mr. Munro said little in the Commons Wednesday, in contrast to his hard-hitting speech Tuesday criticizing the prevailing myth that excessive wage settlements are the main cause of inflation, that they are running at double the average rise of wages in the U.S., and that they threaten our competitive advantage over the Americans.

Prime Minister Trudeau and Finance Minister John Turner both have cited high wage settlements as a main cause of inflation. The prime minister has said that Canadian wage settlements are running at twice the level of those in the United States and have hampered Canada's ability to sell goods abroad.

Acting Prime Minister Mitchell Sharp said in response to opposition questions Wednesday that "quite clearly, the prime minister speaks for the government."

"I don't know what that does to the minister of labor," said Opposition Leader Robert Stanfield. "But I should like to know what it does to the government's consensus program."

Mr. Stanfield asked how the government can "properly present a consensus program to the people of Canada before it has achieved consensus within its own ranks." A new budget will be brought down June 9.

Mr. Sharp replied that "the government is fully behind the minister of finance and the minister of labor."

"One can have a difference of view as to whether wage increases have doubled," said Mr. Sharp, speaking over opposition taunts.

Max Saltsman (NDP—Waterloo-Cambridge) asked whether the cabinet has decided to abandon the principle and tradition of solidarity in respect to economic policy and whether the budget . . . will be subject, as far as the government side is concerned, to a free vote."

Mr. Sharp said the budget vote "will be a question of confidence, as it was the last time, when we had a remembering victory."

Outside the House, Mr. Munro said wages are as important factor in inflation, but they are not the only important factor. Professional fees, land speculation and oil and food prices were other major factors.

Handleman Wants Pay On Output

TORONTO (CP) — Productivity increases—not the consumer price index—should be the basis for pay increases, Sidney Handleman, Ontario's minister of consumer and commercial relations, said Wednesday.

He told the Ontario branch of the Trust Companies Association of Canada that 1975 will be remembered as the year of pillage and rape—"not by corporations or abstract legal entities but by individuals and groups of individuals at all levels of society."

Those who already have a good share of the province's high standard of living are grabbing for more, he said. "Reason is not prevailing over personal greed."

Wage demands including 40-percent increases or fat executive raises were irresponsible.

One way or another, Dick and the boys have been getting together over a little Molson Export for years.

Bodies Still Elude Police Divers

NAPANEE — Ontario Provincial Police at Napanee are still unsuccessful in their attempts to recover the bodies of four men missing feet presumed drowned from a one-mile wide channel between Amherst Island and the mainland just south of here.

When asked about Wednesday's efforts, an OPP spokesman said, "there is no news." Divers have not recovered the 15-foot fibreglass boat used by the men and two women who left the island at 1.30 a.m. Sunday.

One woman is dead and the other is in fair condition at Kingston General Hospital. They were found on Sunday.

Divers will return to the waters today in the area between the department and arrival points and west of that area where the women were found. The current is strong in the area.

Yardmen Centre to Be Built With or Without Provincial Aid

By COLIN BRUCE
Staff Reporter

Yardmen Benefit Fund president Ted Bratton says the Quinte Sports Centre slated for Cloniffen Rd. will be built with or without provincial government help.

Mr. Bratton was responding to a question of how much money has been had collected towards the $6-million centre and what would happen if anticipated senior government funding falls through.

"We've made a promise — a commitment to the city to build a centre and one way or another, we will," said Jack Lundberg, project co-ordinator for the fund.

Though Mr. Bratton said he feels the amount of money raised so far towards the centre should not be revealed provincial government lottery co-ordinator E.C. Fisher said about $2 million has been placed in the trust account earmarked for the project.

Mr. Fisher said over the four years of lottery operation, the Yardmen have amassed a total gross income of $3,618,459. Of that total, $970,000 has been paid out in prize money and $387,031 has been used for lottery expenses.

Profits since 1971 — the first year of operation — are calculated at $2,258,928.

Mr. Fisher said this means the lottery has experienced a profit of 62.5 per cent of its earnings — a percentage he said is "very high." He said most provincially-licensed lotteries have 50 per cent profit.

Yardmen, provincial government spokesmen and city council will meet in camera Friday to discuss the possibility of senior government subsidies to foot the remaining $4 million required for the centre. Preliminary plans show the building's first phase to include a swimming pool and leisure area.

Mr. Fisher said the point of Friday's meeting will be to discuss municipal takeover of the project thereby opening the way for provincial subsidies.

"At this time, provincial grants may be given to projects under municipal government control," said Mr. Fisher. The building would ultimately have to be owned by the municipality, he said.

"We're going to have to take a good, hard look at where we are going," he said.

During an interview Wednesday, Mr. Bratton said "a few fine point have to be ironed out," explaining why the meeting was called. "It's an exploratory meeting to find out when and how much money," we can get, he said.

If all goes well contracts to begin construction can be let within 30 days," said Mr. Lundberg.

These few past week questionaires were delivered to 35,000 homes in the immediate vicinity of the city, surveying are residents as to their priorities for the building. The questionaire asked what individuals would like to see built into the centre and what reaching fees would be to membership fees.

"These few would be used to offset the operating cost of the building," said Mr. Bratton.

So far, 1,000 of the questionaires have been returned to the Yardmen. The answers have not yet been tabulated, said Mr. Bratton.

Inquest Makes No Ruling on Death

NAPANEE — A coroner's jury investigating the death of an Ontario Hydro worker who fell 82 feet from the roof of a building at the Lennox Generating Station near Bath Feb. 26, has made no recommendations following an inquest here Wednesday.

The jury found the death occurred under unusual circumstances and that it is difficult to guard against all circumstances. It said it discovered Ontario Hydro is investigating reasonable safety problems and said it felt the research should be accelerated and with the cooperation of the department of labor and other organizations.

Oliver Alcide Devost of 27 Creighton St., Kingston, died from a thorax injury and heart rupture between 8 and 9.15 a.m. on Feb. 26.

An Essential Donation

Harold Thompson prepares to donate blood, assisted by Red Cross aide Helena Kilvensalo at a blood donor centre organized by Belleville Kinsmen in Masonic Temple Wednesday. Local Red Cross officials later reported 265 pints had been collected — less than expected. They're hoping for better response as clinic continues today with evening hours of 6 p.m. to 8.30 p.m.

New Device Will Allow Deaf To Communicate on Telephone

Sir James Whitney School (OSD) officials are reacting with optimism and enthusiasm to the invention of a new device that will allow the deaf to talk on the telephone.

Dr. Jim Demesa, superintendent of the local school for the deaf, said it "would be a marvelous device and would be a great advance from the current telephone - teletype coupler system (TTY)."

The Toronto Star said Wednesday three Metro men have invented a simple, pocket-size device which may revolutionize telephone communications for the deaf and hearing impaired.

Described as a touch-tone system the invention itself is a small rectangular plastic container which can be attached to the telephone. It has small panels on which illuminated letters rapidly appear to spell out whole words.

Dr. Demesa said Sir James Whitney would be interested in learning more about the device and perhaps obtaining some.

"The main advantage of this device is that it's portable and

Rose Week Approved

Much soon will be combing up roses, city council learned Monday.

As a result it declared June 22-29 Rose Week in Belleville.

The move followed a request from the Belleville Garden club which—with summer—involves itself in various community horticultural projects.

Highlight of the week will be the club's annual Rose and African Violet Show, at Centennial Secondary School June 28-29.

Tire Blows, Driver Hurt

A 34-year-old Toronto woman is in satisfactory condition at Trenton Memorial Hospital with possible spinal injuries and cuts and bruises as a result of a one-car accident on Highway 401 just east of Aikens Rd. about eight miles west of Belleville.

Ontario Provincial Police at Belleville said today Ellen J. Stuart of 69 Dearborn Ave. was ejected at 12.10 a.m. today when a tire blew out on her car.

Police said she lost control of the vehicle which entered the median, rolled over and came to rest on its wheels facing east.

Police said the accident took place between Aikens Rd. and Ivanhoe Rd.

Court Fire Extinguished

PICTON — Firefighters were called to the Prince Edward County Court House on Union St. May 26 after fire ignited some rags lying in a hall-way outside a basement exit.

No damage was reported in the small blaze which broke out before 8 a.m.

Students Study Museum

About 35 students of Jack Hixon's Grade 4 class at Sir John A. Macdonald Elementary School spent almost five hours in extensive study of Glanmore House (Hastings County Museum) Wednesday.

Curator Marten Lewis said the students were taken on an in-depth tour of the museum by students' guides from Moira Secondary School, made sketches, wrote stories and poems and viewed several old houses in the city.

He said it was the first unstructured visit of its kind where a class has taken over the museum. Even mothers came along, he added.

Two Students Return Home

Two students from the Sir James Whitney School in Belleville returned home earlier this month after changing places with two American youngsters.

The exchange grew from an international meeting of Kiwanis clubs from Ontario and New York State in Belleville.

The students from the Belleville School for deaf were Harry Tonkin, 14, of Thunder Bay and Nancy Holmes, 15, of Bloomfield.

They exchanged for a week with Tony Cooke, 14, and Lisa Brooks, 13, of the New York State School for the Deaf, in Rome, N.Y.

The exchange officially took place at the International Peace Bridge at the Thousand Islands.

Put Papers In Order: Ellis

The number of people seeking aid from parliamentarians in getting last-minute proof of citizenship is mounting.

Thus all Canadians would do well to have proof of citizenship, says Jack Ellis, MP Hastings in his latest newsletter to constituents.

Much of the demand stems from the need for passports.

But the need to prove citizenship is made more necessary by voting regulations. In future, federal elections voters will have to produce documentary proof they are Canadians before they cast a ballot.

The handiest document is a birth certificate. Naturalized Canadians should have a citizenship certificate, says Mr. Ellis.

Building Permits Up

City building permits for an estimated $1.5 million in construction value were issued during May, building inspector Grant Stickle announced Tuesday.

The permit records show 15 of the permits were for new, single family residential units.

The major construction projects for the month are a 120-unit apartment project on Haig Rd. valued at $1.2 million and an 88-unit senior citizen housing project on Singleton Drive.

Mr. Stickle said this year's total compares favorably with the same period for last year with the number of permits showing a slight increase over the previous year.

Arms Drill

Belleville stopover of ground support unit for Ottawa helicopter transport squadron saw on-the-spot testing and practice of vehicles and weapons drill. Examining small arms at Wallbridge Road campsite are (from left) master corporals Frank Pineau and Harry Salmon and Cpl. Al Morrescuil. Unit also took target practice on Hastings-Prince Edward Regiment armory range.

Military Unit Practices On Outskirts of City

A helicopter ground support group has departed Belleville after turning land on its outskirts into a testing ground. The unit was attached to 450 Transport Helicopter Squadron from CFB Ottawa South.

It was enroute to Niagara Falls and Camp Borden for field and practices when it made the Belleville stopover.

Informed of its arrival some weeks ago, Maj. Carl Hibbel, training co-ordinator for the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment, contacted Belleville William Wills who owns vacant land on the city limits near the Wallbridge Road — Highway 401 interchange.

Mr. Wills agreed to allow the unit with its vehicles to use the area, testing out ground techniques during its two-day camping stopover Tuesday and Wednesday. The troops also used the Belleville Armory rifle range for target practice.

The unit's role, explained Capt. Jim Hunter, its commanding officer is to provide tactical and logistical support for the helicopter group transporting troops.

The training basis at various military sites is part of a 10-day tour during which the unit also will stage a stopover in Peterborough on its return journey.

Wednesday, May 28, 11.38, p.m. — garbage can on fire at corner of Benjamin and Pleasant streets, no damage.

Expert Says Few Pupils Use Reading to Learn

Deputy director of education L. F. Reid says only a small percentage of the population actually use reading as a learning device today.

To support his argument and learn more about this problem Mr. Reid, a former principal at Quinte Secondary School, attended a five-day conference in Calgary called Brass Tacks Conference between May 5 and 9.

At the conference Dr. Wayne Jennings, director of St. Paul Open School, at St. Paul, Minnesota, told the delegates only 20 per cent of the adult population use reading to improve their knowledge or education.

Dr. Jennings, a well-respected educator in the United States, said most people learn by conversation, observation, practice, visual media and exchange of ideas with other people. He said people's learning ability through reading can also be placed on a bell curve.

He said it is pointless for educators and school systems to make everyone good readers. Dr. Jennings said only half of kindergarten students are geared for the school system. The rest are either ahead in reading abilities or behind.

Roses Mark Anniversary

Belleville is looking slightly rosier this summer.

You can see the effect at the Armory regimental memorial and Corby Park.

It's all due two women's groups — city chapters of the Imperial Order Daughters of the Empire (IODE).

The IODE this year is marking its 75th anniversary in Canada. For the occasion it had a special rose developed, as a fund-raising scheme. Among beneficiaries of the proceeds are groups concerned with children's work.

In Belleville The IODE's Argyll and St. Julien chapters went a local step further. They raised cash to buy enough roses for community presentation.

Both chapters have presented 100 of the bushes, which bloom a deep red, to the city park's board. They're now blossoming in Corby Park.

The Argyll chapter, celebrating its 65th anniversary, has presented a collection of the bushes to the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment with which it has a long association.

The parks board agreed to place them around the regimental monument on the armory lawn at Pinnacle and Earl Street streets, and maintain the memorial's environs.

Old Photos Sought

PICTON — Curator of the Prince Edward County Museum James Gooding has urged Quinte area residents to search their photo albums for pictures of the Macaulay House to assist in restoration work.

The curator and his assistants are eager to collect photos of the old Picton rectory as it appeared through the years.

Caug.t In Act, Two Flee

Two unknown male youths, surprised in the act of a theft at Trudeau Motors on Station St. early today by a night watchman, dropped their loot and escaped, city police said.

Police said they were seen in the body shop shortly after 4 a.m., took off but left behind a cardboard box containing a quantity of wrenches and other tools on the outside of a window.

Entry was gained by breaking a window on the south side of the building and the youths escaped by opening a window on the opposite side.

Another break-in was reported to police shortly after 11 p.m. Wednesday at a city residence but nothing was stolen.

Big Birthday

Senior citizens at new West Bridge St. apartment building Wednesday night held party to collectively celebrate birthdays of some 20 residents in past month. Amelia Wilson, 70, and Mattie Freeman, 64, test technique for cutting the big cake. The 81-unit building is the latest project for housing the elderly in the city.

Bylaw Debated

Members of the subordinate planning advisory committee Margaret Orr and Joe Cox (right) check downtown control bylaw details with planning board deputy planning director Frank Stokmans. Enforcement of the document is being questioned by Inga Hall, in the meantime, the committee has recommended council pass the bylaw. If passed, the document will give council broad control powers on development and growth downtown.

Woodstock Gets Share Of First in OFL East

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Woodstock Warriors moved into a first-place tie with Burlington Ancaster Prowlingers in the east division of the Ontario Football League, defeating Toronto Western Globals 4-3 Wednesday.

In other action, Hamilton Wanderers Scrappers beat the Kitchener Rangers 30 and 6-3 in a doubleheader to Kitchener to move into second place in the east division.

Woodstock had to overcome a three-run deficit to win at home. Toronto led 1-0 in the second inning and made it 3-0 in the fourth after John Barbeveis blasted a two-run homer.

Woodstock tied the score in the fifth and the winner came in the seventh when Randy Hewitt singled, scoring Ted Lamb.

Bill Fidlin was Woodstock's winning pitcher, allowing five hits, walking one and striking out eight. Losing hurler Reg Martin gave up five hits and struck out 10. Toronto now has lost six consecutive games.

Hamilton hurler Ed Neudorf gave up only two hits in the first game while Bill McMellin allowed four hits in winning the second.

The Scrappers blanked the Evergreens 3-0 in the first after Kitchener Dick Booher bashed a three-run homer in the top of the seventh inning.

In the second, Hamilton forced extra innings after infielder Doug Furth tripled and scored on a throwing error in the top of the seventh to tie the game 3-3.

In the eighth, the Scrappers scored four runs. Catcher Gord Pearman slashed a three-run homer to left field to supply the winning margin in the 8-3 decision.

Reds Blank Expos 6-0

Healthy Nolan Delivers

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Gary Nolan has found his right medicine for what doctor and it's given a shot in the arm to the Cincinnati Reds' pitching staff.

"He's back and we're all tickled," team-mate Johnny Bench said Wednesday after catching Nolan's 6-0, two-hit shutout over Montreal Expos Wednesday night.

Nolan, battling back from shoulder so very that sidelined him most of last season, pitched his first shutout since 1972. Nolan's victory, his third in a row, sparked visions in the Cincinnati camp of a possible return to the form of 1970, when he won 18 games and led the Reds to the 5 annual League pennant.

In the other National League baseball games, New York Mets beat Los Angeles Dodgers 4-1, Pittsburgh Pirates defeated Houston Astros 3-0, Philadelphia Phillies defeated San Francisco Giants 5-4, Chicago Cubs beat Atlanta Braves 5-4 and St. Louis Cardinals defeated San Diego Padres 6-5 in 10 innings.

Nolan permitted a first-inning single to Pepe Mangual and a walk, then retired 11 batters before Rich Coggins doubled in the sixth inning.

GARY NOLAN

Ed Kranepool's sacrifice fly scored Los Angeles pitcher Andy Messersmith, making his first appearance ever in relief for the Dodgers, brought home the winning run in the eighth inning as New York beat the Dodgers.

Felix Millan singled off Doug Rau in the bottom of the eta' was greeted by Joe Torre's on a sacrifice bunt by Jerry Mets. Messersmith, who had pitched in relief in 1973 when he was with Atlanta, Angels, came in at this juncture and was greeted by Joe Torre's single to right. The base hit advanced Millan to third and Torre moved to second on Joe Ferguson's throw to third base.

Messersmith walked Rusty Staub intentionally to load the bases and Kranepool, pinch-hitting for Dave Kingman, sent a long fly to right that delivered Millan with the tie-breaking run.

Dave Parker hit a two-run homer and Ken Brett scattered nine hits as Pittsburgh whipped Houston.

The Pirats beat the Giants, behind by rookie Jerry Martin's two-run homer, his first in the majors, and a solo shot by Mike Anderson.

Chicago pitcher Bill Bonham's second one run and drove in another run as the Cubs outlasted Atlanta.

Nine Wins for A's Lefty

Orioles Are Blue Birds

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Vida Blue, Bill Lee, Jim Hughes, Rusty May, Stan Bahnsen and Eric Raich were the Ame ican League's pitching stars Wednesday night. Nolan Ryan wasn't.

Blue hurled a four-hitter and became the first nine-game winner in the majors as Oakland A's blanked the sliding Baltimore Orioles 5-0 on home run by Sal Bando, Billy Williams and Reggie Jackson.

Lee also pitched a four-hitter for Boston Red Sox who defeated Texas Rangers 4-1 but lost his bid for a third consecutive shutout on two eighth-inning errors, one of them his own wild pickoff throw.

Hughes, a rookie, scattered seven hits for his sixth consecutive triumph, a 5-2 victory over Minnesota Twins over Detroit Tigers.

May survived first-inning wildness and allowed six hits while Bobby Bonds hit a pair of two-run homers in New York Yankees' 6-2 triumph over Kansas City Royals.

Bahnsen pitched his first complete game of the season, a six-hit 9-3 success for Chicago White Sox over Milwaukee Brewers.

Raich, making his second big league appearance, worked 7 3-strong innings as Cleveland Indians bat Ryan and California Angels 9-5. Ryan yielded seven hits and six runs in seven innings, including two-run homers by Buddy Bell and John Lowenstein.

It was the Indians' 10th consecutive victory at Anaheim Stadium over three years as they completed a three-game sweep of the Angels under coach Dave Garcia while their suspended manager, Frank Robinson, watched from the press box. He returns to action Friday.

Raich, who failed to hold a 9-0 lead against Oakland, and Blue in his first start, notched his first triumph before 58 friends and relatives. He hails from Compton, Calif., and pitched for the University of Southern California.

"Going against Nolan Ryan really gave me goosebumps," he said. "What went through my mind was I hoped I'd give up less runs than he did."

Baltimore's Mike Torrez had a no-hitter until Bando hit his fourth home run of the season with one out in the sixth inning. One out later, Joe Rudi walked and Williams followed with a homer into the second deck in right field, his seventh. Jackson hit a two-run homer in the eighth, his ninth of the season.

Punch Is Stung; Dudley a Stinger

BUFFALO (CP) — Rick Dudley, 23-year-old Buffalo Sabres right-winger who played out his option this season, joined the National Hockey League and signed a five-year contract with the Cincinnati Stingers, the new entry in the World Hockey Association.

Dudley's departure after two full seasons with the Sabres was announced Tuesday by general manager Punch Imlach who expressed both bitterness and regret.

"I'm very disappointed that Dudley continued to delay during the Sabres' season that he had signed with a WHA club," said Imlach, adding that "the Sabres are sorry to see him go."

Dudley was the fifth highest scorer with Buffalo this season, scoring 31 goals and adding 28 assists for 59 points.

He played junior hockey with St. Catharines Black Hawks before turning professional with Iowa of the Central Hockey League in 1969. He played three seasons in the American Hockey League—one with Cleveland and two with Cincinnati—before winning a job as a regular with the Sabres.

RICK DUDLEY

Jets Get Ted Green

WINNIPEG (CP) — Winnipeg Jets of the World Hockey Association announced the signing of veteran defenceman Ted Green Wednesday.

The 36-year-old native of Winnipeg was signed to a multi-year contract after being obtained from New England Whalers for future considerations. No details of the contract were released.

Rudy Pilous, director of hockey operations for the Jets, said the club went after the 10-year National Hockey League veteran to bring needed "credibility" to the blueline.

"We were getting defensive flop-but the players simply weren't strong enough or experienced enough to do the job of protecting our goaltender," he said.

Green, captain of the Whalers for the three years the WHA has been in existence, saw only limited action last season. Originally Jets' property, he negotiated his own deal to join the Whalers in 1972.

Once known as Terrible Ted for his tough, aggressive NHL style, Green has mellowed considerably since a stick-swinging incident in 1968 that forced him to miss the remainder of the season with a plate in his skull and a protective helmet.

It's Time To Pay

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The World Football League has filed a bankruptcy petition for the purpose of paying off its creditors, an official of the WFL said Wednesday.

Ted Palmquist, administrative vice-president of the WFL last year, said in an interview that league president Chris Hemmeter had made a proposal that was intended to satisfy all creditors. The plan was mailed last week to many persons owed money from the old WFL.

He said creditors are to vote June 4 on whether to accept the plan.

Technically, the old WFL filed a bankruptcy petition last April 25, changing the name of the company to Football Creditors Payment Plan Inc (FCPP), a United States district court spokesman said the petition was filed for the purpose of arranging payment to creditors.

"The new league bought the name of the old league, and its logo, in order to continue operating," Palmquist said.

Argos May Land Lee

TORONTO (CP) — Quarterback Bob Lee, who signed a three-year guaranteed contract with Atlanta Falcons last year but no longer fits into the National Football League team's plans, has been offered to Toronto Argonauts of the Canadian Football League.

Argonauts general manager John Barrow says Lee, 29, will be signed to a multi-year contract if proper financial arrangements can be made. Falcons would pay part of his salary and the Argos would assume the balance for the last two years of his Atlanta contract period.

European Cup

Bayern Blanks Leeds United

PARIS (Reuter) — Two goals in 11 minutes Wednesday enabled Bayern Munich of West Germany to retain soccer's European Cup with a 2-0 win over Leeds United of England after weathering heavy pressure in the first half.

Bayern lost Swedish defender Bjoern Andersson in the fourth minute with a badly gashed leg and, a few minutes before the half, key attacker Uli Hoeness limped off after twisting his knee.

The handicap looked too great for Bayern as Leeds tore holes in the German defence but had luck and poor shooting prevented a Leeds score.

After the half, Bayern began to get back into the game and, with 19 minutes left, Franz Roth scored. After another 11 minutes, Gerd Moeller beat Leeds goalie David Stewart again.

Dittmar Cramer, Bayern's trainer, said his strategy for the game collapsed because of the early injuries but he said he was satisfied with the outcome.

"Bayern knew that Leeds was the favorite and they planned to get out of defensive tactics," said Cramer. "It was not their idea to play in defence but this strategy was spoiled by the two injuries.

"I am happy that the two goals were scored during counter attacks. It needed skill and luck."

The Bayern scoring came shortly after Leeds thought it had taken the lead on a goal by Peter Lorimer but French referee Michel Kitabjian disallowed the score, saying three Leeds players, including Lorimer, were off side.

Leeds fans behind the Bayern goal showed their displeasure at the ruling by throwing broken seats and other debris onto the field.

After the game, the winners carried the silver cup in a victory lap around the Parc des Princes Stadium before a crowd of 50,000 but when they reached the Leeds section, they quickly retreated under a hail of thrown debris.

The games was halted twice when the Leeds fans threw bottles and seats which came close to hitting Bayern goalie Sepp Maier. Police reported several injuries in clashes between Bayern and Leeds supporters.

Italy Defeats Canada

MILAN, Italy (CP) — Canada's national basketball team suffered a 75-60 loss at the hands of the Italian national team Wednesday night.

The Canadians, led by 12 point performances from Phil Tollestrup and Bill Robinson, stayed close through most of the game but the Italians pulled away in the last minutes.

The score was 39-33 at half and Canada managed to pull within five points but with only 13 minutes remaining, the Italians moved in front 60-46 soon after the Canadians' hopes for a rally ended when Tollestrup and Ken McKenzie fouled out.

It was only the second game of a five-game tour of Italy by the Canadian club and coach Jack Donohue was not happy with some of the weaknesses he spotted in his squad.

CHRIS EVERT

Schultz Loses Cool

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Dave (The Hammer) Schultz of Philadelphia Flyers, fresh from his Stanley Cup win and claiming to have just beguiled his way out of a traffic ticket, tore up a woman reporter's notebook early Wednesday while she took notes on his account of the incident.

It occurred at the Spectrum following the return of the Flyers after their 3-0 victory over the Sabres in Buffalo Tuesday night. DD Eisenberg, a sportswriter for the Philadelphia Bulletin, was covering a party there thrown by Bill Snider, owner of the Flyers.

Schultz burst into the room saying he and a friend had just been stopped for speeding, but the policeman recognized the Flyers star and said, "I can't give you a ticket. We've been rooting for you guys. Play better slow down."

Schultz, who led the National Hockey League the last two seasons in penalty minutes and who is known for his aggressive play, spotted Eisenberg taking notes. He rushed at the woman, shouted obscenities and tore the pages from her notebook.

Schultz continued to shout obscenities at Eisenberg until Flyers' backup goalie Bobby Taylor intervened, telling Schultz, "Cool it, Cool it."

"Calm down," Eisenberg told Schultz.

"Calm down hell," Schultz snapped. "Why are you writing things down about me?"

Bill Ellis of Sons have been traded to Atlanta Braves in exchange for right-handed pitcher Ron Reed and a player to be named later.

Evert Advances To Quarter-final

ROME (AP) — Top-seeded Chris Evert of the United States smashed her way into the quarter-finals of the women's singles in the $120,000 Italian Open tennis tournament Wednesday with a 6-1, 6-3 triumph over Susan Barker of Britain.

Bjorn Borg, No. 1 seed in the men's singles, was hard-pressed to edge rookie Victor Pecci of Paraguay 7-5, 4-6 and enter the third round.

Three seeded girls failed to make the quarter-finals. Linky Boshoff of South Africa beat Kazuko Sawamatsu of Japan 6-2, 6-3, Katja Ebbinghaus of West Germany downed Pam Teeguarden of Los Angeles 7-5, 6-2, and Fiorella Bonicelli of Peru ousted Chris Evert's sister Jeanne 6-2, 6-4.

Czechoslovakia's Martina Navratilova, the No. 2 seed, trounced Ingrid Brunner of Sweden 6-2, 6-2.

Plane's Concrete Shades Deseronto

Bob Barberstock fired a two-hitter in Wednesday night's Smith Hastings Baseball League action, but it wasn't enough as Deseronto went down to defeat 3-1 at the hands of Plane's Concrete.

Barberstock and Bob Robb hooked up in a pitchers duel in Deseronto Park and though Robb gave up four hits he still came out with a win.

The Deseronto hurler fanned nine and walked four. He gave up singles to Ralph Plane and Steve Moore. His teammates had three errors, however, and they proved costly.

Robb struck out five, walked four and touched for two singles by Brenzil and one each by Allanbrook and Heffernan, but only gave up one run.

Information on the Melrose-Foxboro contest, also played Wednesday, was unavailable at the source.

Broadloom Team Is on the Move

Sue Fobert earned her second win in as many nights Wednesday as Belleville Broadloom downed Purinatex 9-1 in Belleville and District Ladies Softball League action. In the other half of the twin bill at Alemite Park, Belleville Yardmen came from behind a 3-0 deficit to edge Ellis Construction 4-3.

Fobert gave up nine hits but the only out that hurt her was a fifth inning home run by Jane Ballard. The Broadloom hurler fanned five and handed out two walks.

Sandra Fleming was the loser striking out two, walking five and giving up 11 hits.

Norma May was tops for the winners with a triple, a double and a single. Chris Smith had a pair of doubles and a single and Pam Smith punched out three singles.

Shirley Gulliver fired the win of the Yardmen round. She fanned six, walked one and scattered seven hits.

Sandra Clase was the loser, giving up eight hits, striking out three and issuing two walks.

There's No Stopping Constellation

Constellation Carpets moved farther out in front of the Industrial Softball League's East Division Wednesday night, with 14-3 trouncing of the Lenders. It was the sixth win in as many starts for Constellation and the sixth in a row off the arm of Ken Kerik.

In the other Industrial League contest Wednesday, CNRA brought Frank "Junior" Day out of mothballs and dumped Brooks Bond 8-1. Day backed a three hitter for the tournament.

Ross Geen took the loss on the Brooks Bond mound striking out ten and walking five. He gave up four hits.

Day gave out four free hasties and fanned a pair. His bid for a shutout was ruined in the fourth inning when Dave Midgleton crashed a home run to score Brooks Bond's only run of the game.

Rob McIlwrier was tops at the plate for CNRA with a double.

Kerik blew a three-hitter past the Lenders. He got all the offensive help he needed from Blain Mullins with a triple and two singles, Bob Reid with a three singles, Don Parks with a three-bagger and Wayne May with two singles.

Citizens Finance defenders Lee Tait (half his feet) and Harry Lamers challenge Quinte Italo-Canadians forward during early moments of Wednesday's Bay of Quinte Soccer Association match at Bain Park in Trenton. Teams played to 1-1 tie. Neither side had much luck when players moved into scoring range.

Shooters Are Off the Mark

TRENTON — Neither team had its sights set properly as Trenton Citizens Finance and Quinte Italo-Canadian battled to a 1-1 Bay of Quinte Soccer Association tie here, Wednesday.

Golden scoring opportunities were missed at both ends as over-eager shooters shot wide of the mark or banged the ball off the post and crossbar.

Italo-Canadians pressed in the early going, taking advantage of the wind and sun to pen the Trenton side in its own end. But it was the Finance squad which scored first.

Henry Sonneveld was the marksman, converting a pass from Dennis Woodcock. That one came with about 15 minutes played.

Later, Woodcock had to leave the game after injuring a leg in a crushing collision with an Italo defender.

Italo equalized off a free kick with 30 minutes played. George Del Grosso booted the ball into the goal area and Finance goalkeeper Terry Hore, perhaps bothered by the sun, was victimized.

Hore couldn't hold the ball and Oscar Nespoli was on the job to drive it home into an empty goal.

"No way," muttered the disgusted goalie.

But that's soccer.

In a game played at Brighton, Cobourg Tony's defeated the home team 5-2.

Minor Softball In Full Swing

There was a full slate of games played this week in the Belleville Minor Softball Association.

In the Peewee division, Stephen Licence just got by Branch "99" House Dart League by 19-8. Steve Murray and Steve Bennett combined pitching efforts for the victors, fanning 12 batters.

Murray and Bennett had the big sticks also, each clouting a home run. Doug Ghent had a double and a single.

For the losers, Jeff Whiting and Steve Sopha had a homer and Leonard Wigger added three hits. Wigger and Darryl Brennan together struck out 19 in the losing cause.

Oilers Must Pay

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — The Texas Supreme Court ruled Wednesday that Houston Oilers owe former defensive lineman Don Floyd $11,422 plus interest in Floyd's suit for breach of his 1968 contract with the National Football League team. Floyd played for the Oilers from 1968 until 1969, when an injury ended his professional career. Floyd sued to get the remainder of his $19,000 contract after it was terminated. he $11,422 amounted to his yearly salary of $19,000 minus what the Oilers had paid him and $1,400 in workmen's compensation claims.

In other peewee action Richard Ellis outscored West Gate Plaza 19-11. Doug Haley, and Steve Griffen getting three hits with Rusty Downing and Kevin Dunlap hitting homers.

Jim Noble had three hits for the losers, Rusty Downing and Doug Haley combined for the win.

Malcolm Brothers bombed Dixie Lee 24-4, with Mike Millar and Jim Sopha hitting homers. Danny Rose had three hits for Dixie Lee.

In the Tyke division AOCO beat Richard Ellis 19-12 with Andy Brennan and Paul McGrath each getting two hits. Jeff Shields had a home run for Richard Ellis.

Also in Tyke action, Town and Country clouted Fraser and O'Neil 24-6 with Jim Vendervoot and Brian Charey leading the way with two homers. Rick Pickrell had a single and a homer for the losers. Brian Charey took the win.

In Bantam, the SACO peewees beat the Red Shark 14-11 with Lloyd Olsen and John Mumkittrick pitching the victory.

Dave Gee had five RBI's for the winners while Mike Wood and Steve Lowrey had two each. Andy Plante and Randy Smith had three hits for the three singles for the policemen while Dwight Bertley had a homer and single for Shell.

John Jiacopolous got credit for the win. Silvanie Palisca took the loss.

Bayview Shells O'Brien's

After one inning it was 0-0, but as the game went on Bayview Orchards got stronger and stronger in the Prince Edward North Shore Softball League Wednesday night until they scored 12 runs in the sixth inning to trounce O'Brien's 24-3.

Steve Dostator and Don Boster were the winners. They threw third strikes past five and walked two. They only gave up four hits.

Ron Matthews, Rick Geelah and George Tirebiter took the loss. They gave up 14 hits, 12 walks and did not fan a single Bayview batter.

George Chapman led the hitting attack with three safeties for winners.

IN MEMORIAM

HOUSE — In loving memory of a dear son, Warren, who passed away May 29, 1972.
We think of him in silence
No eyes can see his tears.
But in our hearts and aching hearts,
His memory we keep.
—Lovingly remembered by Mom.

HOUSE — In loving memory of a dear dad, Warren, who passed away May 29, 1972.
A light is lost, our household grieve
A voice is heard in our home.
A place is vacant in our home.
Which never can be filled.
Some may think you are forgotten,
Though life's busy ways go on
But in memory you are with us,
Dear dad, forever and one.
—Sadly missed by Bob, Dave, Don, Janet, Peter, Gary and Rusty.

HOUSE — In loving memory of a dear husband, Warren, who passed away May 29, 1972.
Since you've gone first and I remain
Alone
The thing I've have you do,
Walk slowly down the path of death,
For soon I'll follow you.
I want to know each also you take,
Each step you take I'll take
For each day dawn with beauty
Dad,
You'd have us call your name.
—Sadly missed and always remembered, Ruth.

HOUSE — In loving memory of a dear father, Ross, who passed away May 29th, 1972.
Dad, we miss you and smiling
Dad.
Life's a pleasure to recall,
We had a kindly man for dad,
And dad treasured by all.
—Lovingly remembered by son Ross.

HOUSE — In loving memory of our dear father and grandfather Warren, who passed away May 29, 1972.
Daily missed along life's way,
Quietly remembered day by day.
No longer in our lives to share,
But in our hearts you are always there.
Always remembered and daily missed by Fred and Ruth, son-in-law Doreen and grandson Warren.

YADER — In loving memory of a dear mother, Lillian Yader, who passed away May 29, 1950.
Not needed a place of rest in heaven,
But a beautiful field to claim.
Not needed a home of sorrow,
We chose this place for our home.
—Lovingly remembered by son Sherwood, daughter-in-law and grandchildren.

HOUSE — In memory of our dear friend Warren House who passed away May 29, 1972.
Not just today, but every day,
We miss you
—Always remembered by Carl and Marian.

HOUSE — In loving memory of a dear husband and father, who passed away May 29th, 1972.
The midnight stars are shining,
Time your silent piece sounds
Beneath it stands the one we love,
And dig the ones we lost.
—Sadly missed by Eva and children.

6:30 — Simply Charlotte (6) Johnny Carson (8); Mary Group; A friend of mine has advised me that colon irrigations are helpful in keeping diverticulosis under control. I would very much like your opinion. Thank you.

I would vote colon irrigations on two counts, at least.

Such a procedure will cleanse the lower bowel; but it may also disrupt the natural chemistry of the colon. It is also questionable whether such irrigations would reach any but the lower portions of the colon, and, as you know, diverticulosis can develop in pouchings from the intestinal wall can occur anywhere in that structure.

You seem to have your diverticulosis under control, so why fool around with methods that can be damaging, and at best only half-effective?

You would be better off making sure you get an adequate amount of bulk in your diet to promote natural bowel movements. Routine colon irrigations should be avoided unless there is a well-established reason for them.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: On all the laxative compounds there is a warning that continued use may result in dependence on them. But none ever explains what a laxative really does, or what the effect prolonged use does have. No one she has been able to explain this to me.—K.N.

The body moves unneeded solids from the intestinal tract in a process that involves a "peristaltic" movement in the walls of the bowels. This alternating contraction and relaxation of the muscle fibers propels the food and, eventually, the solids in the residue, through the rectal muscles take over, being called into action for actual defecation.

A laxative comes under the general heading of a cathartic. It is generally considered a mild cathartic, as compared with a purgative, which is more severe. A mineral oil would be considered to be a mild cathartic. It mixes with food solids in the intestines, softens the mass and thus promoting easier passage down the digestive tract. A purgative would be a cathartic that has a direct and usually strong stimulating effect on the muscles of the intestines. Today, the terms laxative and purgative are generally used interchangeably.

Usually a normal diet will take care of the matter, and no assistance is needed.

Prolonged use of any cathartic can disturb both the peristaltic process mentioned above and the natural muscular control at the rectum, making constipation more regular and troublesome. Persons who are habitual cathartic users tend to develop hemorrhoids more than do people who aren't.

But back to your question. The main potential danger of chronic laxative use, besides hemorrhoids, is a disturbance of the body's natural processes. Usually, as I said earlier, constipation will take care of itself, unless there is a functional abnormality. Many people will not wait to give the bowel time to do its work, insisting on a movement a day, which they consider a universal sign of good health.

By removing bowel material completely with harsh laxatives, it may take two or three days for a new stool to accumulate.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: My sister age 72, was told she has cystic fibrosis in both breasts, and was told that "not to worry about it." Is this common for a woman her age? Could it become cancerous, and is there any treatment?—A.N.

The term is cystic disease of the breast, not cystic fibrosis, which is an entirely different disorder, of glandular origin.

The condition your sister has is not common in older women. It requires close observation and periodic checks, both physical (by palpitation) and by mammography (X-ray of the breasts). It can become cancerous. Treatment is either by surgical drainage or removal of the individual cysts.

By QSWALD and JAMES JACOBY

Lancelot, the peerless knight and bridge player, looked over at wily Mordred sitting West and remarked, "I am going to treat you like a friend for a change."

Then Lancelot played the four of clubs from dummy. Gawaine, sitting East, had to play a low club and Mordred's jack was allowed to hold the trick. He led a second club. Lancelot won with his ace and drew trumps with three rounds, being careful to win the third one in dummy. Then he played the queen of diamonds. Gawaine followed with the seven.

Lancelot turned to Mordred and said, "Here's another friendly trick for you." Then he played his nine spot and Mordred made another trick with a jack.

"Gadzooks," said Mordred. "Methinks you like to lead when you act as an enemy. Tis a pity that my sort of spader are it is lulled to sleep by the soft words."

So Mordred played his ace of spades and held Lancelot to a contract that would have been beaten if Gawaine had been able to gain the lead.

Colon Irrigation Not Advisable

By G. C. THOSTESON, MD

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Although I have had diverticulosis for a long time, I have had no difficulty with this problem.

A friend of mine has advised me that colon irrigations are helpful in keeping diverticulosis under control. I would very much like your opinion. Thank you.

Stray Pets Becoming Problem

OTTAWA (CP) — Stray pets, once just a nuisance, are fast becoming a serious problem for municipal officials, the search for population in Canada and elsewhere has brought a wave of critics clamoring for tighter restrictions on dogs, cats and their owners.

Some Ottawa officials express the view that stray pets may take over the city if something isn't done.

Ottawa-Carleton regional water users recently received a pamphlet with their water bill laying out the rules for civic-dedicated pet owners.

The pamphlet asked owners to keep their pets, convince others to do the same, stop their dogs from defecating on other people's property and call police about stray dogs.

Last year the city council move was a hefty boost to $25 from $3 in the pound charges for unclaimed animals picked up by dogcatchers.

A recent survey of municipal officials in United States cities showed that 40 per cent of them ranked the stray-pet problem as being critical or very serious.

"We haven't come to that point yet," said L. D. Smith, Ottawa's director of sewer services and pollution control, "but the problem is getting serious here."

He said Ottawa police received 2,200 stray-pet complaints last year, mostly about dogs, triple those received in 1974. A police spokesman predicted the complaints would rise appreciably this year.

Mr. Smith said the problem can be solved.

"The long-term solution, of course, is neutering and spaying the animals. Educating the public about these solutions and tougher enforcement of the present pet-control laws are the short-term approaches."

Last year the Ottawa Humane Society killed almost 13,000 cats and dogs, about half of them classified as strays.

The humane society pays up to half the neutering cost of animals from the fund the society by needy owners.

Ontario Firms Sold Bad Meat to Quebec

MONTREAL (CP) — A supply network that provided tainted meat for human consumption throughout the province of Quebec had links in Ontario, the Quebec police commission inquiry into organized crime was told Thursday.

Evidence also indicated that two unnamed Ontario retail outlets may have received meat from a Polsta Cuisines, Que., meat supply firm that was acquiring tainted meat from Ontario.

Leo Lacelle, a Quebec meat dealer, told the inquiry he purchased between 300,000 and 500,000 pounds of tainted meat from dead and diseased animals—from meat salvagers in various Ontario centres between 1971 and 1975.

Mr. Lacelle said Art Burrell, owner of King Animal Food near Peterborough, was his chief supplier of tainted meat.

He identified his other Ontario suppliers as John Meegens of Beaverton, 20 miles southeast of Orillia; and meat salvagers Lloyd Lorenz of Durham, 30 miles south of Owen Sound; Hans Ruhl of Van Kleek Hill, 60 miles east of Ottawa; and a Mr. Macabee of St. Albert, 30 miles east of Ottawa.

He said the meat purchased near Peterborough was taken to East Templeton, Que., in unmarked trucks where it was transferred to cardboard boxes. Some of it was then moved to Hull Food Supply in Pointe Gatineau, Que., where, Mr. Lacelle testified, it was loaded on to a truck with the markings of Federal Packing Inc. of Magog, Que., a firm which police raided last month and seized thousands of pounds of tainted meat.

He said that two Ontario retail outlets, which he did not identify, were among customers for Hull Food Supply's meat.

Mr. Lacelle testified he paid Ontario salvagers from 22 to 30 cents a pound for the meat. Previous testimony has indicated meat from dead and diseased animals is usually sold to pet food and fertilizer companies for a fraction of that price.

Asked if he thought the Ontario firms who sold him the meat knew it was for human consumption, Mr. Lacelle replied: "They should have known by the price."

Evidence filed with the inquiry by police commission lawyers said Ernest Laforme, owner of Hull Food Supply, had acquired Federal Meat Packing with a total of 291,343 pounds of meat from 1972 to 1974.

The inquiry also heard testimony from Hugh McGovern, a 23-year-old butcher, who said Ontario meat salvagers routinely sold their products to Quebec meat distributors.

He described how, between 1966 and 1971, while working for his father-in-law, Gerald Mallette, he helped unload meat in boxes labelled "not for human consumption" from a Toronto-area salvager, whose name was ordered withheld by the inquiry.

He said the meat was marked with charcoal dust as required by law to show it was destined for the pet food market but the charcoal was cut away and the meat repacked in unmarked boxes.

He said much of the meat went to Hull Food Supply.

National Meat Standards Are to Be Fixed in July

OTTAWA (CP) — The federal government plans to set national bacteria standards for meat sometime in July, Dr. A. B. Marrison of the health protection branch said Thursday.

"We've taken our time because we want to set workable standards," Dr. Morrison said. "It's been a long term development in practice not a Mickey Mouse grandstand operation."

He was replying to charges made last week by Dr. Ken Pennifold, Edmonton environmental health officer, that the federal government had made no change in the condition of meat in Canada, even after last year's tainted hamburger scandal.

Dr. Pennifold said a conference last December of federal, provincial and municipal health experts to discuss microbiological standards for meat was a "waste of time" because no standards had been set. He also said meat sanitation workshops for meat merchants and the results of the western half of the national hamburger survey promised last year by Health Minister Marc Lalonde never materialized.

Dr. Morrison said his department has published several pamphlets on meat sanitation and distributed them in the industry through the Food Trade Association.

He added that meetings are planned "in the near future" with industry representatives to discuss meat sanitation courses.

Dr. Morrison said the western part of the national hamburger survey had been released but it did not get a great publicity as the eastern half because there were no health violations.

Mr. Lalonde said that the bacteria in the meat was harmless to humans if the meat was well cooked. He admitted, however, that the bacteria could be present in bologna or other prepared meats and would not be destroyed because the meat would not be cooked.

Just Hope

OTTAWA (CP) — Grocery shoppers can avoid buying tainted meat by patronizing reputable supermarkets but diers "you can hope" that meat served in restaurants has been inspected and approved, Beryl Plumptre, chairman of the Food Prices Review Board, said today.

Atlantic Postmen Are 'Sick'

HALIFAX (CP) — Inside postal workers booked off sick today in widespread areas of the Atlantic provinces and regional officers of the Canadian Union of Postal Workers (CUPW) continued to forecast similar action across the country during the day.

Nova Scotia postal officials announced the workers who were not be paid for the time they have called in sick until the "situation, an overnight tire-slashing incident reported at a post office parking lot brought extra security officers on duty today.

Union officials and postal authorities in the region continued attempts to assess the impact of a Thursday night call for all 1,200 CUPW members in the four eastern provinces to book off.

A postal union spokesman at national union headquarters in Ottawa said the walkout would take place in the Atlantic region and Quebec, with the exception of Montreal.

Teachers May Get Right to Strike

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario's 100,000 teachers will be given the right to strike under legislation to be introduced next Wednesday, Education Minister Thomas Wells said today.

In a statement outlining the proposed legislation, Mr. Wells said school boards would also be given the right to lock out teachers.

"The legislation represents a significant step in a return to more harmonious relationships between teachers and school board in this province," Mr. Wells told members of the legislature.

Opposition members readily applauded Mr. Wells on the contents of the new teacher-board negotiations.

"An astonishing and totalitarian reversal of government policy," said NDP Leader Stephen Lewis.

Congratulate Tom Wells for bringing his more inflexible colleagues around."

Liberal House Leader James Breithaupt said his party is "delighted" with the government's proposed legislation.

"It will avoid confrontations which were likely in some areas of the province this fall—and that's of benefit to everyone in Ontario."

Mr. Wells agreed to Mr. Breithaupt's suggestion that a draft bill be sent to a standing committee for discussion and amendment.

Mrs. Carty said several teachers in Belleville were not surprised at the outburst of violence. She said some even wondered why it has taken so long for this type of violence to erupt in Ontario high schools.

explained Mrs. Carty," It's no longer on American television it's now been brought home." She said it may affect student teacher relationships.

Mr. Runacres said the major problem is that society no longer gives schools a clear cut indication of what moral and ethical values it wants students to learn or strive for.

County educators are now saying it's happened in Ontario and it could happen in Belleville —violence in the high schools.

Director of education Eric Runacres, in response to the two shooting deaths in Brampton Wednesday, said "the school often becomes the focal point of a student's emotional instability and the teacher becomes of a symbol of society's pressures on him."

Mr Runacres, who believes this type of violence is a problem of society not just the school, said it is difficult to predict how emotional problems will manifest themselves.

He said the only safeguard against such violence in the school's is for the teachers to be acutely sensitive to the behavior of students. He said the main reason for advocating professional development for teachers is a need for a deeper understanding of human behavior.

Judie Carty, teacher and vice-president of the Ontario Secondary School Teachers' Federation (OSSTF), reacted with shock to the slaying of a Brampton teacher and student. She said teachers across Ontario and Canada will be deeply affected by the tragedy.

"There will be a new atmosphere in Canadian schools now," Mrs. Carty said.

City Garden Plots Attract Numerous Green Thumbs

By HARRY MULHALL
Staff Reporter

John Blanchard likes gardening — watching things grow.

It's an instinctive trait he shares with many.

Thereby hung a common problem for scores of Belleillians until this spring.

For John there was one sense of loss when he moved from Brockville — and a garden — to Belleville recently. He became an apartment dweller, on Village Drive.

Gardening was out — or so it seemed until recently.

These days if you're looking for John Blanchard in his spare time you'll like as not find him happily vegetable-gardening — along with other land-short fellow citizens.

What they're also doing is demonstrating the apparent success of Belleville's first municipal garden allotment scheme of modern times.

After a slow start, the project is now in full swing with few garden plots left.

So much so, parks board officials — who conceived the scheme — already are conjecturing happily on its future prospects.

"So far I'm very optimistic about it for next year", says Gene Gemmell, department horticulturist co-ordinating the project. The scheme has made 66 plots available on land donated by Albert College between Wellington and Sidney streets.

Offered for the summer on a $15 lease, only a few plots still were unspoken for Tuesday. Mr. Gemmell expected them to be rented soon.

The leasing produced some unexpected changes in the intent of the scheme. Originally it was hoped the allotments would appeal mostly to senior citizens — there are living complexes for the elderly in the area — and apartment dwellers.

Surprisingly, officials reported recently to the parks board, senior citizens showed a lack of response — despite experience with wartime vegetable gardens.

"Many of the gardeners now are both young apartment livers — like John Blanchard — and home owners with little property to grow vegetables.

Mr. Gemmell says it's estimated the 30-by-50 foot plots can keep a family of four in fresh vegeta bles throughout the summer.

"But it's not just the economic benefits that are the project's attraction," Mr. Gemmell and Mr. Blanchard say.

Besides the satisfaction of creating something themselves, the project has become a meeting place for people as the gardeners mingle, sometimes exchanging tips.

Mr. Gemmell puts it this way: "The project gives the pleasure of being able to get out and work the soil and meet other people."

Home Inmate In 97th Year Enjoys Swim

OTTAWA (CP) — "I feel 16— I love it, it's wonderful," said 96-year-old Elizabeth Berwick about her Tuesday afternoon swimming at a local community centre.

She said eight other members of the Hillel Lodge, a Jewish home for the elderly in Ottawa, swim every week. Mrs. Berwick is the oldest; the youngest swimmer is 65.

Daisy Mitchell, recreation director of the lodge, said the program improves morale and physical well-being.

Mrs. Berwick proves the point. She has to be lowered into the pool on a lift because of arthritis knees. After 45 minutes in the water she said she walked more easily, slept better and felt fresher, more relaxed.

Although she did not swim in her youth, Mrs. Berwick plans to swim "as long as I live, as long as God will give me." She may be swimming for a long time; her father lived to be 110.

Joseph Toronkow, 90, also enjoys the program. "It's good exercise, clean, it helps pass the time, and it gives you a lift, a bit of pep, a pick-up." He said it is his favorite activity.

Three Ottawa pools offer swimming programs for the elderly.

Dry Spring May Create Problems for Boaters

By AL EARAS
Staff Reporter

TRENTON — An abnormally dry spring this year might mean a drop in water levels on the Trent River this summer, with resulting navigational problems and damage to river wildlife.

A Parks Canada official in Peterborough said Thursday this year's dry spring has prompted staff on the Trent-Severn Waterway to begin reduction of flows earlier than is usual for the time of year.

The measure, said water control manager Ian Kilchen, is being taken now to conserve water in about 40 reservoir lakes that feed the canal system in summer when rain is less plentiful. Reservoir lakes — the most northerly being Kennisis Lake about 100 miles north of Peterborough — are only 60 to 80 per cent full.

Right now, he said, it's hard to tell what this year will bring. If summer months feel dry, Parks Canada officials may be forced to tap larger lakes on the waterway itself, an unusual practice.

Mr. Kilchen said levels along the canal system now are navigable, but flows are low because of below-average rainfall over the past month and a half.

Water stored in the reservoirs is the key factor in maintaining a navigable level throughout the system, Parks Canada guarantees boaters, through depth charts it prints, that water levels will remain fairly constant — within about a half-foot range.

If it drops more, said Mr. Kilchen, a boater could find himself left "high and dry" in only five feet of water where a chart indicated a six foot draft.

But he said he feels water levels will be maintained on the system. "We've always managed before. You'd have to have an unusual year not to manage."

Water level control on the Trent River is critical for the preservation of wildlife, according to Lower Trent Region Conservation Authority chairman William Carter.

In a strongly worded letter to Parks Canada last year, he claimed water level control over the past three to five years has been poor.

Mr. Carter said such poor control makes a mockery of any attempts to stop pollution since one water fluctuation can wipe out an entire generation of fish.

As an example, he cited a drop of two feet in the Percy Reach last year that left fish eggs "high and dry" in shallows that ordinarily are one or two feet below water".

"My personal observations at Campbellford verify lack of control as a result of the rise and fall of the Trent," he said. "Spawning occurs in a short span of time."

During the last three to five years, said Mr. Carter, the fluctuations in water levels have increased in magnitude and frequency. If continued, this could result in the Trent River becoming useless as a wildlife sanctuary and a tourist attraction.

Map to Outline Exact Areas of Flood Plain

TRENTON — Quinte Planning Board deputy director Frank Stokmans said Thursday that once the flood plain map for the Trent River is complete there will probably be a ban on building within a specific area on the river's east and west banks.

Work on the map has not begun and is expected to be in the hands of the town and the Lower Trent Region Conservation authority within two months.

Currently, both banks are covered by an informal official plan designation that acts only as a guide to town council for policy decisions for development along the river.

The $8,000 study by a private consultant will define areas along the river that are subject to flooding. Trenton is paying about $1,600 as its share of mapping costs, while the major portion is covered by Queen's Park.

Its completion will allow the planning board to proceed with a draft for an amendment to Trenton's official plan, now laden with virtually a total prohibition on development along the river.

Ambiguity over flood plain widths has prompted one local industry, Domtar Packaging Ltd., to complain that possible development plans have been held up.

Domtar manager Frank MacKenzie said last December his company was being held at a standstill on plant expansion because of fears over infringement on land eventually to be designated in the official plans as high hazard land, and therefore closed to development.

Company administration supervisor Art Currie said Thursday plant expansion plans have been shelved temporarily since the need to expand may have been ended by a new process the company has developed.

Authority Plans Attack On Tent Caterpillars

PICTON — Students working with the Prince Edward Region Conservation Authority through the summer Experience '75 today attacked a large infestation of tent caterpillars at Macaulay Mountain with sprays.

Richard Hendry, assistant agricultural representative with the offices of the Ontario ministry of agriculture and food here, says many calls concerning caterpillar infestations have been received.

He notes some of the insects are tent caterpillars but others are a species that have not yet been identified by the agricultural office.

He observes the commercial spray Sevin is recommended as one of the cheapest and easiest methods of coping with the caterpillars but adds hand sprayers are highly ineffective on 40 or 50 foot trees.

Mr. Hendry says the caterpillars will move on from the trees in their life cycle in any event.

Tents to Fold

Tent caterpillars have infested trees and bushes at the Prince Edward Region Conservation Authority's Macaulay Mountain site but tents are about to fold as student workers prepare to spray the cocoons. A senior supervisor with Experience '75, David Matthies scouts out blighted shrubbery for co-workers.

Hay Crop Threatened By Weevil Outbreak

PICTON — Hot, dry weather in Prince Edward County this spring has fostered the Alfalfa weevil "in fantastic numbers" says Richard Hendry assistant agricultural representative at the ministry of agriculture and food offices here.

Mr. Hendry commented visits to numerous county farm fields recently show the weevil is "very plentiful" this year.

He said the agricultural office is encouraging farmers in the usual predecessors of early cutting or spraying to control the weevil.

The early cut is described as the most feasible and economical way to prevent crop loss.

Farmers are advised to spray only if they find the weevil is "getting ahead of them" noted Mr Hendry.

The sprays used are expensive and a few are hazardous. Since it is impossible for all fields to be cut at once it is likely, however, that sprays will be used by some farmers.

Mr. Hendry said the 1975 hay crop in Prince Edward will vary because of dry spring weather conditions.

He observed many farmers will cut hay next week while others have cut already.

It's difficult to say now but most fields seem fairly short," he remarked.

"The yield is likely to be reduced."

Mr. Hendry said there have been "spotty" rains in the county this spring and added that a dry May usually indicates a tighter hay crop.

In Prince Edward approximately 40,000 acres of hay is grown annually.

Saudi Arabia to Spend Oil Billions on Industry, Education, Water and Hydro

By JOHN D. HARBRON

Foreign Affairs Analyst

Thomson News Service

Surely the mixture of prudent performance by those new nations with their fabulous revenues from oil, has to be a boon to those nations facing new financial resources?

Having just spent the council of ministers of Saudi Arabia approved their second Five Year Plan to cost about $140 billion.

If the major elements envisaged go through, Saudi Arabia will become the conservative desert kingdom, will enter the 20th century.

The Saudi Five Year Plan, to be carried out over the period of no less than half a million outside technicians, includes 200,000 housing units, 1,000 miles of power transmission and about 3,000 miles of new highways.

Other items include improvement of water supplies in a very arid nation, expansion of port facilities, many of the new equipment and a huge educational program to cope with 1 million high school students.

And, of course, there will be the inevitable massive investment in the heavy industries which will allow the emerging countries using their own or someone else's funds can really.

The Saudi amount to be involved is staggering by the standards of the developing nations or of Five Year Plans in nations much less well-endowed with commodity earnings as the Saudis.

The Cuban Five Year Plan over the same period will use an estimated $12 billion and the several Venezuelan extensive investments in short term markets comes to a modest $1.5 billion by comparison.

At the same time oil-rich Venezuela also has between 8 and $10 billions in oil revenues over and above tax earnings with which to make long overdue social democratic gains to every Venezuelan.

The Venezuelan situation is perhaps typical of the oil nations, many promises, extravagant, passionate speeches by national leaders, but large delays in getting the oil earnings filtering down to the rank-and-file.

The youngish new governor of the Venezuelan Bank, in which sits affluent and indifferent Caracas, the nation's capital, vowed that city's still large slums and is worried about how a clumsy, lazy bureaucracy can distribute Venezuela's great wealth to the chronically poor.

None of the major oil-exporting nations, including they themselves, can claim delays are due to inadequate planning staff. At the level of economic expertise, the Arab, African and Latin American oil-producing nations appear to have a plethora of economists.

The alumni meetings of Princeton, Yale and University of California's economics department grads of the last 35 years would include large numbers of Arab ex-students now in senior positions. If they chose to attend them.

What the developing countries who are members of OPEC must develop, is a will to massive change.

Many of them are severely restricted by intensely conservative institutions and traditions which are going to interfere with forced-draft, modernization schemes.

One wonders how the super-ambitious Shah of Iran who runs a tough police state, will complete his much-touted social and educational reforms when he has ordered 1,000 British heavy tanks at a cost in excess of $1 billion for all this prestige hardware.

At this point it would seem the developing countries who are major oil producers, replace put their own backward and disorderly house in order instead of constantly criticizing the greedy industrial nations.

They have forced the latter to retreat by their long oil price rise of dollars, deutschmarks and yen. Can they put them to work properly?

A Christian Society?

A letter on this page from a Belleville minister touches on some of the ills of our society.

Vandalism for one thing is a problem, by suggestion beyond the reach either of parents or of the church.

To the old vulgarity of conduct and of language, of ordinary day-to-day conversation,

Meat, Milkshakes Under Scrutiny

Nothing in life should be taken at face-value.

It's a maxim that has singular relevance to the revelations about distribution of bad, and even diseased, meat in Quebec and possibly parts of Ontario, as well as to information on high bacteria count in milk shakes at a variety of chain outlets.

What is to be done about this?

Clearly, the process of inspection and on-the-spot maintenance of hygienic standards at food outlets and places of distribution must be stepped up.

While they are at it, this might be a good time to introduce general smoking bans in food outlets, this to include both staff and public.

It's a serious matter. In addition to routine inspections and stricter standards by food outlets and distributors, the Ministry of Health will have to be in a position to allay public fears. In other words, it is going to have to make follow-up inspections.

The task is a heavy one though and it may be that the job could be done best at the community level. The milkshake inspections were done by the Consumers Association of Canada, and in doing so they have rendered a valuable service. Similarly with meat, inspection at source must be maintained, in the interests of everyone.

Viewpoint

Montreal Gazette

It is vital that the government work with — not against — unionism in adapting and implementing the recommendations of the Cliche commission. The punitive tone of some of Premier Bourassa's remarks is inappropriate and counter-productive, given the Cliche commission found that the majority of workers desired democratic unionism.

handed down from generation to generation, has been added an increased loosening of the bonds of morality and civilized conduct.

With such an assault on moral standards, and with continuing lobbying by a variety of interests against the abortion laws, there is the threat of a complete decline into hedonism and depravity.

The church itself has been under fire for its involvement in politics, and for embracing the tenets of humanism at the expense of the teachings of Christ. Yet it is still looked upon as a bastion of Christian and moral conduct.

Possibly it could be doing more in this line, reaching out more to people, and the young especially, its ministers speaking out more to people in their homes. A concerted effort perhaps by the ministerial association to put across what the Archbishop of Canterbury, during the coronation of Queen Elizabeth, said of the scriptures: "Here is wisdom, this is the Royal law, these are the lively oracles of God."

Mentioned on occasions here has been the admirable religious programming on television at Christmas, as well as record of religious music so widely available, from Johnny Cash's Gospel Story to Tennessee Ernie Ford and Anita Bryant. Also available now is a record series by actor Leif Erickson presenting the various Bible stories. These are all evidence of a more widespread Christian witness than might be supposed in these somewhat godless times.

There is a need though to let it all come together, through the established Church, a return to public morality, and an end to public posturing such as that by the anti-abortion law lobby that seeks a return to the days of Sodom and Gomorrah.

Helped Communists—He Goes Free

The Globe and Mail

Nothing melts the flinty heart of the Department of National Revenue more readily than a declaration by a taxpayer that he has made a contribution to a political party. Federal eyes mist over at the very thought of such selflessness and the amount involved is given a very handsome degree of deductibility.

Some might say that official recognition of this as a charitable donation to the best of all possible charities is slightly excessive — but it really can't hold a candle to the foolness with which it is regarded in modern Portugal.

Proof of this is to be found in a report from Lisbon about a former bank clerk, tried on a charge of embezzling more than 13 million escudos ($460,000). He was found not guilty of defrauding the Banco Totta Alliance on the grounds that the money had been used to finance a Communist-controlled secret revolutionary army.

Depositors at the Banco Totta Alliance will be happy to know that the interest of the bank clerk days are gone forever. The day of the collective withdrawal is here.

'Humanize the Work Place' Urges State Secretary At Consumer Discussion

By VINCENT EGAN

Business and Consumer Affairs Analyst

Thomson News Service

It doesn't take a Marshall McLuhan to perceive that consumers are bridging a whole new set of expectations to the market-place today.

And yet business often seems slow to recognize the big changes taking place in consumer preferences.

But when some 400 business executives got together for a one-day conference on corporate planning the other day in Toronto, the result was a clamor questioning on just how keep those changes are going.

Today's young adult consumers reflect in every way the vestiges of youthful belligerence and rejection of artificiality, Paul Pare, president of Imasco Ltd. told the gathering organized by the Conference Board in Canada.

"They are for more pragmatic and much less prone to conspicuous consumption," Mr. Pare noted.

"Keeping up with their peers, in a materialistic way, is unnecessary and in fact is avoided in order to be individualistic.

"Their lifestyles are a reversal of trends. For them, today is the relevant period.

What does this change imply for business?

At the very least, it means that functionalism is the most important factor in a product and that inner packaging alone is no longer acceptable.

"It means increasingly demanding—a reassessment of product lines, increased quality and consistency of quality," Mr. Pare said.

He attributes the more practical approach of today's consumers to a number of factors, these:

—Sharply increased foreign travel, which has given a greater self-confidence, broaded outlook, new tastes and tolerance of change, to thousands of Canadians.

—The much greater financial security made possible by so-called blue-collar workers. "He is usually protected through wage contracts, against escalating living costs," said Mr. Pare.

—The inflationary squeeze on retired and pensioned people. Because of their inadequate incomes, their needs are becoming "highly value-oriented," while their wants for outpace their purchasing power.

In the foreseable future, consumerism will continue to become more boldly — "humanize the work place"—as business and government, for example, or enlarge jobs to give individuals and groups the responsibility for several operations.

He had another worthwhile suggestion. It could be acted upon by the public service as well as private employers: Provide more job opportunities for people with physical or other mental disadvantages, even if it means changing established personnel practices, the work place or work processes.

That is the kind of "public relations" that would have a positive impact on today's more critical consumer.

Youth and the Church Today

Editor,
The Intelligencer:

I like "Belleville, the friendly city". But I wish more people were friendly towards youth. Just how many children do not go to Sunday School and how how parents go to Church on Sunday morning.

Yet the rink is crowded for hockey practice and the streets are filled with children, while parents sleep in the morning after the effects of the weekend. It makes me question the priorities of our parents and the leaders of our youth. No wonder it is hard for so many homes! But shouldn't love of God and love of man go hand in hand?

In Belleville were really friendly towards its children no child would be left to wander between being in Sunday School or being on the team. Shades of Communist eastern Europe, "Let the children come to me" opposed to Christian Conservatism.

I wish Belleville were really friendly to God! Before leaving Belleville my synagogue wall! People rarely know how to hurt people. Shades of the "week of broken glass" by Hitler's storm troops in Germany in 1933.

We have a badly broken window that symbolizes Christ, the light of the world, and the eternal struggle of good against evil. It was not done by brown shirts, but by unemployed bootboys, who reared up to a text, but by parents and children.

Perhaps it's time we learned that the friendship of man can only come from God, who cultivate the friendship of God.

Crossing Guards Praised

Editor,
The Intelligencer:

Regarding two items in your newspaper of May 27 under the headings of "Pay Boost Approved" and "Guards Ask Pay Increase" I do not mind too much when Trenton Council approved a 10 per cent pay raise but when you suggested the crossing guards petition for an 18 raise to be tabled, that was too much for even me.

Listen to them, we have brought up three children from Grade 1 to Grade 8 and never we had the crossing guards. I feel in lieu of my children too also the neighbors children to school and bring them home every chance I get, due to the busy roads.

It used to bother me when I would see some of them take a chance, and try to beat the cars across the road. Then came the crossing guards. What a different and relaxed feeling I had, knowing that my children would be taken across the busy roads safely. You can't put money against a human life. I am a taxpayer and I pay my money I am 100 per cent with the crossing guards.

Alberta MP Takes a Shot at the Trudeau 'Power Group'

By RICHARD JACKSON

OTTAWA — Keep an eye on Charles Joseph Clark, 30-year-old, tousle-haired, Conservative MP for the Alberta riding of Rocky Mountain.

He just might be a candidate for time enough for his party's leadership.

But he won't get it because he is still a little young, even by this age of youth, maybe "a bit too small" "liberally progressive for some party servatives, and lacks a power base.

Give him, though, a couple more Parliament, and a few more years in the Commons to mellow and the next time the party is looking for a leader, it could find him ready, willing and able.

Joe Clark has been in the Commons only three years, but he has been at it a decade in Conservative politics, working both at the constituency level in the Legislature and Ottawa, and for and with its executives.

He has been running plenty of public exposure, both in the House and on the hustings, and has displayed some of the Opposition's better parliamentary skills in sniping at the Government.

Prime Minister Trudeau has been his prime target.

And the Trudeau Government has made a deadly mistake of the strongly-turned phrase.

He was speaking the other day of the Trudeau Power Elite, one of love, since the last election, is less than a year it has transformed Ottawa and the Government into something almost sinister as both "unrepresentative and inaccessible." Overnight, says Joe Clark, what supposed had been Pierre Trudeau's vaunted "participatory ceoncyion," became "participatory elite."

The fear of firing a Cabinet Minister sacked four ministers — hung over cabinet like a black cloud, leaving Prime Minister Turner its only member with any vestige of independence or influence.

Turner used his power to the political fact that among the Trudeau cabinet he is the only member not in debt for his present prominence and future potential to the Prime Minister.

The opposite side of the cabinet firing coin is appointment to the ministry, and skilfully using both this carrot to entice the hesitant and the stick to intimidate the subject. Pierre Trudeau has both jumping through hoops.

In his appointments to his personal "power elite," relates Joe Clark, astutely if sometimes undemocratically, the Prime Minister has created the system with the buddy system.

A typical was the appointment to Privy Council Office, where he was one of the chosen "buddies." "It is Trudeau as Agriculture deputy — "He is not ... soft of man to get mauzer on his shoes and may not know a Hereford from a Rhode Island Red, but otherwise the credentials for Agriculture are impeccable," cracks Joe Clark, "he cultivated favor in the Prime Minister's office."

Appointment to High Places is governed by "personal loyalty to Pierre Trudeau," he says — "Power Group" — beyond the control or even influence of cabinet and Parliament — "comes out cast in the image of the Prime Minister..."

The very "unrepresentative" of the "Trudeau Elite," warns Joe Clark, is dangerous to the country, for it thinks only as the Prime Minister thinks, deriving its power not from loyalty to the public interest, the government interest, or the party, but to the PM.

Chamber Wins Award

BANCROFT — The Bancroft and District Chamber of Commerce as well as the Belleville Chamber of Commerce were two of six such groups honoured by the Ontario Chamber of Commerce at the recent annual convention held in Niagara Falls.

The Bancroft given in recognition of the Chamber's efforts to establish improved broadcasting in the north Hastings community.

Bancroft president Doug Meeks and Community Radio Committee member David Whitlaw accepted the award.

The initial impetus for a North Hastings Radio Committee came from a broadcast committee of the chamber which was headed by George Robinson.

The project came to being 18 months later when CJNR went on the air on March 1 1975.

The Belleville award was accepted by president George Thomson. It was won for the organization, operation and philosophy of the Belleville Chamber's "Manufacturers Week".

Prince Rupert Rescue Volunteer Search Unit

PRINCE RUPERT, B.C. (CP) — For Captain Martin Holt, the sinking of the Rivtow Rogue last February near this northwestern British Columbia city, claiming the lives of six of his fellow mariners, meant the time had come for action.

Over a period of years Captain Holt and his employers, Rivtow Straits Ltd., in company with other towboat owners, fishermen, merchant seamen and pleasu-boat operators, had been pressing the federal government for a search and rescue base in Prince Rupert.

The death toll at sea in this area averages 10 to 15 annually.

Pleasure boats don't often venture out of the harbor unless the weather forecast is good. Hecate Straits and the stormy seas along the coastline militate against taking too many chances with light craft.

But the Rivtow men are in the towboat business and although their equipment is about as sophisticated and reliable as any along the coast, they do get into trouble.

Rivtow Rogue was on a routine trip from Masset on the Queen Charlotte Islands to Prince Rupert with a partially loaded barge in tow when disaster struck. Before anyone could get close enough to help, the 86-foot, steel-hulled boat was resting on the bottom.

Captain Holt participated in attempts to locate the bodies of the six crew members. Only three were found.

As chairman of the Prince Rupert Chamber of Commerce port and marine committee, Captain Holt acted, like west to Ketchikan, Alaska. For five years he had been hearing reports of a volunteer rescue squad operating out of that port.

After four trips to Ketchikan, in company with other members of the committee and concerned people from the marine industry, he had all the facts and figures.

Working with a group of friends, Captain Holt gathered data and local volunteers to get more information and was able to see that this city offered every opportunity to provide a rescue capability of its own.

He had help from provincial emergency program staff, municipal emergency measures officials, an organized land search and rescue group and volunteer air search and rescue personnel.

He found long-owned supplies of medical and first aid equipment, radio units and a corps of volunteers to adapt this material to search and rescue work.

Captain Holt enlisted assistance of a pressurt group called Air Sea Rescue Action Committee (ASRAC) to continue the fight for a federal rescue base and took his case to the public.

He became the first president of the board of directors of Prince Rupert Rescue 15, a volunteer organization capable of organizing a combined air-land-sea search and rescue operation within 10 minutes of a distress call.

It has medical and paramedical people on standby, police and firemen and equipment on immediate call, the Canadian Coast Guard, fishing boats, logs, missionary boats, the National Harbors Board pilot boat, ministry of transport helicopter and private helicopters, civilian aircraft, Victoria-based Canadian Forces ships, forces' search and rescue teams from Comox, B.C., ground searchers, trained mountain rescue teams, divers and communications experts.

Major Undertaking

John Howe of RR 5, Trenton has a major undertaking on his hands when he decided to restore this antique tractor a few years ago. Built somewhere between 1921 and 1927, the tractor has been put into running order by Mr. Howe and it was on display for the public during a recent engine exhibit at the Hastings County Museum.

Detectives Seek Killer's Reasons

BRAMPTON, Ont. (CP) — A team of 20 detectives was probing motives behind the rampage by a 16-year-old Grade 11 student here Friday.

Michael Slobodian took two rifles to Centennial secondary school Wednesday morning after leaving a note saying he was going to "eliminate people," then killed Margaret Wright, 36, his English teacher, and classmate John Singer, 17.

Thirteen other students were injured, nine seriously in the shooting before Slobodian turned a high-powered rifle on himself and committed suicide.

Ernie Nicholls, 19, shot in the abdomen, remains in serious condition. Seven of the other seriously wounded were reported in stable condition. One other student has been released from hospital.

Four other students were treated for minor injuries and released Wednesday.

Flags were at half-mast, students wore black armbands and most sports activities were cancelled at the school Thursday.

As students gathered in quiet groups near the closed school, police interviewed anyone they thought might have an idea as to why the quiet boy who loved biology but hated his English classes, became a killer.

Police said there is no evidence to indicate Michael took drugs. They hope someone might give them an indication of what caused him to pack a .444-calibre rifle and a .22-calibre rifle into his junior class and head off to the school.

"We're trying to get all the pieces together to come to some determination of why this happened," said William Taggart, deputy chief of Peel regional police.

He said an examination of school records revealed nothing to indicate Slobodian had undergone any psychiatric counselling.

In the note, found by the youth's father shortly after the shooting, Slobodian said two of the persons he planned to eliminate were Mrs. Wright and Ross Brownie, a physics teacher.

Mrs. Wright had called the Slobodian home Wednesday morning to complain that Michael had skipped his English class. After his teacher told him about the call, he took a rubber case and walked out of his home.

Mr. Brownie said all students should be psychologically tested.

Asked if this would be acceptable to students, teachers and parents, he said:

"It had better be acceptable for I'm not going to sit here and accept that somebody can shoot."

He described Slobodian as

New York Budget Cut

NEW YORK (AP) — Mayor Abraham Beame, criticizing Republican lawmakers and Wall Street bankers, announced a revised 311.89-billion budget Thursday that he says will cut 21,000 employees from the city payroll by June 30.

In addition to the 1200 dismissals Beame previously ordered, the new 1975-76 "crisis-level" budget calls for layoffs of an additional 27,215 city workers. One out of every five policemen and one of every five firemen will be fired. Workers in education, health, transportation, housing, parks and municipal government are also marked for dismissal.

Beame said the budget will mean:

IRON BRIDGE, Ont. (CP) — Part of the southern section of the Great Canadian Wagon Train apparently has disbanded in this town 70 miles east of Sault Ste. Marie and 3,700 miles short of the final watering hole at High Level, Alta.

Jim Montgomery, who lives near where the wagon train is camped, said Thursday "the wagon train is not leaving."

Consumer, Federal Government Have Cut Shares of Spending

OTTAWA (CP) — The consumer share of GNP was 57.26 cents of every $100 paid out last year, with 60.30 in 1964.

By contrast, the federal government spent directly $5.76 of every $100 last year, down from the $6.55 of 30 years ago.

All levels of government spent directly $22.40 of every $100 compared with $18.30 in 1964.

These Statistics Canada figures shed some light—but only some—on spending patterns at a time when governments are under attack as being main culprits in fuelling inflation through heavy outlays.

The statistical trend is that consumers are able to spend less because governments are spending more money for them. A major factor is spending by the provinces on medical care and hospitalization.

Industry Minister Alastair Gillespie in a recent speech in Vancouver took issue with the contention that governments account for about 40 per cent of all national expenditures.

Public demand for more and better services has expanded government spending, Mr. Gillespie said.

"The person who complains that government spending is high is the same person who will also complain that he gets just one garbage collection a week," the minister said. "He wants two."

Why the big gap between the $22.40 per $100 spent directly by all governments last year and the figure of about $40 per $100 claimed by critics of government spending?

The answer lies in the word directly.

The federal government spends directly on such things as defence, a variety of public works projects from wharfs and warehouses to bridges and roads, public service salaries, prisons and the machinery for collecting taxes.

But indirectly, it does much more by collecting revenues and passing them on to others as family allowance payments, grants to industry, unemployment payments. A total of $40 spends.

Hence the figure of government responsibility is about $40 of every $100 spent last year.

The business community is the biggest element in national spending behind the consumer. Business spending last year the Statistics Canada figures say, was accounted for $20.10 per $100 compared with $18.70 in 1964.

Breakup of the expenditures of the three groups does not total 100 per cent because of changes in inventories of unsold goods.

The increase in spending on medical care and hospital payments is a factor in this. In a dramatic increase in the direct spending by provinces.

Last year, the provinces spent directly $6.76 out of every $100. Twenty years ago it was $2.30 out of every $100 while 10 years ago it was $4.39 and five years ago $5.

Governments at all levels collected almost $70 billion last year and spent directly $22.6 billion. The federal government collected more than $20 billion but spent directly only $5.3 billion.

Money governments distribute to others to spend are called transfer payments. A total of $8.7 billion last year went from the federal government for unemployment insurance benefits, contributions for Yeed grants, old age pensions and family allowances.

The federal government gave $2.4 billion to provinces last year. The provinces give money to people, groups and companies and both the provinces and federal government give money to municipalities.

Unregistered Plane Crashes With Cargo of Marijuana

ROCKWOOD, Tenn. (AP) — An unregistered cargo plane carrying about 800 pounds of marijuana that crashed here Thursday killing two persons was traveling an established drug smuggling route, officials indicate.

The plane crashed on Thursday and burned at the municipal airport here while taking off.

Morgan County Sheriff Cecil Byrge said two bodies were recovered from the wreckage along with 800 pounds of marijuana.

He said a billfold and other papers recovered from the wreckage indicated the victims were men from Gainesville, Fla. A Knoxville medical examiner said positive identifications might take two days.

Byrge tentatively identified the victims as Jennings Caney Brown Jr. and Charles McAnally.

The airplane was a Lockheed Lodestar of Second World War vintage that customs officials in Florida say is similar to ones often used by drug smugglers. It has a large cargo capacity and long flight range.

They said three similar airplanes smuggling drugs into the country have crashed in recent months in Florida.

Gasoline Rationing Blueprint is Prepared

WASHINGTON (AP) — The plan nearly everyone says they hope never gets used, the government blueprint for gasoline rationing, is on Federal Energy Administrator Frank Zarb's desk.

The 12-volume Gasoline Short-ages Contingency Plan calls for giving every licensed driver coupons for an equal amount of fuel regardless of where he lives or how far he drives to work.

The government committee that prepared the plan says it could be fully operational within 90 days of a decision to proceed, would cost $1 billion a year and require 80,000 employees to administer.

Drivers would receive ration coupons which they would be free to sell to the highest bidder.

PLO Visit Is Opposed By Davis

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario would consider it "an affront and a provocation" if members of international terrorist groups such as the Palestinian Liberation Organization (PLO) were allowed to attend a United Nations conference here, Premier William Davis has said.

A May 9 letter from the premier to Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau was read to the legislature Thursday by Attorney-General John Clement. The premier was absent.

There have been reports that members of the PLO may attempt to attend the fifth UN congress on prevention of crime, scheduled for September.

Mr. Clement also tabled a letter from Claude Desjardins, Mr. Trudeau's correspondence secretary, saying the letter was being brought to the prime minister's attention.

In his letter, Mr. Davis said he understood the province would not know the intent of the groups until the end of May.

"However, if they do seek to attend, I would appreciate being advised of the measures which your government proposes to take," the letter said.

Canada Seen as Bothered By Billion Dollar Hangover

VANCOUVER (CP) — Canada has a billion-dollar hangover.

That's what some experts say about the annual losses in productivity of alcoholic workers and it doesn't include the costs of social agencies.

"The alcoholic leads a double life, trying to conceal the effects of alcoholism until the point of no concealment is reached," says the employer is fired.

"Alcoholism still isn't understood as an illness," said Allan Clements, co-ordinator for the Unemployment Insurance Commission's Pacific Region, employee counselling program.

"Unfortunately, the general public takes a moral view of alcoholism. There is a stigma attached to the illness itself."

Mr. Clements said the social stigma prevents industry from setting programs to battle the increasing incidence of alcoholism.

The alcoholic is a bad news statistic. He is absent about three times more often than other workers, he is twice as likely to have an accident on the job and 16 times as likely off work; he has taken up to 15 years off his life span and is prey to alcohol-related complications ranging from liver infections to suicide.

"By the time a person's alcoholism is showing up on the job, you may be sure there has already been trouble in the family and social situations," said Mr. Clements. "So, these first signs on the job are indications of how serious the drinking problem has become."

He said Canadian Celluloid Co. Ltd. estimated that alcoholism among its 1,000 employees at Prince Rupert, B.C., cost $187,500 in 1972, including overtime, retraining and sick benefits.

Mr. Clements said part of the problem is lack of a circuit program to deal with industrial alcoholism. He's job is to notify UIC branch heads on availability of a program for identifying and rehabilitating alcoholics.

Regional branch heads and union representatives meet with Mr. Clements and representatives of rehabilitative agencies such as the Alcohol Foundation of British Columbia and the department of national health and welfare.

Mr. Clements uses a multimedia approach to confronting his audience with facts, figures, slides and movies. Prior to the effect that alcoholism is a treatable disease.

He uses a short film in which a supervisor talks to an employee about his work performance—not his alcoholism. The word "alcoholism" isn't mentioned, and the supervisor sends the employee to the company doctor, saying: "If we don't get at what's bothering you, we will have to let you go."

Mr. Clements said this takes the supervisor off the hook and sends the employee to someone capable of determining whether the man is an alcoholic and can be treated for the disease.

"I suggest to supervisors that they arrange for medical help immediately after the initial interview because you have provoked a crisis in the alcoholic's life. We find that 100 per cent of employees accept this."

Mr. Clements suggested a meeting with the doctor should be a condition of continued employment. If the doctor confirmed an employee was a suitable for program provided for meetings with supervisors, union personnel, a national health and welfare person and Mr. Clements.

He said this is not gauging up on the alcoholic and cautions that an alcoholic's manipulative powers may overcomplicate a one-to-one situation.

The doctor prescribes a treatment program—in-patient care, Alcoholics Anonymous or a five-in treatment centre.

Then the employee is required to sign a letter confirming the purpose of the meeting and acknowledging that continued employment is conditional upon participation in the treatment.

Mr. Clements, a recovered alcoholic with 14 years of sobriety behind him, is available at this and subsequent stages for counselling.

After one year the employee's progress is reviewed and the letter rescinded or the treatment period extended.

Volunteers Essential To Nursery's Program

Miriam Bishop, co-ordinator of the pre-school programs for Sagebrush Nursery in Belleville area, spoke to the members of Alpha Delta Kappa sorority Wednesday night about the volunteer work that has brought about the First Adventure child development centre.

Meeting after dinner at Mother's restaurant near Madoc, the guest speaker, Mrs. Bishop describe the origin of the nursery programs in the city.

More than ten years ago, a meeting was held at Bridge Street United Church in conjunction with senior classes for low-income mothers, she said. Soon a number of other nurseries were initiated at schools and at Loyalist College, and eventually the First Adventure nursery for multi-handicapped pre-schoolers was established, as well as one for emotionally-troubled children.

The nursery programs have grown into the child development centre currently being renovated and enlarged for its autumn opening. It will be the first integrated nursery of its kind in the country, Mrs. Bishop said, innovative in its plans for housing all the present nursery services under one roof.

She credited the strength of the volunteer movement in the city for having it in up about the centre, which will have facilities for 88 children in its half-day program.

Mrs. Bishop answered questions from her audience about the role that the public can play in the creation of the centre. She advised the group that donations are needed, since budget cuts have forced the setting aside of features such as playground plans for the time being. She recommended that if groups wanted to become involved in one of the centre's ongoing projects, they could assist with the library collection, playground equipment or audio-visual aids.

There is also a constant need for volunteers, she said, especially those with teaching experience, such as the Alpha Delta Kappa members who are all involved in education.

Miriam Bishop, talking about First Adventure.

The one-to-one relationship necessary to the type of intensive teaching done in the nursery requires a large number of helpers, she explained. Training will be given new volunteers under the supervision of Betty Exsilby, the Director of the Early Childhood Education course at Loyalist College.

Mrs. Bishop also expressed her hopes for increased follow-up work with the children who "graduate" from the nursery program and enter the public school system. It is in this area—the primary class teachers can be of invaluable assistance to the First Adventure integrated approach, she said.

Hastings Museum Honors Volunteers

By ROBIN CHASE

Historical artifacts and Glanmore House which houses them mean little if they are merely there without the value of guiding and interpretation, says Marion Lewis, curator of the Hastings County Museum.

And that's where the volunteer guides come in.

The museum held a party to honor the work of its guides Thursday at Glanmore House at 257 East Bridge St.

Mr. Lewis said the volunteers "you make all the difference in life. You make things real."

In the scheme of museum operations, "volunteers are the most essential," he commented.

Marta Wishart, the head volunteer guide, said there are 25 volunteer guides working this year in different capacities. Their main duty is to act as guides or interpreters for the museum, she said.

They also act as school programs, research display materials and do general research in the archives, she added.

Mrs. Wishart remarked, "we're hoping to use them more extensively year."

She explained the guides have training programs and are taken to various historical locations through out the Quinte area.

New programs will be on tap for the volunteer guides in the autumn, Mrs. Wishart said. The museum has three girls working under a grant during the summer months to set up new projects.

Among the volunteers are teenage guides supplied by Moira Secondary School, she noted. They are allowed by the school to leave classes to gain experiences in guiding.

Social Notes

ELIZABETH BELLSTEDT daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Friedel Bellstedt recently graduated from Queen University with an Honor Bachelor Degree in German with First Class Honors. Elizabeth will be attending McArthur College in the fall. She is a graduate of Moira Secondary School.

KATHRYN ELEANOR SIMMONS, B.A. (Hons.) Queen's received the degree of Bachelor of Laws at the recent convocation at Queen's University, Kingston. Miss Simmons will article with the firm of Osler, Hoskin and Harcourt, Toronto. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Simmons, Trenton.

Guiding Young

Dorothy Walsh of Belleville (right) lends some of her two-year experience in guiding and interpreting at Hastings County Museum to Chris Hansen, a Moira Secondary School student, who has been with the museum for about six months. They were among volunteer guides who were honored by museum officials on Thursday.

Norah Holley-Hime, Artist

How does a mother of seven children find time in her home life to paint landscapes and portraits?

"Very often I get up at one in the morning after everybody else is down and asleep, and paint through till dawn, it's on the third time then, there are no demands on me," says Norah Holley-Hime, professional artist who lives with her family outside Bloomfield.

"You learn to play your cards as they come," she says, and goes on to explain that she simply makes adjustments in her lifestyle to fit her running smoothly. Often, when she paints during the day, she enlists her four-year-old daughters, Rosa and Rose, with paper and crayons so that they can draw along with her.

"I started painting early in my childhood," she says, "encouraged by father who was an artist, and by family friends who were also painters. It has always been part of my life," she says.

Mrs. Holley-Hime, who studied art at Western Technical School in Toronto where she grew up, lived in Tweed for several years before travelling to Turkey in 1969 for a year's study. On her return, the family settled in their present country home.

"I taught painting in Madoc for years at night school," says Mrs. Holley-Hime.

But the trouble with winter night classes is that the time and the weather keeps us indoors.

"I taught outdoor classes last summer in Bancroft, and that was just great. You have to move fast when you're painting outside, and you can't fuss and nit-pick and overwork the way you might inside. The result is usually more free and genuine, maybe because you're really in contact with your subject."

Norah Holley-Hime prefers working with classes of no more than 10 students so that she can establish a one-to-one relationship with each painter. She intends to offer lessons in 13-hour "packages" this summer for beginners and skilled artists alike, with no age limit for participants.

"The idea will be to move around the area to different locations and paint together," she says.

"What easier way to get away from the humdrum than going out to sketch and paint for an afternoon?"

Ann Landers

Alcohol Loosens Inhibitions

Dear Ann Landers: Me wife is Ann Landers! Never. But here I am. I don't know what I just did. I'm not sure but maybe I'll feel better. The problem is my wife. Everyone else does. —Hesitant Hesitant: Read on. Confess. Confession is good for the soul. The reason I don't flush her completely is because once in a while she does me a big favor. Usually in jail, when we return from a party and she's had more than her share of booze. Then I'd better be ready or I would never hear the end of it.

Her usual routine goes like this: After supper, in the middle of a TV program, she gets up and says, "I'm tired of this stuff. I'm bored. What's on your coat, dear? Bother me. On weekends her best companion is your mother. May drop in." (If the kids are down home from the movies; (2) the insurance man, reporting for millions, is coming to collect; (3) I just had my hair done.

I'm not the type to run around, but I don't know WHAT type I'll be in five years. (I'm not sure I'll live that long.) Guys who are sitting around drying up. If there are enough trusts left, maybe my son won't get looking for tricks.—Lostwed

Dear Hell: Your letter contains an interesting clue. It could mean your wife resents your success. She has inhibitions about her husband, undoubtedly go back to her early childhood. I suggest a joint counseling. Can't hurt. Might help.

Dear Ann Landers: I must commend you for your crude reply to "Fib Widow." She wrote that her husband died suddenly, leaving her with several children to raise, and no insurance. She did be believed it made better sense to pet money for her children than to would draw interest rather than pay it out in insurance premiums. The woman was very bitter when she learned the bank balance was $5,000. If he had carried life insurance she would have collected over $100,000.

You answered: "Put aside your resentment and consider, at least, the man ignored." What a nasty thing to say to a man who is dead. He can't defend himself. And YOU are his spokesman! You owe every widow in the world an apology.—Appalled

Dear Appalled: The man was ignorant. That's what I said and that's what I meant. He's dead, but his widow is alive.

She has her little kids to raise and very little money. Had he been better, he would have carried life insurance.

Dear Ann Landers: The letter from "The Life of the Party" prompted me to write my first letter to a newspaper.

Your advice was exactly right. I know, because I was once "The Life of the Party." Willing to be the butt of the joke in exchange for attention. I took a shaky marriage to get into therapy. When I recovered, I was able to achieve a sense of personal worth I had never known before.

When I tell friends that my approach to life is the result of counselling, I get looks like this: "Why would anyone go jolly and outgoing need therapy? Why ask, if they only knew!

Now my friends call ME. I don't chase them. I can be in a group and listen instead of trying to monopolize every conversation and begging the spotlight. Sign me—Showing Off No More And Enjoying Myself Less

Dear Frisky: Less IS more. I doff my bonnet to you.

Good Diet Available To the Average Person

TORONTO (CP) — Dr. Elizabeth Chant Robertson says the average person not on welfare can have a nutritious daily diet if the food is processed properly.

Dr. Robertson, consultant and research associate at the Provincial for Sick Children, has compiled a readable guide to food and nutrition—The Right Connection.

She said in an interview she hopes the book will become a teaching and reference work in Canadian schools as well as a guide to adults.

Dr. Robertson is anxious to reach adolescents, "especially girls who have adopted such poor eating habits."

"They cut out the wrong things to hold down their weight. Boys do better because they eat such quantities of everything they manage to get nutrients."

Dr. Robertson, who has been doing nutrition research for 45 years, has a library of statistics indicating people are eating less fruit, vegetables and milk.

She backs statements with research, much carried out in hospital laboratories.

For example, she says an ounce of orange or grape juice is a good source of vitamin C, compared favorably with cooked, fresh orange juice. But eating the fruit itself provides 30 per cent more vitamin C than juice does.

Dr. Robertson is not enthusiastic about sugar crystals fortified with vitamin C.

"This is an artificial food," she said. There is no real comparison with the real thing."

The importance of establishing good eating habits in childhood cannot be emphasized enough, Dr. Robertson said, "because they last for years, yes even for life."

Wife-selling Is Now Illegal in Brazil

RIO DE JANEIRO (Reuter) — It will be illegal to sell your wife in Brazil. Husbands are expected to come into town in Brazil later this year.

Neither will it be illegal to trust her out or gamble her away.

Jurists have been working on the new code for years to replace one in force since 1940. They have also included as crimes artificial insemination of a wife without her husband's consent and incest.

Adultery and pimping have been, and remain crimes under the new code which adds invasion of privacy, drunk driving and pollution of the environment.

Criminal law professor Nilo Batista said the inclusion of incest and the maintenance of adultery as crimes show the conservative trend of the new code.

"The inclusion of such matters as criminal offences goes against the modern trend of criminal law", he said in an interview.

The ban on selling or renting out wives comes under an article dealing with the commercial transaction in which a human being is the object. Punishment is up to three years in jail.

At present Brazilian husbands have a pretty free hand. Recently the local press reported that a husband stabbed his wife in a poker game and lost.

In another much publicized case a husband in the interior of the country rented out his wife, on a contractual basis, as opposed to pure prostitution.

Also covered by this article is the sale of a farm which includes the wife, which is a transaction, a practice frequent in central Brazil.

Adultery is investigation without the husband's consent will be punishable by up to two years' imprisonment under the new code.

Under the present penal code relations between "two consenting adults," even between father and daughter or mother and son, are not a crime.

From now on "the carnal union between children and parents and between brothers and sisters" will be punishable by up to three years' imprisonment.

Also under the influence of alcohol is at present an offence, and under the new national traffic code and as such is punishable by a fine of no more than a month's minimum legal salary. In case of an accident causing damage, injury or death the element of alcohol is not included.

Under the new code, driving under the influence of alcohol, even when no accident, injury or damage is caused, will be punishable by from three months to one year in jail.

Pollution of the environment, including lake, river and sea water, beaches and atmosphere, will bring up to three years' imprisonment. At present only polluting drinking water is a crime.

In a somewhat archaic defence of family honor the new code also changes the law on infanticide, defined as the killing of a child by its mother during or immediately after the birth.

At present this carries a sentence of up to six years' imprisonment and was originally based on the mother's post-natal psychological state.

Even a mother who kills her newborn child for financial reasons is exempted from the new code, provided she is neither an habitual nor a beyond-the-pale criminal.

Now infanticide will be restricted to a case where the motive is to conceal dishonor, that is when a woman has illicit relations unknown to her family and friends.

This means an unmarried woman in a conservative family who became pregnant and tries to conceal it will benefit from the lesser charge of infanticide if she kills her baby.

All others will face homicide charges.

Doris Clark

Don't Dwell on the Dark Side!

Dear Doris: "Sensitive" complained about her children making her and her husband feel old and useless. As a sensitive daughter-in-law I'd like to show another side.

My mother-in-law, "Oh, you've been ill. Well, I've been sicker, and believe me, when you are older you'll know." She rubs it in about how being on a fixed income, when-as she says, we can afford anything. If we send her a gift we are lucky if we ever hear that they have received it. They like to dwell on being "old."

They seem to overlook that their son works long hours, has many business pressures, or the fact that I have had to cope with major moves and raise three children along the way. Because we are younger, doesn't mean we don't get tired.

Disappointed.

Dear Disappointed: We thank our psychiatrists all our live longs. If we get habits of optimism and friendliness, if we learn not to worry about trifles, this shows in our faces and in our actions, even if we live to be 100.

But if we greet every morning as if it were black letter day and act as if we are all God's creatures, those habits will be set like steel in old age.

Part of the sorrows of some old people is their disappointment in themselves. Their routine they are going down hill and they kick against the whole idea — probably dreading it by kicking some human being. Ouch!

Confidential to Anti-of Bride-To-Be: The original shower idea was for acquaintances who might not be invited to the wedding and wanted to bring the bride a small gift. You will notice that I said small.

Recently, it seems that showers have become larger events, with guests bringing expensive gifts. This is an imposition and should be avoided especially since guests are often invited to more than one shower.

No, the bride does not need to write a thank-you note to each donor, but should thank the donors in person at the time. But a note of thanks to the hostess who put on the shower is certainly indicated.

Dear Doris: I should love to have more of the Canadian Pen Pal Club. Long I have hoped someone would start one in our own country.

I love to write and go not hear from home, visiting by pen.

Dear Pen Happy: Letters can take you to places far and near, once you get the hang of the habit. I am sending you the details about our own Canadian version of pen-pals as you will have noticed, has been set up by a particularly throughtful citizen.

Our club is for special use of the older, lonely or handicapped Canadians; folk who watch for the postman in the morning, and to get a friendly letter make their day!

(Don't just confide about Doris knows human behavior and can help. Write to her in care of this newspaper, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope for private reply.)

Weddings Rise in Canada

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada is in the middle of a marriage boom, with one of the highest marriage rates in the Western world, says John F. Peters, a sociology professor at Wilfrid Laurier University in Waterloo, Ont., who has made a study of marriage patterns. In 1973 there were more weddings per capita than ever before in the population.

This is lower than the all-time peaks of 343.8 in 1942 and 1946, but higher than the average of twenty one years recorded between 1921 and 1925.

However, marriages today are different from those of the past. Dr. Peters said the social pressure to wed is not high and the number of couples living together without marriage is increasing and becoming socially acceptable.

"Possibly marriage will be entered into more realistically, with the result that fewer will break down in the future."

The rate of marriage breakdown is rising. Before 1968, the divorce rate was about 50 per cent than 54.8 per 100,000 population, but only one year after the law was nearly doubled. By 1973, the Canadian divorce rate was up to 166.1.

Provinces Need Councils For Status of Women

OTTAWA (CP) — Individual provinces should establish agencies to improve the status of women, Dona DeSanctis, president of the Canadian Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs, said Saturday.

"Grass roots people have a lot to complain about and the provincial governments are the only ones who can help them," she said at the Ontario's Ontario annual meeting.

Establishment of provincial bodies would make it easier for women to present briefs and offer advice on housing, health, education, job opportunities and day care, she said.

The federal government has established an advisory council on the status of women but its similar agencies have been set up in most provinces.

Strikers Take Injunction to Supreme Court, Ruling Reserved

By BARRY MULHALL
Staff Reporter

Hastings County's first labor dispute has gone before the Ontario Supreme Court.

A Supreme court justice reserved ruling Thursday on an appeal against an injection prohibiting strikers from picketing a road-contracted road project.

The injunction was sought earlier this month by Tullman Construction Co. Ltd. and in turn for reconstruction work on Hastings County Road 14 between concessions of Thurlow Township.

The contractor asked to have the injunction granted by county road workers who struck for higher pay May 21.

The injunction was granted by County Judge Russell Hunter and later appealed by the strikers who are members of Local 793, International Union of Operating Engineers, Ontario Provincial Council and also members of the same union, said contractor William Tulman. He said his company have a contract that stipulates there will be no strikes or walkouts on the project.

Ben Hurley, lawyer for Tullman, said the legal arguments for both sides will be heard by Madame Justice Mahel VanCamp who got on the case for a ruling.

About 30 road workers are involved in the dispute, now entering its fourth week.

Besides wage hikes and better overtime schedules they also are attempting to achieve average pay parity with municipal workers on similar jobs in the Belleville — Quinte area region.

The party bid has boosted a wage demand that, in effect, amounts to $1.75.

Carl Bateman, county administrator, said today there had been no moves toward resolving the dispute as far as he knew.

Meanwhile, union steward John Boyle charged today "the county has employed non-union strike breakers" to take over using jobs.

They're trying to freeze us out," said Mr. Boyle.

Carl Bateman, Hastings County administrator, said could not be reached for comment.

Operating engineers are demanding a $1.75-increase over a one-year contract.

UCS Forecasts Greater Need for Funds in 1976

By COLIN BRUCE
Staff Reporter

This year's United Way campaign, in October, will have to raise 15 per cent more to support its 13 member agencies next year, says Stewart Sedgemore, chairman of the board of Belleville's United Community Services.

So far, nine of 13 budget forecasts for next year have been submitted to the UCS in preparation for the October fund drive but as yet, three budgets have not been submitted.

The only budget to be considered at Thursday's board meeting was the UCS's own budget. Mr. Sedgemore said in an interview following the meeting, the UCS budget is up 7.4 per cent over this year.

In addition to running the campaign, the UCS provides a variety of social services and handles social planning.

Mr. Sedgemore said he could not give details of the other budgets received by anticipation, "we'll have to raise 10 to 15 per cent more this fall."

Last fall the campaign raised $122,000 — $18,000 short of its goal.

While original agency budgets totalled $134,000 partly by the UCS board brought the total within reach of the campaign goals.

"In past years we have had to cut, budgets," said the chairman, "this year we want to raise enough money to give the agencies some room for programs expansion."

Mr. Sedgemore said the budgets of the nine agencies will be opened next week for preliminary review. "At that time we will know better how high we'll have to set our campaign target," he said.

For the UCS, 7.4 per cent increase is largely accounted for in salaries and staff benefits, said the chairman.

The budget, if accepted, will increase from $38,775 to $41,646 next year.

Burns New Campaign Chairman

Bob Burns, Canadian National Railway Ridgeway Area manager, was named Thursday as chairman for Belleville's 1976 United Way campaign.

Mr. Burns, last year, was chairman for the campaign's industrial division.

A written message, released by the United Community Services board of directors Thursday, states Mr. Burns is currently seeking volunteers to aid in the campaign which will be held during the month of October.

Funds raised through the campaign support 13 "help" agencies in the city providing services for city and area residents.

Last year the United Way raised $134,000.

Interim Aid For Jobless Lacking

Belleville's United Community Services is going to tackle the problem of what a person does for six weeks while he waits for unemployment insurance benefits.

Stewart Sedgemore, chairman of the UCS board and active member of the Crisis Action Committee, said her agency is experiencing problems helping families where there does not seem to be available government funding.

Mr. Sedgemore said the young fellows can have but health and quit their jobs without another job to go to, said Mrs. Jones.

She said her group has had difficulty tracking down alternate funding for the family in such a case — finding that way the the family over until unemployment benefits arrive.

The UCS is requesting a meeting with provincial government spokesmen and Hastings County Social and Welfare Services to determine if anything can be done for such families.

'Twas Hot Work

Until the heat spell broke today picketing for Hastings County road workers could be hot work. Among those on picket outside county's work yards at Foxboro was Bill Ashe.

Police to Stress Dangers Of Crossing Rail Tracks

Attempts to ensure the safety of children in a railway zone in northwest Belleville have failed.

As a result, police vigilance will be stepped up and schools in the area may look in vitals from safety officers.

That was the indication given city council's traffic committee Thursday as it discussed a plan to safeguard school students from crossing Canadian National Railway mainline tracks at north Coleman St.

Joanne Fox, Belleville Transit Commission secretary wrote that she has seen youngsters repeatedly crossing the tracks from her office window.

She said she has noticed police officers attempting to divert the youngsters — students at nearby King George public school and Quinte Secondary School.

But the policing is not consistent since the force probably has neither the time nor manpower to patrol the area effectively.

Police Chief Douglas Crosbie said, railroad authorities have acted on the situation but apparently with little success.

He said a police safety officer will be sent to schools in the district to emphasize the situation to students.

Radar Increased

Police have stepped up radar control on a northeast Belleville suburban street where the flow of detoured traffic has drawn a protest about children's safety.

The complaint was aired at city council's traffic committee Thursday from Mrs. Anne Bradford, 49 Village Dr.

Police Chief Douglas Crosbie said Village Dr. is being used as a detour during current reconstruction of Sidney St. Bence Ave. to Moira St.

But "it's not the traffic that concerns me but the speed at which some of the drivers go," wrote Mrs. Bradford. She said she is worried for the safety of children and adult pedestrians.

The chief said police now have the area under radar surveillance.

New Book Draws Praise

Want to know about the benefits of seat belts in traffic accidents.

There's a new book out that graphically shows the case. So much so, it was plausible from Mayor Robin Jeffrey Thursday.

The book, profusely illustrated, is titled Human Collision, is published by the transportation and communication ministry and city police plan to have it distributed to interested groups.

"I think it's a very fine fine book," Mayor Jeffrey told a meeting of city council's traffic committee. "I would like to see it in the library and every school library.

Police Chief Douglas Crosbie said he had obtained 100 copies of the publication from the ministry.

He said more copies could be obtained and made available to any interested groups in the community.

Seat Belt Safety

There's a new book published by provincial government on merits of seat belts in traffic mishaps. Volume was praise from Mayor Robin Jeffrey at traffic committee Thursday and Police Chief Douglas Crosbie (above) says his department has 100 copies on hand while more can be made available by transportation and communications ministry.

The Quinte Information and Assistance Centre at 227 A Coleman St. in Belleville, formerly the Citizens Bureau of Trenton) finds itself in a kind of limbo between making a report and recommendations on its operation completed recently by a provincial government committee.

Bill Hockley, centre member, said Thursday the report stated around the first of this year Ann Wahlsaw, a field research worker from Toronto was under contract by the province.

City Examines Parking Power

Proposals are upcoming to extend breaking the enforcement jurisdictions of Belleville's parking meter attendants.

The city's traffic committee Thursday discussed what "already contemplated by police and parking officers permitting the wardens to ticket vehicles in sectors where police now enforce parking regulations — beat stock, rush-hour routes, fire hydrant areas.

Ald. Jack Ireland said the Downtown Improvement Area board — the city council appointed group which manages special projects in the city core — also has suggested the attendants be empowered to ticket vehicles illegally parked on private property.

Uncontrolled parking on commercial property has been a lingering problem for downtown business. The issue was passed to the improvement area board earlier this month after a lengthy debate by traffic committee members.

Meters One Suggestion For New BGH Parking Area

Belleville General Hospital officials are examining parking meters as one method of control for a future parking area, city council's traffic committee learned Thursday.

As yet the proposal is merely in the exploratory stage and has not come before either board authorities, a hospital administration official said later.

Meters could be installed in an area south of the main hospital complex if it is open to the public parking after new facilities are built.

Renning to permit a new parking area for staff on the east side of BGH still is awaiting official approval. If meters were installed it would need a city bylaw authorizing enforcement.

However Police Chief Douglas Crosbie told the committee, such bylaws already have been permitted in other communities.

The committee deferred any action until the proposal is officially requested by the hospital board.

Subdivisions Debated

City council's traffic committee Thursday scrutinized proposed four new subdivisions — recommending approvals pending some alterations in plans.

The committee wanted revision of a site plan of a 75-unit townhouse development proposed for the east side of North Park St., so the scheme would conform with city regulations calling for 25 feet minimum driveways.

The project — being prepared by Maurice M. Rollins Construction. A preliminary plan of subdivision submitted by George Simons to provide single-family dwellings on 50 lots and two suggestions for several layouts.

Hub Caps Taken

City Police Chief Douglas Crosbie today reported the theft of four hub caps from a car parked at Belleville General Hospital.

The car is owned by Rev. Robert Upton. The hub caps are valued at $182.

Driver Hurt In Crash

TRENTON — A 30-year-old driver was taken from hospital early today with unknown injuries following a two-car, rear end collision on Queen St.

Injured is Donna Ede, 30, of 17 Bay St., Trenton. Trenton Memorial Hospital spokesman said today the extent of her injuries is still not known but it is believed they are minor.

The Ede vehicle was in collision with a vehicle driven by Brian Reid, 20, of RR 2 Trenton. Police say damage to the two vehicles is estimated at $1,500.

School Administrator Gets Association Award

EDITOR'S NOTE — This is the ninth of a series featuring county educators. The personality sketches include teachers, administrators and trustees.

By RON CARSON
Staff Reporter

Co-ordinator of out-of-school learning Wayne Brooks has been awarded the Wm Davies Merit Award for outstanding service to the Ontario Public School Teachers' Federation (OPSTF).

The award is only given to a select few but more importantly it came from a federation which represents teachers not education administrators — that's what makes this award special to Wayne.

Although co-ordinator of out-of-school learning since 1971 Wayne started his teaching career at Trenton in 1969 and later became principal at V.P. Carswell public school in 1981 at Trenton. He graduated from Peterborough Teachers' College in 1968.

Born at Glen Miller, Wayne, his wife, Carol, also a teacher, and their two children, have returned to live in Glen Miller, a small community three miles north of Trenton.

Through correspondence and extension courses Wayne earned a BA at Queen's in 1969 and later went on to obtain his MA in education at Michigan State University in 1973. He studied curriculum development with an emphasis on outdoor education.

Wayne has been president of the OPSTF for the last year. He has been active in work in local committees at district and now provincial levels.

"I never set to much on fire but I did stress, and will continue to stress the need for teachers to use the provincial channels of communications in their federation to function efficiently", he added.

In his administrative role with the Hastings County Board of Education, Wayne was instrumental in starting the H. R. Frost Outdoor Education Centre, a 200-acre classroom five miles north of Highway 401 on Highway 37.

The centre continues to grow each year and more and more students in the county visit the outdoor centre where they can actually learn about nature and animals by seeing and doing. Wayne is also responsible for other out-of-classroom learning experiences such as urban studies.

Wayne also has the distinction of being the first local government's appointee to the public advisory committee of the Canada Ontario Rideau Trent Severn Waterways (CORTS) in the Quinte sector. It took he considers extremely important to the area.

He is a strong supporter of school leader Wayne urges teachers to get involved and not to let apathy take over.

Receives Award

Wayne Brooks, co-ordinator of out-of-school learning, recently was awarded the Wm Davies Merit Award for his outstanding work in the Ontario Public School Men's Teachers Federation (OPSMTF). Wayne is now a past president of OPSMTF, but he still remains active in the federation.

CMA's New Female GM Will Be at QER Races

HAMILTON (CP) — Marilyn Bastedo is a motorcycle mamma with a difference.

As general manager of the Canadian Motorcycle Association, a non-profit national organization of 7,000 members, her primary job is to promote competition in the sport.

But she has a secondary job—the continuing battle to upgrade the motorcycle's image, tarnished by the publicity that follows outlaw bikegangs.

"It will never be erased completely," says the trim red-haired woman whose life is new but whose duties aren't.

"I know snowmobilers suffer from the same image, and black leather jackets but vandalism and disregard for people's property. But I think the fact I'm a female has helped.

"I'm married with two children (Teresa, 13, and Patrick, 12), live in a respectable neighborhood, and we don't have noisy parties with motorcycles revving in and out all hours. I think if a mag had this job he might have a harder time convincing people."

The CMA, formed in 1948, moved its headquarters from Toronto to Hamilton in 1971. At first it was in the Bastedo home here but it was moved to an abandoned small-engine machinery plant. And in January Mrs. Bastedo was appointed GM.

The CMA is affiliated with the Federation Internationale Motorcyclist in Geneva, and has 45 member clubs across Canada. Most members join as individuals in one of three categories—full competitor, non-racing member or standard member. And each category includes death and dismemberment insurance.

Mrs. Bastedo, part-time staff of four publicize events, handle all ne-points, deal with motorcycle matters on an international level and are responsible for officials at all sanctioned events — a duty she and her co-horts will be carrying out Saturday night at Quinte Exhibition Raceway.

This year her role has added responsibility. Canada will play host to three world championships.

On June 29 a cross-country motocross competition for 350 cc cycles will be held at Cobourg, 15 miles west of Hamilton.

"We're expecting to have 60 international riders from the current world champion Eekki Mikkola of Finland on down."

On July 13 a motocross competition for 125 cc bikes will be staged in St. Gabriel de Brandon, Que., a first world championship in that category.

"Safety standards are the most important, of course," says Mrs. Bastedo. "We are concerned that there are enough personnel to cope with the entries which sometimes can run as high as 300."

A national board of seven governs the CMA. Marilyn, her husband Larry, who operates a motorcycle sales and service shop in Hamilton, and Jim Kelly, president of Hamilton's Steel City Rider, form the Ontario contingent.

Other officers are Gerald Marshall of Points Claire, Que., and other Quebec members are Roy Whitesh and Pierre Corbeil. Secretary-treasurer is Vic Hewitt of Vancouver.

Regionally the CMA maintains offices in Vancouver, Edmonton, Valcourt, Que., and Antigonish, N.S.

The association also publishes a monthly magazine, CMA Cycle, which in March doubled its circulation to 18,000 and was sold on news stands for the first time.

The association and the motorcycle industry have been modifying over plans to make anyone who buys a bike an automatic member of the CMA. This could increase membership to 40,000 and give the CMA more authority in talking with governments.

It could also change the association from a competition oriented body to a road oriented one.

"The industry has approved the plan verbally but we're waiting for a financial commitment on paper," says Mrs. Bastedo.

She is looking to the day when trails might be set aside for motorcycling enthusiasts—railway lines, hydro right of way, abandoned quarries and pit-places where they would be able to enjoy their sport without hurting the environment or bothering the neighbors.

And perhaps then Marilyn will find time amid her administrative duties for a bit of trail riding "is very enjoyable type of activity."

As for competition, she'll leave that the the men.

"I think competitive riding for women just isn't very feminine."

Hamilton's Marilyn Bastedo is general manager of the Canadian Motorcycle Association. In her position she must promote competition and upgrade the motorcycle's image. Saturday night at Quinte Exhibition Raceway she will be co-ordinating officials during the local leg of the Ontario Motorcycle Dirt Track Championships. The races get underway at 8 p.m. with the mains scheduled for Sunday afternoon at 1:30.

Repeat As Lacrosse Champs

By DOUG JEFFRIES

For the second consecutive year the Quinte Saints have won the Bay of Quinte Secondary School Field Lacrosse Championship.

For the Saints, they did it the hard way, having to knock off the favored Collegiate of BCI.

Quinte coach Wally Unzuruk said "It was a team effort all the way. Last year we didn't have one single practice and finished a championship, but this year we worked hard, because we knew teams were looking ahead to play us being the defending champs."

In a roughly played contest which had 32 penalties, the Saints came from behind to beat BCI 6-4, with Saint captain Roger Chapman scoring four goals.

Sandy Waterson and Jim Hannah tallied the other Quinte markers.

For the Collegians, Steve Doutaisr came up with two goals. Singles were by John Goen and Brent Walmsley.

Spectators on both sides of the Quinte turf watched the visiting team score early and take complete control foremost of the first half.

Leading 4-1, BCI took unnecessary penalties and the Saints capitalized for two goals. With only a minute remaining in the half, the Saints pressured the BCI defence into making mistakes which resulted in the Quinte tying the score.

Joined by two goals going into the final quarter, Quinte took a strong defensive stand. Although play was in the Quinte end most of the second half they couldn't break the Quinte zone, but when they did the Quinte goaltender Steve Hale, was in the right spot.

To get to the finals BCI played Centennial and just got by the Chargers 5-4.

The Saints had to knock off Nicholson, which they did in fine fashion by a score of 11-4.

For the Saints it was their second win in as many years.

The Quinte Saints captured the Bay of Quinte Secondary School Field Lacrosse title for the second consecutive year, defeating Belleville Collegiate 6-4 in the deciding game, Thursday. Displaying the league's championship trophy are (left-to-right) assistant captain, Gord Male, captain Rorer Chapman, and assistant captain and goaltende. Steve Hale.

Ex-Ranger Shoots Down Texas

ARLINGTON, Tex. (AP) — New York's Elliott Maddox circled the Texas Rangers' room for 19 minutes and grinned.

He had struck a mortal blow in his running feud with Texas Rangers' manager Billy Martin Thursday night.

Maddox had four hits and three runs batted in as the Yankees ended a game-winning two-run double in the ninth inning Thursday night to give the Yankees a victory over the Rangers, who gave up no him a year ago.

It was the only baseball game played in the major leagues Thursday night.

Maddox was embroiled in a baseball controversy with Martin in spring training and is earlier over into the regular season last week when Texas visited New York City. Maddox was knocked down and claimed that was done on Martin's orders.

Maddox was asked how it felt to get a measure of revenge on Martin on the Rangers. "It's always nice to come back and haunt a team that gave up on you," he said.

"I think the beat ball thing is over. I hope so."

The New York centre-fielder, whom Rangers' management claimed could neither field nor hit before he was traded, went into the game with one hit for his last 36 times at bat.

"The team made him of me in the locker room Wednesday night after we beat Kansas City and I just had to laugh," Maddox said. "The irony of the entire thing is that I broke out of the slump against the Rangers. It had two years ago when I was somebody, was robbed on two other balls and had a line-drive ripped off the pitching rubber right into the second baseman's hands against Kansas City. I was really getting frustrated. I just had to get a hit for a change."

It was the eighth victory in the last 11 games for the struggling Yankees and the sixth loss in a row for the sagging Rangers.

Maddox opened his evening ders, a triple to score Bobby Bonds, followed with two singles and a groundout, and stabbed the chilch double to score Sandy Alomar and Bonds.

Starters Pat Dobson of the Yanks and Clyde Wright of the Rangers were shelled and D'Vi Tidrow picked up the mound victory in relief. Rookie Jim Umbarger was saddled with the lost.

Yankees' manager Bill Virdon said: "We knew Maddox could play centre field when we got him from the Rangers. He was an unknown quality offensively because he never got to play much. If he can just hit .250—or hit like he did tonight—it will do all things for the team."

Seals Fate Depends on Arena

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Unless a new and spacious arena is pledged in the Bay Area, a syndicate headed by businessman Mel Swig has served notice it will withdraw as a bidder for the National Hockey League's California Seals.

The apparent demise of the $26 million Yerba Buena Project with its big arena could spike the future of major league hockey in the San Francisco Bay area.

The NHL has given Swig until Saturday to give assurance of purchase. But the rejection Tuesday of the Yerba Buena plan hung a black cloud over Swig's own prospects.

He had figured on continuing as of the Oakland Arena for the Seals' headquarters for the next three years, moving into Yerba to a larger facility in San Francisco. The Oakland Arena seats about 12,000; the Sath Francisco arena would bruise up to 18,000.

"We thought we had some things worked out with the San Francisco City administration. We would lease Yerba Buena property from the city and construct a building. But now, with the apparent death of the whole project, we are left without a plan."

Swig said he and his group would desperately to keep the Seals in the Bay Area, but only on the basis that we can build a winning team and a profitable club."

Swig said continuing to operate from the Oakland Arena would eventually mean economic suicide.

He said he thought an extension could be received from the NHL on the bidding deadline, but unless something is done his group would have nothing further to offer. There are no other local bidders.

Spurs Grab Cougars

DENVER (AP) — The World Hockey Association's Denver Spurs plucked 14 players from the roster of the defunct Chicago Cougars, it was learned Thursday, including centre Gary MacGregor, who was the rookie last year's second 44 goals and had 34 assists.

The Spurs also announced at a news conference that Coach Guy Talbot, who coached the team while it was a member of the National Hockey League, would remain next year along with his assistant Bob McCord.

The Cougars had financial troubles during their three years in the WHA and expired as a franchise earlier this week.

Along with MacGregor, the Spurs took centre Ralph Backstrom, a former National Hockey League player with Montreal. He scored 18 goals for the Cougars last year.

Other players selected from the Cougar roster were defenseman Darryl Maggs, Bryan Baldwin and Keith Kinkaide; goalkeeper Mark Lemelin and Rosaire Paiement; left winger Francois Rochon, Bob Lemaigre, Jan Popiel, Rick Morris and Brian Costello; and centre Peter Marx. The Spurs took goalies Cam Newton from Chicago and Chuck Grigo from Long Island of the North American League.

Hafey Canada's New Middleweight Champ

HALIFAX (CP) — Lawrence Hafey of Saint-Jean, Que., is the Canadian middleweight boxing championship from Dave Downey of Halifax Thursday in a split decision that drew cries of protest from hundreds of fans.

Ringside observers said it appeared Downey had won the fight until the decision was announced.

Hafey, 28, had an edge on two of three scorecards.

Downey, 23, appeared to have as easy time with the Picton County native, but, after seven uncycle to penetrate the champion's defences.

"There were no knockdowns in the 10-round fight and neither were seriously hurt.

It was the second time Downey lost the title he won in 1973 by knocking out Gary Broughton of Brantford, Ont., knocked him out for the title in 1974. Downey regained the title by a split decision four months later.

The fight was a lackluster affair with both fighters often too wary for extended action. Hafey, at 147¾, carried the fight to Downey, who had trouble to land many telling blows.

It was the third time Hafey had fought for a Canadian title. In 1969 he was defeated by Les Gillis of New Waterford, N.S., and two years later he lost a split decision to lightweight champion Al Fyvie of Edmonton.

Recently he lost a close 10-round decision to Bruno Arcari, the world's fifth-ranked welterweight.

Tomahawks Trounce Bolts

UNIONDALE, N.Y. (CP) — Long Island Tomahawks broke a fourth-place tie with Boston in National Lacrosse League game Thursday night, trounce the Bolts 20-10. They tied it three straight win.

Gil Bonilla scored four goals to lead the Tomahawks before 1,679 fans. Kevin, Parsons and Charlie Henderson added three each.

Team Wilfong was the top scorer in the game, netting five goals for the Bolts. Duffy McCarthy contributed two.

The New York centre-fielder, whom Rangers' management claimed could neither field nor hit before he was traded, went into the game with one hit for his last 36 times at bat.

"The team made him of me in the locker room Wednesday night after we beat Kansas City and I just had to laugh," Maddox said. "The irony of the entire thing is that I broke out of the

Canada Upsets Notre Dame

VARESE, Italy (CP) — Canada's national basketball team upset Notre Dame University of the United States 89-86 in an exhibition game Thursday.

"It was just a great win for us," said coach Jack Donohue. "We had consistency both ways on scoring and a very aggressive defence that made the difference."

The Canadians got outstanding performances from substitutes Kenneth Ruffin, Cameron Hall and Martin Riley.

"Rommell became a player tonight," said assistant coach Steve Koschalski. "He played so much, his best game ever for the national team."

Ruffin anchored an aggressive trap zone defence that had Notre Dame forcing low percentage shots from the corners, lead at the half.

He also added eight rebounds and helped build the Canadians' spirit which had sagged after a Wednesday loss to the Italian national team.

Bill Robinson and Phil Tollestrup again led the Canadian attack, Robinson scored 20 points while Tollestrup, who played only half the game because of early foul trouble, added 23.

Tollestrup had three fouls before the game was five minutes old but his outside shooting was not as desperately needed as usual because the Canadian forwards were aggressive on offensive boards.

Jamie Russell, one of the Canadian forwards, had inside forwards, contributed 17 points.

Canada switched from a man-to-man to a zone defence in the second quarter and held a 53-38 lead at the half.

Elliott Maddox—Gets Revenge

Quirk Has Nice Birthday Present

GREENVILLE, S.C. (AP) — Sixteen-year old Canadian swimming champion Wendy Quirk of Point Claire, Que., celebrated her birthday with the first double victory Thursday on opening day of the second national Pidgeon Federal open swim meet in Greenville.

Miss Quirk representing the Point Claire Swim Club set meet records in the 100-metre butterfly and the 400-metre freestyle, leading an assault on records at the Amateur Athletic Union long-course event.

Seven records were set in eight of the events, including five records during the morning preliminaries.

Miss Quirk swam to a 1:04.993, breaking Valerie Lee's 10-month old record in the 100 metre by nearly four seconds. Her 4:34.25 in the 400 metre eclipsed Shirley Babashoff's record by one second.

A Point Claire team-mate, Claudette Lachouver, surprised the field by beating 1972 Olympic gold medalist Melissa Belote of Washington in the 100-metre backstroke.

Her 1:07.46 topped the American mark by less than four hundred-ths of a second to establish another meet record.

Joanne Baker of Canada's Thunder Bay Club set a mark in the 200-metre individual medley with a 2:25.971, to top another Babashoff record.

The meet continues through Saturday.

Chynoweth Critical Of Players' Lawyer

SASKATOON (CP) — Alan Eagleson, the Toronto lawyer who serves as a legal adviser to players, "is trying to muscle the junior professional hockey waters more than they already are," president Ed Chynoweth of the Western Canada Hockey League said Thursday.

Chynoweth criticized Eagleson for a statement that the lawyer may have to turn some of his junior hockey clients professional if the Canadian Major Junior Hockey League goes ahead with a plan to set a scale of charges to professional clubs who sign players from their junior eligibility expires.

In a prepared statement, Chynoweth said that, as far as he is aware, the CMJHL has not adopted or accepted the proposed plan put forward by Toronto lawyer Joe Kane.

"It appears Mr. Eagleson is trying to get some of his clients on the pro-day bonanza before it all comes to an end and is using the CMJHL as his pegnal."

Chynoweth said that if player agents continue to sign underage hockey players to professional contracts they are going to kill the goose that laid the golden egg.

"There is no doubt in my mind that the price of turning an under age junior professional should be as steep as possible in hopes of deterring a pro club from taking him before he completes his junior eligibility.

Soviets to Play Series Against NHL

TORONTO (CP) — Two Team Canada select squad as it hockey teams from the Soviet Union will each play six games in Canada and the United States next season against National Hockey League teams, NHL said Thursday.

Campbell said the games will be played in late December and early January.

"The series fits into our schedule just for the time being. I believe is the only way to develop the game of hockey," said Campbell.

He said he could not at this NHL ever again forming a two Team Canada select squad as it did in 1972 for an eight-game series against the Soviet national team.

"It's simply too costly. We lost money on a national team the way the Russians do. The NHL lost $1 million, Players got $1 million a week in salaries. Team Canada lost $1 million.

"The last time the NHL took part in Team Canada it was a financial disaster for us. We lost a half-million dollars in exhibition gate receipts, and on top of that, there were other expenses such as paying for the protection of our players."

Hawks Pick Will Play the Field

NEW YORK (AP) — Daryl Thompson, with an opportunity to sign two of the most lucrative contracts in pro basketball history, says he plans to wait until next month's American Basketball Association draft before choosing between the ABA and the National Basketball Association.

Until then, Atlanta Hawks, who holds the rights to his pick in the NBA draft Thursday, probably will not decide as much to offer their two outstanding stars, Marvin Webster and Bill Willoughby.

"It's a great thrill to be the first player picked, and as to where my future lies, I have to wait until the ABA and NBA weigh all matters as to which team or league I'll be playing in," Thompson said following his selection by the Hawks.

The Hawks likely will be bailing the ABA's Kansas City Kings for Thompson's services. The Nuggets have the ABA's No. 1 pick and they already have been opening up the coffers on three-time all-America and two-time Player of the Year.

The agile 6-foot-4 star from North Carolina State spent several days with the Nuggets during the ABA season.

Atlanta, meanwhile, is in a precarious position because of its financial woes, although owner John Wilcox expressed confidence that the Hawks could afford to sign Thompson, Webster and Willoughby.

"I would not be drafted them if I didn't think I could sign them," Wilcox said.

The seven-foot Webster, twice winner of the College Division Player of the Year, was the Hawks' second pick on the first round and the third player selected over-all in the draft.

Willoughby, a 6-6 forward who averaged 35 points and 22 rebounds a game last season at Dwight Morrow high school in Englewood, N.J., was the first Knicks' pick and the second round.

Willoughby was the second high school player ever drafted by the NBA.

The first was 6-10 Darvin Dawkins from Maynard Evans in Orlando, Fla., taken by Philadelphia 76ers on the first round.

Meanwhile, the player trades were completed. Kansas City sent forward Ron Behagen to New Orleans for the Jazz' second choice in the first round—center-forward Bill Robinzine. Golden State surrendered its second pick in rounds one and two to Cleveland for forward Dwight Davis.

Can't Beat Agent Like Judge Gottlieb

TORONTO (CP) — Toronto Argonauts' rookie linebacker Sam Cvijanovich surely must have the most talented agent of any player in the Canadian Football League.

The height with Judge Bill Gottlieb of Los Angeles called Argo managing director John Barrow into playing Cvijanovich a tryout even though his client did not play football in 1972.

Cvijanovich became a household name in Toronto's Serbian community when he won the Schenley Award as the CFL's outstanding rookie.

Now, to the relief of a contract dispute with the Argos, Gottlieb has come up with a novel method of publicizing the abilities of Sam C.

Gottlieb, a former freelance writer, has developed a movie script to Warner Bros. in Hollywood titled, The Measure of a Man, a story based on Cvijanovich's life.

"The story is about a person trying to establish himself in a country, his struggles and his ultimate success," said Cvijanovich.

"It's all at the preliminary stage. Warner Bros. is considering making a movie of the script, but we've had no definite answer one way or the other.

"If anyone can pull it off, it's Judge Gottlieb. He's quite a guy, you know. He played pro baseball for six years in the Detroit Tiger organization, played a high school basketball coach, a writer for a couple of years and he was in real estate before going into law. On top of all that he was in the army."

Cvijanovich, Gottlieb and Barrow are currently at an impasse regarding a new Argos-year contract. Argos have made their "final" offer, which Gottlieb accepted but Cvijanovich rejected. It is expected a compromise will be reached without the middle linebacker going through the process of playing out his option.

Martin Drugs Horses

NEW YORK (AP) — Thoroughbred trainer Frank (Pancho) Martin was handed a 60-day suspension or $6,000 fine, largest in the history, of New York racing, Thursday when he pleaded no contest to three of four charges of drugging horses at New York race tracks.

Martin, who last year saddled more winners than any previous trainer at New York's three tracks—Aqueduct, Belmont and Saratoga—opted for the $6,000 fine after the show cause hearing at the New York State Racing and Wagering Board offices. The board then dismissed the fourth charge.

Martin was handed a 60-day suspension by the board last Dec. 30, effective Dec. 5 but the suspension was stayed by state supreme court pending the show cause hearing.

Amateur Sports Not Getting Enough Ink

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — Canadian newspapers are not keeping pace with the growing interest and participation in amateur athletics, a sports writer told newspaper executives Thursday.

Doug Gilbert of Montreal Gazette, who has covered preparations for the 1976 Olympics since they were awarded to Montreal in 1970, said Canadian dailies tend to concentrate on professional sports.

Opening a panel discussion at the Canadian Managing Editors' Conference, Gilbert said that if Canadians regard the Olympics as merely a two-week extravaganza they are missing the point.

The Olympiad is a fam-year affair and Canadians should use the period as an opportunity to stimulate the development of interest in amateur sports generally.

"Canada may regard itself as an athletic country when compared to European nations, we're not. We're more a country of sports spectators."

Even the high school system qualitated against participation, concentrating on developing the skills of a few elite athletes while encouraging other students to come out and cheer for their teams.

Dick Beddoes, sports columnist for Toronto Globe and Mail, said that if he were an editor he would divide the sports pages into two sections—one for professional spectator sports and another for coverage of amateur participation sports.

Alan Beach, sports editor of Hamilton Spectator, said newspapers must guard their integrity in dealings with major sports personalities. There was a tendency of sports writers to avoid asking difficult and challenging questions when interviewing celebrities.

Sires Stakes Get Underway on Sunday

ST. CATHARINES, Ont. (CP) — Three divisions for three-year-old pacing colts and geldings are on tap when racing resumes Sunday at Ontario Jockey Club's Sires Stakes (OSS) program for 1975 at Garden City Raceway Sunday night.

Two nine-horse fields will go to the starting gate at $34,375 each while a third race with eight entries is valued at $34,238.

The OSS series this year encompasses 8 events for two- and three-year-old trotters and pacers at 8 Ontario tracks with a gross value of $2.3 million. The biggest portion of prize money will come from the province's share of last year's parimutuel tax.

Eligibles for the races must be offspring of Ontario-based stallions.

Pats Bye Bye, owned and driven by Clint Hodgins of Claudeboye and the leading OSS pacer a year ago with earnings of $53,767, will be the 2 post in the fifth race of the first division and should be the odds-on favorite by race time.

The second division appears to be the most balanced with L. Johnston, Duff's Choice and Billy Purdue among the top of the way. Billy Purdue already has turned in a 2:03.1 qualifying effort at London.

Highland Treaty, from John Grant's Hornby stable appears to be the one to beat in the third division, the sixth race on the card. The colt has a winning performance at Fort Erie, New York's Roosevelt Raceway this year but could face pressure from Greg Dewey, owned by Elizabeth Darnell of London, Ont., and winner of $34,238 in OSS races last year.

Rangers Dump B.C.

VANCOUVER (CP) — Glasgow Rangers, Scottish League soccer champions, opened an exhibition tour Thursday, blanking British Columbia Soccer League All-Stars 4-0 before 4,000 fans at Empire Stadium.

It was almost 10 years to the day since the Rangers last played here—and they won that game 3-0.

Midfielder Alex McDonald scored twice to lad Glasgow. Singl goals came from winger Graham Fyfe and forward Bobby McKean.

A first-half goal by Fyfe was the difference between the two teams at half-time, although the Rangers dominated the play for most of the 45 minutes.

McKean made it 2-0 for Glasgow at seven minutes of the second half and McDonald scored the third and fourth goals in the last five minutes of the game.

Women Given Their Chance

TORONTO (CP) — If ever women tennis players were offered an opportunity to make the most of the women's lib movement, Den Fontana added their cause Thursday.

The chairman of the Rothman's Canadian Open tennis tournament here Aug. 11-17 said that unless some of the women superstars show up for the tournament, the women's purse will be cut by $50,000.

In announcing that the break down of the $150,000 in prize money included $100,000 for men and $50,000 for women, Fontana hold a news conference the women's purse was "conditional upon getting some of the women superstars."

He said he was having difficulty signing defending champion Chris Evert of Fort Lauderdale, Fla., and other leading women players because of previous commitments to World Team Tennis.

"Arrangements were made some time ago," he continued, "that in fairness to the sponsor we would revert back to the $30,000 for women's prize money if we were not able to get some of the women superstars."

He said the defending men's champion, Guillermo Vilas of Argentina, had been ailing early in the year but has indicated he is back to defend against the likes of veterans Rod Laver, Manuel Orantes, and predictable Ilie Nastase and probably the current world's No. 1 player, American Jimmy Connors.

Fontana said he was still hoping to nail down a commitment from Connors, probably during the Wimbledon championships in England.

Chris Avenges Jeanne's Loss

ROME (AP) — Defending champion Chris Evert scored revenge against Jeanne Evert Thursday as one of three American women who advanced in the $130,000 Italian open tennis championships.

The top-seeded star breezed into the women's singles semi-finals with a 6-1, 6-3 triumph over Florida Beckloff of Tiburon, avenging Miss Beckloff's upset Wednesday over eighth seeded Jeanne Evert.

Bjorn Borg of Sweden and Guillermo Vilas of Argentina played to a dead heat in the advance of seeded men into the quarter-finals.

Borg downed Italian Davis Cup player Paolo Bertolucci 6-4, 6-1 before a boisterous crowd which rallied Vilas, who had battle back for a 6-4, 6-3 triumph over Nikki Pilic of Yugoslavia.

Thomas Lemay, American Harold Solomon battled to a 6-7, 6-2, 6-3 win over Peter Szoke of Hungary and Eddie Dibbs, also of the U.S., ousted compatriot Brian Gottfried 6-4, 6-4, 6-1.

Miss Evert was last only 10 games in pursuit of another Rome Open crown. She bounced to a 5-0 lead over Miss Beckloff before losing her only game of the set. After taking a 4-1 lead in the second set, Miss Evert staved off a comeback attempt by Miss Beckloff and held on for the victory.

Warriors Flying in OFL East

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS — Woodstock Warriors took over sole possession of first place in the Ontario Football League eastern division Thursday, sweeping both ends of a double-header from the visiting Burlington-Lancaster Providianers.

Warriors won the opener 1-0 and the second game 6-4 in 11 innings.

In other action, Hamilton Wasmuns Scrappers won the opening game of their eastern division doubleheader in St. Catharines, beating the Mr. Jackets 5-3, and took the second game 3-1. Newmarket beat visiting Toronto 9-2 and 3-1 in their western division doubleheader.

Woodstock scored the only run of the opener in the second inning and finished on the strength of pitcher Don Reder's pitching. Bill Drennan ran the same.

Bill Fielding, who relieved starter Bill Eccles in the seventh inning, got the win and reliever Hal Kemp was the loser. Bill McNeils was credited with two victories in Hamilton's sweep of its doubleheader.

In the first game, McNeils relieved starter Wally Dick in the sixth inning and got credit for the victory when Ed Neudert hit a two-run double in the final inning to break a 5-5 deadlock. Dick Ballist was the loser.

McNeils went the distance in the second game, allowing two hits and striking out 10 in the 3-1 win. Ballist, who threw a five-hitter, lost again.

Bill Cursey was the winning pitcher for Newmarket in the first game and Bob Dancsot in the second. Jim Young was the losing pitcher in both games.

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The star-struck young man chopped, grunted, groaned, flexed their muscles and kept their hopes high. They were trying out for the role of karate hero Bruce Lee.

The auditions here Wednesday were for the top part in a new Warner Brothers' film, Bruce Lee, His Life and Legend.

Lee died in 1973, between a film idol with starring roles in four martial arts movies.

Bob Clouse, who will produce and direct the new movie, called the Lee role "a tremendous opportunity."

"We hope we can find some one we can build a career around."

But after auditions in Tokyo, Manila, Hong Kong and Los Angeles, where 600 tried out, Clouse still hasn't found his star.

Besides being adept at karate, Clouse said it would help "if the star could dance. Lee was the cha-cha contest in Hong Kong in 1958."

NEW YORK (AP)—Eileen Herlie and Patrick Macnee, both of whom are British, were chosen best actress and actor on the American summer theater circuit last year and received Stone Hat Awards Thursday.

Rock Hudson and Russell was presented with the award for special achievement, given to someone starring in summer stock.

Nine awards are given with the recipients chosen by the Council of Stock Theaters.

LONDON (AP)—Frank Sinatra, stung by West German newspaper attacks calling him a "super-gangster", interrupted a concert here Thursday night to hoot back at his critics.

"They're the gangsters," he said.

The entertainer observed 60 years in show business, Sinatra said.

7,000 fans in the Albert Hall. What gives with these German surveys? I've done nothing to them."

Last week he cancelled a performance in West Berlin and flew back to London following what he called "scurrilous attacks" in West German newspapers. He did one show in Frankfurt to a half-empty auditorium.

"I could have answered them and told reporters to 'look in the size of your fathers,' " he said. Thursday night, "All I wanted to do was sing songs there, but with the criticisms and suggestions of kidnapping and other things I said 'let's go'."

Despite his displeasure with the press, Sinatra was relaxed and in fine voice at Albert Hall. He got standing ovations from fans who managed to get tickets for his show, one of two scheduled here.

More than 200,000 Britons applied for tickets for the concerts. Outside the auditorium, scalpers sold them for up to $375.

Opening lead — Q ♥

By OSWALD and JAMES JACOBY

We could save a lot of energy at the bridge table if players would just think about the right things instead of the wrong ones.

South won the heart lead in dummy and promptly led a spade finesse. West led a second heart, South won, played dummy's jack of spades and then thought about the club suit. How could he play it to avoid the loss of two tricks?

The answer is that club clubs breaking 4-3 and the honors split there was no way for South to play clubs and avoid ceiling the defense score two club tricks against him. Actually South led dummy's jack. East covered with the king and West was sure of tricks with his queen and ace.

If South had just thought about ways to avoid having to play clubs he would have saved himself energy and his contract. All he had to do was to lead a diamond. If the opponent who won led a heart South would only lose one club. If he led a third heart as would be likely, South would ruff, lead a diamond and discard one of dummy's clubs.

This would set up a diamond for a discard of another club and while South would have lost two diamond tricks he would not lose even one club.

CHAMP RETIRES

LONDON (CP) — Miriam Hargraves, 67, who took 46 tests over 11 years before gaining her driving licence, is giving up her car because of the high cost of gasoline. She gained considerable publicity and was entitled to a book of records as Britain's most unsuccessful test-taker before she finally passed in 1970. Standard-grade gasoline here costs the equivalent of $1.70 a gallon.

To Your Good Health

Light in Bedroom Not Vital Issue

By G. C. THOMPSON, MD

Dear Dr. Thompson: What is your opinion of putting an 18-month-old baby to bed in a dark room with the door closed all night?

The parents don't use a night light in his room. They say the baby his age is not afraid of the dark, and also that he would stay in his bed and not run around. He cries some before going to sleep. He doesn't sleep in a crib.—Mrs. A.E.

You make that little tyke's bedroom sound like the black hole of Calcutta.

This whole night light question is, in most cases, one of practicity. The average parent should decide the matter based on common sense observation of the individual situation.

Looking at the practical side of it, it is sometimes convenient to have a small light in the child's room, especially if he is not sleeping through the night, or if some special attention is required. It is convenient if the baby should be sleeping through the night. It is usually wise to leave the door ajar so that any unusual activity can be heard. Often, a little gale can be installed across the doorway, if it has been the parents' habit to listen for crying.

Crying at bedtime is another matter. It is not abnormal for a child to put up a fuss at bedtime. After all, he is being removed from the massive stimulus he's begun to enjoy during the day, not the least of it the mother, anyway, to him of comfort and protection. But unless the fussing develops into marathon sessions of wailing (more than say 15 or 15 minutes) this "will do the child no harm.

But if he seems genuinely afraid of the darkness, a tiny light will not do any harm either. The light can be removed later as he grows older, or it can be switched off when he falls asleep. As the summer days become longer, such problems often disappear, and the light question disappears with it.

The point to remember is that there shouldn't be any battle of wills between parents and the infant over anything that is significant as a tiny light in a bedroom. This could inflict some psychological damage on the child if carried to extremes.

Payoff Said Made To Dredge Official

HAMILTON (CP) — Horace Rindress told an Ontario Supreme Court jury Thursday that a payoff to Robert Schneider, as official of Canadian Dredge and Dock Co. Ltd., was made with the help of Stanley Elliott, a former Hamilton Harbor commissioner.

Mr. Rindress continued to testify on kickbacks, bid-rigging and payoffs when the jury returned after a seven-day absence during voir dire arguments on admissibility of evidence.

Mr. Rindress, formerly president of J. P. Porter Co. Ltd., a dredging firm, testified concerning kickbacks to Schneider and mentioned Reginald Fisher, a former businessman, in connection with a complex payoff scheme.

Elliott, 42, and Fisher, 62, are each charged with 18 counts of conspiracy, fraud and uttering forged documents.

Mr. Rindress was testifying last September at the Ontario Evidence Act, Ontario Evidence Act and Civil Code of Quebec.

Concerning the alleged payoff to Mr. Schneider made with Elliott's help, Mr. Rindress said the former harbor commissioner laundered the money through a company called International Marine, and then described how he drafted the text of a false invoice from International to J. P. Porter for $158,312.

He said Elliott then submitted the invoice for work not done by International, on International stationery. A cheque then went to Elliott.

Mr. Rindress said he expected the $158,312 payoff to produce $130,000 in cash for Mr. Schneider after Elliott's 20-per-cent laundering fee was deducted. The $312 was window dressing.

The witness said he met Elliott at a Toronto Hotel Feb. 28, 1972, and was given $125,000 in American dollars in cash, which, along with $75,000 in personal cheques from Mr. Rindress, was given to Mr. Schneider. Later, Mr. Schneider had returned the cheques and got a personal bank draft for $75,000.

Mr. Rindress said the money went to Mr. Schneider as a payoff. In return, Canadian Dredge submitted a high bid on the Hamilton dredging project awarded to the Porter firm.

Mr. Rindress also said payoffs and kickbacks on the ship channel job were hidden in records of another larger project. False invoices from International were used to conceal the payoffs and the rendering of services was not done.

Big Firms Hit Hydro Rate Boost

TORONTO (CP) — A power hungry Ontario said Thursday proposed rate increases for hydro will dampen the health of the province's industries and its entire economy.

The Association of Industrial Power Users in Ontario, representing almost 40 major companies, said the hydro rate plans to raise industrial rates by almost 30 per cent in 1976 and double power costs by 1981.

The proposal threatens our competitive position and is out of line with current economic realities. It is the result of Hydro's costly customer demand which, quite frankly, we can't afford, the association said in its monthly letter.

John to Be Few

OTTAWA (CP) — Unemployment, now more than seven per cent of the labour force, will be the head of a leading private economic forecasting organization Thursday.

Unemployment rates will be the highest since the depression of the 1930s since you started to start dropping out of the work force, Gordon Ivanhoe, director for Jobs, Arthur J. E. Smith, Research Director for Canada, told the annual meeting of the Canadian Life Insurance Association.

Probe Urged

TORONTO (CP) — Dr. Morton Shulman (NDP—Toronto High Park) Thursday has called for a royal commission into organized crime in Ontario.

The NDP member, who has spoken out against loan-sharking and activities of what he calls organized crime in the province, again urged Attorney-General John Clement to start a royal commission into the matter.

He said it is "the present feeling" of the Ontario Police Commission that such an inquiry should be held.

Move Calls Farce

TORONTO (CP) — The appointment of a special cabinet committee to review government spending in Ontario was called "farcical and hypocritical" by a Liberal member of the legislature Thursday.

Pat Reid (Lambton-Kent-River) also accused Premier William Davis of "an abdication of his responsibility" in the matter.

The committee, announced by Premier Davis in Niagara Falls Tuesday, will consist of brewer Carter Betty Kennedy, Maxwell Henderson former auditor-general of Canada and business executive Robert Herbert.

Registration Useless

TORONTO (CP) — Extending gun registration requirements to rifles and shotguns is not the answer to tightening gun laws, Attorney-General John Clement said Thursday.

Commenting in the legislature on the "horrors" of a Brampton, Ont. high school, Clement said registration laws "just does not produce the wrought use of a weapon."

He said the two weapons used by the student who killed a teacher another student and wounded several others in the shooting spree, were low-bolt rifles owned and used by the student's father.

"In view of the terrible tragedy at Brampton, we can't lose sight of the concept that it is the misuse of the weapon and not the registration that is the problem," he said.

Budget 'Peanuts'

OTTAWA (CP) — Dr. Paul Yewchuk (PC—Athabasca) called the $64-million budget for the Medical Research Council (MRC) "peanuts" and charged Thursday that the federal government has "severe priorities."

"We're spending $18.2 million on giving billions of dollars only $64 million on medical research," he said. "Does this mean the government thinks it's more important to be healthy than healthy?" he asked during a Commons health committee meeting.

Delay Controls

TORONTO (CP) — The federal and Ontario governments are delaying introduction of legislation governing highway transport of hazardous cargo, says R. V. Rumney, chairman of the carrier division of the Ontario Trucking Association (OTA).

Mr. Rumney told the OTA annual meeting that industry efforts to obtain such legislation is "still completely beyond realization."

Take Is Down

OTTAWA (CP) — The Olympic coin program earned only $1.2 million for the Olympic organizing committee in its six months to March 31, the agency has reported Thursday. The total paid to the committee from the start of the program in mid-1973 to March 31 was $9.3 million. Marcel Jean, Trudeau of Montreal had said earlier Thursday hoped to make $220 million from the program.

Mr. Irvine two weeks ago announced new rules giving municipalities responsibility to prove one-or two-acre buildings severances on farm land. The former policy restricted severances to farm jobs. This forces as many as 24 acres of production, Mr. Irvine said.

Announcement of the new policy made no mention of restricting new severances in class five or six farmland and Mr. Irvine Wednesday night blamed himself and the government for failing to "spell out clearly" the new policy.

Emotional Debate on Abortion Staged as Petition Presented

OTTAWA (CP) — A lengthy and often emotional debate on abortion presented the Commons on Thursday during a day devoted almost entirely to women's issues.

The attention of MPs was drawn to the abortion issue by a non-hour demonstration of anti-abortionists on Parliament Hill prior to presentation in the House of a petition said to contain more than one million signatures.

Participants in the demonstration took up much of the public gallery space in the Commons during a lively question period that dealt almost exclusively with abortion.

They broke into scattered bursts of applause, forbidden by Commons rules, as MPs responded to abortion presented their case to anchoring which seemed aimed at the public gallery.

Justice Minister Otto Lang, when questioned a champion of strict interpretation of the abortion law, put an applause as he said the law is adequate if it can be made to work.

Notable in the debate he described the petition as "obviously very persuasive. The government would decide soon whether it would hold inquiry into the issue which has drawn two large demonstrations, with opposing aims, to Parliament Hill in the last week.

Meanwhile, Mr. Lang said the government will examine the criminal law to make sure it is operating "in the spirit of the law" passed by Parliament six years ago. That legislation allowed abortions if a hospital committee says continued pregnancy would endanger a mother's physical or mental health.

He said hospital committees vary widely in how strictly they interpret the law. He later said the health risk provision "could be contended in this country as a serious risk to health, rather than some high incomprehension."

The petition, urging a definition of the meaning of the law, was tabled by Liberal Urban Appolloni (York South) on behalf of colleagues representing all parties and areas of the country.

She was applauded by the anti-abortion onlookers, as were several Progressive Conservatives who praised Mr. Lang to clear up confusion over the abortion law and to give details of the planned review. That would have to await a federal government decision, the minister replied.

When the question period ended, the Commons began debate on a bill to eliminate discriminatory sections of several federal laws which do not provide equal treatment for women. They include the Indians Act, the Criminal Code, the Immigration Act, the Unemployment Insurance Act and other legislation.

Marc Lalonde, the Minister responsible for women's programs, said a change of attitudes as well as laws is needed if women are to achieve more than "a hollow victory."

The bill has drawn strong criticism from women's groups, but Opposition Leader Robert Stanfield and Cyril Symes (NDP—South Ste. Marie) called for more action instead of talk.

Mr. Stanfield noted that women earn 45 per cent less than the average male worker and are 3½ times more likely to be given professional training.

The tone of his criticism was echoed by Liberal Iona Campagnolo, himself called for more action on women's rights.

Mrs. Campagnolo called for removal of abortion from the Criminal Code, but said abortion on demand should not be allowed because it would "do irreparable harm to the fabric of society."

"It's been an emotional day in the House," she said, referring to the anti-abortion display. But she criticized those who show pictures of aborted foetuses to back their stand.

"Is the fetus any worse to view than the bloodied body of a child who has crouched in death after attempting to abort herself with a kitchen knife?"

Postal Workers Draft Plan To Show They Dislike Boss

OTTAWA (CP) — The national president of the Canadian Union of Postal Workers warned Thursday of further action by the union in the next few days to show its displeasure with the post office and Postmaster-General Bryce Mackasey.

Joe Davidson, president of the 22,000-member union, would not elaborate on strategy worked out by the union's nine-member national executive board, but cited as possibilities more cases of "Mackasey fix," work-to-rule and the refusal of overtime work.

Postal clerks and mail sorters in Montreal and other centres have backed off sick recently to protest slow contract talks, terming their illness the "Mackasey flu."

Mr. Davidson told reporters the union wants to negotiate technological change in the post office because postal workers are more affected by automation than other employees.

Mr. Davidson said Mr. Mackasey has been lying in recent public statements about the willingness of the post office to resume contract talks. There had not been a response on union requests for a closer meeting with automation and other issues.

The post office also had not responded to a request for appointment of a conciliation officer. Meanwhile, he said, postal officials have brought in 400 police to the Montreal post office to oversee operations and harass workers.

Mr. Mackasey in turn branded the report of 400 police in Montreal as "insane at best" and said only a few police have been brought in to keep the peace. They were not in the post office, he said.

A handful of irresponsible MPs, Mr. Mackasey said, were trying to disrupt operations. Mr. Mackasey said, adding that he hoped the majority of law-abiding postal workers would not allow themselves to be used as pawns.

Mr. Mackasey said he had a proposed clause on technological change and Mr. Davidson would see it if and when the matter sat down at the bargaining table.

Mr. Davidson said the Montreal post office was like some island out of Mad Germany with police with fully cobs standing about. One supervisor had taken out a long-bladed knife to intimidated employees, he said.

He asked postal officials to prove that supervisors have been beaten up by postal workers. Mr. Mackasey has said most supervisors have been beaten and their homes damaged.

Mr. Mackasey has been trying to divide the union for months.

The union leaders, for their own selfish reasons, were doing justice to their members, Mr. Mackasey told the House of Commons.

He said that on Tuesday and Wednesday about 14.4 million pieces of mail were sorted from a backog of 25 million in Montreal.

About 400 temporary workers, mostly university students working for the summer, were sorting mail Thursday while regular employees had been offered unlimited overtime of-

Ford, Trudeau Meet

Dead Livestock Probe Ordered

TORONTO (CP) — A spokesman for the Ontario agricultural ministry says government investigators have been ordered to look into the activities of five personal dead animal collectors named in a Montreal inquiry into organized crime.

Dr. F. A. McDermid, director of veterinary services, said Friday investigators will examine allegations this week that the collectors were involved in an illegal scheme in which hundreds of thousands of pounds of meat from dead, sick and dying Ontario cattle were sent to Quebec to be processed and then sold in both provinces for human consumption.

"We've talked to the Ontario Provincial Police with regard to this in the last couple of days," he said. "A member of the OPP is co-operating with us and will accompany the investigators if necessary."

The animal dealers were identified as Arthur Burrett of Keene, near Peterborough; Lloyd Lorenz of Durham; John Meegens, who lives near Toronto; Hans Buhl of Vankleek Hill, about 50 miles east of Ottawa and Claude MacAdam of St. Albert, about 40 miles east of Ottawa.

Dr. McDermid said the ministry has never had any evidence meat from dead-stock plants has been used for public consumption. He said the investigators, who have law enforcement backgrounds, will determine whether there has been a violation of the Dead Animals Disposal Act.

Mr. Burrett said Friday he was deceived into selling tainted meat to persons suspected of putting such meat on the market for human consumption.

He said men representing themselves as mink ranchers bought meat from him in 1970 or 1971 at the standard price, but when he found out they were not ranchers, he said he stopped selling to them.

Mr. Burrett said he would make a full statement Monday after speaking to agricultural ministry officials.

Richard Lorenz, son of Lloyd Lorenz, denied Friday his father's firm had ever sold meat in Quebec.

He said as far as he knew, meat from the firm is sold to Derby Pet Foods in Streetville, Ont., at five cents a pound and is stamped unfit for human consumption and marked with charcoal before freezing.

Mr. Buhl of Hans Buhl Pet Foods in Vankleek Hill said Thursday he sold meat from dead stock to Quebec customers for up to 25 cents a pound. Ontario customers pay him seven cents a pound.

He said it might be possible to pass off the meat in Quebec for human consumption, "but I don't think anyone does it."

Trudeau and Ford Stand with NATO

BRUSSELS (CP) — President Ford said at the end of his first North American Treaty Organization summit that he is reasonably optimistic about prospects for a successful 35-country European security conference.

He told reporters Friday night that progress is being made at security conference discussions in Geneva, although final agreements are not in sight.

Completion of the Geneva conference should permit his second meeting with Soviet leader Leonid Brezhnev to take place in Washington as scheduled this autumn, Ford said.

Brezhnev wants to see the security conference to wind up in Helsinki June 30 with heads of government in attendance.

A communiqué issued at the end of the two day NATO summit expressed the hope that the security conference would be concluded on satisfactory terms "in the near future."

The communique said the collective security provided by NATO was an essential condition of détente and peace.

Ford said one of his chief reasons for coming to the summit meeting was to reassure allies in the post-Vietnam era that United States commitments to NATO are strong and unequivocal.

Prime Minister Trudeau reaffirmed Canada's support for the alliance, but said that, unless Ita value is appreciated by the taxpayer, "we cannot force from our peoples automatic acceptance of the NATO credo."

Canada is involved in a major defence review, similar to that of 1969 when Canada's manpower commitment to NATO was cut by half.

But Trudeau said that whatever "configuration Canada decides on as its NATO contribution—even if fewer men are committed—we want to be effective and not take decisions that would render us ineffective."

Trudeau and Ford both urged more frequent NATO meetings at the highest level.

Best Cuts Held Out?

MONTREAL (CP) — A pet food manufacturer told the Quebec Police Commission's inquiry into organized crime Friday he complained to various governments repeatedly in the past 15 years about the state of meat inspection in Quebec.

Jules Pepin, president of Jean Demers Inc., testified he often complained that those who supplied him with carcass for his pet food business only sold him the worst cuts from an animal.

He said he warned authorities he was suspicious that better cuts, though unfit for human consumption, were being sold to consumers.

After every complaint, meat inspectors seemed to show more vigilence and the meat supply to his firm decreased, Mr. Pepin said. But stricter control was short-lived.

Pensioners Get Break In Alberta

EDMONTON (CPX) — Alberta senior citizens have been guaranteed the highest minimum monthly income given to the elderly in Canada and taxpayers in the oil-rich province have been promised the lowest personal provincial income tax.

The moves are contained in the Progressive Conservative government's 1975-76 budget tabled in the legislature Friday night, a $2,536-million spending program essentially the same as the pre-election budget earlier this year. The budget brought down prior to the March 26 election, in which the Conservatives swept all 75 legislative seats, died on the order paper when the vote was called.

The major change is the provision that single pensioners over the age of 65 who get the federal old-age pension and income supplement will be guaranteed a $255 minimum m o n t h l y income. Married couples will be assured $464.

The minimum income is guaranteed by adding money to the federal pension and supplement, which now is about $384.

Spokesman in the provincial treasury department said the $240 guarantee in British Columbia was the previous highest.

The elderly will also benefit through an $18-million program of extended health-care benefits and increases in rentor assistance grants.

The budget reintroduced personal income tax, reducing that tax by 25 per cent, which Mr. Leitch said was a measure to stimulate the economy. The reduction, he said "will increase disposable income of Albertans by an estimated $115 million in 1975 and provide an average tax reduction for each Alberta taxpayer of approximately $140."

A further income tax reduction was given those with incomes of less than $4,000 a year and those earning below $1,400 will pay no income tax.

Mr. Leitch said the tax cuts were possible because of the budgetary surplus created by crude oil and natural gas revenues.

Provincial Treasurer Merv Leitch, who said the tax cuts were possible because of the budgetary surplus created by crude oil and natural gas revenues, estimated the disposable incomes of residents will be increased by $125 million and they will be provided with an average tax cut of $140 annually.

The full amount of the tax cut will be felt beginning in salary deductions in July.

Emergency Measures Continuation Urged

By HARRY MULHALL
Staff Reporter

Abolition of a community emergency measures co-ordinator service has raised anxiety among Belleville General Hospital's board of governors.

Concerned that hospital authorities, the board is sending a letter to municipalities in the Quinte Emergency Measures Organization, (QEMO) urging their support for continuing the service.

Such a move already is under way.

Mayor Robin Jeffrey told the board QEMO's executive this week decided to petition its member municipalities for further funds to keep the emergency measures service operating to the end of the year.

A phaseout by mid-summer of QEMO — headed by co-ordinator Col. Angus Duffy — had been contemplated earlier with the withdrawal last month of provincial government support funds.

BGH has its own internal plan for handling large-scale emergency in the event of a community disaster.

But what concerned board members was will organizations would co-ordinate events — including dispatch of patients to the hospital — in the community at large outside BGH's jurisdiction.

Without an official like Col. Duffy, the overall emergency scene would be left without a co-ordinator, said Dr. Bruce Morgan.

Such a situation would not be "very logical," he added.

There is a certainly enough for a QEMO disaster officer to be within the hospital in the event of a disaster, board members worrying about getting patients to the hospital.

Philip Rickard, executive director agreed BGH would have a "major job" in a disaster in caring for patients without becoming involved in "other aspects" of an emergency.

Dr. John Stock said the situation involved "some expediency" because the area was a flyover zone for jet transport aircraft from CFB Trenton.

Dr. Morgan moved a letter be sent QEMO municipal members urging them that a community co-ordinator was "essential" to the hospital's disaster plan.

Mayor Jeffrey, QEMO chairman, told the board such a letter would help support the plea for additional funds.

Col. Duffy later explained the QEMO first had decided to wind up its operations last August — the time its budget funds would run out if it were to meet salary commitments. He said he had offered to stay on for the balance of the year to wrap up the organization.

However, the executive Wednesday decided to ask its member municipalities to subscribe additional $5,100 to keep QEMO co-ordination service through the year's end when it could be discussed what other directions might be taken on the issue.

Chloroform No Problem

Presence of chloroform in Belleville's drinking water necessarily cannot under control of industrial and government environment experts, Belleville General Hospital board of governors was told Friday.

The advice, sought after a provincial study revealed the city's drinking water had among the highest contents of chloroform — a byproduct of purification treatment — in Ontario.

"Chloroform dissipates very quickly and is not toxic," the report from the board's planning and property committee said.

It indicated that any need for special filtering "should be done at the municipal level" rather than "by individual application."

Laberge Guilty

MONTREAL (CP) — The conviction of a prominent Quebec labor leader on a charge of mischief in the Superior Court in Joliette, Que., Friday night capped a day of unrest on the province's labor scene.

Louis Laberge, president of the more than 200,000-strong Quebec Federation of Labor, was found guilty by a jury of encouraging workers to sabotage household appliances at the production line at the Huppe Canada Ltd., plant in Joliette, about 40 miles northeast of Montreal, Friday night.

Mr. Laberge, facing a maximum penalty of five years in prison, will be sentenced Monday.

Picton PUC Tenders Too High

PICTON — Tenders for improvements to the Picton water works system are being held in abeyance by the Public Utilities Commission says chairman Chris Lockyer who hopes amendments to cut costs can be worked out.

Mr. Lockyer said Friday four tenders were received by Thursday's deadline — all of them higher than the costs anticipated by the PUC.

"They were not acceptable to us. We budgeted for $225-000," he added.

The lowest of the four tenders was submitted by Ernie Hamilton Excavating Ltd., Kingston and quoted a price of $322,222 for the job. A completion period of 26 weeks was stated.

A tender of $329,774 was submitted by Lecover Ltd. of Cobourg and a tender of $362,115.84 by Dunedin Construction, Whitby.

The highest tender of $427,803 was submitted by Taggart Construction of Ottawa.

"We as a commission are quite disappointed price-wise in the tenders," observed Mr. Lockyer.

"We could not come to any successful conclusion based on these figures."

He said the PUC feels the costs of material and labor are continually rising and little would be accomplished by delaying the project for it.

He added a consultant engineer from a Toronto firm will be asked to study the plans of improvements to the waterworks system and possibly can suggest amendments that would allow the PUC to proceed with a major portion of the program.

"We hope we can resolve some major portion of the construction," said Mr. Lockyer.

He noted the Delhi area is in particular need of improved facilities.

"That area is in desperate need of updating," he commented.

Mr. Lockyer said the PUC wants a review of "the whole picture" by the consulting engineer based on the tender prices received.

Improvements to the town's waterworks system have been planned for the past two years and will be paid for through debenture through the local municipality says the PUC chairman.

He said payment would be made over a 30-year period.

"It's our customers who have to pay and we are trying not to burden them," he observed.

City Council Raise on Agenda

A bylaw raising the pay of aldermen by $1,000 goes to city council Monday.

The resolution, bringing the annual honorarium for a city councillor to $4,000 was first approved May 5 — and raised some controversy over which members of council had voted for the increase.

The move was approved along with the city's $2-million budget which also proposed raising the mayor's salary from $9,000 to $11,500.

Mayor Robin Jeffrey felt the raise was justified for the office but recommended the salary remains unchanged until the next municipal election — at the end of 1976.

At that time, she said she would like a resolution modifying the mayor's salary.

Monday's meeting is the second in a week for council which customarily only holds regular sessions each two weeks.

The meeting was advanced since the mayor and several members of council will leave June 4 as part of a friendship flight to Lahr, Belleville's twin city in West Germany.

Also before council is a bylaw authorizing liquor stores in the city to stay open until 10 p.m. Mondays to Fridays — a move which follows council's approval of a request last week from the Liquor Control Board of Ontario.

The LCBO said it wants the longer hours for its Station St. outlet which it also plans converting to a self-serve store.

Bargaining Could Hurt

Contract bargaining by hospitals as a single group elsewhere in Ontario could have its effect at Belleville General Hospital.

Contracts with paramedical personnel at some hospitals in the province run out June 30 and a recent meeting of hospital groups has discussed the possibility of collective bargaining.

Although the suggestion is only in the preliminary stages, there appears "strong support" for bargaining in a collective style — similar to that with nurses last year, Philip Rickard, BGH executive director reported to the hospital board Friday.

The results of such a move "may be affecting to us," he told the board.

BGH's contract with its own paramedical staff is current until March 1976.

Locking Doors No Solution

By AL KAHAN
Staff Reporter

We've now heard from the other side of the great Fabricon debate that has seen much more than the usual amount of public criticism aimed in Town council's direction.

Fabricon Manufacturing Ltd. president Hans Allmendinger made two points during an interview this week. One, was that Fabricon also tried to keep its new plant in Trenton, contrary to an impression emanating from town hall that the town's efforts were too-dated. And secondly, he stated that unless Trenton provides land for industry it will lose another big plant, as it did to Belleville.

His statement is given solid evidence by his company's experience here. Unequivocally, he said the new 300-employee plant would have located in Trenton had any land been available that was accessible to service lines.

So Trenton council's attempt to come out of the loss of the new plant looking white and blameless failed to succeed. The fall guy fought back.

Fabricon, pressed by impending material delivery dates and deadlines, could not wait for Trenton to iron out problems in getting land the town felt was suitable for the company.

When you can't get land and you can't build a plant, you look elsewhere for fulfillment. Fabricon quite logically looked to fill its needs where it found its wants — in Belleville.

Although Mr. Allmendinger was reticent to compare the two centres, he didn't indicate would in saying he got satisfaction in Belleville in one and a half days.

That's quite a difference from the three months of active talks between Fabricon and Trenton in their efforts to settle on land.

Part of the problem here according to Mr. Allmendinger was the tangle of titles on the 30.9 acres of land discussed for the new plant. It wasn't owned by the town, and at least three different groups had some measure of control over it.

In other words, the town was pushing land that wasn't theirs to give. An unusual practice to say the least.

Given our most recent loss, one wonders whether the town will use a bottle of mouthwash to clean the bad taste out of its mouth, i.e. jawbone to get that property cleared for any other industry that might want to locate here. One wonders.

Council has nearly sidestepped that key issue — its own culpability in the loss. The apparent reasoning is as follows: well, we offered them the land, they didn't like it, so it's not our fault that they didn't take it.

As we've heard on several recent occasions, there were problems in assembling that chunk of 30.9 acres. Oh. But have we heard Word One about any attempt Trenton will make to solve the very problem that cost Trenton the new plant?

Nothing has been said about steps Trenton will take to prevent a re-occurrence.

That seems special, Trenton is complaining about the lack of industrial land in the town. It is bemoaning what it sees as inevitable — no land when what now exists is used. It is bemoaning the being down of land that can be made potentially available for industrial use.

And, as a sidelight, if Trenton does not clean its own house first, can it really expect that its municipal neighbors will give up part of their houses in answer to Trenton's cries over its lack of land? Not rudely likely!

Lack of Land Lost Industry

By MARG HAYLOCK
Staff Reporter

PICTON — This post-card pretty town on all the tourist routes will be partially closed down on Friday nights because of vandalism and obscene language on Main Street. This revelation is instantaneous to discovering that Pollyanna had "hums".

Several prominent Picton businessmen this month announced that they plan to extend their afternoon store hours but refuse to remain open on Friday nights.

Their theory is that the customer, especially the tourist customer, feels uncomfortable while shopping on Friday evenings because of the rough language on the streets. Most of these shoppers, say the merchants, would prefer to shop during the day when street talk is less colorful.

Several businessmen do not support the Friday night closings for the reasonable that dirty words are blighting trade. They plan to remain open as usual and are convinced customers will not be deterred by street talk.

All merchants contacted by The Intelligencer do agree, however, that language on Main Street often is offensive and in some instances "absolutely foul".

If Main Street is sprinkled with dirty words on Friday nights what self-respecting cash-carrying member of the Prince Edward Chamber of commerce would lock his doors to curb it?

Such tactics simply indicate the merchants' willingness to submit to bullying by foul-mouthed persons without regard for themselves or anyone else.

With every store door that is locked the Main Street "bad guys" win a point while the business men and the shoppers lose out.

Surely, merchants and customers can combine forces to help town police in weeding out the handful of persons who make the Friday night air blue with profanity and obscenities.

A joint shopper hears foul language on the street and can point out the offender to police certainly is more effective to lodge a complaint than to boycott the streets.

Merchants should consult with police as a group to discuss what can be done to make the Friday night scenes.

If it's generally felt that more patrolling is needed to keep the streets open to the public minus obscenities then merchants delegation to town council could suggest increasing the size of the town police force.

Yes, it would raise taxes but then so do museums and arenas and swimming pools. All of these facilities are policies taxpayers Picton residents are free to walk the streets all night of the week, Friday included.

The answer cannot be found in rolling up the sidewalks at 5:30 p.m. because it's a sure way to avoid the problem.

It should be obvious to the merchants that if customers cannot shop in Picton on Friday nights then they will shop in Belleville or Napanee or Kingston.

It's time to stop running and start coping.

Big Operation Often Even Bigger Headache

TORONTO — Bigger is not necessarily better in the dairy farm business, Ontario's McLaughlin, chairman of the Ontario Milk Marketing Board told dairy farmers here Wednesday.

Mr. McLaughlin, chairman of the OMMB since 1965, told delegates of county milk boards at their ninth annual meeting, too many farmers have been enticed into virtual serfdom to lending agencies because they were encouraged into expanding beyond their experience and abilities. Bigness, he said, as encouraged by farm organizations and government doesn't always help the farmer do a better job easier but can also increase the burden and complexity of the work.

He speculated whether the industry would not have been just as efficient today, if not more so, had farm and herd expansion taken its normal course of development ... and laid virtually all stress with the farmer on the need to get better rather than bigger.

Mr. McLaughlin, who owns a combined dairy and sheep farm near Beaverton, said many of the problems facing the dairy farmer, such as labor shortage and high capital investment would have been lessened and made more manageable if farm size increases were discouraged.

"It seems you can hardly be deemed much of a dairy farmer unless you break the skyline with a tower silo of some kind, unless you own a bulk milk storage tank and unless you are known in have a large monthly feed bill," he told about 200 delegates attending the two-day meeting.

"Furthermore" he said, "the cost of starting a large dairy operation has effectively eliminated many young people from farming as an occupation and forced them to migrate to the cities."

He noted the average farmer is not much better off compared to the average Canadian than he was 25 years ago, despite dramatic increases in efficiency in the milk producing industry and recent increases in milk prices.

"This can only mean efficiency gains of the dairy farmer, in the main, have been passed beyond the farm gate," he said, adding "I believe that ... every nickel increase in the farm price of milk has been accompanied by more than a nickel's worth of increased productivity."

He challenged labor unions and professional organizations to demonstrate productivity gains compared with income gains anything like those achieved by farmers and their marketing boards

He defended the work of farm marketing boards, and said consumers who blame them for the increasing cost of food because they want to continue the luxury-buying spree of the 60s and 70s are doomed for some disappointment.

Not only will food prices go up because of increased costs, but also to raise the living standards of farmers to levels more nearly comparable with those having similar financial risks, management ability and labor involvement, he said. Unless this equality is achieved over a reasonable period of time, more and more farmers will seek opportunities outside of agriculture, he predicted

The willingness of farmers to accept a cheap food policy at the expense of their living standard has come to an end, not only in Canada but among the world

Eliminating marketing boards will not increase food production, he said. Increased production will come only through better farm prices relative to costs in a market with stability and security.

'History of Recorded Sound' Exhibition Reflects Tenacity of Industry Here

By VINCENT EGAN

Business and Consumer Affairs Analyst

Thomson News Service

The recording industry in Canada has been hanging by a thread — from the first time sound was recorded on film in 1886 to the LP that was cut this week by singer Kenny Barrie.

Yet the thread has been strong enough to keep the recording industry alive despite the countless forecasts that it could not possibly survive—because of radio, because of U.S. competition, because of recession and so on.

Just how resilient the industry is can be seen by anyone visiting the simmer-long exhibition on the history of recorded sound, currently on display in the National Library of Canada in Ottawa.

For those who won't be in Ottawa this summer, the National Library has published (at $12.75) a valuable companion piece.

The thick volume, called Roll Back The Years, is a highly detailed yet absorbing retrospective look at the whole business—the artists, the inventors, the technicians, the manufacturers of records and play-back equipment, the wholesalers and the retailers.

Its author, the knowledgeable Edward B. Marks, is head of the National Library's recorded-sound section. Formerly a prominent broadcaster on network radio, he is Canada's greatest authority on the history of recording.

From the time the talking-machine business started to grow at the turn of the century, Canadians played a prominent role in its development—not the departure of countless performers in search of greener fields in the United States, Britain, France and other countries.

One major reason was that Emile Berliner, a brilliant German-American inventor, moved from Washington, D.C., to Montreal at about that time.

In Montreal, he and his sons, the thriving business they had pioneered the development of the Gramophone, the production of recordings, the pressing and distribution of records while rival Thomas Edison stubbornly went on manufacturing only cylinders until 1929; and the creation of a recording studio.

But the Berliners were not the only Canadian innovators. In 1904, Colin C. McKenzie of Whitehorse, Yukon, was the first to patent what today seems the more obvious of ideas—the double-sided disc. Until then, discs had been recorded on one side only.

Another major Canadian innovation: The first disc to be recorded electrically (as opposed to the acoustic type recording system) in 1926 by Horace Merriman of Hamilton.

The Canadian recording industry was almost killed off for good during the Great Depression, notes author Mogck.

Then it came, back stronger than ever at the Swing Era of the late 1930s—only to be hit again by the two-year ban on recording by the American Federation of Musicians, beginning in mid-1942.

There was a period after the Second World War when Canada's recording industry was largely a poor stepchild of the major multinational recording companies. Small companies, record producers would come and go—usually leaving behind big debts and unsold inventory.

That has enabled radio stations right across the country to meet federal requirements that they provide a certain minimum of Canadian music in their program schedules by dint of relying on wall-to-wall American music.

But the CTL recordings don't stop with Canadian radio stations. Strictly on their merits, they have been highly popular. Radio stations get a supply of the British Broadcasting Corp. and with listeners to hundreds of U.S. stations.

Not long ago, Air Canada came to CTL and asked for programs of Canadian music to be played aboard its fleet of 707 and DC9 airplanes on take-off and landing. (Until then, ours was the only major state airline not to feature its native music. And all new CTL albums issued since mid-1967—that is, all but the first 79—are available to individual collectors as well as to radio stations. Retail distribution, however, is not CTL's strong point, and shoppers need to be persistent to track down a copy of an LP album that may have heard on the air.

Canadian Talent lease CTL recordings at a monthly fee that is greatly lower than royalty rates. (Non-profit broadcasters are charged a nominal $25 a month. But even that constitutes contributing toward the encouragement of Canadian culture in the high tradition of the University of Alberta's Extension radio station, the provincially funded Ryerson Polytechnical Institute's radio station in Toronto and the Ontario Educational Association's TV station, all three have cancelled their CTL contracts.)

As a non-profit trust, neither CTL nor its organizer, Lyman Potts, ever sees the handsome rentals paid by the hundreds of stations that use its music. All the money flows into the trustee, Crown Trust Co., which pays CTL's bills.

Anything left over is applied to the production of more records. It's a costly business—the hourly rate for a studio and for each musician is about $50, with 12 to 15 hours being needed to record an album that runs about 30 minutes.

But it's one of those rare businesses in Canadian business—an arrangement that works out well for all concerned:

Radio stations get a supply of superior music at reasonable cost. Canadian musicians receive the recognition and encouragement they need—as well as worthwhile fees. Listeners, seeking relief from typical high-volume, low-talent hit-parade material, are treated to some of the most imaginative recordings ever made.

And Lyman Potts has the satisfaction of preserving the work of today's Canadian talent for posterity, just as the Berliners were doing in the first decade of this century.

A Canadian Tragedy

When President Kennedy was slain his successor, Lyndon Johnson, said: "We have suffered a loss that cannot be measured."

In Brampton there has been a shooting tragedy in a school to which these words might also apply.

Its impact on the students, their parents, the school staff, and the community is immeasurable.

The shooting itself, by a young student described by his sister as "normal," by others as quiet, was of a cold and calculating character spawned in the darker recesses of the mind. There have been others like it on this continent, although seldom by one so young, and seldom in Brampton.

Recriminations in such circumstances are pointless, the feeling among most perhaps being one of: "there but for the grace of God."

Immediately, of course, there have been questions about the gun laws. On Wednesday the day of the tragedy, The Intelligencer reported Hastings MP Jack Ellis as saying gun control legislation will be before Parliament "reasonably soon." Solicitor-General Allmand has spoken in similar terms, but it has taken the Brampton slayings to inject into the dialogue the urgency it deserves.

As it is, nothing can erase the horror of what occurred in an ordinarily peaceful Ontario community. It will leave its mark for years to come.

Dehumanized Society

An 18-year-old woman narrowly escaped death recently when she jumped from the Harmony Road overpass spanning Highway 401 near Oshawa into the path of an oncoming vehicle.

Police classed the incident as an unsuccessful suicide. The woman apparently leaped from the overpass after a domestic squabble, but suffered only minor injuries when the car swerved to avoid her.

Here is yet another manifestation of the troubled undercurrent in our society. An audience in Picton, which has been having its difficulties with weekend youthful hijinks, has heard it well delineated by Dr. Finlay G. Stewart.

Dr. Stewart's remarks were addressed to an International Accident Prevention Association group, but what he said has widter relevance. He said dehumanization of individuals and the onset of automation are the basis of problems in our society.

He spoke of a "diminishing sense of personal responsibility," as workers became more a part of the machine. And he said people "have to know that they matter." Every individual has to realize that he is the important factor in a business, industry, or society.

Education, according to Dr. Stewart, is subject to the same problem. "No longer is there a person-to-person relationship in our schools."

He's right of course. We hear of the humanities . . . but how much of it exists in our schools today?

The Way It Was

Remember the time when a young man began a career in industry upon leaving school? He served an apprenticeship and worked his way up.

It was like that with John Henry Beaton, one of the men who came in on the ground floor of General Motors in Oshawa along with Robert McLaughlin. The year was 1902 and he was 16. The company was known then as the McLaughlin Carriage Company.

It was a meteoric career. Mr. Beaton became sales manager after two years and returned from the company in 1930.

His career then branched out in other directions. Mr. Beaton held directorships or membership on more than a dozen organizations and committees in Oshawa. He was active in development of the city's hospital and the Red Cross, the Boy Scouts and in sports and service clubs.

Mr. Beaton died last week in the city to which he had contributed so much. His was a career in the best Canadian tradition.

Davis Looks to Federal Budget

By DON O'HEARN

Queen's Park Bureau

Thomson News Service

TORONTO : The new federal budget of Finance Minister John Turner, finally announced for June 23, will be looked at with strong interest here, particularly by the government.

Any federal budget, of course, is a major consideration for the provinces and this upcoming one will have more than most.

But with it there is the added spice that there is suspicion Premier Davis may be planning to centre his election campaign on conflict with Ottawa.

Premier Lougheed did this in Alberta, of course, with great success although he might have done just as well or be bad been had a appeal on the fact he goes to church on Sunday, he is Alberta in his grip.

Premier Davis' surprisingly strong stand at the federal-provincial energy conference last month and his otherwise tougher attitude indicate he may be thinking of the same thing.

If so, there are various fields in which he can pick a fight.

First of all, there is the question of energy prices.

Beyond energy there is the state of the economy, with unemployment and inflation.

This is such a nebulous area that no matter what action Mr. Turner takes to try and meet it, Ottawa can disagree with it. Significantly, the province is not in any fixed position herself taken no firm stands on what should be done about the economy.

Then there is support for housing and other matters which are always controversial and which provide plenty of ammunition for a scrap.

Thus here the first reaction of the government will be weighed as closely as the budget itself.

If it comes out strongly critical we may look to the beginning of an election fight.

It has not been the habit of the Davis government to oppose Ottawa budgets very strongly.

But if it comes out something there might even be a summer election, though admittedly that is a most remote possibility.

In any event, politically this budget could be more important to Ontario than any in recent years.

Avoiding Bankruptcy

Brockville Recorder and Times

The new Bankruptcy Act, a massive bill introduced last week by Consumer Affairs Minister Andre Ouellet, is an important piece of legislation which gives the honest individual a better chance to avoid bankruptcy, offers new protection to employees of firms who go broke, and makes bankruptcy more difficult for crooked operators attempting to cheat creditors. It also—at rightness—is a prime example of how much time complicated legislation can take. The bill is not expected to go into force until 1970 — a full decade after work was initiated on reforming the bankruptcy laws.

Barbarism Of Modern Society

Editor's note: Two or three years ago the following editorial appeared in the Montreal-based Quebec L'Action. It is a delicately-phrased and incisive commentary by Roger Brunson on our modern society, with special reference to the effect of that time which has had echoes in Brampton in recent days. Shades, too, of the dehumanizing process so evident in Vietnam and touched upon by Dr. Finlay G. Stewart in a recent address in Picton.

Quebec L'Action

A school in Roucherville was the scene of a drama . . . when a student killed himself after shooting a teacher and another student . . .

Every day we read news which shows an increasing and disorganized behavior on the part of some young people . . .

And parents, a great majority of them, have been largely relieved when faced by all the problems of their children; they have understood neither of what is going on and by renouncing their duty to make at least a small effort to help their children, they have simply abandoned them to the mercy of unscrupulous revolutionaries who preach the abolition of all social, moral and human values which are the basis of our civilization.

The myths are inserted, like numbers in a file, into a school system that becomes more and more dehumanizing, in order to prepare them to take their place in an amorphous society that offers them no joy or security.

What ideal can one devote oneself and efforts to, from the start, destined to be short-lived when one looks at the adult society where the illiterate and their living more easily than the university graduates or skilled workmen.

Is it to be surprised by a particular drama such as the one in Roucherville, it was only the logical conclusion to the series of events which our society has tolerated . . . We will see many other similar dramas while waiting until we have enough courage to bring back the ideals of our civilization to build a new and more human world.

UK Between the Devil and the Deep Blue Sea on European Membership Issue

By JOHN D. HARBRON

Foreign Affairs Analyst

Thomson News Service

In a few days the British will engage in a national exercise not attempted before, a national referendum to decide a political issue which should be decided in Parliament.

This is of course, Prime Minister Harold Wilson's referendum on whether British Guiana is or leaves the European Common Market. And his result in mid-June is just as "unpredictable at this point as any other development in Britain these days.

A vote to withdraw would appear to have as many ramifications as one is apt to expect. Mr. Wilson's sharply-divided ruling Labor Party is concerned, one can't see he will win either way from his national vote.

The British Labor Party is already split more or less down the centre on the issue of Britain in Europe. Its so-called "anti-market" wing of the Labor's far left have one thing only in common with the rightist Tories. Both feel somehow or other that international multinational companies permitted easy access into a Britain the Common Market, are out to shaft British enterprise.

The protests, populist as well as high-level political voices have been heard since the national referendum on British membership in Europe, are emotional—dangerous and unreal on Britain's current economic condition.

The British entry into Europe has been costly from the main in the street's point of view since he has had to absorb value added taxes and experience a hike in the price of many British goods as a result.

The British workingman, not exactly the most productive in Europe today, doesn't like the new competition from many less-expensive European imports, especially in high-tech engineering goods.

There are permitted as a result of the drop in British internal tariffs on many of these goods after Britain became a member state of the ECM.

The other side of the new very thorny issue is that British industry, as it isn't not on strike, has been made more efficient and competitive in the foreign competition.

And therein lay decision by the Wilson government to withdraw based on a negative vote, would simply mean British manufacturers would back into its allegedly traditional sheltered ways.

One also wonders if either of these new traditional arguments pro and con ever held much weight at all. Today they seem less obvious ones for attempting this exercise on a national vote on Europe.

Isn't it the most public manifestation of the growing failure of institutions in Britain to do their job? I don't say that lightly.

Chief Obstacle to Acceptance Of Christianity Is Injustice

By Dr. Gordon C. Smyth

For more than 30 years I have been in the ministry, I can say that the chief obstacle to the acceptance of the Christian religion is life itself. Vast numbers are unable to believe in God for this reason: the injustice of life.

In the pain and grief of night, even the Book of Job appears to be fake with its neat ending. Many feel that here its great author, Shakespeare, Charles Dickens slipped when he made Mr. Micawber so long just a success in Australia. Life, they say, is not like that.

We have not been thoroughly tested. Thus we have failed in our experience. I think we should be mature enough to accept the fact that some parts of the Bible, for the superficial reader or critic, may be quite unbelieving and completely sentimental.

I am convinced that we must avoid the mistake of trying to make the Bible a spiritual handbook out of Psalm 1. I am equally convinced that we must cultivate the truth that prosperity is the keynote of the Old Testament and adversity the keynote of the New.

I am sure that much of our Christianity, our church going and our prayers are for so many bargaining points with God; in effect, they may be quite "If I cast my vote for God, what will my damages be?"

The religious life is no guarantee of a special dispensation. It will at most yield us the results of our own incompetence, nor will it protect us against a lack of talent or knowledge, against serious reversals, the malice of others, ill health, loss of money or prestige, and a hundred other calamities.

I ask you to consider the secret of the incomparable magnetism of the Founder of the Christian religion. That secret was his inner life. The secret of his earthly ministry make it clear that the justice of God is rarely found in our environment. "God is spirit," Jesus taught. Therefore, his grace and power move in (and from) the deep regions of the soul.

There have been periods of history in which the comforts and certitudes of the Gospel seemed to be withdrawn. But Christianity persisted and triumphed. This is a hard way and it is ours in this age.

The Gospel of Christ will take on rich meaning for us, this month, its appeal to others for whom life is no bed of roses, who we stop making religion an escape from the conflict, a haven of refuge. Surely it warms the heart, kindles the mind and straightens the spine when the Master says "He who endures to the end will be saved" (Mark 13:13).

Pentecostal Movement Irks Many Protestants

By GEORGE CORNELL
AP Religion Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Roman Catholic leaders are smiling on the pentecostal-style charismatic movement that has surged in many mainline denominations but some Protestants, among whom it first arose, are dismayed by it.

"Frankly, charges a group of Baptists who, at their religion, were supposed to be themselves.

"The movement offers "many positive signs," says an official Lutheran statement.

In both branches of Christianity, however, there are phenomena that range from strong approval to antagonism, along with considerable perplexity.

"It's too fuzzy," said Catholic Bishop Floyd L. Begin of Oakland, Calif., adding that he doubts its "well-adjusted leaders" will yield to church direction, "they should but they won't."

"It's scary but we've got to be open to the scary," said Rev. Colin Williams, dean of the Divinity School at Yale, a United Church of Christ minister.

The approach stresses spontaneity, prayer meetings, Bible quoting, healing services, a return to the apostles' ways and speaking in unknown tongues. Estimates are that close to 500,000 American Christians, including 300,000 Catholics, are involved.

Indications of Catholicism's increasing official support came recently with issuance of a report by a United States bishops' committee, headed by Archbishop John R. Quinn of Oklahoma City.

"Previously the view was wait and see but now it is basically one of support," he said. However, "We point out some dangers, some norms that should be followed if the movement is to develop in a healthy way."

The analysis said many belonging to the movement "experience a new sense of spiritual values, a heightened commitment of the action of the Holy Spirit, the praise of God and a deepening personal commitment to Christ."

The report cautioned against "undesirable aspects" but takes a generally positive view, urging bishops and priests to develop a relationship with the movement in order to offer guidance.

The movement also has leading supporters among Lutherans, Episcopalians, Presbyterians and American Baptists, among whom it has cropped up extensively, but there also are undercurrents of unrest.

Objections have become outspoken in some cases. "A new extremism," the Oklahoma Baptist Convention called the phenomenon. "Divisive and doctrinally erroneous."

It lacks "sufficient scriptural support," said the Louisiana Baptist Convention. Northern Southern Baptist leaders and local associations have denounced it, calling it divisive, although some defend it.

Pentecostalism first emerged in the United States early in this century among Protestants, resulting in several separate denominations stressing the "spirit-filled" experience.

The new upturge (neo-pentecostalism) came in mainline Protestantism early in the 1960s and hit Roman Catholicism in 1967.

Studies, presented to a recent meeting of the U.S. bishops, said that understandably a new movement involves "a certain mixture of desirable and undesirable elements," adding:

"Efforts and that kind of biblical fundamentalism which offends against the authenticating norms of Sacred Scripture . . . are two of those dangers. . . . There is also the danger for some . . . to ignore the intellectual and doctrinal content of faith and reduce it to a felt religious experience."

However, the report expressed hope that "the truly positive values" will prevail.

When John Cardinal Cherry of St. Louis questioned the report's recommendation that bishops and priests be present at charismatic prayer meetings, Archbishop Quinn observed that he himself wasn't a charismatic, but added: "I've attended the prayer meetings and while the style of prayer is not my own, I do have respect for it and don't feel uncomfortable with it."

Almost One Quarter Of Nuns Quit Order

DES MOINES, Iowa (AP)—In 1950, eight women graduates of St. Joseph Academy entered convents.

Five of them, now in their early 40s, later left their orders without the fanfare with which some of them caught the "train" out of Des Moines to their convents.

They learned to find jobs, pay bills and meet men.

"I'd compared it to the great rush by young people to join the Peace Corps a few years back," said one. "The big cause for us in 1950 was to be a nun."

The women were among dozens who left religious orders in the turbulent late 1960s.

In Iowa, more than 400 of 1,700 sisters left in a three-year period, says Sister Michael Geary of Dubuque, secretary-general of the Sisters of Charity of the Blessed Virgin Mary.

Polly Fonseleman was one of the first to enter a convent. She recalled shopping with friends for bikini bathing suits, long cotton nightgowns and "serviceable underwear."

After 22 years, she left her order because "I decided I wanted and needed to establish deeper relationships with people and I couldn't do that and still remain a nun."

Now a Memphis, Tenn., teacher, she says nuns have "no idea of what going on in the world outside the convent. But many people on the outside also desire her.

"They have such a phony living style . . . Nice house and the furniture. And vacations. Keeping up with the Joneses is all they know," she said.

Molly Kurtz is a management trainer in Minneapolis. She checked in her habit after 18 years.

"I didn't think about dentist bills and income tax and retirement or any of that stuff beto e I left," she said.

She lives in a large apartment complex with a swimming pool and enjoys cross-country skiing.

Single life was hard to adjust to, Miss Kurtz says. "At first it was uncomfortable, going out with men. I was very self-conscious. But I found that some are just awfully boring. And really,the interesting men are married."

Miss Kurtz teaching in Omaha when I decided to leave," says the former Suzanne Michvihil, now Mrs. Harry Higdon of South Bend, Ind.

Gun Control Laws To Remain Same

WETBURN, Sask. (CP) — The shooting deaths of two high school students and a teacher at a Brampton, Ont., high school will not result in stricter gun control legislation, Justice Minister Lang said Friday.

Speaking in an interview, he said Canada has stricter legislation than most other countries, including the U.S., and the laws should be enforced rather than tightened.

"I don't believe registering hunting shotguns and pellets really changes anything in the way of safety because it's just a lot of red tape yet the guns would be just as readily available.

"Education is the main course of action that's required here rather than legislation."

Maracle Sentenced

KINGSTON, Ont. (CP) — Stanley Maracle, 20, of North Grower, Ont., was sentenced in provincial court Friday to imprisonment for two years less a day and 18 months probation after he was convicted of a bizarre sexual relationship with a girl less than 14 years old. He originally was charged with rape in the connection with the incident last March 15 but the charge was withdrawn by the Crown attorney.

Teacher Buried

LOWER NORTON, N.B. (CP) — Marjorie Wright, a young English teacher gunned down in a bizarre shooting spree by a student Wednesday at a Brampton, Ont., school, was buried here Friday after a brief ceremony in the century-old Anglican Church of the Ascension.

The 20-year-old woman was one of three persons, including the teenaged gunman, killed in the incident. Thirteen others were injured.

Davis Will Lead

TORONTO (CP) — Premier William Davis will lead a seven-hour Shriner's International parade to the steps of the legislature buildings July 1 and participate in a flag-raising ceremony accompanied by the singing of O Canada by the bands. The legislature will be decorated with a "Happy Birthday Canada" banner. Ontario also will honor Canada's birthday with the presentation of medal presentation and dinner on June 4 and a special Dominion Day program at Ontario Place.

Rate Increased

MONTREAL (CP) — Royal Trust announced Friday it has increased the interest rate on five-year term deposits to 9½ per cent from 9¼ per cent. The new rate takes effect Monday, June 2.

Request Withdrawn

MONTREAL (CP) — Canada's major railways withdrew a request for a seven-per-cent surcharge on freight moving between Canada and the U.S., a CP Rail spokesman said Friday. The proposed surcharge was withdrawn after the Interstate Commerce Commission agreed to allow Canadian rail ways to participate in a seven-per-cent surcharge granted to U.S. companies.

Charles to Study

LONDON (AP) — Prince Charles in years ahead may become a member of the Royal Navy's top brass, his defence ministry said Friday. The 26 year-old prince, a lieutenant, begins a three-month course at the Royal Naval College in Greenwich in September.

Kennedy Firm

TEL AVIV (AP) — Senator Edward Kennedy, on a tour of the Middle East, arrived in Israel Friday and reaffirmed his decision not to seek the U.S. presidency. The Massachusetts Democrat said he has not changed his mind about running for the office.

Housing Slump Hits Farming

EDMONTON (CP) — Canada's slumping housing industry is having an adverse effect on one sector of the farming economy.

In Canada this year, new housing starts are estimated at only 218,000, down five per cent from 1974 and far below the record 1973. With fewer housing starts, there will be a reduced demand for seed to sow new lawns.

Marcel Maisonneuve, marketing economist for the Alberta agriculture department, said the demand for grass seed is related to the number of acres required for new houses and for accompanying development of parks, golf courses and roads.

"A healthy home-building industry in North America will be required to maintain, and hopefully increase, the demand for Canadian creeping red fescue seed," he said.

He said the carryover of creeping red fescue, in addition to an estimated crop this year of 30 million pounds, may mean total inventory at the end of the year of about 36 million pounds.

With similar housing-start declines in the United States and that country's large stocks of grass seed, Canadian exports will be reduced and prices will decline, he said.

Mr. Maisonneuve said Alberta produces more than 65 per cent of Canada's creeping red fescue seed.

Canative Housing Provides Homes for Unwanted Tenants

EDMONTON (CP) — Providing housing for tenants most landlords don't want is what the locally-based Canative Housing Corp. is all about.

"Sometimes applicants break down in tears when they get a house," said Gordon Hornby, general manager of the native-housing organization.

"They tell me it's the first chance anyone has ever given them to provide their families with a decent place to live."

The private, non-profit organization was formed in 1971 by a group of concerned citizens to improve native housing conditions in Edmonton and Calgary.

Canative now owns 140 houses — 100 here and 40 in Calgary — scattered in large, low-income families.

Large families are frequently discriminated against by landlords, Mr. Hornby said. The problem is compounded when the family is native.

"Just try approaching a landlord and telling him you've got seven kids . . . no way he'll rent," said Herman Eckstein, a native fisherman who rented a Canative home last winter.

Most Canative houses are older, four-bedroom dwellings with an average rent of $240 a month. So far the corporation has operated with a $3-million loan from Central Mortgage and Housing Corp., as well as government grants for administration.

"We've had to raise rents recently, but they still are considerably below the ceiling rate," said Mr. Hornby, the only native staff member.

The corporation, operated by five shareholders, has a full-time staff of 12, including clerical and maintenance workers. It also operates a branch office in Calgary.

Canative is considering establishment of a native train ing and trades construction to help maintain the houses, many of which require a lot of work, the general manager said.

He said that despite an inflated house market and problems with unhappy tenants, Canative's first 3½ years have been largely successful.

"We've proven that Canative is economically sound and we've put native families into decent housing.

"We've also established an urban-orientation program to help tenants adjust to urban life."

Canative's urban-orientation program, unique in Canada, focuses on the experience of natives who have successfully adjusted to urban life to counsel.

Topics such as property care and juvenile delinquency are discussed in the counselling classes, with child care and transportation provided to tenants.

"This isn't just a landlord-tenant relationship," Mr. Hornby said. "We're here to help natives cope with the pressures of urban life."

Canative has some of the usual tenant problems, including cases of disrespect for property and neighborhood disturbance.

"But we knew when we went into this project that this type of problem exists and we're here to cope with it."

There have also been cases of white neighborhoods drawing up petitions to protest Canative housing. "but generally this city is not as extreme as others," the general manager said.

Mr. Hornby, who first became interested in native rights while growing up in Yellowknife, N.W.T., said he hopes other groups similar to Canative will spring up to fill the large demand for native housing.

Despite the achievements of the corporation, it is really only a drop in the bucket, he said.

Munro Identified In Harbor Trial

HAMILTON (CP) — A tape recording obtained by a police wiretap in April, 1974, was played in court Friday and revealed that Kenneth Elliott made reference to federal Labor Minister John Munro during a telephone conversation with Horace Rindress.

The tape was played while Mr. Rindress, a former dredging company president was testifying for the Crown in the case against Elliott, 42, a former Hamilton harbor commissioner, and local businessman Reginald Fisher, 42, in Ontario Supreme Court on 19 charges of conspiracy, fraud and uttering.

The witness was laid to connection with alleged kickbacks and payoffs in dredging and construction projects in Hamilton harbor between 1970-72.

Mr. Rindress said he co-operated with the police during the telephone call to Elliott in return for a pledge that no charges would be laid against him.

On the tape, the witness asked Elliott if he had any "political clout."

"Not a thing, Joe," Elliott answered.

Later in the taped conversation, Elliott added: "The way I busted my ass for those politicians, the money I've gotten them over the years. Not they M. go run and hide, including Munro."

He continued: "That's one thing that hits my ass more than anybody—Munro."

"Well, he started this whole thing, didn't he?" Mr. Rindress replied.

"You bet your ass he did," Elliott concluded.

Mr. Munro, MP for Hamilton East, is listed as a witness in the indictment, but has not yet been called.

Elliott urged Mr. Rindress during the conversation to remain calm, explaining that politics were helpless unless someone talked.

"I don't think anybody is going to be charged unless someone starts talking," Elliott said on the tape.

On the tape, the two men made references to money, with Elliott saying that J. P. Porter "says that it is going to have to come up with the tax on those three big ones."

The witness, former president of J. P. Porter, said he believed the three big ones' was a code reference to $18,000, which he said earlier was laundered through a fictitious company by Elliott.

Throughout the tape, Elliott often referred to the possibility of a wiretap.

Earlier, Mr. Rindress described how Elliott devised a cover story to try and explain how kickbacks were handled.

Mr. Rindress has testified in a series of kickbacks and payoffs involving Elliott and a number of dredging companies.

The witness also said Elliott told him that a kickback on a J. P. Porter dredging contract, which eventually totalled $180,000, was ultimately divided among Elliott and the other two members of the three-man harbor commission.

Mr. Rindress said Elliott told him that after expenses, his share totalled between $40,000 and $45,000.

In earlier testimony, he described how Elliott laundered several hundred thousand dollars through a fictitious company, International Marine, which was based in a Fort Lauderdale, Fla., bank.

Mr. Rindress said the carefully-constructed system of hiding the payoffs began to collapse in late 1972, under careful scrutiny by the RCMP and the revenue department in Canada, as well as the FBI and the Internal Revenue Service in the United States.

The trial adjourned to Tuesday.

Peterborough Firm Supplies Caribbean Firms

PETERBOROUGH, Ont. (CP) — The Canadian tourist trade brings back a collection of swizzle-sticks as reminders of his favorite watering hole in the Caribbean may well have acquired a batch of souvenirs that came all the way from Peterborough.

Harco Enterprises Ltd., a small father-and-son operation, turns out 18 million of the plastic stirrers a year and ships them to Trinidad and Bermuda as well as many of the fancier refreshment stops across Canada.

Gratton Harris and his son Ray got into the business three years ago by acquiring the swizzle-stick operation of a London, Ont., plastics firm. It now accounts for 45 per cent of their production, which also includes plastic milk cartons and the rebuilding of special presses used in the food and beverage business.

Minister Is Concerned Over Misunderstanding

TORONTO (CP) — Sidney Handleman, minister of consumer and commercial relations, told a seminar conducted by the Institute of Public Administration of Canada Friday that he has a growing concern about the suspicion and cynicism displayed toward government by consumers.

The average citizen, he said, doesn't make a distinction between the legislative and administrative sides of government.

"If a program works, and is perceived to be working by the citizen, then little is said. When there is a breakdown, however, most people look at the politician and the administrator and say 'a plague on both your houses'."

Mr. Handleman said, in case of ensuring a basic fairness in the marketplace and a concerned protection for the consumer within that marketplace.

"That does not always have meant more regulation. Indeed, in Ontario we have tried to avoid the federal model of responding to any problem with new regulations heaped over the top of already somewhat complicated ad hoc regulatory decisions."

He said a trend of concern in the democracies of the free world is "a new and often heavy-handed belief in the intrinsic value of central planning and greater government intrusion in all areas."

Any exclusive reliance on regulation is both foolhardy and simplistic, he added.

A text of his remarks was released in advance of delivery.

Schisms Were Plentiful Among Early Churches

EDITOR'S NOTE: Storm and stress were endured as Presbyterian synods throughout Canada after the British conquest in 1764. How differing viewpoints were reconciled is told in this the second of three stories on the 50th anniversary of the United Church of Canada.

By R. J. ANDERSON
The Canadian Press

Protestantism spread rapidly through Upper Canada after the British capture of Quebec in 1759, later came splits.

The United Empire Loyalists who came to Canada after the U.S. revolution became firmly entrenched in what now is Ontario.

Though their patriotic fervor was given to the Crown, their religious structure long remained tied to the new United States.

Early Methodist ministers in Upper Canada were sent from the U.S. by the famous Bishop Asbury whose mammoth stands near the Capitol in Washington. Canadian Methodists contributed heavily towards its cost in the 20th century.

These preachers held services in pioneer homes or in schoolhouses, if there were any. They were linked in circuits and eventually joined in a Canada Conference in 1824, though still part of the American church. In 1828 they became the Methodist Episcopal Church in Canada.

OPPOSED TO TIES

British authorities didn't like the American connection and Canadian Methodist preachers were not permitted to perform marriage ceremonies.

The Canadians, links with the United States church broken in 1828, found they couldn't go it on their own and in 1833 they formed a union with the British Wesleyan Methodist conference.

Difficulties developed immediately.

The British conference exercised firm control over the Canadians. There was controversy over abandonment of the episcopal form of church government. The Canadians had been accustomed to a church governed by bishops.

About two-thirds of them stayed under the British Wesleyan conference; the other third reconstituted a Methodist Episcopal Church in Canada. For 50 years there were two rival churches in Upper Canada.

The opposing groups were unified in 1884 when almost all Canada's Methodists except for the Evangelical United Brethren, a German-language body with origins in the United States, and the British Methodist Episcopal Church, a black denomination came under one banner. The Brethren joined the United Church in 1968 when they numbered about 17,000.

There was a compromise on the troublesome question of the episcopate. Under a semi-episcopal form of government, court-bishops were retained under the title of general superintendents. They were elected for specific terms and in effect retained their offices for life.

The Presbyterian church, in the meantime, also was a house divided.

The first Presbyterians came from Scotland in the 18th century and formed into groups long at odds with each other. The main base was in Nova Scotia.

Some fleets who came to Upper Canada joined the Methodists or the Church of England (which became the Anglican Church of Canada in 1950) but by 1831 there were enough Church of Scotland ministers in the Canadas to form the "Synod of the Presbyterian Church of Canada in Connection with the Church of Scotland."

In 1844-45, free-church schisms developed in the Church of Scotland synods of the Canadas and Eastern British America. Three vigorous and militant evangelical Free Presbyterian synods were organized and became the nucleus of the Presbyterian Church in Canada in 1875.

That union was only partially successful.

Minorities broke away and formed what were known as kirk synods in the Maritimes, Quebec and Ontario. The Canadian census of 1881 showed more than 21,000 non-concurrent kirk members in the Maritimes and about 11,000 in Ontario and Quebec.

So opposed to the union of 1875 were the kirk synods that they took court action against the majority. After years of court battles that ended in the Privy Council—the kirks lost—the minority synods disintegrated.

Rev. Glenn Lucas, archivist of the United Church of Canada, says of the disunity of 1875:

"Few of the children of these people entered the United Church in 1925 and most of them actively opposed its formation.

"The union of 1925 gave these same congregations another opportunity to dissent and most of them did. The arguments for and against the 1925 union were often reminiscent of those used in 1875.

"They were joined by some people of Free Church background and a few of secedet tradition to form a continuing Presbyterian Church of Canada."

United Church: The First Roots

New Light Congregationalists Hated Catholicism, Loved Fish

EDITOR'S NOTE: The United Church of Canada was born June 10, 1925, of a union of Methodists, Congregationalists and Presbyterians. The historical background of the Presbyterian churches. Not long they came together is told in three stories, of which this is the first.

By R. J. ANDERSON
The Canadian Press

They came yowed in hand, breathing fire, a great crusade against Roman Catholicism in French Canada.

Pecuniary interest was of more than a little importance. They also had an eye on the rich fisheries of the Grand Banks off Newfoundland, long dominated by France.

They were congregationists 300 strong, the first large group of Protestants to come to Canada, stirred by the "great awakening" in New England. Their motto was: "Christ is our leader."

William Pepperell, a wealthy merchant of Kittery, Me., was the military leader of that New England militia expedition, which stormed the French fortress of Louisbourg on Cape Breton Island in what now is Nova Scotia in 1745. Pepperell felt anguished when Britain returned Louisbourg to France in 1748.

For almost three years the New Light-Congregationalists, as they called themselves, worshipped in the King's Chapel in the Chateau de Louis of Louisbourg, converted into a New England meeting house and served by Congregationalist militia chaplains.

After the retirement to Halifax, founded in 1749, the New Lights held services in the Mather Meeting House, built by the British government in 1750.

The preacher was Rev. Aaron Cleveland of the Congregationalist Church, the first regularly settled minister in modern-day Canada; it says of the three persuasions now within the United Church of Canada.

The Mather Meeting House became a Presbyterian church in the 19th century and now is known as St. Matthew's, the oldest congregation of the United Church.

The story of the fighting Congregationalist militiamen from New England, and of the Presbyterian and Methodist churches, that eventually came together to form Canada's United Protestant denomination, lies in the archives of the United Church in Victoria College, Toronto.

Archivist Rev. Glenn Lucas Gilu il swifty, eagerly and well fie he has been putting it together for almost a decade. Befcre that, he was a historian for the restoration of the fortress of Louisbourg as a national historical treasure.

The New Lights in New England were the result of a religious crusade by Rev. Jonathan Edwards and Rev. George Whitefield, a confrere of John Wesley in the evangelical revival.

In an interview, Mr. Lucas described Whitefield as a Calvinist (believer in predestination) whereas Wesley was an Arminian (believer in free will) in theology.

At Truro, a settlement of from New Hampshire founded Canada's first Presbyterian congregation about 1790. That Truro church now is called First United Church.

There had been two earlier settlements of Reformed Dutch (Calvinist) background in Canada before the Congregationalists—at Lousburg but both had short histories.

The first settlers in New France were French Presbyterians. About 1600, one M. Chauvin (or Calvin) brought Huguenot settlers to Tadoussac on the north shore of the St. Lawrence River. Chauvin died in 1601, and most of the settlers soon perished of famine or disease.

In 1604 the Sieur de Monts established a colony at Port Royal in Acadia with both a Huguenot pastor and a Catholic cure to serve their respective flocks. De Monts, a Calvinist, remained governor of Acadia until 1618.

A change of policy in colonial administration in France in 1627 prohibited Protestantism in New France and Acadia and the French Reformed Church disappeared in Canada until after the British conquest in 1759.

Methodism—a variation of Anglicanism with stress on holiness, conversion and discipline—came to mainland Canada with immigrants from Yorkshire who settled in Sackville, N.S., area about 1776. Earlier (1662), it had been established around Concepion Bay, Newfoundland.

Methodism resulted from the religious movement started in 1729 by John and Charles Wesley, both Anglican priests. It became an organized church in the United States—the Methodist Episcopal Church—in 1784 but was not considered a regularly constituted church in England until after John Wesley's death in 1791.

Methodism in Canada received its greatest impetus after the American Revolution. Many American Methodists fled to Canada and among them were Barbara Heck, acknowledged as the founder of Methodism in colonial America, the children of her cousin Philip Embury, the first Methodist preacher in America, and George Neal, a United Empire Loyalist who settled in the Niagara area.

Neal later was ordained a deacon in the Methodist Episcopal Church. The first Methodist church in Upper Canada, built in 1792 near Ernestown, still stands in restored condition.

The original Presbyterians in Canada were mostly seceders from the state church in Scotland in the 18th century. In Nova Scotia, Burgher and anti-Burgher seceder presbyteries united in 1817 to form the Presbyterian Church of Nova Scotia. In the Canadas, various seceder and other branches of Scotland Calvinist ministers formed the United Synod of the Canadas in 1818.

Mr. Lucas describes Canadian Presbyterianism prior to formation of the United Church of Canada in 1925 as a church that never was really unified, a loosely organized denomination that allowed great autonomy to its congregations and had almost no headquarters organization.

These Mufflers Outlast Cars!

Ontario's Milk Commission is undertaking a study into milk distribution and pricing; the object of the inquiry is to determine what elements in the chain from producer to consumer contribute to the final price of milk.

Among the specific information sought is the retail margin on milk in Ontario and other places.

Enquiries about the inquiry and briefs should be sent to J.F. Jones, secretary, the Milk Commission of Ontario, Ontario Ministry of Agriculture and Food, Parliament Buildings, Toronto, Ontario, M4Z 1V2.

My car is currently working on eroding the third exhaust system. It's bad in its short three-year, 22,000 mile life.

Experts tell me if it had more mileage — put on during normal use — I'd probably still be using my first muffler. Moisture, which doesn't dry out during short trips, corrodes the metal, aided by salt and acids.

But, if the car manufacturers who produced my car had the foresight to figure I'd be happy to pay $10 extra (on a purchase of that size, what's $10?) for a stainless steel exhaust system there's no doubt I'd have the muffler longer than the car.

In fact, the University of Ottawa researchers who are studying stainless steel mufflers believe they can be recycled from car to car. They propose mufflers made from the same type of stainless steel used in your kitchen sink and predict that material cost and fabrication cost would add only $10 to the cost of a sheet metal muffler.

Car manufacturers, however, have resisted the move to stainless so far on several grounds which you can judge for yourself. Initially they claim that consumer would not be prepared to pay more for a full life exhaust system. Secondly, they believe it would cost too much. Finally, the manufacturers worry about availability of chrome to produce the stainless steel.

Writing in the Canadian Consumer, the magazine of the Consumers' Association of Canada, Daniel Gorman, associate professor of mechanical engineering at the University of Ottawa, makes one telling comment on the problems Canadians face with corroding exhaust systems.

He believes our climate exaggerates the problem and that the fact that there are no indigenous manufacturers of automobiles accounts for the lack of progress in producing mufflers that last.

Being Beautiful Costs More, Prices Are Going Up

Carmen says women still want to be beautiful

"People still have to eat, and they've still got to be beautiful."

Carmen, of Carmen's Beauty Salon, sums up the reason he thinks clients continue to patronize the city's hairdressers in spite of rising prices and tighter money.

"The regular customers are still regular," he says.

Carmen adds that prices in his shop have gone up by 100 per cent in the last several years but at that they haven't kept up with costs.

"A few of our products have tripled in the last two years — and we're not leveling up. If we did, people couldn't afford to have their hair done."

One product — a chemical dye — has increased from $3 to $7 in the last six months.

"The cause is short supply," Carmen believes.

"I think somebody is stockpiling the stuff and that sends the prices up. Somebody is hoarding."

He admits concern about the future.

"Well (hairdressers) probably said at one time everybody else — we'll price ourselves right out of business."

Other hairdressers in the city echo his sentiments.

Jan Scarpa of The Continental, believes beauty salons will soon be "in the same position as General Motors."

"Nobody could buy cars because they cost too much. I keep telling our supply salesmen you people only damage yourselves.

"If prices keep going up, eventually everything will stop."

Mr. Sacneka says that he hasn't increased prices much.

"We have a lot of clients who are older pensioners. I might increase by 25 cents but I don't have the heart to go to an $8 or $9 haircut.

"I wouldn't be able to live with my conscience."

Vivian Jewell of Jewell-Bremore, too, has many regular customers who continue to come in weekly.

"The regulars accept price increases and carry on," she says.

"In the last couple of years our supply prices have gone up considerably — our prices to customers should have doubled but they've only gone up about 50 per cent.

"We're operating at less profit than ever before."

In Belleville, a hair cut, shampoo and set or blow dry can cost from $6.50 to $13 depending on the salon and the kind of hair — long hair cost more.

"A blow dry costs more than a set," Carmen explains, "because there's far more labor involved."

Michael Guerra of the Venus Salon plans to put prices up next week.

"Our prices haven't gone up for two and a half year," he says.

Perhaps because of this, his customers have continued to have their hair done in spite of inflation.

"Our prices have to go up," he says and explains the increase will be more than 20 per cent.

"Our prices have gone up very little — about 15 per cent — in the last while but it looks like we'll have to increase in the fall," says Sal of The Salon adding that supplies have increased 40 per cent recently.

The young women who make up the majority of shop's clientele still seem willing to spend money on beauty, Sal says.

"Everybody else is getting a raise," Michael Guerra says, "why not us?"

Fraser — McKell

BRENDA ANNE BAKER, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Baker of Kingston, has graduated from Queen's University with her Bachelor of Arts in Geography. Brenda is employed at Queen's University, Kingston.

Joy Jennie McKell became the wife of Larry Guy Fraser in a spring wedding held in the Howick United Church, Howick, Quebec, conducted by Rev. John Anderson.

The bride is the daughter of the late Whitelord McKell and Mrs. Jennie McKell of Howick. The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Guy Fraser of Point Anne, Ontario.

Given in marriage by her brother, Gordon McKell, the bride wore a white brocade gown embossed with daisies, with an empire waistline and full flowing bishop sleeves. The headpiece was of nylon dainies with a three-tier floor length veil. She carried a bouquet of red and white carnations, a single daisy with ivy entwined.

Faye McKell was maid of honor in turquoise, and Agnes McKell and Mildred McKell were bridesmaids in dresses identical to the maid of honor. Their gowns were sleeveless with short matching jackets in a turquoise color. They carried bouquets of white and yellow daisies.

Kimberly McKell was flower girl in a matching turquoise dress and bouquet of flowers.

The groom's best man was Rick Rosebush, and his ushers were Colin Haine and Danny McKell.

The reception was at the Howick Curling Club with a dance following. The bride and groom traveled to Florida on their honeymoon and now reside in Toronto.

Miss Beckel Lives on Batik

REGINA (CP) — A 21-year-old Saskatchewan artist, who earns a living solely by selling her art, says everyone told her "You'll never do it."

Cathi Becket of Silton, Sask. specializes in making handsome, brightly-colored batiks which sell between $40 to $70, depending on size and quality.

"I am selling them low considering the work that goes into them, but you sort of have to if people are going to buy them," she says.

Batik, made by using an Indonesian technique of printing textiles with hot wax and dyes, takes 15 to 30 hours to complete, not including time spent working out a design.

Miss Becket was introduced to batik during an art course course, and has developed her own, more sophisticated techniques.

Her subject matter varies from floral designs to Oriental figures.

"I just do whatever interests me, and I get a lot of ideas from art history books.

"All I want to do is to make a living and to do good art. And it's amazing, really quite amazing, that it's all worked out so well."

— She says she has had difficulty in finding outlets to display and market her batiks, and relies on word-of-mouth for most of her customers.

"Selling to friends—that's how it started and it still seems to work that way."

Miss Beckel once tried to market her work through a local department store, but that fell through when the store marked up her batiks about 100 per cent.

Many artists have no explored batik because it often is looked down upon as being a craft, not an art form, she says.

"But if you think about it, the same things go into it as go into a painting. You just use dyes instead of paint."

Smallman — Wells

The early May wedding of Sandra Madeline Wells and Ronald Kenneth Smallman was conducted by Rev. Clare Kellogg in Holloway Street United Church.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Donald Wells, and the groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Williams Smallman.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a lace gown with ayelet design, pearl buttons and long sleeves with lace ruffles. Her chiffon veil was trimmed in daisy lace, and her headpiece was also of spring daisies design. The bride's bouquet was of American Beauty Roses and she wore an heirloom necklace.

The maid of honor was Karen Smith, who wore a blue dress, and carried a bouquet of pink roses and white carnations. Linda Woods served as bridesmaid wearing a pink outfit of spring flower design with a bouquet of yellow roses and white carnations.

The groomsman was Jeff Ellington and the usher was Stu Porter.

A buffet luncheon was held after the ceremony.

The couple reside on Bleecker Avenue in Belleville.

Obscene Calls Frightening

Dear Ann Landers: My community and I have been receiving five obscene phone calls in the last two weeks. We're scared. Is this a person, calling known who we are and what we look like?

Please tell us what to say.

Dear S. N.: The person who makes obscene phone calls is a sickie who gets his jollies from sending rumbles of sex, perversity or disgust. In short, he enjoys upsetting people.

The question you realize it's that kind of a call, hang up without saying one word. If he calls a second time, hang up again. A third and fourth—do the same.

Always answer—don't just let the phone ring. "Hello" and wait to make sure you know for certain it's the call. Then hang up. Those creeps usually call from a phone booth. When you answer and hang up, they lose their direct. Your silence will interfere with the loss of dimes, will almost always discourage the caller before long.

If any threats are made, notify the police at once.

If calls persist, call the phone company and explain what happens when the calls can be traced.

Dear Ann Landers: I am the mother of a sick child who is under five years of age. The first symptom of his illness is a high fever. He has been hospitalized for convulsions three times.

The problem is the doctor. Everyone else is very kind and nervous I become very unsure when I approach him. I think my son is getting sick, so I phone the doc in a "cheerful, I'm-not-a-pestilent" mission. There are 34 chain stores in his area. He visits them to see prices and quality offered.

"We have to look out for each other," he said. "We've at each other's necks for a thousand reasons but we have to keep faith in the industry."

Unexpected Bonus for Unseasoned Traveller

"Is there anyone on board who speaks Greek? We have an elderly lady here who comes from Greece and is travelling to Vancouver. She speaks no English.

"She keeps repeating something which sounds like 'sepas'. If there is anyone who understands or can talk Greek, would they please come to see me at the front of the plane?"

After this appeal, Nicole, the flight service director on my plane, explained to me: "We have offered her food, coffee, shown her the washroom, — she shakes her head and she keeps repeating this one word. Now we are going to wire ahead to Winnipeg to see if we can get a translation of 'sepas'. There is a Greek mechanic in our staff there who might help."

Still later, Nicole (cute, slender, in a red jacket) reported that the Greek mechanic wired back that the peculiar word was probably "pill". No go. When the pill was offered, this too was refused by a shake of the head. The next thing to do was arrange for an interpreter to meet the plane when it put down in Calgary.

Four days later I got the sequel from the passenger service supervisor in Calgary, just before I boarded my plane back. It seems when he got the wire he consulted the list of airport staff (not just Air Canada) for someone speaking Greek. Alas! Only part-time staff was on (it was Sunday) and not a Greek among them!

In then called the Greek Orthodox Church in South Calgary; "either the housekeeper or the cook answered the phone. When the plane put down in Calgary, the ground hostess spoke to the church person, then the old lady spoke direct from the "bridge" — the walkway about 18 feet from the plane. It seems she had been given a soft drink and wanted to pay for it. ("I pay ya?") She also refused the dinner which was offered her (succulent sirloin steak!) because she could not pay.

An exchange of conversation (in English and in Greek) between Greek lady, church person, and ground hostess, delivered the information that once the lady got back on board, she would be served dinner free. She was told that everybody on the plane would have a dinner and they would not pay for it.

She was tremendously relieved and pleased. She must have been hungry!

The passenger service man commented, "You see, I always feel there but for the grace of God go I!" This is the way he put it, "Think of those who travel bravely but apprehensively: strangers in a strange land!

Friendly Supermarket Manager Puts Toys with the Cereal

TORONTO (CP) — It was a portion of toy for asparagus, George Shaw, 44, manager of a supermarket, thought of the idea offering it at 49 cents a pound, 20 cents lower than usual.

"What a boy!" he told a visitor. "It's the first crop from Mexico this season, so we put a hot price on it. It's really going to sell."

When asparagus went on sale that afternoon, shoppers headed for the plump green stalks like homing pigeons. And a little boy, shopping cart, aimed at the sight daily special, is the proud boy of George Shaw's success.

The world of the supermarket has switched from the big selling life, since he started as a 414-week clerk in his father's grocery in Orono, Ont.

"I wouldn't sell anything I wouldn't buy myself," said Mr. Shaw, who does his own shopping in his store.

From a tiny, cluttered office overlooking the store he has managed for five years, he supervised food choices but not staff.

"Management sets the prices and the special sales," he said. "We order the goods and figure out how to sell them."

His food store has the urban feeling of the neighborhood bank or the local movie theatre. It's a far cry from the folksy atmosphere of the country store, but Mr. Shaw calls many of the customers by their first names.

Sometimes complaints are just an excuse to talk. he said.

"One day a customer who could afford to buy half the store, came up to me with an opened box of teabags.

"There were supposed to be 100 bags here," said the customer. "I counted only 99."

Mr. Shaw gave the customer a penny.

He manages a staff of 120 full-time and part-time workers and although he likes to think of himself as a friendly neighborhood grocer, is still shrewd enough to put children's toys in the cereal section.

"You wouldn't put nylons there, would you?"

A woman saw him one day changing the price of an item from 13 cents to 31 cents:

"I caught you," shouted the customer. "Changing prices in the middle of the day. You should be ashamed."

George explained the 13-cent price was a clerk's mistake.

Once a week Mr. Shaw goes into a "checking the competition" mission. There are 34 chain stores in his area. He visits them to see prices and quality offered.

"We have to look out for each other," he said. "We've at each other's necks for a thousand reasons but we have to keep faith in the industry."

Canadian Books for Canadian Kids

TORONTO (CP) — In the recent upsurge of Canadian nationalism, books available for children have been coming under attack. The books children read give them their first views and this may be the core of a young Canadian identity problem.

She Wants to Overhaul Real Estate Industry

MONTREAL (CP)—There's a woman in Montreal who wants to overhaul the real estate industry. The repair job will start with salesmen.

Elspeth Butler, president of the Montreal Board of Realtors Board, says she believes the cliches of the industry's salesmen or salesgeneals as she prefers to call them, can be improved.

Firstly, people without the proper education should not be permitted to work within the industry. In Mrs. Butler's one-year term, she hopes to convince provincial authorities to toughen educational pre-requisites for a selling licence.

In the meantime, she is not just going to sit back and wait for the bureaucratic government machinery to move.

Already Mrs. Butler has written a training program for residential salesmen associated with the company where she works, A. E. LePage and Westmount Realtors Inc.

It is the company's first co-ordinated effort to train its agents, said Mrs. Butler, who used training methods taught by her oldest daughter, Lynn, an education professor at McGill University.

She said she believes that if the industry would only accept property trained sales staff, the high turnover of salesmen would be reduced. Last year, the Quebec Real Estate Association processed 2,200 new members and by year's end, half of them had dropped out.

This dropout rate could also be reduced, she said, if sales men were paid a regular salary on top of commissions.

This method of payment has been introduced in some western Canadian cities, she said, but still is considered foreign in Quebec.

"It would give a whole new look to the industry. Companies would be careful whom they hired and there would be more discipline which would lead to greater efficiency in business," she said.

Pays for Folly

LONDON (CP)—Earnest Yelland's wedding bill went up by $44,400 when a judge ruled he must pay that amount to his former wife before he could get a divorce and marry his mistress. The court found that Yelland 42, a wealthy businessman, had lived in luxury with his mistress since his 27-year marriage broke up in 1957, while his wife Ethel 41, lived in a small, damp apartment.

JOHN R. BUSH

R. DOUGLAS BUSHNELL

Q. "MAY I PURCHASE A CEMETERY LOT IN ADVANCE, AND WHAT ARE THE ADVANTAGES IF ANY?"

A. Yes. We have assisted many families in visiting the cemetery of their choice and discussing this with the cemetery superintendant. This place you under no obligation of course. The advantages are the family can select the type of lot it feels most suited to their requirements and financial position without being influenced by emotion at the time of bereavement. There is also the possibility of present day prices being lower than those in the future.

Q. CAN THE FAMILY AND FRIENDS BE PRESENT TO SEE AN ACTUAL CREMATION?

A. No part of the actual cremation is seen or is in evidence to the friends or family however if the family so desires the relatives or friends responsible for the funeral arrangements may appoint two of their number to see the casket placed in the cremation chamber.

Air Fare Increase Appealed

OTTAWA (CP) — A Canadian transport commission ruling that permits domestic air fares to increase was appealed to the federal cabinet Friday.

The Consumers Association of Canada and the provinces of Manitoba and Saskatchewan asked the cabinet in separate appeals to review the commission decision which cleared increases by Air Canada, CP Air and the five regional airlines.

They suggested that if the cabinet finds the appeal reasonable, the transport commission should be told to set new revenue levels for the airlines. The air carriers then could be told to submit new fares.

The commission said in an oral ruling Monday there was no evidence to show the airline rate increases were unreasonable or unjust. The commission declined to suspend, disallow or alter the proposed fares, except for two Eastern Provincial Airways routes in the Atlantic provinces.

CP Air and Air Canada fare increases averaging 10 per cent for economy and 14 per cent for first class took effect Tuesday. Increases by EPA and Pacific Western Airlines became into effect on Tuesday. Increases by Nordair and Quebecair will be implemented Sunday and higher Transair fares June 8.

Airline fare increases automatically take effect 30 days after they are filed unless the commission suspends, disallows or changes them.

New Ice Age Long Way Off

VANCOUVER (CP) — Canadian climate experts say there's no need to purchase thermal underwear in preparation for the coming of another ice age.

Speakers at the joint annual convention of the Canadian Meteorological Society and Canadian Association of Geographers said Thursday that a possible new ice age is a long way off.

"We hear a lot of talk about a new ice age coming . . . but we really don't know," said Dr. Swen Orvig of McGill University. "We're just on the threshold of understanding what all the factors are in our climatic atmosphere."

Papers on climatic changes presented to the convention showed that Northern Hemisphere mean temperatures generally have dropped since a hot peak around 1940. The trend towards cooler temperatures was slow and marked with sharp fluctuations.

"Some people do feel the 1940 period represented a high point and we now are on the temperature downgrade," said D. C. Schaefer of the federal atmospheric environment service.

"But, even if that analysis is correct it's going to be a long, long time before anyone is going to start worrying about it."

Gordon McKay of Toronto said the effect of climatic changes on production of the world's food supplies does cause concern.

Varicose Veins Need Treatment

By C. C. THOMESON, MD

Dear Dr. Thomeson: I'm 38 years old and I have a pretty good build and figure, except I have varicose veins so bad I cannot wear shorts or a bathing suit. They also cause my legs to hurt a lot.

I want to know about the operation to remove them. Is it done by cutting, and would there be a lot of scars? Does it require hospitalization?—Mrs. W. C.

Since varicose veins are caused by structural defects in the vein valves, they will not correct themselves or disappear once formed. Luckily varicosity usually affects the veins close to the surface where they can be easily treated. However, varicose veins can sometimes be a symptom of a disturbance of deeper-lying vessels, as in phlebitis, and this possibility should not be overlooked in search for cosmetic treatment. This is easily determined by your doctor.

Usually, varicose veins can be improved in appearance by either surgery (ligation or stripping) or by the injection method. The injection method is preferred by some doctors, and is effective in milder cases.

Surgery does require hospitalization; it involves small incisions which would leave only tiny scars. The end result would be a definite improvement cosmetically.

At your age, it seems advisable to do something about the varicose veins, particularly since you have symptoms other than visual (pain).

In ligation, a portion of the vein is tied off. In stripping, the vein is removed.

Dear Dr. Thomeson: Is there a cure for angina pectoris? My doctor says that's what I have. I get the spells exactly when I get out in the cold air or into a cold car. I take tablets.

It also bothers me when I get upset or do heavy work. I would like to know if anyone ever gets over it, or should I see a different doctor. I'm 70 years old.—Mrs. E. B. S.

Angina occurs because the heart muscle is not getting sufficient oxygen. It is not a disease in itself, but a symptom of an underlying problem that interferes with circulation. There can be a degree of hardening of the arteries, which should be expected at your age.

It's not appropriate, therefore, to be speaking in terms of curing the angina. For whatever reason, your heart is under an abnormal strain, and treatment is to relieve that strain to the greatest extent possible that would mean avoiding the situations you mention which seem to prompt attacks. Instead of plunging into heavy work, approach such activity sensibly, building up slowly until you appear to have reached the point of strain that is going to give you trouble, then quit.

The general rule for taking your medication (I presume it is nitroglycerine tablets) is to learn to use them before activity, not afterward, when it is too late to avoid the distress.

You'd best stick with your present doctor, who is intimately aware of your history and your needs.

Dear Dr. Thomeson: Is it true that eating oysters increases sexual potency? Incidentally, this is an important question because the price of oysters here is $2.35 a pint.—Mrs. M. M.

By the time you read this, the price will probably have gone up higher. The answer to your question, a fable I hear about constantly, is no.

Three Bills Get Final Reading in Commons

OTTAWA (CP) — The Commons closed the week with a flurry of activity Friday, giving final reading to bills that would increase judges' salaries, create two northern Senate seats and cut down on excess polluters.

The three bills, none highly controversial, sped through with little debate as attendance sagged to its usual end-of-the-week low. Only a handful of MPs were present for the passage of each.

Most have royal assent before becoming law.

But there was scattered criticism of the proposal to enlarge the 101-seat appointed Senate by opening two seats for the North—one each for the Yukon and Northwest Territories.

Ian Watson (L-Laprairie) who spoke against the proposal earlier, again urged Senate reform before new appointments are made.

"The Senate is non-representative and non-elected . . . It is inappropriate that we should now move toward adding members to that body before we have made effective reforms," he said.

Wally Firth (NDP—Northwest Territories) said the bill should be accepted and, if its place, an ombudsman should be appointed to hear grievances against the government. The NDP has long favored Senate abolition.

The pay bill, which would raise judges' salaries in some cases by up to 72 per cent, was generally approved. The top judge, Supreme Court Chief Justice Bora Laskin, still has his pay increased to $68,000 annually from $60,000 if the bill completes remaining stages of passage unchanged.

But Paul Lambert (PC—Edmonton West) used the debate to attack the press for its recent coverage of a pay increasing to 33 1-3 per cent.

Coverage amounted to "unprecedented, vitriolic, ill-informed, biased and hypocritical attack", on parliamentarians, he charged.

He asked why similar reporting had not occurred with the judges' pay bill, since percentage increases were larger in some cases than for MPs.

"The judges, I suppose, are not the favorite kicking boys of the press," he said.

The third bill, criticized by Joe Clark (PC—Rocky Mountain) for allowing "excessively ... ministerial discretion", would bring Canadian ocean pollution laws into line with those in a number of other countries.

If passed unaltered, it would make it illegal for any ship in Canadian or international waters to dump waste or pollutants without a permit from the federal environment minister.

Mr. Clark said an appeal board to be established by the bill is inadequate because it "will allow only partial appeal of decisions of the minister."

A day-long debate is scheduled Monday on the growth of executive power within the government. The day is one of several set aside each session for debating subjects chosen by the opposition.

Forecast Brighter For U.S. Economy

WASHINGTON (AP) — Agreement is now fairly widespread that the economic upturn in the United States next year will be better than sluggish.

That and other pieces of the U.S. economic outlook for the next 18 months are beginning to fall into place, with some key pieces provided by President Ford's economic and budget review Friday.

There is agreement that the unemployment rate will continue high at least through 1976, and probably beyond.

The rate of inflation is coming under control more rapidly than the administration had forecast, but still will be higher than before the big price boom in 1973.

And fears of "crowding out"—the expression used when government borrowing diverts money from private borrowing—appear to have largely dissipated in recent weeks as both long- and short-term interest rates declined.

In its mid-year economic and budget review, the Ford administration said the economy should grow at a rate of 6.5 per cent next year, rather than 6.8 per cent as forecast in February.

Chairman Alan Greenspan of the president's council of economic advisers said he expects a return to economic growth by the third quarter of this year, if not the second quarter.

The president's revised forecast projected average unemployment this year at 7.9 per cent, up from its February forecast of 8.1 per cent. The average jobless rate for next year was projected at 7.9 per cent or 7.1 million unemployed workers.

Increases in wages and salaries, the increase in consumer prices, is expected to ease to 7.8 per cent this year, down from 12.2 per cent in 1974, and to 5.8 per cent in 1976. That is better than earlier forecasts.

In other economic developments:

—Chrysler Corp. said it is extending a price rebate program through June on some models. The firm said $200 rebates will be granted to purchasers of Dodge Darts and Valiants, the Dodge Sportsman or Tradesman vans and the Plymouth Voyager. The purchased model must be in stock of qualify for the discount.

—The agriculture department said the prices farmers receive for raw agricultural products jumped five per cent from April 15 to May 15.

—The treasury department said it will auction 500,000 ounces of government gold during June because of rising imports of the metal.

Gen. Quang In Spotlight

OTTAWA (CP) — There is no witchhunt against Vietnamese refugees in Canada, despite the controversy over General Dan Van Quang Immigration Minister Robert Andras said Friday.

Most refugees "seem to be very fine people" and they should not fear repercussions because of questions raised about Gen. Quang, he told reporters.

The government is gathering info r m a t i o n from several sources on Gen. Quang, a controversial former South Vietnamese officer living in Montreal. He has been linked in news reports with heroin smuggling and other corrupt practices.

Mr. Andras said he is trying to contact "responsible organizations" and hopes to make a decision shortly whether to let the general remain in Canada.

He said the government decided before the Communist takeover in South Vietnam in out through red tape and deal with refugees on a humanitarian basis.

He was asked whether the government is compiling information on the general's wife and family. All factors in the case are under consideration and no options are ruled out, he said.

In the Commons, Mr. Andras disagreed with Derek Blackburn NDP—Brant who said the U.S. government has evidence which proves the complicity of Gen. Quang into the United States.

Gen. Quang entered Canada on a one-year ministerial permit from a U.S. base here used in the resettlement of Vietnamese refugees.

Beef Leads Food Price Increase

The Canadian Press

Outdoor cooking buffs who greeted the warmer weather by dusting off backyard barbecues had some enthusiasm damped as beef prices jumped as much as 20 per-cent during May.

The highest increases were in Ottawa, where sirloin roasts jumped 30 cents a pound to $2.08, and in Edmonton where ground chuck rose 40 cents a pound to $1.99, a cross-Canada survey by the Canadian Press shows.

Prices on choice cuts of beef rose in all 12 cities surveyed. Prices will probably remain high until the end of the summer, said a spokesman for the Canadian Cattlemen's Association, which carries out weekly surveys of retail beef prices.

The spokesman predicted that prices will drop again in the fall when a heavy flow of cattle to market is expected in Canada.

Last month, predictions were that sugar prices were rising again, but the trend didn't last long and 10 cities showed sharp declines in prices. Halifax had the largest drop—a five-pound bag dropped in cost to $1.35 from $1.95.

Take Over Yardmen Funds?

Sports Centre In City's Hands

By COLIN BRUCK
Staff Reporter

The fate of provincial government help for the Yardmen Sports Centre on Cannifton road is now squarely in city council's hands following a closed-door session Friday.

Information gathered by The Intelligencer indicates to Belleville Yardmen Benefit Fund building account for the sports complex topped the $1 million by the beginning of this year.

The first phase of the project to include an elaborate ice surface and swimming pool is expected to cost approximately $6 million.

Representatives of the provincial government's lottery branch, Lorne Williams, a consultant with the sports and recreation bureau of the ministry of culture and recreation, six members of council, city recreation personnel Mayor Jeffrey and members of the Yardmen fund met in camera Friday to discuss "municipal takeover" of the sports project.

Mr. Williams, during an interview following the meeting said: "The municipality can apply for grants providing Yardmen monies are funnelled through the city's books.

"Government grants will take care of a lot of the money left to be raised," providing the municipality takes over the project making it eligible for provincial grants, said Mr. Fisher, who has the ability of the Yardmen to continue their lottery to raise the needed funds," he said.

Asked if there is a need in the Belleville area for a facility of this kind, Mr. Williams said, "no question."

Provincial lottery co-ordinator E. C. Fisher said the government now might be premature. I wouldn't want to jeopardize the talks."

He said council members "asked a tremendous amount of questions."

"Council members and the mayor were very non-committal and very careful," he said.

He said he would not "like to comment on speculation that was asked during the session or its aftermath."

Members of council were tight-lipped as they left council chambers at the close of the meeting, saying they were any questions concerning municipal takeover.

Mayor Robin Jeffrey said "it was a fruitful meeting." but would not go into detail.

Asked if members of council questioned who would pick up the annual operating cost of the complex, Mayor Jeffrey replied, "no comment."

She said there will be further meetings to discuss the scheme and that complete public disclosure of Friday's talks will come in June.

Ald. Ken Smith speculated the sports centre would come up for discussion at the last council meeting of June.

Provincial officials E. C. Fisher and George Day discuss Yardmen sports centre drawings Friday.

Foxboro Crash Kills Driver

FOXBORO — A single-car accident near here Friday killed an 18-year-old Lindsay area youth and left two others in hospital with possible head and back injuries.

Belleville OPP said the mishap occurred at 10.10 p.m. Friday night about one-and-a-half miles east of Foxboro on County Road 5 (Mud Call Lane).

Dead is the driver, Michael Wayne Scott, of 127 Durham St. W., Lindsay. Injured in the accident were Bradley Hardwick, 20, 330 Main St., Foxboro, and Glen Parsons, 19, also of Foxboro.

A Belleville General Hospital spokesman said both youths are in fair condition today with possible head and back injuries.

An OPP spokesman said the small foreign car was eastbound on County Road 5 when the driver failed to negotiate a curve and the car rolled over and finally came to a stop upright. He said the car was a total write-off.

Provincial constable Shane Halvorsen investigated.

Education Beat

Students Need Development Too

By RON CARSON
Staff Reporter

Professional development days continue to be a sore point with the public — and because of the teacher involvement in rather the minds of classes by the students.

Educators have finally convinced the public and their own rank and file the need for professional development is great. In fact, some educators feel teacher professional development is far behind private industry in this area. Educators now just argue how many days should be minimum for professional activity.

The public is still concerned about students missing these days from school and it is right. Unfortunately, most parents resent the holidays for the teacher but expect kids to learn less they are right in thinking professional activity days are a waste of time for students.

In actual fact a great deal of the professional programs deal with problems of classroom relationships and interactions, particularly in the classroom. Many others deal with the ways and means to better communications.

Is there good reason why secondary school students are not in need of the same improvement in human relations and interactions? Perhaps an earlier understanding in this area could produce a more well-rounded graduate.

Why can't student hold professional activity days to correspond with those of their teachers? This would satisfy the public and produce a more mature environment for secondary school students to learn about each other.

It could be arranged by granting an additional activity day to the teachers so that one activity day out of the total million a percentage of the teachers could attend and supervise students activity days. The supervision would be on a rotating basis.

However, the teachers would only be used to supervise. Student council and other student groups would be responsible for organizing their days. A similar program such as this one has been successful. School students organize each year would be the type of day beneficial to students.

It may turn out that one of the professional development days could be a joint meeting between secondary school students and teachers to explore and discuss classroom relationships.

While educators now recognize the need for teacher professional development perhaps it's now time they look at the needs of students. To understand human relationships.

Sea Cadets Inspected

The annual inspection of Royal Canadian Sea Cadet Corps Quinte will be held at the barracks on south Front St. Sunday at 3 p.m.

Inspecting officer of the day will be Lieut. Donald Cherry, recently retired commanding officer of HMCS Cataraqui, a naval reserve division based in Kingston.

In addition to the regular inspection and march-past of the sailor's company, several displays have been arranged for the day depicting each facet of cadet life in Belleville.

A highlight of the day's program will be a concert by the ship's band.

Interested persons are invited to attend and tour the barracks. Refreshments will be served.

Patients Need Infection Protection

Control of Infections acquired by patients after admission to Belleville General Hospital needs a special supervisory official to be fully effective.

But, hopefully, it may be financially possible to hire an infection control officer this year, the hospital's board of governors was told Friday.

The control program already in progress at BGH has made "satisfactory progress," Dr. Reg Anderson, medical director reported to the board.

But the program is limited in its effect because of "lack of an infection control officer," he said. Follow-up investigations and corrective actions are "not fully possible" because such an official is not available.

Philip Rickard, hospital executive director said it has been unsuccessful in the past two years to obtain a public health ministry approval for funding such a staff appointment.

However Mr. Rickard said later, by affecting economies in the 1975 overall hospital budget such an official may be hired this year.

Mr. Rickard began stressed the need for hiring such an officer.

The problem of infections being incurred by patients was common to all hospitals, he said later.

Mr. Anderson's report showed infections incurred during hospital stays ranged from 9 to 9 of which The Intelligencer has been notified are:

Tax Exemption Prickly Issue For Hospital

By HARRY MULHALL
Staff Reporter

Belleville General Hospital board of governors have deferred for a month any moves to resume a lingering issue with the city treasury over sewer and garbage fees.

The hospital board has been pondering if it is exempt from such charges which total about $71,000 — including $15,000 for garbage services.

A similar problem resulted in court actions in Ottawa and Toronto and he board has recently taken legal advice in its situation.

The basic principle ai stake, advised hospital solicitor Donald Templeman in a letter to the board, is while the courts are charged with tax rules, the courts seem to interpret them as taxes. As such public institutions are exempt from taxation.

Mr. Templeman suggested the hospital begin negotiations with the city on the problem.

If such talks are co-operative and avoid court action, he proposed one solution: the city acknowledge the exemptions, while the hospital might compromise by not claiming recovery of back taxes retroactive to 1968.

However, Ald. Paul Russell, city council-appointed board member, also pondered a legal possibility: Could the board members be considered derelict in their duty if they did not claim the back taxes should the hospital be entitled to them?

Mayor Robin Jeffrey asked that any decision be delayed until the board has had a chance to review the situation. She said she believes the city was on firm ground with the sewer fees, because the city's sewage disposal was operated by the provincial government environment ministry and involved a "user charge."

However, the city could have a less certain case with the garbage issue, she said.

Some Pleasure Boaters Feel Americans Should Pay More

By AL ZARAS
Staff Reporter

TRENTON — Reaction from the public to implementation of lockage fees on Canadian canals this year has been "no more nor less" than had been expected, according to a senior Parks Canada official in Ottawa.

Ron Maslin, director of the Agreements for Recreation and Conservation (ARC) branch in the Indian and Northern Affairs ministry, said Friday the branch has received public comment, but practice the majority heard restricted to areas near canals.

"There has been no real problem across Canada," he said.

His comments come as pleasure boaters enter the second to last weekend they will be able to use Canada's seven canals free. Monday, June 9, lockage fees announced by the Indian and Northern Affairs minister Judd Buchanan in March will go into effect.

Reaction has not been overwhelmingly negative, said Mr. Maslin. "We've had a remarkable response from a number of people."

"While they've criticized, they've done it in an invertable. Some letters almost have the tone of sorrow rather than anger," he said.

On response to fees has been the suggestion that American boaters be charged more for use of canals than Canadian boaters.

The suggestion, Mr. Maslin called a "standard proposition" based on the belief that parts of the system (Parks Canada canals) are being swamped by American boats.

The reasoning behind such a suggestion, he said, was that Americans are richer than Canadians "therefore they can afford to pay more."

Response to the lockage fees has been 10 to 15 per cent from Americans, who have been exposed to their, press to news of the fee implementation.

Mr. Maslin said Americans basically object to fees because canal use has always been free before, and never should remain free.

On the other hand, he said, Americans have also said they've been surprised that canal use hasn't been charged. The revelation came in a late 1960s report on tourism by a University of Carleton graduate student.

Mr. Maslin declined to speculate what effect fee implementation would have on boat traffic on Canada's canals. "I don't know whether it will mean a drop in total use."

Trenton Woman Nominated

A Trenton woman has been nominated by Belleville General Hospital board of governors as its candidate for a directorship on the Ontario Hospital Association (OHA).

She, is Mrs. William Ellis, member of the Trenton Memorial Hospital board and already serving a two-year term as director for the OHA's District 4.

The district represents all hospitals from Trenton to Brockville.

Mrs. Ellis already has been nominated by her own board as a candidate for re-election to the OHA board.

Saving Study Not Needed

Belleville General Hospital's administration unexpectedly was itself some praise when it decided to consider possibly hiring management consultants to study its efficiency — with an eye to cost-saving.

Officials agreed to let an exploratory team from United Research, New York management consultant, conduct a preliminary survey to see if such a study was necessary.

Within a brief period, Philip Rickard, BGH executive director told the hospital board Friday, the team had this analysis: "We wish to congratulate you on your organization and we wish to withdraw so we cannot save you a penny."

Claude Graham Dead at 83

TRENTON — Claude Graham, a former town councilor here, died Friday at the age of 83.

A retired Trenton taxi company owner, Mr. Graham's funeral will be held Monday at 1.30 p.m. from Weaver Funeral Home.

Trent Lock Fees In Effect June 9

TRENTON — Pleasure boaters on the Trent-Severn canal system will be charged for lock use for the first time June 9th as canal officials have now been authorized to levy fees by a federal government order in council.

Barring unforeseen circumstances, lock employees, canal marine operators, and town Chamber of Commerce officers will be selling permits, as of Monday, June 9, at Park Canada official said Friday.

Fees implemented now has been postponed four times, the most recent occasion last Friday, when in the morning it was set for Wednesday June 4 and in the afternoon it was changed to Monday, June 9.

Fees for lock use are set at $3 a year, $25 a month, and $50 a season (May to October) for boats under 18-foot in length.

For commercial vessels and boats over 18 feet, owners will pay $4 a day, $40 a month and $80 a season. Ten day permits are also available.

Rowboats and canoes will not be charged for lock use.

In addition, boaters will face a 48-hour mooring limit after which a $3 daily fee will be levied.

Two Doctors Joining

After a month's delay, Belleville General Hospital board of governors Friday moved to confirm appointments of three doctors to its associate medical staff.

Questions about the appointments were raised last month when the board was told the three applicants were asked to take their fellowship examinations in Internal Medicine last September.

The board at that time was concerned with the problems such an appointment already on staff — full examinations. Among other consequences it could mean a doctor who had accumulated patients and responsibilities would have to be released from staff.

However, anxiety also was expressed that the physicians might seek appointments elsewhere if their BGH applications were refused. The matter was referred to a special ad's medical advisory committee.

Now, the board has endorsed the appointments, the committee's report said.

Howell Collects Five RBI's in Ranger Win

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Roy Howell made up for his error in the ninth inning for Texas Rangers and at the same time struck a blow for unconventional baseball strategy.

Howell knocked in five runs Friday night to lead the Rangers to a 8-4 victory over the New York Yankees—and his last run batted in came after he copied "percentage" rules of the game.

Howell, a left-handed hitter, was allowed to hit against Sparky Lyle, a right-handed pitcher—and came through with his game-winning single in the ninth inning.

"Boy, can hit left-handers," said Texas manager Billy Martin, who often forsakes the safety of the book. "He showed me that in spring training."

In other American League games Friday, Minnesota Twins beat Boston Red Sox 4-3, Baltimore Orioles blanked California Angels 5-0 and Oakland A's thrared back Cleveland Indians 6-2.

Games at Detroit between the Tigers and Chicago White Sox and at Milwaukee between the Brewers and Kansas City Royals were rained out.

Jeff Burroughs hit a home run in the eighth to tie the game 3-3 before Howell's dramatic hit. Howell had two singles before his game-winner. He put an end to a six-game losing streak for the Rangers.

"I guess Billy was trying to build confidence in me by letting me hit against Lyle," said Howell. "He's a great left-handed pitcher—but with our losing streak, I guess we had to do something different."

Run-scoring singles by Tony Oliva and Eric Soderholm in the seventh inning gave Minnesota its win. Oliva ripped a 1-2 pitch from Boston reliever Diego Segui down the right field line to score Rod Carew.

Soderholm's single scored Sergio Ferrer, who had stolen second base after going in to run for Oliva.

Jim Palmer pitched a four-hitter and recorded his fourth shutout of the season, enabling Baltimore to stage a seven-game winning streak with five in one California.

Right handler Dick Bosman survived a shaky start and scattered seven hits in eight innings as Oakland defeated Cleveland. His former teamn, Bosman was traded to the A's less than two weeks ago.

Needed Prepared To Fight

TORONTO (CP) — Greg Needs is the Toronto Blue Jays' Northeast Rock League to prepare for a different kind of opportunity to pursue his career in the professional leagues.

One day after being signed to the 30-year-old graduating junior when Minnesota Fighting Saints selected him in the World Hockey Association draft.

But NHL president Clarence Campbell is adamant. Existing laws will not allow Needs to play in the NHL with only one year.

"Need, a defenceman, lost his left eye in September, 1972, while playing with Toronto Marlboros of the Ontario Major Junior A Series.

Last year, with a protective covering for his good eye, he scored 38 goals and added 30 assists in 60 games with the Calgary Centennials of the Tough Western Canada Hockey League.

"There's a principle involved here," said his father, Norman. "If a player is eligible by skill, then the NHL should not discriminate against the player. Need's lawyer, Jack McMurtry of Toronto, has sent Campbell a registered warning of legal action if the NHL prevents Needs from playing another teams before next Tuesday's deadline draft that the player is eligible to play.

Guthrie Returns To B.C.

VANCOUVER (CP) — British Columbia Lions of the Canadian Football League announced Friday day the signing of ex-Saskatchewan quarterback Eric Guthrie.

Guthrie, who played for the Lions in 1972 and 1972, returns to a team with Dennis Wheels of the World Football League. Guthrie and 200 pounds, Guthrie is a native of Vancouver who attended Boise State on a football scholarship.

Guthrie will join quarterbacks Jim Mordecai and Peter Liske when training camp at Penticton, B.C. begins June 15.

Guthrie was the premier punter in the Western Football Conference in 1972 and 1973, with a 43.5-yard average.

COSTLY PARTY

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Philadelphia Flyers and their National Hockey League foes do not come cheap. The parade on Wednesday to celebrate the Flyers' Stanley Cup victory is going to cost the city another $100,000 in overtime for police and street workers; about $9,000 more than expected, city officials said Friday.

Bob Apodaca Learns the Hard Way

You Just Don't Throw McCovey a Good Pitch

ED KIRKPATRICK

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Bob Apodaca learned the hard way old Willie McCovey for the first time Friday night. Veteran catcher Jerry Grote suggested to Apodaca's pitch, Apodaca obeyed for a fastball.

"I wanted to get it down and away," he explained.

McCovey hit a grand-slam home run off Apodaca the 16th of his career to the Hank Aaron's National League record-to cap San Diego's six-run rally in the eighth inning that carried the Padres to their 6-2victory over New York Mets.

"Obviously it wasn't down and obviously it wasn't away enough," explained Apodaca.

In Friday's other National League results, Pittsburgh Pirates edged Atlanta Braves 3-1, Cincinnati Reds blanked Philadelphia Phillies 5-0 and St. Louis Cardinals pounced Chicago Cubs 5-4.

Los Angeles Dodgers were leading Chicago Cubs 3-1 when they rallied by dartmen in the eighth inning—to be regarded before today's regularly scheduled game. At Montreal, a game between the Expos and San Francisco Giants was rained out.

"I was looking for an offspeed pitch, not a fastball," McCovey said. Grote he put his hand in the fifth homer of the year for his second home run. Grote, who shook off grote and that got not signal.

"A home run is always exciting, whether it's a grand slam or not," he continued. "When I hit hit the ball—like a line drive—it's exciting.

"I don't have to be a hitter. "Two previous times, I've been up with the bases loaded and I was thinking 'home run' because I was the tying run. Tonight I wasn't thinking that way because all we needed was a fly ball for one run. Maybe that's the key—not thinking about it."

Lonzr Jerry Koosman had a five-hit shutout, driving home John Grubb, Ernn Hernandez and Bobby Tolan singled for one run and Dave Winfield doubled to the it in the eighth.

Mike Ivie was intentionally walked to load the bases. Apodaca took over and McCovey, batting for Fred Kendall, hit his homer.

Winner Randy Jones, 7-2 this year after a disastrous 8-22 mark last season, had his 19-inning scoreless string snapped in the first when Del Unser hit his fourth homer of the year.

Pittsburgh's Ed Kirkpatrick, hitting for winning pitcher Jerry Reuss in the bottom of the ninth inning, had a two-strike pitch by Buzz Capra into right for the single that beat Atlanta.

Houston's Doug Konieczny pitched his first major league shutout, scattering seven hits, and Milt May drove in three runs for the Astros with a pair of doubles.

Lou Brock's ninth-inning single following one-out hits by Mario Guerrero and Ron Hunt carried the Cardinals past Cincinnati after the Reds had tied it in the top of the inning on Pete Rose's two-run homer.

The Dodgers broke a 1-1 tie in the fifth onlave Lopes' homer and added a run in the sixth on a double by Steve Garvey and a single by Ivan de Jesus.

Los Angeles manager Walter Alston announced that seven-game winner Andy Messersmith will pitch that two innings of the game today, trying to save the win for Don Sutton.

McGinnis Contract With Knicks Invalid

NEW YOR (AP) — New York Knicks signed American Basketball Association superstar George McGinnis Friday, setting up an almost certain legal showdown with their National Basketball Association partners, Philadelphia 76ers.

McGinnis, ABA scoring champion this past season, agreed to a six-year, $1 million-plus contract. But when the agreement is submitted for approval to the NBA commissioner's office, it may b rejected.

McGinnis's NBA rights still belong to the 76ers, who drafted him two years ago. Until the Knicks satisfy the 76ers', Philadelphia ina's New York's signing of McGinnis is open to legal question.

Last year, when the Knicks were searching for front-court help, they offered Irvin Phillips of Philadelphia the rights to negotiate with McGinnis. Phillips, a 6-foot-8, 225-pound forward.

It seemed then that McGinnis, considered one of the two or three best forwards in basketball, would come to New York instead, he signed a two-year contract with the Pacers that included an escape clause after the 1974-75 season.

"At one point, our rights to negotiate with George expired," Knicks president Mike Burke said last week. "Philadelphia withdrew those rights."

The deal seemed sealed until last week when McGinnis sued the NBA and its commissioner, disputing the 76ers' claim to him. Friday, McGinnis's lawyer said the case was being dropped.

The 76ers don't want an arrangement other than having McGinnis play for them.

"He's ours," said general manager Pat Williams. "We drafted him when his class graduated two years ago.

"I negotiate with him, we won't take it sitting down. We'll protect our legal rights and our legal means we have at our disposal."

Burke said the Knicks had examined the legal ramifications of the signing and "took the action we took on the advice of counsel."

A.J. Foyt the Man To Check Cheaters

TORONTO (CP) — Bobby Unser, winner of last weekend's rain-shortened 500 mile race, is one way to stop cheating among drivers at Indy would be to let fellow driver A. J. Foyt check everyone.

Here's drum up interest in the June 15 Labatt's Formula 2000 at Mosport, Unser says Foyt would catch the mechanic because he knows every trick of the trade.

Unser said he wasn't accusing Foyt of cheating, "but he'd be the most professional about it if he ever did."

He (Foyt) runs NASCAR (National Association for Stock Car Auto Racing) where they have the best checkers in the world. They spend more time figuring out how to cheat than they do racing."

There says few Indy drivers cheat because they are checked closely, but said there are drivers and mechanics there smart enough to get away with it.

In fact, Unser admits he would use illegal gimmicks when he sees other drivers getting away with them. But car owner Don Gerney won't let him.

"Don just won't do it," says the retiring U. S. Auto Club champion and a two-time winner at Indy. "It's not his way."

Cheating on Indy is the big thing in USAC racing, trying to figure ways to circumvent the 45-gallon limit for cars and 280 gallon allotment for 500 miles.

Foyt had a trick that didn't break the letter of the law. He added water which mixed well with alcohol used in Indy cars. It worked beautifully until the rule was rewritten.

Driving Gurney's Formula 2000 at Mosport, Bobby claims the series offers the easiest opportunity to cheat because officials fail to maintain a close check on the equipment.

Flyer Looks to Future Despite Present Condition

BARRIE, Ont. (CP) — Gerry Raycraft is a right-winger with talent but his first season in Barrie has been marred a disaster.

But he's just 21 years old and is optimist, and as he discards his crutches and his eyesight returns to normal, he's looking forward to next season.

When he joined Barrie Flyers the Allan Cup champions, last fall, he had scored twenty goals. "At the start of the season I was fantastic (a point a game for 12 games) and I was satisfied with the way I was playing."

Then, in December, he suffered a knee separation. With the injury, I felt myself going downhill and I came back. The leg was never 100 per cent."

But he continued to play and the team did well, finishing first in the Ontario Hockey Association Senior League, winning the playoffs and then eliminating Lake the Continental League champions.

Then came the controversial series with St. John's Capitals. The Flyers won 4 of the games to one, but only less being a defeated contest but Raycraft became home with an eye injury suffered when struck on the eye by a stick and a slide from Thunder Bay Twins then blocked the Flyers' march to a second consecutive Allan Cup.

Raycraft missed the final series, then went into hospital May 16 for an operation to repair part of the separated bone. He was on crutches for almost two weeks.

He only recently stopped wearing about the eye injury, saying the sight is back in my eye. Things like the injury just happen. You get injured and you may wonder at the time if it is worth the trouble but time heals everything and I intend to be back."

He is waiting for the bump on his brow to recede, in the meantime, he has abandoned his crutches and has turned out with Toronto Global in the Ontario Football League.

"My plans for the summer are to get my leg in as good shape as it was at the beginning of last hockey season. The doctors say the knee should be 100 per cent."

And his optimism carries over into his hopes for the future.

"We younger players hope to improve ourselves for a professional career."

Steve Self was Rexdale's top scorer with three goals, while Dave Hunley had two. Randy Cowick, Mike Fisher, Ron Walker and Wally Cionza had single goals.

Doug Sehl Heads List of Riders

Depending on the weather, the top Canadian dirt track motorcycle racers should take to Quinte Exhibition Raceway tonight. Over 40 riders will be in the lineup and vying for points in the Ontario Dirt Track Championship.

Included in the list is Doug Sehl. His older brother, Dave, is scheduled to race in Detroit tonight to defend his Can-Am title and therefore will miss the local leg of the championships for the first time in several years.

However, Doug is more than capable of putting on an exciting show. He has received petition from his brother. In 1974 he was at Daytona, Syracuse and the Canadian National Speedway (Toronto) — just to name a few.

Sehl will have his hands full with a couple of other senior riders — Gerry Grant and Paul Eggleton. Grant was last year's junior winner at Quinte and Eggleton's second place title year is cleaning up in the Big 750 c.c. class. Eggleton is really pressured Doug in the first leg of the 1975 Canadian Championships at Tillsonburg earlier this month.

Along with Grant and Eggleton, Dave McLean, a Quebec rider is expected to give Sehl a run for his money.

Classes range from 250 c.c. to 750 c.c. in junior, senior and superior.

The competition, sponsored by the Prince Edward Motorcycle Club Ind. of Foxboro, is sanctioned by the Canadian Motorcycle Association. Racing begins at 8 p.m. Practices are at 6 p.m. The rain date for the event is Sunday at 1.30 p.m.

Rejean Boily, owner and driver of the Western D. Wann, took Friday night's feature at Quinte Exhibition Raceway. Boily drove Wann to within two seconds of the track record and recorded a time of 1:37.6 for the mile in this season at the local oval. The feature, the Buddy Zebedee Memorial, had a $700 purse.

Western's D. Wann Wins Zebedee Memorial at Wire

By DOUG JEFFRIES

Although reports had the harness racing concerned, the weather permitted the events to carry on as scheduled Friday night at Quinte Exhibition Raceway.

It was a special night as six of the best horses seen this year took to the track for the Bud Zebedee Memorial Purse worth $700.

The race was in commemoration of the man who for many years trained and groomed many of the finest horses in the district. He was the trainer and groomed R. Yankee Wann, the horse that set the miracle mile in the Stakes in a time of 1:57.

Ellis Juniors Play Oshawa

The Belleville Ellis Juniors take to Alemite field on Sunday night when the visiting Oshawa Atlantic Juniors in a double-header at 7.30 p.m.

KILMER TO STAY

WASHINGTON (AP) — Billy Kilmer, who was named National Coach No. 1, quarterback least season, agreed to sit a spring training football camp Thursday and said he planned to stick with the team. Kilmer had failed to report for the first three days of the veteran camp, thereby fostering speculation he still was pressuring coach George Allen to trade him to another National Football League club. The camp convenes Friday.

Wellington Midgets Get Green Light on Swiss Hockey Trip

By RICK NELSON

WELLINGTON — The village of Wellington has been said by many, to be the "Home of Champions" after winning several Ontario Minor Hockey Association Championships the past five years. Now the Wellington Midgets will get a chance to publish their reputation when they travel to Switzerland to play several teams in January.

After the 73-74 season, coach Jim Dunlop approached the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association (CAHA) as to whether his hockey club might be able to play a foreign one.

Mr. Gordon, along with team manager Malcolm Greer, are veterans of two Ontario Championships.

"Our goal now is to play and possibly beat a team from another country," said Dunlop — "Finally, after several meetings and much negotiation, the CAHA approved the request at a meeting held in Quebec last June. Mr. Jean Drolet, president of the CAHA, phoned Mr. Dunlop this week to inform him of the decision.

The country of Switzerland has been chosen and the city of Schaffhausen, with a population of 40,000 people, has been picked as home base for the club.

At this point, 17 out of 20 players have been picked to make the trip in January. There are 15 second year Midgets and six first year and all have had a taste of an Ontario title.

Dunlop feels he'll have a good team because every other year these same boys, who at one time together, have brought home championships.

He and Mr. Greer have attended a lot of meetings and talked to a lot of people to find out about foreign hockey, so they wouldn't go into it blindly. Representatives of the team will be going over in June to make accomodation arrangements and itinerary for the team.

Dunlop estimates that it will cost his club $17,000 to make the trip, so plans for several fund raising projects have been set up. So far projects underway are a walkathon on Saturday, May 31, two dances at the Wellington Arena on June 14 and August 30 and a draw for a live steer on September 1 at the Gold Cup races in Picton. It was also noted that Prince Edward County council gave the club a grant of $1500. He said the club will ask for donations from local merchants.

The club leaves January 15th and will stay to the 27th. So far, 28 adults are going as well, many are parents of the players and will stay in hotels while the boys will stay with families.

There will be six games played: two in Schaffhausen and four in other Swiss cities.

The club will start their training in April with skating and weightlifting. In September they'll start skating.

"What the Swiss lack in hockey experience they make up in conditioning so we're starting early," said Dunlop.

He also noted that his club will be at a disadvantage because ice surfaces in Europe are larger than the ones in Canada.

Kerik Wins Number Seven

CNRA and Constellation won Friday night's games played at the Alemite in the Belleville Industrial Softball League.

Tracy Scott scattered four hits in the opener as CNR edged UIC 5-4. Joe Scanlon pitched.

CNR had a big three run second and equalized UIC's two run first.

Warren Hay and Bob Duvall each had a big hit for the winners, as Duvall smashed a double and two singles and Hay collected a pair of singles.

Of the four hits given up by Scott all of them were singles. Scott walked only two and fanned three.

In the night-cap, Constellation won their seventh game in a row on the arm of Ron Kerik. His record too stands at 7-0.

Constellation beat The Intelligencer 7-2, scoring four runs in the first inning off Intelligencer Jim MacKay. Kerik and Ron Mitchell led the attack each collecting a single and a double. Wayne May added a triple.

Scattering four hits Kerik gave up two singles to Glenn Reynolds, and singles to Eric Williams and Tony Cascalvem. After the first both pitchers seemed to take control as they both limited to batters, and walked only one apiece.

The Intell now has three wins against four losses, while Constellation has yet to be beaten.

The winning horse ran the mile in 1:57 and the year is 9:07 just two seconds short of the track record.

Western's D. Wann has done well this year as he has allowed only 1:59.0 in this early racing season.

Jim Rush was once again the driver of the night riding to three victories. His wins were in the feature, the first leg and finishing in 2:12.2 and Gallant Mir, in the seventh at 2:11.1. In the eighth he pushed Paddy O'Hara to a flying finish. The horse was sixth coming home and La Rush drove it to first.

For Gallant Mir it was it's fourth victory this year. It is owned by Malcolm Bailey of Uxbridge.

In the second race Henry's Model T, driven by Larry Zebedee finished in 2:16.1. It was the horse's first lifime win. It took the lead from the start, one which it never relinquished, and won by five lengths.

Two horses came up with first year victories, they being Bryar Buzz and Prince Igor driven and owned by George Stratton of Belleville.

Our Flicka finished the night's activities off with its tenth race win over Brian Ballamy's Just Georgie. Our Flicka driven by Pat Hunt of Belleville finished in 2:13.2.

Despite the weather conditions, 741 racing enthusiasts attended and bet $40,026.

Macs Due This Weekend Says General Manager Doug Adams

Belleville McDonald's will take to the road this weekend and won't see any home action until a week from today. Tonight, the Macs are in London for a single contest against Metro Inverek and company.

Sunday they take on Woodstock in a doubleheader at Southside Park. Tuesday they meet Toronto Globals in a contest at Seneca College Park.

It's been all uphill for the locals since they dropped their opener to Woodstock three weeks ago. The Warriors have been ravaging the league ever since. They are in first place in the Ontario Football League East Division with a 7-1 record. Belleville is taking a long way up with a 0-7 mark.

"It's all our fault," said Mac General manager, Doug Adams — "If we had beaten them in that first game we'd likely be the team with the wins and they'd be with us.

DOUG ADAMS

catch us. We gave them the momentum when we lost to them."

"And ever since then," he added, "we've been struggling to get things going."

Adams thinks that if the McDonald's can beat tonight's Woodstock on the weekend, the momentum will turn around and things will start rolling in their favor.

"We've been going through the whole season and not getting a single break," said the GM. "It's about time we got a little luck in this league and I think we're due for it this weekend."

However, before the Macs face Woodstock they'll have to take on the bruising bats and stingy pitching of London. They're riding atop the West Division with a 5-4 record.

In any event, should the Macs go zero for three this weekend they'll have a good chance to break loose on Tuesday against Toronto. The Globals and the Macs are the only two teams in the league without a win.

Barber Tells By The Clap

ATLANTA (AP) — Nearsighted Miller Barber says he has to see it. He knew he had an eagle from the crowd reaction.

"You know, there's a par-five, there's a birdie (par) and there's an eagle (par)," Barber said. "I knew that was an eagle clap."

Barber's eagle on the sixth, par-four 18th started a late surge Friday that saw him move into a share of the Atlanta golf tournament lead with U.S. Open champion Hale Irwin at 3-under-par 135 for 36 holes.

"I just don't do that," said the 44-year-old veteran who usually blows golf's single million-dollar winner with a victory in the $225,000 tourney that is a mandatory stop for the tour's top players.

"I don't remember when I last had an eagle," said Barber who holed a pitching wedge from 105 yards away, then closed with birdie on the final par-four.

Irwin, lodged in a three-way deadlock at 136 Friday, retained his share of the lead by shooting a 66 Friday, despite some difficulty with his driver.

Barber, who was in a 67 in the twenty, barrel conditions to trail the leaders by two shots at 137. Then came Jim Dent alone in fourth place at 139 after firing a 68.

Others were grouped at 139. Bobby Clampett, Miller, winner of three events in the West earlier this year, Mike Hill and par-five finishing hole for a 71.

Jack Nicklaus, who won the last two events on this course, posted a 73 and was among a group at 141.

Among those failing to survive the halfway cut of 145 was Arnold Palmer, who had a 75 for a 154 total. George Knudson of Toronto, who had a 71 for a 147 total, and Ben Kern of Toronto, whose 76 gave him a 150 total.

Lajoie, who lives in Fairhaven, Mass., and Mrs. Young had second consecutive rounds of 72.

In a three-way tie for fifth place at 145 were Sandra Palmer, Pam Higgins and Penny Pulz of Australia.

Kathy Whitworth tied with Miss Austin for the lead after the first round, posting a five-over-par 76, placing her in a tie for 40th at 146 with Sandra Post, formerly of Oakville, Ont., and Jan Prentice and Jane Blalock.

Jocelyne Bourassa of Sherrington, Que., who had earlier received 76 for a 148 total.

Pat Bradley, who finish ends Sunday, carries a first-place prize of $8,000.

Whitworth Under Par for Third Time

BALTIMORE (AP) — Veteran Kathy Whitworth shot her second consecutive three-under-par 69 to take a three-stroke lead Friday after two rounds of the Ladies Professional Golf Association championship.

Miss Whitworth, who has scored 72 tour victories and last Monday was inducted into the LPGA Hall of Fame, collected four birdies and recorded her only bogey when play resumed following a rain-delay.

Debbie Austin, first-round co-leader at 68, soared to a 76 in the second round and fired the second place with Donna Capeloni at 141. Sally Little, winner of the LPGA championship last year, is in fourth place at eighth-under 135 for 36 holes.

"I just don't do that," said the 36-year-old veteran who usually blows golf's single million-dollar winner with a victory in the $225,000 tourney that is a mandatory stop for the tour's top players.

"I don't remember when I last had an eagle," said Barber who holed a pitching wedge from 105 yards away, then closed with birdie on the final par-four.

Steve Prefontaine Killed in Auto Crash

EUGENE, Ore. (AP) — Steve Prefontaine, the man that a decade one of the best and most controversial athletes in the United States and the owner of every American running record for over 2,000 metres, is dead at 24, the victim of a pre-dawn automobile accident here Friday.

The 5-foot-9, 135-pound distance runner, whose dedication to running and training was matched by his bitterness over the treatment of amateur athletes in the U.S., had died within 1½ seconds of his 5,000-metre record at a meet in Eugene Thursday night.

Barely four hours later, after leaving a party in honor of some Finnish athletes he had brought to North America to compete, Prefontaine had taken his girlfriend home and was driving along a Eugene residential street. Police said his small foreign car swerved into the lane, skidded about 40 feet, struck a rock embankment and flipped over, pinning him beneath it.

His death sent shock waves through the track world and cost the U.S. its strongest hope for a gold medal in the distance events at the 1976 Olympics in Montreal.

Perhaps one of Prefontaine's proudest accomplishments was the four he averaged for the six Pines, whom he had met and lived with last summer during a European tour.

Prefontaine was first runner to capture the NCAA mile title each of his four collegiate seasons, between 1970 and 1973.

Prefontaine also set a U.S. 3,000 metres record of 7:42.8, 6 other records: two miles, 8:18.4; three miles, 12:54.4; 5,000 metres, 13:22.2; six miles, 28:51.4; 10,000 metres, 27:43.8. All were set between late April and mid July, 1974, the year he finished fourth in the Olympic Athletic Union championships.

Just What The Doctor Ordered for Hockey Boredom

OTTAWA (CP) — Relief may be on the way for bored hockey fans who remember the exciting play of two Soviet and Canada matches.

There may also be a partial answer to the endless argument about which country is first in hockey.

Plans for an international hockey tournament involving teams from the Soviet Union, Czechoslovakia, Sweden, Finland and the United States to play the best available Canadians in 1976 were announced Friday by Health Minister Marc Lalonde.

The idea is getting approval from National Hockey League team owners and the competing countries, he told a news conference.

Alan Eagleson, the NHL Players' Association chief, will head the Canadian organizing committee charged with arranging details with the other countries.

He said the NHL moguls will "welcome the tournament and I'll will be up to us to convince them that it makes sense." World Hockey Association officers support the series, he added.

The two series with the Soviet Union were played in the fall, a frequently-criticized move, because the Soviet players were in mid-season form, while the Canadians were just beginning to team. Canada's top NHL players, won in 1972 while the Soviets outgunned the WHA's best last fall.

Lalonde said the tournament would be held in the fall prior to the start of the 1976-77 professional season. It would be a two-week affair with the top two squads meeting in a best-of-three championship.

Eagleson said he would go to the NHL and the WHA to get the best possible rosters. Officiating was controversial in both of the Canada-Soviet series.

Concern about NHL owners' opposition dominated Eagleson's comments. The owners had opposed the 1972 series "and we saw what happened."

"The players will make the determination, not the owners." If the public wanted to see the tournament the owners would become responsive. He said not imagine an player refusing to play in Canada or the U.S.

"Clarence Campbell (NHL president) will announce tomorrow that this series will never take place," Eagleson said.

Campbell said in Montreal late Friday that he could not speak for NHL players' participating if Ottawa does not insure their injury insurance.

"We do not provide private insurance," Campbell said.

"Unless the league changes its policy the tournament will never take place, he said. It is unlikely Canadian public opinion will sway American owners into letting their players take part.

Eagleson said a U.S. team would be formed from the 40 American-born players in the international leagues. But Canada would fight attempts by Canadians to convince their Canadians to change citizenship.

Eagleson Has to Convince Owners

OTTAWA (CP) — Alan Eagleson, independent president of the National Hockey League Players' Association, said Friday it would be part of his new job to persuade NHL owners of the merits of taking part in an international hockey tournament in the fall of 1976.

But at the same time, Eagleson said the players "have a right to determine parts of their playing careers as long as it doesn't interfere with their regular hockey commitments."

Tentative plans for the tournament were announced Friday by Health Minister Marc Lalonde at a news conference here. He said teams from the United States, Finland, Sweden, Czechoslovakia and the Soviet Union were in agreement, but needed approval from their governments.

The tournament would be held prior to the opening of the professional hockey schedule. Each team would meet the other two once and the two top teams would then meet in a best-of three series.

Once the governments agree and Lalonde said he is confident they will, Eagleson would head a four-member committee making arrangements for the tournament.

In Montreal, NHL President Clarence Campbell said league governors will decide to what extent they will support the proposed tournament.

He said it would be approved if plans for two Soviet hockey teams to play each other six games in Canada and six in the United States against NHL teams.

Quirk Wins Third

GREENVILLE, S.C. (AP) — Wendy Quirk of Pointe Claire, Que., became the first triple winner of the meet and added a fourth victory in the second day of competition at the second annual Fidelity Federal open swim meet.

Ranked third in the world in the 200-metre butterfly, the sixteen-year-old Miss Quirk raced to a 2:26.48, another meet record, and finished less than two hundredths of a second behind Karla Bauer and the 100-metre freestyle.

On Thursday, Miss Quirk set meet records in the 100-metre butterfly and 400-metre freestyle.

Miss Hoddy's winning time fell short of world record holder Shirley Babashoff's mark by three hundredths of a second.

TWO OTHER WINS

Moffat To Crusaders

TORONTO (CP) — The Globe and Mail says Lyle Moffat, who played part of last season with Torontodemple Leafs of the National Hockey League, will sign next week with Cleveland Crusaders of the World Hockey Association.

The newspaper say Cleveland has offered the Regina-born Calgary native a two-year contract at $40,000 a season and that the Crusaders also are trying to John Stewart, a 19-year-old left winger who played for California Seals of the NHL last year.

The Leafs assigned Moffat, a left winger, to Oklahoma City of the Central League after he scored two goals and been noted assists in six games at the start of last season.

Canada continued its domination in the women's events, winning both the women's 100-metre freestyle and 400-metre individual medley in meet lows.

Jocelyne Baker of Thunder Bay, Ont., became the second woman to finish under the 2:26.51 in the individual medley, and Marion Stuart of Pointe Claire won the 100-metre breaststroke.

Billy Forrester of Jacksonville, Fla., posted the fourth fastest 200-metre butterfly time in the world this year as meet records tumbled in the heats.

Forrester, forced into the competition at the 200-metre freestyle, didn't let that deter him from setting a meet record with a 1:58.94.

The meet continued today, with chief Jacksonville hopes in the men's 1,500-metre freestyle. National championships in Montreal, Canada and the United States are entered.

BOOGHOWER — In loving memory of a dear father, who passed away May 31, 1968.

Or Mab-love of one-we loved so much.

GRAHAM — In loving memory of a dear husband and father David Ross who died on May 31st, 1974.
Wish would I give to clasp his hand
His dear face to see,
To hear his voice and see his smile.
That meant so much to me.
To walk once more with my husband,
His arm around me when
Life was hard I'd lean on him at last.
And his comfort would be
So you who have a husband and a father, dear,
Treat him with care,
For you'll never know the heartache
Till you see his empty chair.
—Sadly missed and lovingly remembered by wife Gladys and daughter Margaret.

FRY — In loving memory of our dear father, who passed away June 1st, 1962, also our dear mom, who passed away June 1st, 1968.

Keeping an Eye on Creator

Artist George Raczynski takes a siesta Friday on the lawn in front of the Royal Ontario Museum in Toronto, under the ever watchful eye of one of his creations.

Just One Drink a Day Enough For World's Biggest Distiller

MONTREAL (CP) — Allan Bronfman, who helped build the world's biggest distilling and wine company, glanced into the liquor cabinet of his sub-penthouse office.

"It's almost empty," he reported with mock dismay.

He summoned a secretary who soon produced an apparently new bottle in an elaborate package.

"But this bottle is half-empty," Mr. Bronfman exclaimed—such accidents just don't happen in the baronial House of Seagram, earlier home of the worldwide Bronfman empire.

The incident gave Mr. Bronfman a chuckle, but it also prompted the serious observation that for him a half-bottle of whisky goes a long way—he is a man of moderation.

"One drink a day is enough for me," emphasized the non-smoking businessman-lawyer-philanthropist.

He said he is proud that the company is continuing an annually-run advertising campaign instituted in 1934 by his fun-loving brother Samuel on the theme:

"He who make whisky say: drink moderately."

The Bronfman brothers—sons of a Jewish immigrant who helped found Winnipeg's first synagogue—came east in the 1920s and built a distillery here as the first step in an enterprise whose assets climbed to more than $1 billion before Samuel died in 1971.

"Sir Sam," founding president, and "Mr. Allan," founding vice-president, became legendary figures as Seagram Co. Ltd.—its new and shortened title—grew to business volumes of nearly $2 billion.

And now a special kind of celebration is being prepared to mark the 80th birthday of Mr. Allan, who has embraced a set of philanthropies during the last 55 years while helping establish the Bronfman financial dynasty.

Organizers of the unusual tribute say they aim to create lasting projects to honor the "extraordinary" contributions of Mr. Bronfman to the Jewish and non-Jewish worlds, notably in charity, education, culture and health.

The amiable octogenarian, who comes from a long-lived clan, has shortened his workday as a result of a recent bout with pneumonia—in his heyday he rose at 4:30 a.m. to cope with manifold interests.

But he plans to lead an all-Canada delegation to the forthcoming jubilee anniversary of Israel's Hebrew University and he also continues as vice-president and elder statesman of the Seagram firm.

"There is a Jewish salutation 'May you live to be 120,'" he recalled with a smile. "I used to say I would settle for 90. But when you're 80, you're not so ready to settle for 90."

Yigael Yadin, archeologist extraordinary and chief of staff in Israel's victorious war of 1948, will be guest speaker at a tribute dinner for Mr. Bronfman at the Queen Elizabeth hotel June 3.

Sponsors of the tribute also plan:

—A major student housing development for the Hebrew University of Jerusalem. Mr. Bronfman is deputy chairman of the university's international board of governors.

—A fund for medical research at the 700-bed Montreal Jewish General Hospital founded by Mr. Bronfman who served for 35 years as its president, a job now held by Peter, the youngest of his two sons.

—A Jewish Community Foundation fund for projects in medicine, welfare, education and culture.

The House of Seagram sits like a small castle amid Montreal's downtown traffic din in contrast with the Bronfman mansions high on a Westmount hill overlooking the city—the homes of Allan and the late Samuel side by side.

"We've been married 33 years," said Allan affectionately introducing his wife, the former Lucy Bilsky of Ottawa now recovering from surgery.

"When I phoned her on the seventh floor of the Royal Victoria I did not tell her I was on the second floor with pneumonia," he recalled with a grin as he described their recent simultaneous sojourns in hospital.

The two showed a reporter around their home full of elegant objects of art.

The Bronfman philanthropies and fund raisings are recalled by scores of framed scrolls of esteem along with mementos and photographs of such famous persons as Albert Einstein and David Ben-Gurion.

The Bronfmans keep a room always in readiness for visiting members of the family of their only daughter Mona who died at age 36. The name of Mona is commemorated on a Hebrew University amphitheatre. And Mona's daughter Zoe has given Allan and Lucy their first great grandchild, Meadow Rose.

Their sons, Edward, 47, and Peter, 45, majority owners of the Hill, Montreal Canadiens and the Montreal Forum, have made their careers outside the Seagram firm, proprietors of Edper Investments Ltd. and other interests.

Mr. Allan said the Bronfman family still owns the largest block of Seagram shares, roughly 35 per cent, the great bulk being in the CEMP trust established by Mr. Sam on behalf of his four children, Samuel's sons. Edgar M. and Charles R., now are chairman and president respectively of Seagram's.

Allan Bronfman's conversation shows a deep sense of family and also of the Jewish religion. He spoke of his "very pious and father of blessed memory" who came more than 90 years ago from Russia rabia, now part of the Soviet Union, to the Qu'Appelle district of Saskatchewan before moving to Brandon, Man., and settling in Winnipeg.

Edzel and Minnie Bronfman had four daughters, all of whom survive, and four sons. Allan, "the baby," being the only survivor, born in Brandon, he won his last degree at University of Manitoba. He practised law in Winnipeg for five years, teaming up with Samuel in the interprovincial mail-order liquor business of the day.

Man Worked 20 Years Making Ship for Home

MOOSE JAW, Sask. (CP) — The agony of Tom Sukanen is being revived for a museum with the restoration of the vehicle of his anguish—the ship that was to take him home.

A group of senior citizens and the Antique Car Club of Saskatchewan, which operates a pioneer-village museum eight miles south of here, is using a federal New Horizons grant of $8,650 to restore the ship Mr. Sukanen built and hauled 15 miles to the banks of the South Saskatchewan River on what was supposed to be the first leg of his trip back to his native Finland, via Hudson Bay and Greenland.

Bob Jones of Moose Jaw, car club treasurer, said the Finn, who homesteaded at Birsay, Sask., died in 1949 at the age of 65 in a mental institution after 20 years of work on the boat that cost him his health and led his neighbors to believe he was mad.

"The man wouldn't give up his dream of sailing home although he was too weak to finish the project and in the end all he could do was struggle and cry," Mr. Jones said.

The boat is half-restored now and sits in the museum compound surrounded by a pioneer church, a school-house, a store and a sprinkling of restored original farm homes. It was trucked to the museum in 1973.

There's been plenty of enthusiasm as local history buffs learn more and more about the ship's story and "many, many volunteers are just raring to go on this thing as soon as the weather gets decent," Mr. Jones said.

The hull of the ship had sat upside down in a coulee since 1951 and workers had to trim about six inches of rotten wood off its 46-foot-length. The hull stands 24 feet high, including the deck cabin.

Mr. Sukanen made everything himself, including his own tools, some of which have been preserved, and had the ship equipped with a water clock—an "odd contrivance", Mr. Jones said, with dowels and wedges that somehow was to keep time during the ocean voyage.

Mr. Sukanen planned to haul the keel, painted with horse blood to resist rust water, behind the hull until he reached deep water. Mr. Jones said the group restoring the boat plans to display it as if it were in a drydock.

Mr. Sukanen's work was "crude" but effective. He made the ship's boiler, since designed, which was to drive the propeller on the squat-looking, tin-covered boat.

(by Allen Spragett)

The Amazing Alex Tanous

Alex Tanous is unusual in several ways.

First, he's a psychic, a medium. That's pretty good for starters.

Second, he has a string of academic degrees (bachelor and doctorate in philosophy and theology from Boston College and Fordham University) which makes him very different from most psychics.

And third, he is not a spiritualist but a devout Roman Catholic who has taught at Catholic colleges and whose psychic predictions have appeared regularly in church circulars and publications (such as Maine's The Church Weekly).

There's no contradiction between being a faithful Christian and being psychic, Alex Tanous told me recently. "Though some people seem to think there is."

For awhile, Tanous taught theology at St. Anselm's College, a Catholic institution in Manchester, N.H., and says he was "as far removed as possible from the psychic world. But other people felt I was meant and endowed his mentalmindly, he says.

That sort of psychic abilities does Alex Tanous with.

Well, judging by reports this new and others if they come quite a range. He makes predictions, sometimes very specific with pinpoint accuracy. (On January 1, 1971, Tanous predicted in a Canadian newspaper that Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau, a fifty-ish bachelor, would marry before the end of the year. To the surprise of just about everybody, Trudeau did marry suddenly that year.)

On other predictions Tanous has been off, to say the least, right on target. And he went on a hot streak in August, 1971, when he said in print that Senator Edward Kennedy would become President of the United States by 1976. He further predicted that the next pope, after Paul VI, "will be murdered by persons within the Catholic Church".

As evidence that he does have abilities above the ordinary, Alex Tanous points to his experiments with scientists who've tested him and to his successful attempts to solve crimes for the police.

Tanous has worked in a series of experiments with Dr. Karlis Osis, a psychologist who directs research for the respected American Society for Psychical Research in New York. Dr. Osis says that Alex Tanous has shown evidence of a high level of ESP.

In one series of experiments, Dr. Osis tested Tanous' claimed ability to leave his body and project his mind into another room and report what he found there. Results of these tests have been very "intriguing and encouraging," Osis told me, and they are continuing.

In helping solve crimes Tanous seems to act as a sort of human radarscope picking up a signal from the missing person or murder victim or wherever is involved.

In the summer of 1974, Alex Tanous was consulted by Police Chief Herman Boudreau of Freeport, Me., in the case of eight-year-old Johnny Nason who was missing. The police were stumped. Could a psychic like Tanous help?

"I thought that if a lot of big-town police experts listen to psychics, why shouldn't I?" said Chief Boudreau explaining why he turned to ESP.

"We were concentrating on four key suspects at the time, though we didn't tell Tanous. I took him through the apartment house where the boy lived and then drove him around the district. He tried to pick up "impressions".

The "impressions" Alex Tanous got were so strong and specific that he told the police he could tell "you what and his body was in the apartment house where he had lived. The body was wrapped and something and under something," he said.

Then the psychic drew a sketch of his impression of what the boy's murderer looked like.

"When I saw it," said Chief Boudreau, "I immediately pulled out a photograph of Milton Wallace, one of our suspects in the case. Thunderbolt and Wallace were the same person.

"Yet there was no way that Tanous could have known about Wallace."

Police searched the apartment of the 22-year-old janitor who lived just down the hall from the missing Nason boy. They found the boy's decomposed body under the bed wrapped in a sheet.

Wallace was convicted of the crime and in December, 1974, sentenced to life imprisonment.

"Of course," said Chief Boudreau, "we had already talked to Wallace because he had a record of sexual assault on a seven-year-old boy. But Alex Tanous certainly put us on the right track."
